Sent to the Central.

This morning in the police court Fred Baker was sentenced to six months in the Central Prison on a charge of the larceny of a pair of shears from John Steele. Baker, who made a hard fight against being arrested, was also sentenced to six months in the Central for "assaulting a constable while in the discharge of his duties," the sentences to run concurrently. Another young fellow who was also arrested, charged with being an accomplice in the larceny, was acquitted and discharged.

An Old Trial in Kingston.

Rev. Dr. Gardiner, of Belleville, has copy of the Cobourg "Plain Speaker," issued July 17, 1838, and printed on brown paper. It has in it this clipping from the Whig :

"On Friday, Nelson G. Reynolds was put upon his trial, charged with having been the ring leader of a party of men who came down from Hastings to assist in the attack upon Kingston. Owing to great circumspection used by prisoner's counsel, (J. A. Macdonald) the right of challenge was so far used as to obtain a most impartial jury, chosen almost entirely from among the citizens of Kingston. The evidence was loose and given unwillingly, and the result was the acquittal of the prisoner after a very short consultation."—Kingston Whig.

Retiring From Business.

Miss Delaney, who has been carrying on one of the best known and most prosperous millinery establishments of Peterborough, has decided to retire from business. This decision will no doubt be a bit of news which will be learned with surprise and regret by ladies of both town and country, who have, to so large an extent, continued to patronize Miss Delaney's establishment for so many years past. In order to emphasize her determination and to place the matter beyond any doubt, Miss Delaney has commenced a positive clearing sale of her entire first class stock. In view of the fact that the store must be vacated on the 1st of March, only one month is left to dispose of her entire stock. Everything will therefore be cleared out during this month without regard to value or cost. The ladies who know so well how to seize such an opportunity for securing high class millinery goods at bargain prices, will no doubt be eager to avail themselves of this opportunity at the earliest moment—the earlier the better. The stock, which has always been a most desirable one, includes many of the latest novelties purchased recently, such as fancy vellinas, new flowers, new violets, now so much worn, together with all the elegant patterns of mantles, bonnets, hats, laces, fancy silk, trimmings, feathers, ribbons, ornaments, etc. Further announcements to follow. d

PERSONAL.

Mr. Geo. Matthews was in town yesterday.

Mrs. and Miss Carruthers, of Norwood, are visiting at the Temperance House, Hunter street.

Major Sam Hughes, M.P., was re-nominated yesterday as the Conservative candidate for North Victoria.

Mrs. J. A. Raymond and daughter, of Plainfield, N.J., have returned to town and are registered at the Grand Central.

Mr. W. M. Green left this morning to attend the funeral of his nephew, Mr. Kenneth Campbell, a popular resident of Simcoe county.

Mr. R. H. Leary this morning received a despatch announcing the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. Christopher Leary, at Minden. He has gone to Minden in answer to the sad intelligence.

The Millbrook Reporter says : "Mr. Hugh Waddell, of Peterborough, was in town on Tuesday, and made the Reporter a call. Mr. W. looks as fresh and sprightly as a spring robin, although he is absent from his old surroundings."

On Wednesday evening Mr. J.J. Turner, who was accompanied by his son, Webber, arrived home from a very pleasant two months' visit in England. He left his mother, whose ill health accounted largely for his journey, much improved. They had a fine passage over by the Oregon, of the Dominion line, and last Saturday arrived in Halifax just in time to escape the terrific storm that began that day. While in England, Mr. Turner took large orders for his special line of goods, tents, awnings, etc.

THE FAST MAIL.

At the Opera House on Tuesday Night Next.

The EXAMINER of June 5th, 1893, says of the "Fast Mail" on its appearance here at that time :—"Lincoln J. Carter's magnificent scenic production, "The Fast Mail," appeared at the opera house on Saturday night before a large house. This is the second time this season that "The Fast Mail" has been produced in Peterborough and on each occasion has scored an enviable success. The plot is an interesting one and the play is sufficiently relieved by a liberal amount of humour and humourous incidents—even at the most important climaxes—that it holds the undivided attention of the auditors from act to act. The scenic effects and embellishments are marvellous and everything advertised was shown with a realism and a naturalness, quite incredible. The applause which followed the wreck of the St. Louis in mid river was well won, the sight of the engine room, a full-sized freight train and a lightning fast mail train crossing the stage in the full gaze of the audience, were splendid revelations of stage craft. The pretty and bewildering spectacle of "Niagara Falls" by moonlight with the mist arising, will not soon be forgotten. The acting of the members of the company was fully up to the average, and the different parts were well balanced.

The Register and the Belmont Printing.

Our large-hearted and generous contemporary, the Norwood Register, considers the matter of a few dollars of township printing worthy to be the basis of a half-column article, whose most remarkable feature is its more or less incorrectness in almost every statement. A newspaper whose editorial mouth is closed by the patronage it receives from both parties, has very little reason to pose as a reader of lessons on business etiquette. The simple fact in connection with the Belmont printing is that the EXAMINER's tender was lower than that of the Register, and that the reeve awarded the contract to the higher tender of the Register by his casting vote. If the reeve and the people of Belmont think the EXAMINER was treated fairly, the EXAMINER has no objection. At such a rate of procedure, it will not take the reeve long to demonstrate the full extent of his usefulness.

Junior C. E. Social.

Last evening a very successful social was held in the school room by the Junior C.E. of St. Andrew's church. Tea was served from 5.30 to 6.30, when the children to the number of one hundred enjoyed themselves in various games until 7.30 Miss Ella White, the Superintendent, and Miss Quinn, of St. Paul's junior C.E., and a number of others helped to make it pleasant for the juniors. The following programme was then rendered :

Recitation	Aggie Patterson
Solo	Birdie Dawson
Recitation	Lena Richardson
Solo	Percy McIsaacs
Recitation	Percy Blade
Duet	Aggie and Holly VanEvery
Recitation	Willie Richardson
Solo	Lottie Porter
Recitation	Eveline Merrison
Solo	Leslie Murray
Recitation	Ruth Dawson
Solo	Rev. A. MacWilliams

At the conclusion of the programme the Rev. A. MacWilliams treated the boys and girls to apples and oranges. A most enjoyable evening for the juniors was then brought to a close by singing "Praise God From Whom all Blessings Flow" and the benediction.

HOCKEY.

The Peterboroughs are in splendid shape to meet the crack hockey team from the Toronto branch of the Bank of Toronto at the rink to-morrow evening. Doubtless there will be a large crowd of spectators present to witness what promises to be a fast match.

The third game in the town league series was played at the rink last night between the Second team of the Volts and the first seven of the Collegiate Institute. The two teams lined up as follows :

Volts.		Collegiate.
J Kelly	Goal	J Hamilton
E Hall	Point	C Fergusette
J King	Cover Point	T Bradburn
H McIntosh	Forwards	B Crossley
E E Lord		R Davidson
J Hicks		E Bellegham
B Claxton	Umpire	S Adams

W Phelan, Referee.

Game.	Team.	Scorer.
1st game	Collegiate	Bellegham
2nd "	"	Crossley
3rd "	"	Bellegham
4th "	Volts	Lord
5th "	"	McIntosh

The score therefore stood 3—2 in favour of the Collegiate Institute team. The game was a fast one, although the Institute boys didn't do as well as expected, losing their heads in some unaccountable manner. Usually the Collegia'e team puts up a very smooth game indeed and work a splendid combination, but there was little of this last evening. The Second team of the Volts stayed with their opponents gamely, and if the game had lasted longer, the score would have, without doubt, increased on the Volts' side anyway, whether it did on the other or not.

Crossley, Bellegham and Davidson worked hard on the Collegiate team and McIntosh, Lord and Kelly did well for the Volts. There was a large crowd of spectators present.

The first and second teams of the Volts are scheduled to play between five and six o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

CURLIANA.

Three rinks of the Granites went up to Lakefield yesterday to play the village curlers, and were defeated by 14 shots. The ice, the local men say, was very poor, and not being accustomed to the rink they had no control over their stones. The score was as follows :

Lakefield.	Peterborough.

The Belleville Intelligencer of yesterday says : Two rinks of colts from the local curling club went to Cambellford yesterday afternoon to play their first game of the series between Peterborough, Campbellford and Belleville for a trophy. The local men were in hopes of defeating their northern opponents, as they had done on two previous occasions, but as soon as they had tried the ice they realized that they had a hard row to hoe. The ice was sticky, and it was as much as the best of our men could do to get up to the tee. The Campbellford men played heavier stones, and had the advantage of knowing the force necessary to "get up." Following are the rinks and the result :

RINK NO. 1.

Belleville.	Campbellford.
W Brown,	C A Smith,
H Smart,	J Y Routh,
E H LaRoche	R Lowrey,
J F Wills, sk..... 8	F J Smith, sk..... ..17

Frank Lewis,	D L Lynch,
J A McFee,	J C Fowlds,
W W Pope, sk.....6	A E Jewett, sk.....10
14	36

Majority for Campbellford, 22.

The Campbellford players took the lead at the start and gained steadily for a time, but towards the end of the game our curlers were overhauling them. The local men seemed in hard luck throughout the game, as time after time they would have four or five stones in the rings, but Campbellford would succeed in getting in shot. The game was sixteen ends.

After the game the visitors were entertained to an oyster supper and spent a most enjoyable evening.

The return game will be played here to-morrow (Friday) night and the Belleville curlers hope to turn the tables on the Campbellford men."

The Lindsay Watchman says : "On Saturday the collegiate teachers of Peterborough will play a friendly game against the teachers of our collegiate. The Lindsay team will be composed of Messrs. E. A. Hardy, J. T. Harrington, W. H. Stevens and J. C. Harstone."

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

To those deeply interested in the welfare of the Association, last night's conference must have been an encouragement. We are sorry that every member of the Ministerial Association and the Board of Directors was not able to be present. After an excellent supper provided by the ladies, who are always so willing to co-operate with us in our work, an interesting conference was held in the parlour. The field of work was viewed, present methods discussed, and new suggestions offered. Several of the workers were in prayer and conference up to 10 o'clock. Practical results will follow this conference.

The hour for the workers class to-night is 7.15 and not 7.30.

TRUE MERIT.

Always Insures Success—One More Proof of the Truth of This Saying.

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—It doesn't take Canadians long to find out when they have got hold of a good thing, and they always patronize anything of merit liberally, too. That the people of Canada have taken hold of Dodd's Kidney Pills is proved by the evidence of the dealers who handle them. The heads of the three largest wholesale drug houses in Toronto to-day told your reporter that no preparation was in such great demand at the present time as these pills, and they ascribed as the reason of this that the pill had never yet failed to cure a case of Kidney disease.

Do You Paint?

We have made special arrangements with the largest artists' material house in Canada for the exclusive sale of their superior artists' material in Peterborough. They have exchanged the stock on hand for a brand-new supply of their newest colours. CHARLOTTE STREET METHODIST CHURCH.

THE ANNUAL MEETING HELD AND REPORTS RECEIVED.

The Different Branches of Church Work are All Progressing in Their Various Departments—Representatives Appointed to the Quarterly Board.

Great numbers of the members of the congregation of Charlotte street Methodist church assembled Wednesday evening to hear the reading of the annual reports. The chair was occupied by the pastor, Rev. J. J. Rae, who read the financial statement as follows :

The total cash receipts from all sources during 1894 had been $3,844.43, made up as follows :

Envelope and plate collections up to 30th Sept	$1,542 70
Plate collections, 1st Oct to 31st Dec	91 54

Sustentation	4 00
	$3,844 43

The assets of the church were placed at $19,267.17 and the liabilities at $11,596.66.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The report of the secretary of the Sunday school, Mr. W. G. Morrow, was an encouraging one and read as follows :—

The year 1894 shows a continued and marked advancement in the growth and progress of the school. The attendance has been the largest in the history of the school. The total number of scholars on the roll is 360, an increase of 25; with an average attendance of 258, an increase of 29; the largest attendance on any one Sunday was 319, the smallest 181. There were two teachers added to the staff, making a total of teachers and officers 36, with an average attendance of 31. This is an improvement over 1893 average of 27. The number of verses recited during the year was 14,256, or an average each Sunday of 296. The average collections were $6.36, the largest on any one Sunday $4.66, and the smallest $2.42. There is a marked increase in this respect. Mr. Giles' class is entitled to first place for having recited the greatest number of verses the greatest number of times. The classes having the highest collection the greatest number of Sundays was as follows :—Girls, Mr. Cluxton's class, 13 Sundays ; boys, Miss Gourd's class, 24 Sundays. In the beginning of the beginning of the year we purchased a new library complete, consisting of about eight hunded volumes, at a cost of $350, and we now have one of the best equipped libraries in the province. An orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Miller, has been secured to lead the singing and adds greatly to the effectiveness of the services of the school.

RECEIPTS OF SCHOOL.

The receipts of the school had been as follows :—

Balance on hand Jan. 1st, 1894	$299 08
Sunday collections	169 33
Missionary collections	28 77
Christmas tree entertainment	39 21
Library card subscription	88 93
Proceeds of picnic	30 76
Proceeds of anniversary	12 66
Interest on deposit	86
	$649 60

After paying expenses there was a balance on hand of $59.13.

The election of representative to the resulted in the selection of Messrs. T. H. Gourd, D. D. C. Dawe, S. D. Carver, G. May, J. McCreary, W. J. Green and Thos. J. Main.

QUARTERLY BOARD

The Quarterly Board is also composed of Messrs. J. L. Hughes, Jas. Stevenson, M. P., R. Nell, Felix Browscombe, John Hart, Dr. Morrison, who are stewards appointed by the pastor. Messrs. Isaac Richardson, James Sutherland, Joseph Batten, R. J. Kidd, and Rev. J. J. Rae are also members of the Board. The recording steward is Mr. A. L. Davis, and Dr. Morrison is treasurer.

TRUSTEE BOARD.

The Trustee Board is composed of Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, M. P., J. L. Hughes, Wm. Cluxton, A. L. Davis, Giles Webber and Jos. Batten. Mr. R. Neill is treasurer of this Board, and Mr. Felix Brownscombe, secretary.

The Envelope Committee consists of Messrs. T. H. Gourd, D. D. C. Dawe, W. H. Hamilton and J. L. Hughes.

Mr. J. L. Hughes is the pew steward of the church ; Mrs. Chas. McClelland, organist ; Mr. A. L. Davis, choirmaster.

MISSIONARY COLLECTORS.

The missionary collectors were chosen as follows :

North District—Mrs. Bacon and Mrs. Adamson.

South District—Mrs. Lyle and Miss Sherlock.

Country District—Mrs. Allum and Mrs. Carver.

Before the meeting was closed votes of thanks were extended to Mrs. Hamilton, the choir, the ushers, Messrs. W. H. Hamilton, T. J. Barrie, Percy Hamilton, W. G. Morrow, and several officers of the church.

INSPECTOR GARVIN'S ENGAGEMENT CEASES

BY RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

To Take Effect on April 30th—The Board Adopted the Report of the Committee on Appointments, Requesting the Mr. Garvin to Resign—He Absolutely Refuses—Official Notice of Termination of Engagement—Business at the Board Meeting — Inspector Seath's Highly Satisfactory Report — The Collegiate Institute in Fine Form.

A special meeting of the Committee on Appointments of the Board of Education was held last night in the Board room at 7.30 p.m., to consider the circumstances arising from the request of the committee for Mr. Garvin's resignation not later than last evening. There were present all the members of the Board, who comprise the Committee on Appointments.

For some time there has been considerable dissatisfaction felt by members of the Board, in respect of Inspector Garvin's fitness for judiciously and effectively, with a view to all interests, discharging the duties of his position.

At a meeting of the Committee of Appointments held about six months ago, the decision to ask for Mr. Garvin's resignation was practically arrived at, but the matter was held in abeyance in order to give the Inspector every possible chance to regain the ground he had lost in the confidence of the Board. But the Board seeing that matters did not mend, and their confidence in the Inspector growing less every day, a meeting was held on January 18th, at which, after careful consideration of all the matters involved in the question, a report was practically unanimously recommended, asking for the Inspector's resignation, to take effect on June 30th prox. This decision was arrived at with a view of promoting

THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE SCHOOLS.

The resignation not having been received on the date asked for—last night—a meeting of the Committee on Appointments was called last night at 7.30 o'clock at the Board Room to consider what course to pursue under the circumstances. Mr. Garvin was heard before the committee and made a lengthy defence of his position, but absolutely and positively refused to tender his resignation.

This committee meeting was private and it was not considered to be either in the interests of the school, or of the inspector, to permit a report of the proceedings to be made. Therefore the invariable practice of excluding the reporters from all committee meetings was followed in this case.

After a full discussion of the matter it was quite evident that the Board was compelled to decline to accept Mr. Garvin at his own appraisement, and was equally compelled, in the interests of education, to insist on the letter requesting his resignation, being literally complied with.

The chairman, Dr. Burnham, having called a special meeting of the Board to give effect to the resolution of the committee, the Board met and, after dealing with some accounts, adopted the report of the committee giving three month's notice of the termination of the Inspector's engagement, to take effect on April 30th, as provided for in the articles of agreement made when the Inspector was engaged.

Immediately after the resolution was passed the secretary of the Board handed Mr. Garvin the official notice of the termination of his engagement on April 30th. The following is the report of the proceedings of the Board.

Mr. Hill, chairman, presented the following report of the Committee on Appointments which was adopted:—

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report that a meeting of the committee was held on the 18th day of January, inst., for the purpose of considering the relations at present existing between the Board of Education and Inspector Garvin.

It was felt by the committee that it was absolutely necessary, in the interest of the public schools, that the Inspector and the Board should be able to work together in harmony, and that the constant friction which has existed for a very considerable time, and which has now become chronic, can only be terminated by Mr. Garvin's resignation.

The chairman of the committee was therefore directed to ask Mr. Garvin to hand in his resignation by the 31st instant, to take effect upon the 30th of June next.

A subsequent meeting of your committee was held this evening for the purpose of further considering the matter, when it was decided, that whereas the Inspector has not handed in his resignation, though requested to do so by an almost unanimous decision of this committee, composed of the whole Board, that the Board be recommended, and the committee accordingly do now recommend, that the engagement of Inspector Garvin be terminated upon the 30th day of April next, and that notice to that effect be given to him according to the terms of his contract.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL,
Chairman.

A SPLENDID REPORT.

The following report on the Collegiate Institute was received from Inspector Seath, but owing to the lateness of the hour was not presented.

The following extract from the report of Inspector Seath on his visit to the Collegiate Institute on Jan. 23—24 was received last night, but not presented to the Board:

ACCOMMODATION.

1, water closets, II; 2 water supply, II; 3 school grounds, III; 4 school buildings, III; 5 class rooms, II; 6 halls, I; 7 waiting rooms, II; 8 cap rooms, I; 9 teachers' private rooms, I; 10 desks, I; 11 blackboards, III; 12 lighting, II; 13 heating, I; 14 ventilation I.

1. The blackboards are very much out of repair. They should be regularly recoated. Once every three months would probably be sufficient. The waiting rooms have not yet been plastered.

SEPTEMBER.

Value of [illegible]

former in particular, are much needed. At present the work in botany cannot be carried on with the required convenience and efficiency.

ORGANIZATION.

1. Subjects on the programme not taught—The optional subjects. 2. Provision made for teaching: (a) Writing—Sufficient; (b) reading—sufficient; (c) Drill, Calisthenics and Gymnastics: A little less in each form than that required by the Reg's, but the deficiency is compensated for by the small sizes of the classes. The Drill master should be provided with a register, and should report absentees and cases of lateness; (d) Other subjects: Ample. 3. Division of duties among teachers, and 4. Ratio of pupils to teachers: The division of duties amongst the teachers is now excellent. As to 4, see remarks on "Chemistry" below.

CHARACTER OF THE TEACHING.

1. English, I; 2. mathematics, I; 3. science see below; 4. classics, I.; 5 French and German, I.; 6. commercial, I—II; 7. drawing, I: 8. drill, calisthenics and gymnastics, I.

The lower grade of 5 is due to the absence of stenography. Mr. Drope's work is highly satisfactory. It would be well if boys intended for business men were taught the elements of stenography.

The Science teacher can do excellent work, but the class in Chemistry is twice the size it should be. It should consist of two divisions, and, if possible, the Principal should increase the amount of time given to the subject. As I have already pointed out, three microscopes are needed.

The grading under each head, ranges as follows:—I, good; II, fair; III poor, and IV, bad.

MISCELLANEOUS.

1. Staff: All legally qualified.
2. Discipline: Excellent.
3. Attendance: All duly admitted except one for whose admission application has been made to the Education Department. One other has been provisionally admitted.
4. Text-books: All authorized.
5. Registers: Daily, satisfactory; General, satisfactory.
6. Supplementary Reading in English Literature: Satisfactory provision.
7. Character of the pupils' work in Forms I and II in (a) Reading: (1) Last class of Entrants: Of 54 examined, 16 are good, 20 fair, 16 poor and 2 bad. (2) Other Pupils: Of 51 examined, 26 are good, 23 fair, 20 poor and 2 bad. Much improvement has been made in this subject since my last visit. Mr. O'Brien's teaching is very satisfactory.

(b) Writing: (1) Last class of Entrants: General character of work, excellent. (2) Other pupils: General character of work, excellent. As the pupils who entered in September have been under Mr. Drope since then the excellence of the writing is largely due to him. Some of the preparatory schools do not seem to have adopted the system in use in the Institute. This is to be regretted.

(c) Book-keeping: Amount, satisfactory; standard, satisfactory.

(b) Drawing: Amount, satisfactory; standard, satisfactory.

I can but repeat in this report the very favourable opinion I expressed in my last. From being one of the poorest Institutes, the Peterborough Institute has become one of the very best. I hope when three years after this I visit the school again I shall find it in quarters, and with grounds as excellent as is the work done by the staff.

Date of Inspection, Jan. 22nd-24th, 1895.

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

On account of the heavy snowfall on Friday night and Saturday, the trains were blocked and we got no mails on Saturday, a thing that has not happened before for twelve years.

Do not fail to hear the "Queen of Elocution," Sara Lord Bailey, who will give one of her inimitable recitals, assisted by local talent, in the town hall, Keene, on Friday, Feb. 8th. Buy your tickets early and secure a reserved seat. Admission 25c.

A hockey match, Keene vs. Collegiate Institute, will be played in the skating rink on Saturday evening, Feb. 2nd, from 7 to 8 p.m. Admission 10c.

The Keene Skating Rink Co. are noted for good carnivals, and the one held by them on Friday evening, Jan. 25th, was no exception to the rule. The rink was crowded to the door, probably nearly 400 people were present. A large number appeared in costume and some of the costumes were really handsome. People were present from Peterborough, Norwood, Hastings, Westwood and Bailleboro. As usual a large number who appeared in costume neglected handing in their names and the character represented, so a full list of costumers cannot be given. The following are a few of them:

Eye on the Joke Trade.

A young writer asks me: "Who writes the humorous paragraphs for the big morning papers of New York? They must be very prolific writers, and I do not see how they can think of so many things for 365 days in the year."

Everybody writes them. It is not a member of the staff who does the humorous paragraphs of a metropolitan paper generally. About fifty bright writers in New York, connected with other publications very often, buy cigars with their joke money. Each week they write twenty to fifty of these paragraphs, and then taking them in their market basket go out and dispose of them.

They go to the keenest editor first, and he takes what suits him. Then they go to one who is a little less alert with what is left, and so on till the lot is disposed of. It would be amusing to give here the order in which the different papers are arranged in the mind of the joke writer and the name of the last editor they go to, but I do not care do it here, though I have been let into the secret by friends who are in the business.—Bill Nye, in the New York World.

Calming an Angry Sea.

It is now proposed to substitute for oil on an angry sea a thin cotton or silk net to lessen the danger to a vessel.

To Prevent Cold Feet.

Do you have cold feet? If so, don't increase the thickness of your stockings, but the size of your shoes. The most important rule to follow to obtain warm feet is never to be tightly shod.

Boots or shoes that fit closely prevent the free circulation of the blood by pressure, but when, on the contrary, they do not embrace the foot too firmly, the space left between the shoe and the stocking has a good supply of warm air.

The second rule is never to sit in damp shoes. It is often supposed that unless shoes are positively wet it is unnecessary to change them while the feet are at rest. This is a great fallacy, for when the least dampness is present in the sole its evaporation it absorbs the heat from the foot, and thus perspiration is dangerously checked. This can easily be proved by trying the experiment of neglecting the rule. The feet will be found cold and damp after a few minutes, although on taking off the shoe and examining it, it will appear to be quite dry.

Storage Reservoir in Egypt.

The great storage reservoir to be built by the English on the Upper Nile, so as to regulate and control the flow of the river and render available for cultivation thousands of acres of new land, was seriously objected to by all lovers of antiquity in the civilized world because it would submerge the ruins of the temple at Philæ. A modification of the plan has now been made by the Egyptian Ministry of Public Works, by which the dam will be built 26 feet lower than at first proposed, so that only the lower part of the island, with some unimportant ruins, will be under water. This will supply enough water for either Middle or Lower Egypt, but not for both. The need of a reservoir is said to be urgent, as the demands of cultivators for water now exceed the supply.

To Flavor Beef Tea.

The convalescent who has to depend largely on beef tea for food and drink grows very tired of its flavor. A trained nurse suggests the using of different flavors, such as a bay leaf, a bit of mace, a clove, or a sprinkle of celery salt.

Why Can't We All Do It?

The director of a Chicago bank tells about how his wife overdrew her account at the bank last month. "I spoke to her about it one evening," says he, "and told her she ought to adjust it at once. A day or two afterward, I asked her if she had done what I suggested. 'Oh, yes,' she answered; 'I attended to that matter the very next morning after you spoke to me about it. I sent the bank my check for the amount I had overdrawn!'"

Own a Good Piano

It costs but a trifle more to own a good piano, like the "Rheimer," the "Morris," the "Heintzman" or the "Mendelssohn." The difference in cost is not for one day, or one month, or one year. It's worth five dollars a year for ten years to have exactly what you want. Just think it over. Have a talk with Mr. J. W. Crosby, of 343 Water street, Peterboro, for these four first-class pianos. KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

THE TELEPHONIC PROBE.

DESCRIPTION OF ONE OF THE LATEST TOOLS FOR SURGEONS.

This Instrument Detects a Bullet by Electricity and Then Extracts the Head—This and the Diamond Drill Valuable in Effecting Cures in Epilepsy.

The modern surgeon must be something of a practical mechanic. He is required to handle a large number of delicate and complicated tools and he must understand how mechanism may aid in securing the best results. The recent great advances in surgery have been made possible very largely by the discovery of new mechanical appliances, which have in nearly every instance been the invention of surgeons.

Many surgeons by the invention of a single instrument have instantly acquired celebrity which years of work in the simple practice of their profession would not have achieved. Their names are forever linked with these inventions, which are adopted everywhere when known, and that is practically the only compensation of the inventor, it being a settled rule of the profession that such discoveries shall be for the benefit of mankind.

One of the most important recent inventions of this nature is the telephonic probe, the discovery of Dr. Wells, a surgeon in the United States service. This probe is designed for use in the cure of epilepsy, the strange malady which has so long puzzled the medical profession. It had been recognized that epilepsy was in many cases the result of the presence of a foreign substance in the brain, such as a sliver of skull or a piece of a bullet. But operation among the tissues of the brain in the effort to find such a substance was dangerous work, from which many surgeons shrunk, though it was justified in extreme cases.

To poke an instrument about the interior folds of the brain in the effort to find a small fragment of foreign substance was not only dangerous, but in most cases fruitless. This has now been obviated by the telephonic probe, which instantly tells the operator when he has touched the foreign substance, and then, by an ingenious mechanical arrangement, the probe, without being moved from its position, opens and grasps the fragment, which is quickly removed. In connection with the diamond drill for operation on the skull, this discovery has enormously advanced brain surgery.

A wonderful instrument is the "telephonic probe." It combines the utmost nicety of mechanical compactness with the most recent developments of electrical science. It consists of three parts. First, there is the probe, which is gently insinuated through the tissues; second, a little pocket battery connected with the ear-piece, and third, the ear-piece itself, which is exactly like the corresponding part of a telephone.

It is used in this way: The flap is cut with the Pyle drills and turned back. Then the chain which dangles from the probe is screwed into one of the keys which projects from the ear-piece, and the hand piece for the operator is similarly connected with another key in the ear-piece.

The surgeon then takes the probe in the right hand, puts the ear-piece to his ear, and gently presses the probe through the delicate tissues of the brain until it touches the foreign body, bone or bullet, as it may be. The minute this contact is accomplished quite a distinct sound is carried through the circuit to the operator's ear. By an ingenious device a pair of teeth are projected on each side of the end of the probe, and take immediate hold of the foreign substance thus found, which can be deftly drawn out of the wound.

The detective and extractive powers of this apparatus are said to be infallible and the extraordinary fineness of its work is particularly serviceable in the brain whose tissues are so easily damaged, and where, naturally, the very least amount of laceration is desirable.

These are the instruments which will doubtless supersede all others in the removal of foreign bodies from the brain. Dr. Girdner invented a telephonic probe quite similar to Dr. Wells' probe, but this instrument had no battery attached to it and relied for the completion of its magnetic circuit upon the proportionately trifling amount of the electric fluid always present in the human body itself.

The success of operations upon the brain for epilepsy is truly startling. Victor Horsley, the great London surgeon-specialist, recently reported a case where one patient had 2,870 epileptic convulsions in thirteen days, and completely recovered, not only from the operation performed by these instruments, but also from his terrible malady. Dr Horsley had removed a diseased portion of the brain, the result of an old depressed fracture of the skull.

Operations upon the brain have thus far been performed only in those cases in which there is either the distinct scar of a wound indicating either the passage of a bullet or the site of a depressed fracture of the skull. Or in those other instances in which twitching of the thumb or arm or leg affords a clue to that "motor-centre" in the brain which is the apparent seat of trouble.

But it is not at all unlikely that the day will soon dawn when a more careful study of symptoms and a more thorough knowledge of the relations existing between brain causes and symptomatic effect will enable those great men who wield the probe and the chisel and the scalpel to operate upon that so far vague series of cases in which the only premonitory symptom of an epileptic fit is the sudden falling of the patient upon the floor unconscious.

He Won the Bet.

Old John Langley, the veteran horseman, is better known to old Worcester sporting men than any man living. Stories of his eccentric career are innumerable. He often complained of being "done" in betting. As a matter of fact, he "did" his adversaries in the sporting world oftener than they did him.

One day he called at the store of a tailor and stated in his usual loud and emphatic way—for his conversation was always highly flavored with the tabasco of profanity—that he "wanted a pair of breeches. And I want the best stuff in the store, no matter what the —— color." The tailor was a little bewildered, but finally showed Langley the most costly material in the shop, a beautiful silky broadcloth. That this was unsuitable for trousers made no difference to him. "I want it," said he, "and I want it made up wrong side out." The tailor expostulated in vain and the trousers were made and delivered.

A friend called on Langley and remarked on the trousers in uncomplimentary language. Langley said he was satisfied. More guying resulted in the old man offering to bet $25 that the cloth cost more a yard than that in his friend's trousers. The bet was taken and the tailor was to decide it. He named the price. The friend would not believe that the rough goods could be so costly until he was shown the shiny, silky other side. Then he paid, as did other men on similar bets. That was what the old man had bought the trousers for.—Worcester Gazette.

How to Mail a Postage Stamp.

How many people know how to mail a stamp in a letter? Nine people out of ten stick it so carefully down that the recipient always loses his temper, and generally the stamp, in the effort to release it. It is really more exasperating than when the sender forgets altogether the stamp he should have inclosed, for then, at least, it is not wasted. Even the most extravagant of us seldom have souls above saving a stamp, for it is, strangely, far dearer to us than the 5 cents it represents. The tenth person sends it loose, which is well enough, providing it does not slip out unseen and vanish, as these totally depraved small things have a habit of doing. The proper way is a very simple one. Cut with a sharp penknife two parallel slits at the top of your letter and slip in your stamps, which will thus travel as safely as if in a special paper case. Perhaps you have been in a country village where money orders and postal notes are unknown, and for some reason it becomes necessary to send change in a letter. Cut a piece of light cardboard the size of the envelope, and from this cut circular pieces the size of your coins. Insert the coins and paste a slip of paper across one or both sides.—Demorest Magazine.

RISE OF THE READY-MADE.

How Women's Garments Are Following Shoes and Men's Clothes.

The rise of the ready-made garment for women, and its popularity, may have been slow, but it certainly has been sure. Ready made gowns for women—as ready-made suits for men—have come and promise to stay.

A trip through the leading dry goods stores of the city, recently made in quest of a gown that needs must be modish in cut and cloth and yet in price not beyond the limitations of a pocketbook far from being "heaped up, pressed down and running over," revealed more fully than I had ever thought how wise it was to regard the ready-made garments as the salvation of many a woman's neatness and tidy, and even stylish appearance; and how they have often rescued her—just in the nick of time, too—from the awful and much-to-be-dreaded state of shabbiness.

When Annie Besant lectured in America not long ago, it so happened the night I went to hear her that among other things she said, in very plain language, too, was that the woman who would buy and wear the garments that were sold in the shops at such low figures, which were only made possible by the women who constructed them being underpaid, was—well, what she thought Madame Annie almost hesitated herself to say. It so happened that to make the very best appearance I could that same evening I had donned a gown regarding the becomingness of which I felt no doubt and whose price caused me no bittter little darts of regret. For I had really gotten it at what I considered quite a "bargain," and it was wholly and altogether pleasing. Madam Besant's remarks, though, caused me to feel something very like a twinge of conscience, I must confess, but I gave the folds of my skirt another and more loving pat as I readjusted them, an though: "Well, women only can help women after all; and so long as such garments are made, the more sale found for them the more work for others to do; and though the laborer may be more than worthy the hire she receives, still poor pay is even better than none." Thus reasoning I consoled myself; and the ready-made gowns have proved so satisfactory that to recommend them to the trial of others comes almost involuntarily.

The busy woman, no matter how deft her fingers may be in fashioning garments for herself, had better economize in some way or other than bending over seams and ruffles and such like "fixings" when her strength is needed along other lines of work the next day and the day after. Of course, she wants to "look nice."

Cheap, chic and stylish are soul-inspiring and heart-cheering words to the woman in quest of new raiment, and garments answering to all this, and more, abound in the stores at this midwinter season, when the styles are well established, with little change, except in detail and accessories, until spring opens.

Among the ready-made garments, besides the stylish cloth gowns, which the appellation "swell" fittingly describes, are to be found all manner of mysterious combines of muslin and lace, silk and wool, velvet and furs. These things usually have tacked onto them, in some odd corner or other, a mark that hints at foreign origin. But I have been assured that the most of them have never had a sea voyage. And so we, who have a little pet hobby about "home industry" need not hesitate to purchase them on that score, and those who adore French and other importations can easily forget that this little secret has been let out, and can still believe in them, if they feel inclined to, and no one will be any the wiser either.

The winter fashions have known the most exaggerated forms, and appear to have exceeded their limit, for a reaction has set in, and now we discover there is really more beauty and jauntiness in the short jackets than there was in the long, English, Prince Albert style of coated costume worn earlier in the season.

The possibilities of appearing well and appropriately dressed by the woman who is the fortunate possessor of a handsome skirt, and a variety of waists, are limitless. The newest skirts are of enormous width. The fashion of wearing skirts and waists of entirely different material and color is a great boon to women who want variety in costuming.

The ideal ready-made skirt is quite plain, the elaboration being all confined to the waist. The fullness of this skirt is all arranged at the back in godet folds, and such skirts come in all grades of material. The heavy, shaggy or corrugated materials stand highest in favor for ordinary wear. A black crepon is looked upon, however, as indispensable to most wardrobes. The camel's hair weaves are exceptionally pretty.

With the death of Mrs. Bloomer, a few days ago, one was almost tempted to wish would come the last and final talk of the ungraceful style of dress bearing her name. There is no reason in the world, though why women should not be equipped for out-door sports in a garb allowing freedom of movement, and that, too, without any sacrifice of her modesty and with all due regard to her womanliness.

An illustration is given here which I am much inclined to believe will be accepted by women as the ideal garment for wear during all out-of-door sports.

The trousers are zouave in shape, and extend to the ankles. They are finished at the feet with elastic bands, which adjust them comfortably to the limbs. They can be fastened around the ankle or below the knee, as shown in above cut. The trousers close with buttons, and can be as easily removed as an ordinary skirt. The skirt is skillfully adjusted and permanently fastened to the waistband of the trousers, and opens at the side, on the hip line. This allows the front to unclose and fall about eight inches at the waist when being put on. As a bicycle garment it is of exceptional merit, and when worn on the street the skirt is of very stylish appearance. These garments are the newest of their kind, and come in cloth of not too heavy weight for comfort, and are sold at $10 and less.—Dorcas Dare.

A TRIO OF HAPPY CITIZENS.

Effectively Cured of Indigestion and Nervous Troubles By South American Nervine—No Trifling With Disease—This Medicine Cures at the Nerve Centers and thus Effects a Certain Cure—Never Fails in Cases of Indigestion, Weakness and Nervous Prostration.

"In a multitude of counsellors there is safety," said a wise man centuries ago. A multitude of counsellors testify that South American Nervine cures disease and removes suffering as no other medicine will do. In these pages, from week to week, has appeared the testimony of well known people—men and women, in all parts of the Dominion, telling in distinct and thankful terms what this wonderful discovery has done for them. A large volume would be needed to contain all the evidence that comes to the discoverer of this medicine.

This talk is to-day illustrated with faces of three well known people who add their testimonials to the others. Here we have Mr. H. H. Darroch, of Mount Forest, who found himself weak to desperation after an attack of la grippe. South American Nervine was the only medicine to be found that gave him back his former strength.

Mr. Thomas Sullivan, a second figure in the group, was a sufferer for a number of years with aggravated indigestion. He had been treated by several doctors, with very little benefit. A friend recommended South American Nervine, and after taking a few bottles he has found himself completely relieved of swelling of stomach and other disagreeable evidences of indigestion. In a brief sentence, he says—"it has cured me."

Mr. Noble Wright, of Orangeville, was a sufferer for a long period with indigestion and sluggish liver, these culminating in gastric and nasal catarrh. Doctors and doctors' medicines were unavailing to cure. Having taken only two bottles of South American Nervine he found himself greatly benefited, and after six bottles had been used he is cured.

Baffled though doctors often are with disease, when the root trouble is discovered a cure is not difficult. Here rests the entire success of South American Nervine. Certain nerves control entirely the stomach, liver and all the internal organs of the body. Let these become weakened and disease follows and will continue until strength is given to these nerve centers. The motor power is centered there. Attempts to heal an organ is only patchwork of the worst kind and cannot possibly be effective. South American Nervine heals at the nerve centres, and for this reason people, after having tried doctors and doctors' medicines without success, because the effort is only to give temporary relief, find it effects an absolute, positive and unmistakeable cure.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Papa,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,
They gave us every one, a kiss,
And said, "be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home,
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which sees the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

MISS MASSIE STRONG IN HER BICYCLE COSTUME.

There are some exceptions, however, and among these perhaps the most picturesque seen on a recent occasion was that worn by Miss Massie Strong, one of the most graceful riders belonging to the Michaux. The skirt was of dark brown cloth, and was kilted. It met the long russet leggings just below the knees. An Eton jacket of the same material exposed a pink shirt and a high white collar and natty black tie. A gilt belt encircled her trim waist. On her head was an odd but most attractive hat, the brim of which, just above a suspicion of a "bang," shot skyward. It was pinned down closely at the back to a classic knot worn very low. Two huge butterfly bows of black and white striped ribbon gave it a decidedly Parisian appearance. In fact, the lady looked as though she had stepped from a page of the Paris Illustre.

The Michaux Club includes among its long list of members a large number of the most distinguished society leaders.

IN PRAISE OF HOT WATER.

A Few of the Uses of That Commonplace Article Mentioned.

"If I were asked what woman's best friend is," said the doctor thoughtfully, "I should say hot water. If she drinks hot water an hour before her breakfast she will be able to ward off dyspepsia. If she drinks hot water flavored with lemon and sweetened with sugar when she has been out in the cold she will ward off chills. The same agreeable medicine taken early enough in the progress of a cold will stop it. When a nervous headache makes the forehead throb and the back of the neck ache, hot water will relieve the pain.

"For tired eyes, inflamed eyelids and styes," continued the doctor, "nothing is so good as hot water. The eyes should be sopped with a cloth dipped in boiling water. Sprains may be relieved greatly by soaking the afflicted member in hot water for half an hour at a time and then binding it with a flannel bandage. Bruises yield to much the same treatment, although such long soaking is unnecessary. Wounds and sores may be treated by pouring hot water on them for a few minutes at a time. Very hot water applied to a bleeding cut will stop the flow of blood frequently.

"Then for mere comfort," she went on, "few things equal hot water. A rubber bag full of it makes one indifferent to cold. Wrapped in flannel and put on the floor of a carriage it is invaluable. She who suffers from cold feet at night has but to fill a hot water bag to know what comfort is. Sufferers from sleeplessness find themselves deliciously drowsy after a hot bath. Wrinkles flee before it, and blackheads vanish before its constant use. Great is hot water."—New York World.

The League of Simplicity.

It will please those people who have always held that Paris is a thoroughly sophisticated place to hear that a number of the society leaders in that city have banded themselves together in a "League of Simplicity." It is the noble purpose to destroy the reign of mere wealth in society and to restore the mythical period of real hospitality and genuine entertainment.

The reason why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so much more effective than other remedies for colds and coughs is because it is the most skilful combination of anodynes and expectorants known to medical science. It is in every respect a scientific medicine

SOUTH PERTH PETITION.

Two Points Pro and Con Reserved for Judgment—Other Charges Dismissed.

MITCHELL, Ont., Feb. 1.—The trial of the election petition against John McNeill, Patron candidate, who defeated Hon. Thos. Ballantyne in South Perth at the last general election to the Legislature, was continued in the town hall here yesterday. An effort had been made to establish an agency between McNeill and the C. P. A., of which he was once a member, and the Patrons of Industry, whose candidate he was.

Several of the specific charges of persons having voted knowing they had no right to vote were taken up and in this connection a nice point was raised by Mr. Osler, counsel for the petitioner. Alex. Sinclair, of St. Marys, voted presumably for Mr. McNeill, notwithstanding he had been absent from the riding up to September 1893. Mr. Sinclair was a member of the C. P. A. and Mr. Osler held that this constituted agency and his voting was consequently a corrupt act.

Their Lordships reserved judgment on this point as well as on another point raised by Mr. Aylesworth, counsel for the respondent, who held that a person who had forfeited his right to vote by absence from the riding could not be held to have committed a corrupt act in voting unless it could be shown that he was cognizant of the exact date from which his absence was to count. The other charges were dismissed. There are upwards of a hundred witnesses to be examined and the case may last several days.

NEWFOUNDLAND AFFAIRS.

Changes in the Cabinet May Precipitate Another Crisis in the Island.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 1.—It is reported that a reconstruction of the Whiteway Cabinet will take place to-day and that Whiteway, Bond and Morris will replace Greene, Horwood and Scott. It is stated that Harvey will retire from the Cabinet because of the confederate tendencies of the Government. It is the general opinion here that the reconstruction of the Cabinet will bring about another crisis, as members holding their seats temporarily decline to relinquish them while the annexation movement, initiated by the Whitewayites, is being agitated, because it is believed that agitation will have a damaging effect in England and injure Newfoundland's chances of placing a loan there. The Legislature will reconvene to-day when the new appointments will likely be announced.

Nomination at Cobocouk.

COBOCONK, Ont., Feb. 1.—One of the largest political meeting ever held in North Victoria took place here yesterday. From early morning people flocked in from the country and at noon a special train arrived from Lindsay having on board Hon. N. Clarke Wallace, Hon. J. F. Wood, Major Sam. Hughes, M.P., Mayor Walters, of Lindsay, and over two hundred of the electors. At one o'clock the meeting was held in McRae's hall. Dr. Wood, the President of the Association, occupied the chair. The selection of a candidate for the House of Commons was then proceeded with. The following gentlemen were nominated: Sam. Hughes, of Lindsay, Dr. Wood, of Kirkfield, Ed. McEachern, of Eldon, J. H. Harvey, of Cobocouk, J. Brandon, of Fenelon Falls. All, however, retired except Major Hughes and Dr. Wood. On the ballots being counted, it was found that Major Hughes had received the necessary two-thirds vote and his nomination was then made unanimous.

BROOKLYN TROLLEY STRIKE.

Reserve Troops Allowed to Go Home—Two More Victims.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 1.—After a conference at the city hall between Gen. McLeer and Mayor Schieren all tooops held in reserve in armories were allowed to go to their homes, except two companies in each regiment. The power houses and car barns are still protected by small detachments of troops and police.

Mrs. Josephine Zeiser, 68 years of age, who was struck by a trolley car on Broadway, died yesterday. The motorman is under arrest.

A collision between trolley cars occurred at Concord and Jay streets. John Hayes, the motorman of a Smith and Jay street car, was injured internally and may die.

A Ninth avenue car of the Atlantic avenue system in charge of Meyer Marks, a non-union motorman, and Harry Butler, conductor, ran into the Smith and Jay street car. Marks and Butler were locked up to await the result of Hayes' injuries.

Chapleau May Re-enter the Government.

MONTREAL, Feb. 1.—Sir Adolphe Caron and Hon. J. A. Quimet, of the Dominion Cabinet are in town conferring with the party managers. The topic of conversation is the decision of the Imperial Privy Council in the Manitoba School question and its effect upon the fate of the Dominion Government. Lieutenant-Governor Chapleau is also in town and during the day met several of the Conservative politicians in a social way. This has given rise to the rumor that strenuous efforts are being made to induce the Lieutenant-Governor to re-enter the Dominion Government.

Disastrous Result of an Earthquake.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—A special from the City of Mexico says that since the great earthquake shock of November 29, 1894, which caused the loss of fifteen lives in that city and destroyed thousands of dollars worth of property, a reign of terror prevails in the towns of Jamiltepre and Tuxtepre, in the state of Oaxaa, where the earth trembled from six to eight times a day. The church and houses are a heap of ruins and the inhabitants have nearly all fled to hamlets.

That hacking cough can be quickly cured by Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Price 25 cents.

FELL BEFORE THE JAPS

Wei-Hai-Wei Bombarded and Taken by the Invaders.

AN IMPORTANT NAVAL DEPOT

The Arsenal in the Forts is One of the Most Complete in China—Strongly Fortified and Officered by Europeans—All the Telegraph Wires Cut.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Central News correspondent in Shanghai says that the Japanese have taken Wei-Hai-Wei.

The Times correspondent in Tien-Tsin says that all the southern forts of Wei-Hai-Wei were captured on Wednesday and that the telegraph wires were cut.

Wei-Hai-Wei, China's principal naval depot, is situated in the province of Shan Tung, about fifty miles east of the treaty port of Chee-Foo and thirty miles west of Shang Tung. It is a strongly fortified bay, sheltered on the north by Cape Cod and on the northwest by the Island of Liu Kung Tao. Wei-Hai-Wei was up to the beginning of the war the principal recruiting station for the men of the Northern fleet. Lieut. Bouchier, formerly of the British navy, has been in charge of the recruiting and gunnery department, and a Mr. Fleischer superintends the torpedo practice both afloat and ashore.

The Chinese forces were carefully trained under rules laid down by Captain Lang, when he was the chief instructor of the Chinese navy. They were reported not only thoroughly efficient in handling their guns and torpedos but ex ellent marksmen. The arsenal at Wei-Hai-Wei is one of the most complete in China, and the batteries commanding the bay which have been constructed under the supervision of European engineers are heavily armed with Armstrong and Krupp guns. The straits of Pee Chili, which are about fifty miles across in the narrowest part, separate the peninsula of Liaug Tong from the north-east coast of Shang Tung and form the entrance to the Gulfs of Pee Chili and Liaug Tung. Peking, Tien-Tsin and Taku are situated on the east coast of the former.

The Daily News says that the commandant at Wai-Hai-Wei is Peter Neilsen, a Norwegian naval officer, 31 years old.

YOUNG M'LEOD'S CASE.

Charged With Procuring Naturalization Papers Illegally.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The case of Herbert McLeod, charged with illegally procuring naturalization papers, was before the United States Commissioner yesterday. The testimony showed clearly that McLeod had not been continuously a resident of the United States for five years previous to securing final papers, that for at least two years of that time he had been an engineer on the Canadian steamer City of Midland. McLeod testified in his own behalf that during these two years his wife had resided in Detroit and that therefore he had maintained a domicile in the United States.

Then the Rev. D. D. McLeod, the Presbyterian minister at Barrie, Ont., took the stand and told a strange story to the court. He testified that the boy was only his adopted son, but that the lad had never been told the fact until about a week ago, when the doctor came to Buffalo. The boy was given to him when an infant by a Mrs. Gildard, a Quaker preacher, and that he knew nothing whatever of the boy's parentage.

The defence made a strong case and the commissioner put over till to-day a decision on the points made.

HOLD-UP IN ARIZONA.

A Southern Pacific Train Robbed—A Large Amount of Booty Taken.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1.—Officials of the Southern Pacific Railway Company have been notified of the robbery of the west bound overland train near Wilcox, Arizona. The safe was blown open with dynamite by several masked men and $10,000 in Mexican silver was taken.

From despatches received it appears that five men were engaged in the robbery. The actual work was done by two men, who boarded the cars at Wilcox, and when two miles west of the town suddenly appeared in the cab of the engine with drawn pistols and compelled the engineer to stop the train. While one of the robbers kept him covered the other made the firemen and brakesmen cut the express and mail cars loose from the rest of the train. The engineer was then made to pull the two detached cars for about two miles to a culvert where two more of the gang were found holding horses for the party. There the safe was blown open. Besides the $10,000 in Mexican money there was considerable coin on the train which had been sent to pay railroad employes along the line.

THE COLOMBIAN REVOLT.

Rebels Defeated and the General Captured—The Revolt Losing Ground.

PANAMA, Feb. 1.—The revolutionary forces have been routed in Cundinamarca and General Acosta, their commander-in-chief, with all of their ammunition, has been captured. The revolution is losing ground in Tolima. General Julio Pengtie, secretary of the Legation at Washington, has left there for Carthagena to take up arms in favor of the Government.

The Star and Herald says:—The river boats Colombia, Enrique and Montera, which have been equipped and armed, are now at Puerto Parrious. A despatch from Bogota says that all the revolutinaryleaders have been imprisoned. An army is aurrying to Giraedot and Honda. President Care, commanding two artillery battalions, had encounters with revolutionists in the streets of Bogota, and after a hot fight dispersed them. Many revolutionists were killed.

Mexican-Guatemalan Dispute.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Mexico and Guatemala, according to the impression of state department officials, are progressing satisfactorily toward an amicable settlement of their differences, as a result of the conference between Ministers Romero and Arriaga, brought about by Secretary Gresham and his suggestions of mutual concessions. It is understood that Guatemala has practically conceded the main portion of the boundary line as laid down by Mexico.

The Theatre Hat Not a Joke.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—People laughed when Assemblyman Cutler intryduced a bill aimed at the custom of wearing big hats at theatres. When first introduced the measure looked very much like a joke, but to-day the committee will report the bill favorably to the House.

Miss Melville is giving reductions this week in stamped linnen goods, such as splashers, tray cloths, pillow shams, etc., etc. 491 George street. Stamping done to order.

A Montreal Boy's Death.

MONTREAL, Feb. 1.—Death came most unexpected yesterday to young Charles Gingras, son of Mr. H. Gingras, painter, St. Charles Borrome street. Deceased, he was thirteen years of age, was playing with several young friends in a snow hut which they had constructed in the yard. Fun ran high, when the snow suddenly caved in, burying young Gingras and two of his friends. The boys who were outside at first took the accident as part of the fun, but when they saw young Therien and Dubord crawl out painfully and complaining of serious bruises they became alarmed, especially as young Gingras gave no sign of life. They called for assistance but when it came it was too late. Gingras was a corpse when rescued.

A Quebec Town on Fire.

COATICOKE, Que., Feb. 1.—This town was swept by fire yesterday and before the flames could be controlled some twenty stores were laid in ashes, along with most of the contents. Aid had to be summoned from Sherbrooke, as the local fire brigade was unable to cope with the flames. The fire was found at two o'clock and was not controlled till seven. The buildings burned comprise those forming the best part of Coaticoke's business portion, and the blow is a great one for the town. The loss will reach $100,000.

A Verona Woman Suicides.

KINGSTON, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Hannah McCall, a widow who lived near the village of Verona, committed suicide by taking strychnine. It is said that she and her son Henry did not live happily together in consequence of some trouble over some property.

New Brunswick House Opened.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Feb. 1.—The Provincial Legislature opened yesterday with the usual military display. Consideration of the address in reply to the Speech was taken up and the debate continued until adjourned.

Responsible for the Butte Disaster.

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 1.—The coroner's investigation into the powder explosion by which 58 persons were killed was concluded last evening. The verdict fixes the responsibility on the Kenyon-Connel Hardware Company and the Butte Hardware Company, in whose warehouses the explosions occurred. The members of the companies are charged with criminal neglect in storing large quantities of powder within their limits, contrary to law.

A Flax Mill Destroyed.

ELORA, Ont., Feb. 1.—Yesterday fire broke out in the flax mill here. The alarm was given and in very short time the brigade, comprised of sturdy fellows, was on the scene, but too late to save the contents. The cause of the fire is unknown. The building was owned by the Grand River Manufacturing Co., and the loss is covered by insurance.

An A. R. U. Man Discharged.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—At yesterday's session of the Debs trial Judge Grosscup ordered a dismissal of the case against Moses Avener, one of the defendants of whom nothing whatever has been proved.

Ward McAllister Dead.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Ward McAllister, the well-known society leader, died in this city last night at half past nine o'clock. Mr. McAllister was taken ill a week ago with the grip. There were no alarming symptoms surrounding his illness until yesterday morning. He suffered very little. At his death he was surrounded by his wife, daughter, and son, and his brother Rev. Dr. McAllister, of Elizabeth, N. J.

North Middlesex Conservatives.

AILSA CRAIG, Ont., Jan. 30.—At a largely-attended convention of the Conservatives of the North Riding of Middlesex held here yesterday, W. H. Hutchinson, of Parkhill, received the nomination for candidate for the Commons.

At a French Restaurant.

The following key to a French bill of fare was composed by a young medical student who spent four hours and as many dollars in a restaurant before he got the dinner he wanted, and for which he had prepared himself by a twenty-four hours' fast. He believes it may be of use to some poor student who is forced to go to the cheerless restaurant or hotel for his dinner, especially if the bill of fare is got up wholly or partly in French:

Braise is in English a pot roast.

Bouchee is a little patty.

Brochette refers to meats broiled on a skewer.

Farcie is a term applied to stuffed viands.

Gratin following a dish means it is browned over in the oven.

Pique is the French for larded.

Piquante is a term usually given to a sauce of several flavors where the acid predominates.

Quenelles are made of forcemeat, with bread, yolks of eggs, highly seasoned and formed to an oval shape, then poached and used either as a dish by themselves or to garnish.

Roux is a cooked mixture of butter and flour for thickening gravies and soups.

Rissole means a rich mince or hash of meat rolled into thin pastry and fried.

Ragout is a term applied to a rich brown stew, with mushrooms, vegetables, etc.

Souffle, a very light, much-whipped-up pudding as omelette.

Saute is meat or other edible tossed over the fire in a little fat.

Sontant is a term meaning best of all, while vol-au-vent is just the opposite to bouchee and means large patty.

A Neat Answer.

Two friends, a weaver and a tailor, became in time enemies, so much so that the tailor spoke much evil of the weaver behind his back, though the weaver always spoke well of the tailor. Upon a lady asking the weaver why he always spoke so well of the tailor, who spoke so ill of him, he replied: "Madam, we are both liars."

Cool and Collected.

Two thieves were breaking into a door when the master of the house, hearing them, looked out of the window and said: "Friends, come a little later; we are not yet in bed."

Burdock Pills, small, safe and sure regulate the liver and cure constipation.

Skin Diseases.

Skin disease are more or less occasioned by bad blood. B. B. B. cures the following skin diseases: shingles, scrofulous, itching rashes, salt rheum, scald head, eruptions, pimples and blotches, by removing all impurities from the blood from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

ANOTHER WATERLOO OF PRICES!

A "SKY ROCKET"

Stock Taking Boom

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

MEN'S OVERCOATS AND SUITS,
BOY'S OVERCOATS AND SUITS,
MEN'S HATS AND CAPS,
BOY'S HATS AND CAPS,
FUR COATS AND CAPS,
ALL OUR UNDERWEAR,
ALL OUR BOOTS AND SHOES,
ALL OUR FURNISHINGS,

Everything included in the great price wreckage—nothing reserved—nothing held back. They ought to go like smoke—for about

One-Half Value IS THE PRICE WE SET ON THEM.

We must clear them out. We won't carry them over. If you can't see what tremendous efforts are directed your way, who have you to blame for not catching the biggest bargains ever let loose in Canada?

Plans have been made to accomodate a large number of purchasers with the greatest possible comfort. The goods are new, quality strictly first-class, and those who want trash will have to look elsewhere.

NEW YEAR NEW GOODS NEW LEAF 1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will set off cheap.

SINKING OF THE ELBE

Survivors Bitterly Accuse the Steamer's Crew of Selfishness.

CARL HOFFMAN'S STATEMENT

Fishing Smacks Arriving at Lowestoft Bring No News—The Crew of the Crathie Examined at Rotterdam—Fate of Two Hungarian Forgers.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—It is understood that the officers and crew of the Crathie were examined yesterday by the British consul at Rotterdam. They will leave the ship and return forthwith to Aberdeen.

Vevera, Hoffman and Schlegel deny emphatically that the Crathie remained signalling for two hours near the scene of the collision. They say that had she done so she could have saved many lives. Hoffman, who was one of the first to reach the Elbe's deck after the collision, did not see the Crathie answer any of the Elbe's signals. He noticed a small steamer, apparently the one that struck the Elbe, steaming away. As regards the behavior of the Elbe's crew Hoffman says: "I seized a life belt as soon as I got on deck, but a sailor demanded it, saying that it belonged to the crew. I gave it up with the remark, 'Well, I hope you will save yourself,' but he did not. The crew did their best to keep the passengers out of the boats."

Hoffmann is greatly embittered by the loss of his wife and child. He talks continually about it and in each interview makes new charges against the crew. "I was born among the Indians out west," he said. "I have gone through rough times with my family there. Now it is all over with them and they have been sacrificed by the carelessness of these men. I do not value my own life now; I can think only of my loss." Hoffmann's description of the final settlement of the ship was vivid. "I could see her sinking rapidly as we pulled away in the small boat. Her bow went up steadily into the air. The deck grew steeper and I could see the poor wretches aboard her climbing and crawling toward the prow until suddenly all were engulfed."

Vevera told a reporter last night: "There was a lot of green hands in charge of the lifeboats. They were so excited they did not know what they were about. They filled one boat and then they dumped all the occupants into the water. The crew in our boat were very reluctant to admit Miss Boecker. Hoffmann and I dragged her in without any aid from the seamen."

Vevera and Hoffmann also attacked Third Officer Stollberg and First Engineer Neussell. They say that both acted selfishly after the rescue and that Stollberg made no effort to command the boat, but gave the whole responsibility to the steerage passenger, Boethen, who had been a cook on a French steamer. They speak highly of Boethen's coolness and skill and give him the whole credit for managing the boat.

Many more smacks arrived at Lowestoft last evening. They brought no news. Others are due to arrive to-day and to-morrow. The skipper of the smack Competitor reports that he saw what he thought was a mail bag and tried to catch it with a boat hook. He missed it, and, knowing nothing of the collision, did not try for it again.

The Shipwrecked Mariners' Society has sent a barometer to Skipper Wright, of the Wild Flower, and £10 to his men and the Mayor of Lowestoft has opened a fund for their benefit.

A despatch from Vienna says that among the Elbe's passengers were the Guttmann brothers, directors of a steam mill company near Kaschau, Hungary. The Guttmanns had fled to escape arrest for forgeries by which they defrauded the company and the present shareholders of 300,000 florins. They are said to have given assumed names at the steamship office.

A late despatch from Bremen says that the official inquiry as to the wreck will probably be held there.

The manager of the North German Lloyd's said he had questioned the majority of the officers and men saved from the Elbe and their statements were highly satisfactory. The evidence was unanimous that perfect discipline was maintained aboard the Elbe. Serious blame rested somewhere, he added, but he had the utmost confidence in the skill and experience of the Elbe's officers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The following summary of passengers and crew who were on the Elbe when she went down was received by cable at the office of the North German Lloyd line: Cabin, 50; steerage, 149; crew, 146; stewardesses, 3; mail clerks, 4; pilots, 2. Total on board 354. Known to be saved 20. Total loss 354.

Jack Dempsey Insane.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—The last chapter in the eventful career of Jack Dempsey, the once invincible middleweight pugilist, has been reached. He is now a physical and mental wreck, though his friends are trying zealously to conceal his real condition. Dr. Ward, of Coney Island, states that the pugilist's mind is unbalanced, and he can only hope to revive his shattered faculties by good medical treatment and careful nursing. The physician states that Dempsey is likely to do himself irreparable injury if left alone. He defines the case as melancholia, superinduced by wotriment and drink. Dempsey is now confined to the home of his brother Martin in Williamsburg.

THE PRESS CONVENTION

Mr. Edgar, M.P., in Defence of the Canadian Copyright Act.

MR. DALDY'S MISSTATEMENTS

His Assertion That Canadians Are Not Generally Interested in the Question Repudiated—Other Questions Discussed—Officers of the Association.

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—When the Canadian Press Association convened yesterday T. H. Preston, the retiring president, called his successor in office, L. W. Shannon, of Kingston, to occupy the post of honor. The other officers were then elected by ballot: First vice-president, J. S. Brierly, S. Thomas; second vice-president, Capt. J. B. McLean; Executive Committee, C. W. Young, Cornwall; J. S. Willison, Toronto; W. S. Dingman, Stratford; S. Stephenson, Chatham; A. Laidlaw, Galt. Auditors, J. A. McKay, Windsor, and T. A. Bellamy, Ingersoll.

Mr. J. D. Edgar, M.P., read a paper on the Copyright Act. "We are told," he said, "that our Act of 1889 is inconsistent with the provisions of a prior Imperial Act and therefore is ultra vires. You may have heard of a trial in 1885 of one Louis Riel. He was tried under a Canadian Act, which was inconsistent with no less than three prior Imperial statutes, and that objection was argued before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on his behalf. They did not suspend the Act, but they permitted the sheriff to suspend Riel.

"It is too late in the day for Canada to be told that she is not entitled to legislate as to who shall hold a copyright in Canada. We are united to a man in saying that we must have that point made clear, since it is held by the Colonial Office to be doubtful. I think that the Act of 1889 is fair to holders of English copyright. It gives them a month to take out their Canadian copyright, if they value it; and if they neglect to do so it does for them what is not done under the existing law for a Canadian author; it provides that they shall be paid a royalty of 10 per cent. on the retail price of all copies sold here.

"Although the British author sells out Canada to the American publisher whenever he gets the chance, yet will we return him good for evil. He will find that even if we are Colonists we are neither pirates nor utter barbarians. Mr. Daldy answered a letter I wrote to the London Times, in which he says: 'During a visit to Canada last year I found all the Canadian public, except the political circle, unaware that such a demand had been made in their name and anxiously repudiating any connection with it.' Cndadians all know how absurdly incorrect his statement is. I know that if necessary Parliament will speak again as it has often spoken before, with united emphasis."

Mr. A. F. Rutter, of the Employing Publishers' Association, read a paper on the same question, and Mr. R. T. Lancefield, public librarian of Hamilton, also spoke to the question.

Mr. Jamieson of the Belleville Intelligencer introduced the subject of mailing privileges of newspapers. Mr. Willison of the Globe favored their entire abolition. The matter was left to the Executive Committee to consider and report.

The question of anonymous writers was considered and an attempt was made to change the name of the association to the Ontario Press Association, which was not successful. After the reading of a paper by Mr. J. B. Maclean on "Subscription Rates," the convention broke up.

A Murderous Assault Case.

ORMEMEE, Ont., Jan. 2.—About five miles east of here last night Thomas Foster, who had been staying with his friend, Andrew Faulkner, lately, took up an iron poker and struck Wm. Faulkner over the head and laid him out. He then went at Andrew and laid his skull bare in four places and pounded away unmercifully at his arm and shoulder till life was almost extinct. Then he left the house. Faulkner's sister got word to another brother named Samuel, who procured medical aid and then he went to Lindsay and swore out a warrant. Foster was arrested by County Constable Short and taken to jail. Andrew Faulkner's condition is serious.

Plants in Court.

NANAIMO, B.C., Feb. 2.—Police Magistrate J. P. Planta was brought back from Seattle, Washington Territory, and was at once admitted to bail in $6,000. The commission of inquiry then proceeded with Planta in the witness box. It was anticipated that he would make a full confession of all (if any) irregularities, but he took an entirely different stand, combatting every charge and holding his own with great success. The commission closed shortly before midnight, nothing further being done after Planta made his statement. Planta will come up for preliminary hearing on the charge of embezzlement next Friday.

Smallpox in Guelph.

GUELPH, Feb. 2.—Another case of smallpox has developed here. Little May Macdonald, a three-year-old daughter of William Macdonald, drygoods man, of this city, has contracted it. Symptoms of the disease were shown on her, and she was accordingly removed to the same quarters as Miss Mills, the other smallpox patient. It appears she contracted the disease while visiting with her mother near the college at the time Swarts first took sick, and since then both have been quarantined there. Dr. Bryce is still in the city assisting the health authorities.

East Grey Reformers.

FLESHERTON, Ont., Feb. 2.—The Reformers of East Grey held a convention here yesterday for the purpose of choosing a candidate for the Dominion Parliament. Among the principal delegates were Dr. Landerkin, M.P., C. W. Partman, James Pye, P. McCullough and J. D. Morgan. The attendance was small on account of the roads being blocked with snow. No business of importance was transacted and the meeting was adjourned.

BRAVE NURSE BAUMER

Faced Death in the Burning Hospital by Her Patient's Side.

FOUR DEATHS IN THE FIRE

The New Deaconess Hospital in Cleveland Catches Fire While Nearly Filled With Patients—Several of the Other Patients Injured, but Not Seriously.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 2.—Four persons were burned to death in a fire at the Deaconess House hospital yesterday.

The dead are Jacob Krause, 65 years old burned; John Allmeyer, 59 years old, burned; Minnie Baumer, nurse, 25, from Chicago, burned; Clark Walter, 6 months old, suffocated. Several other patients were injured but none seriously.

It was 10.30 o'clock when Rose Gerber, one of the laundry girls discovered flames in the basement of the hospital. There were few people in the neighborhood at the time. The first persons to arrive heard screams and saw flames shooting from every window on the second and third floors. Suddenly a woman's face appeared at one of the windows and she was seen to smash the heavy glass with her fist. Then she leaned out head first and struck on her face.

The fire department was slow in reaching the hospital, the snow and ice in the streets preventing a quick run, but when once at work the fire was quickly subdued. There are only two exits from the upper part of the building, one in the front and one in the rear. The nurses got out safely almost at the start with the exception of Minnie Baumer. When her sister nurses called to her that the building was on fire, she cried: "No, I will not leave my patient; I will die first." She was nursing Krause, who was also burned to death. She sat by the side of the sick man until death came to both of them. The injured were taken to the other hospitals of the city.

The Deaconess hospital is under the direction of the M. E. church. It was opened last October and was nearly filled with patients. The front part of the building is entirely destroyed.

CONGRESSMEN FIGHT.

A Quarrel in the House of Representatives Leads to Blows.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—There was a most exciting scene in the House of Representatives yesterday afternoon when Representative Breckinridge, of Kentucky, and Representative Heard, of Missouri, came to blows in the centre aisle in the middle of the hall. Representative Heard, who is chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia became angered because the Hawaiian question was being brought forward in the time devoted to his committee and attempted to secure the floor.

The beginning of the controversy was not plain, but suddenly both members sprang toward each other, Mr. Breckinridge shouting "You cur, scoundrel and liar," striking at the member from Missouri a fierce blow, which missed him. Instantly they were seized by other members, who each struggled fiercely to get at the other, shouting "liar." Mr. Pence, of Colorado, seized Mr. Breckinridge by the throat, and Mr. McCleary, of Kentucky, climbed over several seats and held him by the shoulder. For three or four minutes there was a wild scramble resembling a football scrimmage and then peace was restored.

American Trade Report.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—Bradstreets says: Special telegram to Bradstreet's from many of the more important points of distribution through the country make it plain that the uncertainty as to the outcome of the financial situation based on the rapid withdrawals of gold from the treasury has had a depressing effect on general trade. At nearly all larger eastern cities rates for money have advanced, mercantile collections at the best are characterized as fairly satisfactory but in most instances are slower than usual at this season. The number of business failures in the United States continue to compare favorably with weekly totals one year ago, there having been 312 this week compared with 340 in the week a year ago and 371 in the like week in 1893.

Father and Son Drowned.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Feb. 2.—Capt. John O'Brien, of the Frye, and his son, who was mate, were both washed overboard by a heavy sea yesterday and drowned. Some of the crew were severely injured. The accident happened in the vicinity of the Western bank, and the sailors had some difficulty in bringing the vessel safely into the port. Capt. O'Brien was a native of Newfoundland and one of the most capable men in the fishing fleet. He leaves a widow and five children.

Kenneth Bessey's Body Recovered.

THOROLD, Ont., Feb. 2.—The body of Mr. Kenneth Bessey who was drowned in Merritton on Monday night last was recovered by Diver Saunders, of this town. The remains were brought to Undertaker Williams' establishment here and then taken to his home in Merritton from which place the funeral will be held to-morrow. The deceased was a mill wright and boss carpenter in the employ of the Dominion Cotton Mill Company of Merritton.

The Ameer Will Travel Through Canada.

CALCUTTA, Feb. 2.—The latest advices received here from Cabul say that the Ameer of Afghanistan has definitely decided to visit England during the spring if his health continues good. He proposes to go via Yokohama and the C. P. R.

Broke His Neck by a Fall.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. Feb. 2.—A man named Melvin McPherson was killed in Smith's bush, a few miles from the city, yesterday afternoon. A tree that he had cut became lodged. He climbed an adjoining tree to free the lodged one when he fell a distance of 40 feet, breaking his neck and both arms. He leaves a wife and four small children.

Smothered Her Child.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

According to our contemporary, the Review, it is the intention of the Government to adopt the river route between Lakefield and Nassau for the Trent Valley Canal. One would have thought that this decision would have been arrived at years ago, for this route has been subjected to diligent, dallying survey and re-survey with a view to its use for the purposes of the canal. Either the Government is painfully anxious to secure the best route, or to make capital of some kind out of their course in this question. Recently the surveyors of the Government have been invading the barnyards, cabbage gardens and demesnes generally of the farmers of Douro. They have been chained, triangulated, plumbed, levelled, staked and subjected to all the possible trigonometrical processes the surveying art involves; and after the valuators have been at work, and farmers on the right side of the ticket have been led to expect fancy rates of compensation for their land used for canal purposes, all at once this route is abandoned and these hopes blasted. All this expenditure has been wasted, unless the reward in the shape of big salaries to a surveying staff that belongs to the government side of politics is considered to be a paying investment—for the government—of course the country does not cut any figure in the matter of expenditure. There has been a mighty show of work and all to secure results that had been arrived at years ago. Of course at the meeting in the opera house on Feb. 7th, Hon. Mr. Haggart will make a magnificent display of talk to demonstrate the consuming interest the government has in pushing on the work of the Trent Valley Canal contract and will awake the enthusiastic plaudits of the faithful, who seem to have an inexhaustible reservoir of faith as well as hope. No doubt Mr. Stevenson, in his innocently artful manner, will explain the reasons why his promises of four years ago, to have a thousand men at work on this very section, within a few months, has not been kept at the expiration of four years. Of course everything will be lovely and the benighted persons whose common sense will not permit them to go into extasies over flapdoodle promises and assurances on behalf of the Trent Valley will be where the canal has been so long—nowhere. Everyone is familiar with the extraordinary manner in which the Trent Valley Canal emerges from its interim lethargy and becomes very much alive about the time of the Dominion general election.

A PROSPEROUS FINANCIAL INSTITUTION.

In another column is printed the annual report of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company. This report has a decided tone of gratifying assurance of progress and prosperity, all the more marked in contrast with the prevailing dull tones that mark other financial pictures. A reference to the report shows that the past year's business operations have been of the most satisfactory character. This is shown by the circumstance that the earnings for the year amounted to over $371,000, and deducting the cost of management, interest and debentures and deposits, and all other charges, a net profit remained of $99,777, which had been disposed of by the payment of four quarterly dividends, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, amounting to $72,000, the transfer of $15,000 to the reserve fund (which fund now amounts to $315,000) and the placing of $12,777 to the credit of the contingent fund, which now stands at $30,134. In his address, made on the motion to adopt the report, Mr. Geo. A. Cox, the president of the company, drew attention to the fact that the assets of the company now amount to the very considerable sum of $5,200,830.09. He also adverted to the fact that the fertility of resource of the intelligent agriculturists of the Province had enabled them to offset the sharp decline in the price of cereals by the adoption of the adjuncts incidental to mixed farming, such as dairying, fruit raising, etc., and had enabled them to meet their obligations with a gratifying promptitude. The report was adopted, and Mr. Cox re-elected president. The excellent management of the Central Canada has resulted in a condition that emphasizes the confidence which the investing public repose in it, and points to its continued prosperity.

MANITOBA SCHOOL QUESTION.

The recent decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council at London, England in favour of the religious minority in Manitoba is a question of great importance in itself, and the importance is not at all dwarfed from the circumstance that the decision brings the subject once more into the arena of practical politics. The present situation is this. The Governor-General-in-Council, in other words, the Government of the day, has, by virtue of the decision in question, power to interfere in defence of the rights and privileges of the religious minority in Manitoba. In justice to the rights of this minority, the Dominion Government is called upon to act. The Government is appealing to the country for a renewal of their lease of power, and as this is a question that concerns in a very important degree both the religious majority and minority, it is plainly the duty of the Government to declare their policy on the subject. Premier Bowell must make up his mind and settle the Manitoba school question one way or the other without delay. The decision of the Privy Council points to the Dominion Government as the source from which the religious minority is to expect remedial legislation and the country expects that the government will take prompt action. If it is the intention to hold another session before dissolution, the question should be promptly dealt with at that session; if there is to be an appeal to the electorate before a session, it is equally the duty of the government to plainly declare their policy. The people will expect an answer to the question of the government's intention at the meeting in Peterborough on the 7th.

THE COURT OF LAST RESORT.

On Wednesday a deputation from the Dominion Alliance waited upon Sir Oliver Mowat with reference to the taking of steps to have the recent decision of the Supreme Court, with reference to the powers of the Province in the matter of prohibition, appealed to the Privy Council. Sir Oliver showed that he was not to be caught napping with regard to the full discharge of the duties of his position, by informing the delegation that he had already given directions to have this done in accordance with the provision in the plebiscite act providing for such an appeal, and the case is now being prepared in accordance with this former deliverance upon the subject. In connection with this and by way of contrast, it may be pointed out that Hon. George E. Foster, the whilom prophet and apostle of prohibition, is now stumping Western Ontario. In all his public utterances he has not referred to the matter of prohibition, and nobody has asked him to define his position on the subject. When Mr. Laurier made a tour of Ontario a year ago, he was bombarded with questions as to his stand on prohibition by interested prohibitionists. How is it that now Hon. Foster has not been asked to explain his position on this important subject? Can it be that the prohibitionists have not even enough faith in Hon. Mr. Foster to make a little badgering of him worth while, or is it possible that party affiliation can affect the zeal of certain prohibition advocates?

FIRING ON WEI-HAI-WEI.

Chinese Warships Bombarding the Victors—The Second Division's Victories.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The Central News correspondent in Tokio telegraphs the following despatch from Marshal Oyama received under yesterday's date from Talien Wan: "All the land forts at Wei-Hai-Wei taken. The enemy retreated beyond Funglaichi. The Chinese warships were not captured and are still firing at us. I am inquiring as to the losses on both sides and am examining the prisoners and spoils. Two Japanese torpedo boats have been sunk and an ironclad disabled. No foreigner has been hurt. Wai-Hai-Wei is quiet."

The correspondent also forwards the following despatch received from the third Japanese army dated Talien Wan, February 1:

On January 30 the second division captured an eminence at Funglinchan and bivouacked there. On Thursday the division began an assault thereon from Pai-Chi-Yaso. The warships stimultaneously bombarded the Pai-Chi-Yaso forts. The sixth division began to advance at 2 in the morning and by 9 had taken possession of most of the enemy's line of defences. Advancing behind M. n it Ku, they completed the capture of the forts. By 12.30 o'clock the squadron signalled that they held possession of the eastern entrance. The Chinese fleet were inside Lin-Kang Island and conjunctly with the Wang Tao fort were firing at our ships and troops. Our squadron is blockading both entrances and the fighting continues. At 1.30 o'clock the second division apparantly occupied the important point of Wenchuanto.

OPPOSED TO CONFEDERATION.

Whitewayites Do Not Favor the Scheme—Whiteway to Form a Cabinet.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 2—The Newfoundland provisional cabinet, headed by D. J. Greene, Premier, resigned yesterday after being in office but little more than a month. It is the third cabinet the colony has had within a year.

Sir William Whiteway consented to resume the Premiership and will undertake to have his cabinet ready to-day. It is understood that he will reinstall in office as many as possible of those who like himself suffered political penalties at the hands of the courts.

A majority of the Whiteway caucuses oppose Newfoundland entering the Canadian Confederation, but Mr. Harvey threatens to decline membership in the new Cabinet unless such action is favored. A royal commission is likely to be accepted. The House and the Assembly met yesterday but adjourned for a week, as the Cabinet arrangements were not completed.

It is announced that the Imperial Government, in view of the prevailing destitution in the colony, offers considerable financial assistance to the local Ministry and will donate $1,000 weekly to the relief fund.

Trade in the Dominion.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Bradstreet's reports that in the province of Ontario snow blockades have checked trade and at Toronto, collections are slow but prices firm. Advices from New Brunswick are that the outlook is favorable for lumber industries and collections satisfactory although demand for goods for export is smaller than expected. Montreal reports a fair request for groceries, drygoods and hardware and from the United Kingdom for Manitoba flour, although offers do not meet prices asked. There are 56 business failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week against 38 last week, 44 in the week a year ago and 54 in the week two years ago. Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax aggregate $18,013,000 this week, a decrease of 2.5 per cent. from the preceding week, but an increase of 7 per cent. compared with the week a year ago.

A Pretty Face

Is the result of a healthy physical condition. "Beauty is but skin deep" yet it greatly depends on a clear complexion free from wrinkles and hollow cheeks.

Health always brings wealth of beauty. A healthy state of the system comes with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine prepared for woman's ailments—it cures those derangements and weaknesses which make woman's life miserable.

A woman who neglects to take proper exercise is particularly prone to excessive congestion, debility and a sluggish circulation. This is the time we advise the "Prescription." In all derangements and displacements of the special organs which result in "signs of inflammation," in catarrhal discharges from the lining membranes, and in distressing irregularities—this medicine is guaranteed to cure, or the money will be returned.

Not Equal to It.

As a cure for frost bites, chilblains, burns and scalds, chafing, chapped hands, inflamed breasts, sprains, wounds, bruises Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the most liable remedy on the market.

No Strength, No Ambition

Hood's Sarsaparilla Gave Perfect Health.

The following letter is from a well-known merchant tailor of St. George, N. B.:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen—I am glad to say that Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills have done me a great deal of good. I had a severe attack of the grip in the winter, and after getting over the fever I did not seem to gather strength, and had no ambition. Hood's Sarsaparilla proved to be just what I needed. The results were very satisfactory, and I recommend this medicine to all who are afflicted with rheumatism or other

The Greatest Modern Physician.

To Whom Thousands of Women and Children Everywhere Owe Their Lives and Happiness To-day.

His Reputation Has Made Dartmouth College Famous in Every Town and Village in the Country—Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., Who First Gave to His Profession Paine's Celery Compound, the Wonderful Remedy that Makes People Well.

PROF. EDWARD E. PHELPS, M.D., LL.D.

With the exception of a few eminent statesmen and world-renowned scientists, the people of Canada and the United States owe more to Dartmouth's physician-teacher than to any other man.

In every walk of life—amongst the highest official dignitaries, in the homes of the richest people of large cities, among the every-day folk of the country; families in good circumstances and "families that live from hand to mouth," and could not, if they wished, afford the services of any but the ordinary physician—there are thousands to whom Paine's Celery Compound has brought the great blessing of health.

The story of the life-work of this giant among men has been often told and is familiar to most readers. The likeness above is probably the best portrait of him yet printed.

It was the world-famed discovery of Prof. Phelps of an infallible cure for those fearful ills that result from an impaired nervous system and impure blood which has endeared the great doctor to the world and made his life an era in the practice of medicine.

Professor Phelps graduated with highest honours in medicine at Yale University, and his unusual talent soon brought him reputation and prominence among his professional brethren. First he was elected to the professorship of anatomy and surgery in the Vermont university. Next he was appointed lecturer on materia medica and medical botany in Dartmouth college. The next year he was chosen professor of the chair then vacated by Prof. Robby, and occupied the chair, the most important one in the country, at the time when he first formulated this most remarkable prescription.

In view of the overwhelming testimony to the value of Paine's Celery Compound that has recently appeared from men of national reputation, the picture of Prof. Phelps is particularly interesting.

Statesmen, members of Parliament and Congress from time to time have spoken of the wonderful curing virtues of Paine's Celery Compound.

Among the prominent people who have publicly testified in favor of earth's best medicine are:

Ex-American Minister to Austria, John M. Francis.

New York's State Treasurer, Hon. Addison B. Colvin.

Hon. David P. Toomey, publisher of Donohoe's Magazine.

Hon. James McShane, ex-Mayor of Montreal.

Miss Mabel Jenness.

General John A. Halderman, ex-American Minister to Siam.

Marie Tempest, the talented and popular actress.

Rev. J. G. Laird, London, Ont.

Rev. Dr. Wilson, St. John, N. B.

Rev. A. Ouellet, Shediac, N. B., and a host more of well known men and women are among the thousands of grateful people who have recently sent to the proprietors of this wonderful remedy their expressions of its unequalled value—men and women who can well afford, and do command the highest medical advice in the country.

And then also from the "plain people" there come thousands of honest, straightforward, heartfelt letters, telling how Paine's Celery Compound has made them well.

Their testimony simply goes to show what a noted writer has so aptly said, that Paine's Celery Compound is not a patent medicine; it is not a sarsaparilla; it is not a mere tonic; it is not an ordinary nervine—it is as far beyond them all as the diamond is superior to cheap glass.

It makes people well. It is the one true specific recognized and prescribed to-day by eminent practitioners for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system. Prof. Phelps gave to his profession a positive cure for sleeplessness, wasting strength, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles. For all such complaints Paine's Celery Compound has succeeded again and again where everything else has failed.

It is as harmless as it is good, and it was the universal advice of the medical profession that the compound be placed where the general public could secure it, and thousands of people have every year proven the wisdom of this good advice.

Only a truly great and effective remedy could continue, as Paine's Celery Compound has done, to hold its high place in the estimation of the ablest physicians and of the thousands of busy men and women whose only means of judging is from the actual results in their own home or among their friends. No remedy was ever so highly recommended, because none ever accomplished so much.

To day Paine's Celery Compound stands without an equal for feeding exhausted nerves and building up the strength of the body. It cures radically and permanently. The nervous prostration and general debility from which thousands of women suffer so long that it finally gets to be a second nature with them—all this suffering and despondency can be very soon removed by properly feeding the nerves and replacing the unhealthy blood by a fresher, more highly vitalised fluid. A healthy increase in appetite and a corresponding gain in weight and good spirits follow the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

Paine's Celery Compound is the most remarkable medical achievement of this last half of the nineteenth century.

No Hurry.

Just as she entered the doorway the car gave a lurch, as street cars are apt to do, and the pretty girl was thrown plump in the lap of a fatherly Irishman.

"Pray, pardon me," she said as she rose to her feet, while the rest of the passengers tittered.

"Don't mention it, me darlint," replied the Irishman. "I cud hold ye an hour."

Then she blushed furiously, and the passengers snickered aloud.—Brooklyn Life.

ARE THE PATRONS AGENTS?

An Important Point Raised in the South Perth Election Trial.

MITCHELL, Ont., Feb. 2.—The trial of the South Perth election petition against John McNeill was continued yesterday before Judges Burton and Osler. Before proceeding with the taking of further evidence their Lordships gave their decision in the case of Alex. Sinclair, dismissing the case. Judge Osler held that it was necessary that a voter should know the date from which his absence from the riding counted to render him liable to a charge of having voted, knowing he had a right to vote. Judgment on this point was dismissed. Their Lordships refrained from discussing the question as to whether Sinclair's membership in the C.P.A. constituted him an agent of McNeill.

The greater part of the day was taken up in the consideration of cases where non-residents had voted, the charges being that the persons voted, knowing that they had not the right to vote. None of the charges were sustained. There are resident in the riding a large number of Germans who, though they have lived in the country and voted for years, have never been naturalized and much time was taken upon the examination of these alien voters. Judgment was not given in any of these cases.

The most important point raised was one by Mr. Osler, who held that all members of the Patrons of Industry in the riding were agents of McNeill, the Patron candidate. Mr. Osler held that since members of the Patrons Association were required to support the nominee of the order each and every member became an agent of the candidate. Mr. Aylesworth dissented from this view and pointed out that as a matter of fact members of the order had voted against the association candidate. The case was argued at great length and judgment was reserved.

There were originally 256 charges against Mr. McNeill, but many of these were abandoned. The case will be finished to-day.

PROPOSED TRUNK LINE.

The Government Said to be Lending Aid to the Scheme.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Yesterday's developments have caused city circles to eagerly discuss the proposed new Canadian trunk railway. Chas. N. Armstrong issued a proof prospectus of the Atlantic and Lake Superior railway. This prospectus states Robinson, Fleming & Co. are authorized to issue £500,000 first mortgage, four per cent., twenty year sterling bonds at 99, being part of the authorized issue of four millions sterling. Mr. Armstrong is now seeking to get this amount underwritten in the London stock exchange. The prospectus further states that the Government of the Dominion of Canada has agreed to assume the payment of the entire interest upon these bonds during their twenty years currency and that the coupons will be endorsed accordingly.

This seems to imply that the Government has contriunted this amount in support of the scheme. It is believed here that the Government has merely agreed for a cash equivalent to sell an annuity to this extent. Senators Thibaudeau and Des Jardines are among the Canadian directors as is also the name of Andrew F. Gault, of the Bank of Montreal. But Mr. Gault telegraphs that he has withdrawn from all association with the board of directors.

The bonds are intended to purchase and consolidate into a trunk line four roads under construction connecting Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec, as well as making a thorough route from Sault Ste Marie to Paspebiac, with that place, as the Atlantic port for the shortest route to Europe. The London and County Banking Co. and the Royal Bank of Scotland are named in the prospectus. There is no mention of the Bank of British North America.

Sir Mackenzie's Little Tour.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2.—Sir Mackenzie Bowell arrived here from Toronto and spent the day in conference with the local Conservative leaders and with a number of prominent manufacturers discussing the plans for the forthcoming elections. It is understood that the majority of the local Conservatives are in favor of an early election. The Premier, accompanied by his private secretary, left for Quebec at night. The object of his present tour, while stated to be for change and recreation, is generally believed to be with the object of personally guaging the party feeling in regard to the elections.

A Sad Case of Insanity.

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Annie Whittaker is a raving maniac at police headquarters, and her five children are at the House of Providence. Her husband, it is said, has left her, and she is comparatively destitute. She and her children, the youngest only two months old, have been cared for during the past few days at the House of Providence, but last night the woman became so desperate that she had to be placed in custody. She did not recognise her own baby when it was shown to her to-day, and would probably have killed it had she been given a chance.

Dropped Dead Before the Altar.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—John Neveau, of Gatineau Point, dropped dead in the Basilica yesterday. He was about 60 years of age. Yesterday was the first Friday of the month and hence the sacrament was exposed in the church. It is the habit of Catholics to visit the church on such occasions and pray before the sacrament. There were about half a dozen worshippers in the church when Neveau entered. He went to kneel in the aisle just beside the first pew and fell forward on his side.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during this month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any further notice. dw

The Markets.

Although the roads are still bad and the sleighing heavy, a great deal of market produce was brought in this morning by the farmers. There was a brisk demand for eggs, butter and poultry and a ready sale was easily accomplished for such of these products as were exposed for sale, and good prices were realized. Eggs brought 18 and 20 cents and butter was sold at from 18 to 20 cents. Chickens brought fifty and sixty cents a pair and from 60 cents to $1.25 was asked for turkeys. Geese were worth 65 and 75 cents and ducks realized from 60 to 70 cents.

Anti-toxine.

Dr. Clarke to-day forwarded to the Provincial Board of Health his report concerning the course of treatment followed in the administration of anti-toxine to diphtheria patients in the Nicholls Hospital. It will be remembered that the Provincial Board agreed to forward anti-toxine for the treatment of a limited number of patients for two months if all records of injections and results were presented and forwarded to the Board. The expiring of the two months came on Jan. 29th last. Four cases, in all, were treated at the Nicholls Hospital. In each case the new method was tried and the results were most successful.

In a day or two, they will be on the Gull river waters and will take bearings for locks and dams connecting the beautiful lakes of the chain. If the works are completed they will prove a boon to the people of the north country. With such men as William Gainer, of Minden; John Coburn, of Lindsay; Alex. Montgomery, of Sebright, Sam. Gilbert, Andy Mortimer, Wm. McKelvie, Robert Mortimer, R. H. Baker and scores more good men to superintend such jobs, they should speedily be completed after once being started.—Warder.

A Great Local Sensation.

The "Fast Mail" which appears at the opera house on Tuesday evening, is said to be the most successful railroad and scenic melodrama on the road this season. Mr. L. J. Carter, the author and manager, has contrived to weave into a consistent story nearly all the good points of the sensational drama. The climax of each act if strong enough to sustain a whole play, yet so well graded are the features of the piece that one views with increasing interest through the five acts, the murder and the clever trick with the Grandfather's Clock in the first act, the Mississippi river steamer, its engine room showing a practical furnace, and the explosion with "complete change of scene behind a curtain of rising smoke," behind which is seen the wreck, as the curtain falls on the second act; the "life size" freight train with it realistic engine and sixteen box cars, with their familiar lettering, followed, at the close of the third act, by "The Fast Mail," the dago dive of the fourth act, and the thrilling incidents and hair breadth escapes which take place there; and then the "full front view of Niagara Falls, as seen from the centre of Suspension bridge," upon which the final curtain descends. Prices, 25, 35 and 50c. Box seats, 75c.

The Charity Carnival Ball.

The grand Charity Carnival Ball to be held in Bradburn's opera house, on Tuesday Feb. 12th, promises to be the most brilliant and successful event of the season. The demand for tickets is rapidly increasing. Parties from Port Hope, Belleville, Lindsay and Lakefield will attend. The plan for reserved seats 50c each, in the gallery, boxes and a limited number on the floor, is now open at Salisbury's Bookstore. Secure the best seats by engaging them early. Owing to numerous complaints and requests it has been definitely decided to donate the funds over and above expenses to the poor of Peterborough, under the auspices of the Catholic Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's and the Protestant Home Association. The prizes for the best costumes are on view at J. McClelland's jewelery store. Come in costume, if possible, and compete for them. If not, come in ordinary evening dress with some colour. All will be welcome; none turned away. Masks may be worn or not according to taste. Music by the Battallion Band and Butcher's orchestra. Doors open 8 p.m. Dancing to commence 8.30 p.m. At midnight the floor will be open to any of the spectators who wish to join in the dance. Tickets $1.00 admitting gentleman and lady, or two ladies together, can be procured from the Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's, Mrs Gen. Rubidge, Stratton's, Salisbury's and the Street Railway Office. Reserved seats 50c each at Salisbury's where plan may be seen. 2d

HOCKEY.

The hockey match this evening between a Toronto team of the Bank of Toronto and the Peterboroughs will be played between the hours of 8.30 and 9.30 at the rink. There is every reason to believe the match will be a close one.

A communication was received by manager Hurley, of the Petrboroughs this morning, that it would take a guarantee of $100 to bring the touring team of Chicago hockeyists to town for a game. Needless to say they will not be touched at the price.

The Peterboroughs have received official intimation that the finals in this division of the O.H.A. series will have to be played in Kingston.

BICYCLING.

The local wheel enthusiasts are working tooth and nail in an endeavour to bring the annual meet of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association to Peterborough on July 1st next. The council will be asked for a grant, and the business men of the town will be canvassed for subscriptions. The meet now carries with it every year fully 4,000 wheelmen, and fully as many excursionists. There are fully three hundred bicyclists in town, and all will put a shoulder to the wheel in an endeavour to arrange for the holding of the meet here. The wheelmen of Canada have held their annual gatherings in the extreme east and the far west, and as yet Peterborough has not been honoured. The decision will be made on Good Friday, and by that date Peterborough will be in a position to make a strong bid for the wheelmen.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

has been before the public for the past 14 years and achieved a success never equalled in the history of medicine, not only in Canada but in the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France and Australia as well.

WHY, you ask, has this Great Remedy outrun all competitors in the field of medicine in all parts of the world?

Because It is a Purely Vegetable Compound. It contains no harmful drugs or opiates. It does exactly as represented It permanently cures all kidney, liver, urinary and nervous disorders.

Read what some of your friends and neighbors say about WARNER'S SAFE CURE :—

W. H. HAMILTON, Railway and Steamboat Agent, Port Elgin, Ont. "Some three years ago the doctors gave me up as hopelessly incurable with Bright's disease of the Kidneys, but Warner's Safe Cure did what they failed to do—completely cured me. I have great pleasure in testifying to this fact."

WM. A. HORKINS, District Manager, Equitable Life Insurance Co., Toronto, Ont. "Three years ago my wife was a great sufferer from Kidney disease, so bad was she that it was never expected she would recover. After starting to use Warner's Safe Cure, however, she gradually began to get better, and within six months was perfectly well and is now the picture of health."

C. R. S. HARMAN, Mechanical Engineer, Montreal. "Having used your Warner's Safe Cure for six months, I can safely say that it has cured me completely after suffering for nearly five years with the liver complaint, where all other remedies that I have tried failed."

JOHN A. BURGESS, M.D., Lakefield, Ont. "I have much pleasure in testifying to the benefits which I know have been derived from the use of Warner's Safe Cure. I have recommended it to my patients in many cases and always with good results. It is without doubt the best medicine of the kind for kidney and liver trouble."

R. BIRKS, Druggist, Montreal. "My customers all speak in the highest terms of Warner's Safe Cure, one lady saying she could not live without it, and would rather never have tea or coffee than Warner's Safe Cure. Its effects on any trouble of the kidneys or liver are certainly all that could be desired, and its many cures are wonderful."

SO LITTLE.

She Had a Dear Stove, but It Wouldn't Hold Everything.

"Well," said the seaside butcher, "what can I do for you this morning?"

"I don't know," replied the cottager's daughter, "whether I want roast beef or corned beef today."

"If you are in doubt," replied the butcher, "as to which is the better, why don't you get the roast beef?"

"Because," replied the cottager's daughter, "I can save money on the corned beef, which is only 10 cents a pound."

"How big a piece of corned beef do you want?" inquired the man of chops and soup bones, who showed by his manner that he was quite as willing to sell corned beef as prime rib roast.

"Have you your tape measure with you?"

The butcher looked puzzled and replied:

"I never carry a tape measure."

"Well," said the cottager's daughter in an explanatory tone, "I wanted you to measure the diameter of the pot in order to get an idea of the proper dimensions of the piece of meat. You know if the meat should be too large for the pot it would be very awkward to drive it into the same with a hatchet, and if I should succeed in driving it in there would be no room for the cabbage and water, and it might explode on the fire and scatter the pot in every direction."

The butcher did not quite know what to say, but finally plucked up courage and warbled, "Why don't you try a rib roast?"

"It might be a good idea," replied the cottager's daughter, "but the trouble is the stove is so small I would have to break the ribs to get the meat in."

"It is a small stove," said the butcher sympathizingly.

"I guess it is," replied the cottager's daughter, "and I do not know what to do in the absence of the cook. It is too small for the wood, which has to be put in almost standing, and the cook complained the other day that the coal was too large for it."

The butcher was silent.

"I'll tell you what I'd better order," said the cottager's daughter.

"What?" asked the butcher.

"Something that will fit the stove."

"Well, what shall it be?" asked the butcher.

"I should think," replied the smiling beauty, "that something of a coy, shrinking character would be the best. Spinach would be first rate for that stove."

"I have none."

"Then bring a dozen bantam eggs. We can cook them one at a time and not strain the capacity of the stove. It is such a sweet little thing that I think of using it for a chatelaine ornament next winter if I can buy it at the end of the season."

And the butcher walked off mumbling, because he was the landlord's brother, and the wily daughter of the cottager pretended that she did not know it in the hope that he would tell his fraternal relative and that the latter might prove an exception to the generality of landlords and put in a new stove large enough to cook a chicken without first cutting it into small pieces of the fricassee size.

But her efforts were probably futile.—Detroit Free Press.

A PROSPEROUS YEAR'S BUSINESS RECORDED.

CENTRAL CANADA LOAN AND SAVINGS COMPANY'S REPORT.

Satisfactory Year's Work—Promptness Shown in Meeting Obligations—Full Details of the Annual Meeting—An Excellent Showing—Figures of the Year's Business.

The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company of Ontario, was held in the company's offices, No. 347 George street, Peterborough, on Wednesday, the 23rd day of January, 1895, at 1.30 o'clock p.m.

The President, Mr. Geo. A. Cox, having taken the chair, the Manager, Mr. F. G. Cox, acting as Secretary, the following report and financial statement were read:

The Directors have pleasure in laying before the Shareholders a statement of the affairs of the Company for the year ending 31st December, 1894.

The earnings for the year amount to $371,975.28. Deducting cost of management, interest on debentures and deposits, and all other charges, there remains a net profit of $99,777.92, which has been disposed of by the payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of six per cent. per annum, amounting to $72,000, the transfer of $15,000 to the Reserve Fund (making that fund now $115,000), and the balance, $12,777.92, to the Contingent Fund, which now stands at $20,134.71.

The result of the year's business has been satisfactory. The rigid economy being practised by nearly all classes, and especially by the farming community, is enabling borrowers to pay their interest and maturing instalments of principal with more than usual promptitude. This effort upon the part of a large proportion of the community to discharge their existing liabilities, rather than incur new obligations, while contributing to the prevailing depression in many kinds of business, is resulting beneficially to Loan Companies.

The decreased rate of interest obtainable on desirable loans has been met by the lower rates payable on debentures and deposits; our earning power for the past year has been fully maintained, being the best in the history of the Company.

The Directors are pleased to be able to report a steady growth in the business of the Company, as evidenced by the increase during the year of $166,142.00 in the invested funds and a substantial increase in sterling debentures, currency debentures and deposits.

The somewhat excessive losses of $6,655.78 charged against the Contingent Fund during the year have been very fully provided for by an addition of $12,777.92 to that fund from the profits of the year, after making the addition of $15,000 to the Reserve Fund. The latter fund is now equal to 20½ per cent. of the paid up Capital.

The Inspection Commitee have made a careful examination of the securities, checked the same with the Mortgage Register, and report everything satisfactory.

The report of the Auditors is appended to the financial statement annexed.

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the Directors.

GEO. A. COX,
President.

We hereby certify that we have made a careful examination of the securities of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company of Ontario, Limited, that we have checked the same with the mortgage register, and find them correct, and in accordance thetewith.

E. S. VINDIN, } Inspection Commitee.
F. C. TAYLOR, }

Peterborough, 16th January, 1895.

In moving the resolution for the adoption of the report, the Chairman said:—

"I have pleasure in briefly directing your attention to the operations of the company for the past year. We have, after deducting all expenses of management, providing for interest on deposits and debentures and the payment of four quarterly dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, made the substantial addition of $15,000 to the reserve fund, and $12,777.92 to the contingent fund. This, I think, you will regard as satisfactory. It is also gratifying to note that the prevailing depression of the past two years has not retarded the steady progress of the company. During that time our assets have increased from $4,186,673.66 on the 31st December, 1892, to $5,200,830.09 on the 31st December, 1894. The earning power of the company has also been fully maintained, the lower rates paid on our deposits and debentures covering the reductions made in our loaning rate.

"The agricultural community have no doubt suffered from the sharp decline in the price of wheat, and have been more or less inconvenienced by the expenditure necessary to stock their farms, adapt themselves to the changed conditions they enter upon having diversified farming, as dairy farming, fruit growing, stock raising, etc. With the return of more settled and remunerative prices for their products, and the fact that they have [illegible] farmers, we [illegible] promptly to meet their obligations, and our experience in that respect during the past year has been quite satisfactory.

"The steady accumulation of funds seeking investment in the hands of our insurance companies, trust companies and private capitalists makes it more difficult and requires increased activity upon the part of our officers, to keep our funds profitably employed. The advantages that well organized loan companies have in securing applications, making valuations by their own salaried officers, the periodical inspection of the mortgaged properties, and the prompt collection of interest, is gradually leading our own people and our own financial corporations, whose chief business is other than that of loaning money to invest in the debentures of loan companies. If this policy were more generally pursued, as it no doubt will be, it will lessen competition, lead to the more profitable employment of Canadian money, and decrease the amount now being borrowed in Great Britain on the debentures of Canadian loan companies. In the case of this company, of the $5,200,000 we have invested, over $3,000,000 is represented by Canadian capital, the interest paid on that amount remaining in the country to help increase its wealth.

"Before closing my remarks I desire to refer to the valuable services of Messrs. Finlayson & Auld, writers, Glasgow, the company's representatives in Great Britain. They have during the past year, as in former years, given their very best attention and care to the company's interests, and the steady growth of our sterling debenture business from the inception of the company to the present time is the best evidence of the confidence placed in them and the company they represent by the investing public of the old land. Mr. Finlayson and Mr. McKechnie are both able from personal visits to this country and personal inspection of the company's securities to intelligently discuss its affairs with intending investors.

"I will now move, seconded by Vice-President Mr. Richard Hall, that the report be adopted and distributed among the shareholders, depositors and debenture holders of the company." The motion was seconded by the Vice-President and unanimously adopted.

The usual resolutions were carried, and the scrutineers reported the following gentlemen elected directors for the year 1895: Messrs. Geo. A. Cox, J. R. Dundas, and Robt. Jaffray, Toronto; Richard Hall, D. W. Dumble, Wm. Cluxton and James Stevenson, M.P., Peterborough; Mr. Edmund S. Vindin, Port Hope; Mr. F. C. Taylor, Lindsay and Mr. Henry J. Lefevre, Lakefield. The meeting then adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of directors Mr. Geo. A. Cox was elected President and Messrs. J. R. Dundas and Richard Hall Vice-Presidents.

All the Same.

"Young men are scarce at the watering places this summer," remarked the drummer to the hotel clerk.

"Why don't you go and subtract one from the scarcity?" suggested the clerk.

"That's what every girl is trying to do," laughed the drummer. "But I have been," he went on. "I just got back. I was at a place down by the sea, and to about 40 girls there were not over six men, not counting old men and husbands. There was a lark, though, there from Detroit, who was equal to a dozen ordinary chaps, and a more vigorous and persistent flirt I never saw. He was a daisy, and all the girls were stuck on him, but he had to get up and hustle between two days."

"What was the matter?" interrupted the clerk. "Did he try to beat the hotel?"

"Not much—he wasn't that kind. What he did was a joke. I said he was a flirt, and every day he had one or two new girls on the string, and he handled them so skillfully that each thought she was a favorite. On the last day a new girl was listening to his vows, and when they parted she had a little bow of green ribbon which she was to wear on her right shoulder at the mask ball they were giving that night, so he would know her and devote himself to her. She was greatly flattered and kept the secret close, and that evening when the ball opened she was there in all her glory, looking for him in the suit he had promised her he would wear. But she didn't look long for him, because right next to her was a girl with the identical green bow on her shoulder she wore, and a little beyond was another and still another. By this time the others began to take notice, and in about 10 minutes there were 27 green bows piled up in the middle of the floor, and 27 maidens were looking for a mask in the shape of Buntthorne, but they couldn't find him, and they never did find him, for before the ball was over he had paid his bill and skipped on the first train."

"It wasn't you, was it?" ventured the clerk, and the drummer swore it wasn't. —Detroit Free Press.

TOWN FRANCHISES.

As the town increases in population and approaches the size of a city, it is to be expected the council will, from time to time, receive applications for franchises of one sort or another. It, therefore, becomes important that special care should be taken to properly and efficiently safeguard the interest of the town and public convenience. At the present time the council is being asked by Messrs. Carnegie and Dennistoun (practically the Auburn Woollen Mills Company) for the right to erect poles and string electric wires upon the streets, and while it is beneficial to have competition in this as in any other branch of trade, it must be borne in mind that the competition, in order to be lasting, must be of a healthy character.

While the character and business ability of the gentlemen making the application are conceded, as well as their ability to carry out an undertaking, it would seem that the application they have been placed before the council in lacking in the respect of its not containing any agreement on the part of these gentlemen to either proceed with the work themselves, or to forfeit anything in the public interest in case they should fail to carry out the proposed work. It may be mentioned that in the case of the Street Railway Company it was thought proper to insist upon a large cash deposit being made both as a guarantee of good faith and as security that the franchise should be proceeded upon, and in order that the town should receive a substantial sum for its being prevented from granting a similar franchise to other parties. Why not require similar conditions in this case? A franchise like that applied for should only be granted for bona fide reasons and not for speculative purposes, to be possibly hawked about as a negotiable commodity, instead of being legitimately carried out in the direction of the ostensible purpose for what it is granted. It should be stipulated that work be proceeded with in good faith, within a reasonable time, and that a substantial guarantee should be exacted for the fulfilment of such conditions and that it should become void in case the stipulated conditions are not complied with. There is no good reason why the council should have demanded and secured substantial forfeit from one local company in respect of the franchise granted it, and fail to exact it from another applicant for similar privileges.

Furthermore, it is suggested that it would be wise for the council to see that the franchise if given, should be given on conditions that would prevent its being transferred to irresponsible parties, who, after making a temporary reduction in the price of lighting, may then fail, leaving their pole line as a legacy. The EXAMINER being opposed on public grounds to all monopolies, feels it a duty to bring to the council's attention the necessity of full and careful consideration, with a view of, in every reasonable way, safeguarding the public interests in the matter of granting franchises.

THE PRINTERS' RECEPTION.

Members of the Art Preservative Entertained at the Y. M. C. A.

The bright and cosy parlours of the Y. M. C. A. were filled, last evening, by a large representation of printers, the occasion being the reception given by the Association to that craft. Mr. E. A. Nott made an efficient chairman. A letter was read from Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P. P., regretting his inability to be present and take the chair, on account of important business engagements.

A number of old timers, in the persons of Messrs. Menzies, Dobbin, Cowle and Mitchell, were present, and reminescences of thirty years ago were resurrected for the entertainment of the younger members. During the evening a number of solos and duets were given and much enjoyed. The programme was presented as follows:—

Introductory remark	Mr Crowe
Address—"Past and Present"	Mr W Menzies
Song	A E Benton
Address—"Thirty Years' Experience"	Mr F H [Dobbin
Duet	Messrs Crowe and Miller
Song	Mr Alf Miller
Address	Mr Mitchell

Not the least pleasant part of the evening's entertainment was the refreshments that were served. It is unnecessary to say that full justice was done to this part of the programme. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Association for the hospitable manner in which th y had entertained their guests.

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action; but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs, will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 2, 1895.

On the street here 300 bushels of wheat sold at 63c to 64c for white and 61c to 62c for red. One load of spring brought 61c. Some 1,300 bushels of barley changed hands at 46c to 48c, and 500 of oats at 35c.

There was some improvement in barley and sales were at better figures than has been offered by buyers previously this week. Five cars of No. 2 Canada barley sold at 53c. Supply continues to be depleted by daily shipments.

Wheat was weak at the opening in Chicago but rallied on advices from New York and Washington relative to the expected bond issue and closed 1-4c higher. Corn and oats followed the course of wheat and closed firm and fractionally higher.

At East Buffalo the sheep and lamb market closed strong and all sold. Prime fat sheep and yearlings, $3.90 to $4.20; best lambs, $5.50; Canadas in bond for export, $5 to $5.15.

Speculation at the New York stock exchange again turned on the bond issue. A great feature of the day was the break in the actual rates of sterling exchange of about 1c to the pound which led to a general cancellation of orders for shipments of gold. The gain in prices ranged from 1-8 to 3 per cent. and was most marked in American sugar, Chicago Gas, Louisville and Nashville, Lead, the Grangers, Southern Railways, Western Union, Cordage, Lake Shore and the Leaders. The market closed strong.

The London stock markets were better. Consequently in spite the close, Americans were strong. Some [illegible] three millions pounds is expected on Tuesday.

A WIDE, SMOOTH CUT IN THE TOWN OFFICIALS' RANKS.

A Number of the Corporation Offices Declared Vacant Last Night

At a meeting of the members of the Committee on Appointments, last night, it was decided to recommend the re-appointment of the present town officials with the exception of Town Solicitor Edwards, Chief Constable Rossel, Constables Stewart, Adams and McGinty, and Street Inspector Pope, whose positions were declared vacant. No names, it is understood, were suggested in substitution. Monday night's council meeting augurs to be be one of the liveliest held in some time.

The move on the part of the committee to recommend a change in some of the appointments was expected and the outcome of their first meeting was awaited with interest. The majority of the members had apparently made up their minds that a change was desirable and the discussion was brief in consequence.

The committee have also recommended the appointment, as assessors, of Messrs. John Kincaid, Thos. McGrath, Thos. McKee and J. J. Hartley. For some unaccountable reason, Mr. Wm. Aldridge, who has for years served the town faithfully, as an assessor, was dropped.

Features of the Old and New Treatment of Kidney Diseases that Deserve Attention.

London, Feb. 2.—A feature of kidney diseases that has hitherto bothered physicians has been the invariable failure, under ordinary treatment, to thoroughly eradicate any disease that has once attacked the kidneys. Temporary relief might be afforded, but in every case the disease has again broken out, and with increased vigor. One important feature of every cure of Bright's disease, diabetes and other disorders of the kidneys, effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and a point that has attracted the attention of the doctors, is that there has never has occurred a case in which the disease has re-appeared. The importance of this fact cannot be overestimated.

ISSUER OF MARRIAGE LICENSES

IT FOLLOWS AFTER — a disordered liver — that you're subject to attacks of cold or chills on slight exposure. You get "tired" easily. A "tired" digestion fails to assimilate food. This often results in what we call Indigestion or Biliousness.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets rouse the liver to vigorous action, and this in turn starts the machinery of the body into activity. Liver, stomach and bowels feel the tonic effect, and in consequence the entire system is invigorated. The processes become self-regulating, and a reserve force is stored up against exposure to disease.

If you're too thin, too weak or nervous, it must be that food assimilation is wrong. This is the time to take Pleasant Pellets. They permanently cure Constipation, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Sick or Bilious Headache, Dizziness and Jaundice.

POPULAR FASHIONS.

STYLES ESPECIALLY ADAPTED TO WOMEN OF MODERATE MEANS.

New Amateur Dressmakers Turn Two Old Dresses Into One New One—The Accepted Width of Skirts—Blouse Waists In High Favor.

It is encouraging to women with scant purses to know they have an opportunity of turning two old dresses into one new one, always provided the material is in good order. A beautiful model from Paris was made of brown velvet, which formed half the depth of the skirt, where it was met by a new make of moire, also of a brown tone, with china flowers thrown on a shot ground. The junction was hidden by a band of fur, and the lower part of the bodice was of the moire, which apparently swathed the figure in soft, easy folds, while the upper part was of velvet, elaborately embroidered in jet and steel, having the semblance of a deep cape, falling over the top of the sleeves. These had one puff of the moire to the elbow and a narrow gauntlet to the wrist. Biased bands edge many of the skirts, and several are cut on the bias as of yore.

Four to four and a half yards is the accepted width of ordinary skirts. They are gored, and by no means full at the waist—indeed they do not at all err on the side of overfullness or scantiness, the great object being that they should flow gracefully, and in the matter of trimming much is left to the individual taste. For example, a pretty flowered brocaded skirt was trimmed about half a yard above the edge with a wide roulean of velvet, knotted at intervals, heading a narrow but full lace flounce. But in order that the skirts should flow out at the feet the lower portion is cut like a flounce, and though not apparently gathered is so gored that it is extra full.

This is the era of the blouse waist, and far from losing its popularity, this pleasing adjunct of feminine apparel bids fair to be more popular than ever. Fortunately for women who do their own dressmaking, the blouse is the easiest picturesque garment to make that was ever invented. One of the prettiest novelties in this line is a perfectly fitting glove tight satin "fonds," over which chiffon of the same color is most artistically draped, or, which is quite as pretty, arranged in accordion plaited folds which are crossed over the breast or not, as best suits the wearer.

For day blouses every imaginable material is used. Silk, cashmere, hop sacking, serges—anything or everything is allowable. The amateur dressmaker, who ventures on one of the tight fitting blouses just described, has only to take the lining of an old dress that fits well for a foundation. With a perfectly fitting bodice to go on, material may be draped very easily, and with a ribbon collar and belt to fit you are. It takes no time at all to make one. Many bodices end at the waist, while others have the skirt fastening over them, with handsome belt trimmings.

A pretty French blouse in striped crepon is gathered at the neck, waist and elbows. A fancy galon outlines the full basque, the fluted frills of the sleeves, together with the neck flounce, with its two ends falling as a jabot into fan plaitings. A new form of blouse, made over a tight fitting lining and showing the popular shoulder drapery, is fashioned with a band and all round basque intended to be worn on the outside of the dress. A plain blouse, by the bye, can be made to appear ornamental by trimming it yoke fashion with black lace, a frill over the shoulder, a belt of black lace and bands of black lace insertion between the puffings on the sleeves, which end in deep ruffles.

A Dainty Glove Mender.

To make a dainty glove mender, get a small silver ring and sew to it pieces of narrow blue ribbon, letting them hang down a short distance from the ring. To one attach a pair of small silver topped scissors; to another a pretty shaped needle book of blue plush; to the third tie a silver finger, which any jeweler will make for you. This is to put in the finger of the glove while mending it. To the fourth ribbon sew a braided strand of different colored silks. Have the silver ring hang from two broad pieces of ribbon, which are joined with a bow at the top. A less expensive one may be made by using a wooden finger and steel scissors.

The Switzerland of Asia.

Corea may be called the Switzerland of Asia. It is a land of mountains and valleys, of crystal lakes and trickling streams. We rode for days through one beautiful valley after another; now going for miles through fields of rice lands, laid out in terraces and covered with water, out of whose glassy white surface the emerald green sprouts were just peeping. Such valleys lie right in the mountains, and the hills which rise from them are as ragged and as bare as the silvery mountains of Greece. They change in their hues with every change of the heavens, and they now look like silver, and again turn to masses of velvet and gold, spotted here and there with navy blue pines. The clouds nestle in their hollows, and their tops, in the ever-varying air of Corea, assume at the edge of the evening all sorts of fantastic shapes. Our first day's ride was through a valley which was as rich as guano and as black as your hat. It was cut up with creeks, some of which were half a mile wide, and at these we found rough men clad in white with their pantaloons pulled up to their thighs. As we came up these men bent their backs and our grooms crawled upon them, and clasping them around the neck they were carried through the water. The porters received one cent for each trip, and General Pak told me that this work is sometimes done by men out of charity and that the Gods esteem it a good act, and the water which washes their legs at the same time carries away their sins and gives them a clean road to heaven. Other devotees stand with cold water in the streets and give drink to all that thirst.—Frank G. Carpenter.

A Prolific Insect.

The infinite value of little things in their bearings upon life in this world has a most striking illustration in the history of the gypsy moth, which pest the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is now imploring Congress to help it to get rid of. A Harvard professor who entertained a vain hope of advantageously crossing the European moth with the American silkworm allowed his one solitary imported caterpillar to escape. What is the result to-day? An insect that destroys the trees within 350 square miles of territory and threatens the whole country, and several hundred thousand dollars expended all to no use. This is one curious modern version of the old Arabian fable of the giant in the bottle.

QUEEN OF CRIMINALS.

A WOMAN WITH A RECORD ON TWO CONTINENTS.

Sophie Lyons, Thief and Blackmailer—Her Wonderful Nerve and Her Unbounded Admiration of Herself—She Tells of Some of Her Work.

ST. LOUIS (SPECIAL).—Sophie Lyons, the notorious woman crook, who recently was given hours to leave here, has had a variety of adventures sufficient to fill a book. Her operations have been carried on with the utmost daring for fully twenty years, and every large city in Europe and America has at one time or another been the scene of her criminal accomplishments.

In his celebrated work on criminology, Lombroso, the most astute of all students of such phenomena, declares that the ideal female criminal is small in stature, inclining somewhat to "dumpiness," quick of intellect, and brimming over with an excess of animal spirits. If the eminent Italian had set himself to write a general description of the far-famed Sophie Lyons he could not have accomplished better results.

Her weight does not exceed 125 pounds, while she is about 5 feet 2 inches in height, and as vivacious as a Parisienne. Indeed, her manner is always suggestive of the Frenchwoman, and during her many years' sojourn abroad she has not failed to pick up every little oddity of expression, shrug and gesture peculiar to the people of the land of wine.

Her eyes are blue and shift constantly; but are capable of a steady, straight stare into those of her interviewer, as well as of gleams of almost tigerish ferocity whenever some subject is touched upon that is distasteful to her. She is a born actress, and with her talents trained in another direction might have become as famous on the stage as she has become infamous in thievery.

Among the first prerequisites of a successful historian is a good voice. In this Sophia needs no training. Her tones are soft, low and musical, and she possesses the charming pronunciation peculiar to the people of England. It is to be supposed that she became habituated to the use of the broad "a" during her long-continued sojourn, and her excellent grammar is the result of long years of careful schooling in the best female colleges in America and France.

All together Sophie Lyons, blackmailer and all-round crook, is an attractive, even fascinating, woman, as more than one man has found to his great cost. Her game is never small. She has a hearty contempt for the pickpocket and petty larceny thief. And if there is one thing on earth of which she is proud it is the fact that she has attained the exalted position among her fellows of being the leading female criminal of her generation!

She speaks of the business of thievery as if it were one of the accepted professions, on a full footing with law, medicine, or journalism, and never misses an opportunity to dignify her occupation by the use of high-flown terms.

"The ladies and gentlemen of my profession," she says, "make as much of a study of it as a lawyer does of his Backstone and Kent. We are never idle, and, like Cadeaux and Ravennes, we are constantly employed in devising schemes for relieving the wealthy of some of their 'heavy burdens.' And we are very charitable. There are few people, you know, however low morally, who have not some redeeming quality. The good and the bad are pretty well mixed up in us all; and there's many a man who is honest to-day simply because he thinks he couldn't steal without being detected."

Above everything else, Sophie Lyons is an egotist. She is like Mme. de Stael in that she combines exceptional brilliancy with consuming vanity. She comments freely and volubly on every act of her life that she thinks redounds either to her personal or "professional" credit, and is careful to point out, lest her hearer should overlook it, each particular element of shrewdness.

"If diamonds and sealskins are beneath your dignity, pray what is it you are out after?" questioned her interviewer.

The reply came promptly, accompanied by a particularly Gallic gesture, and a pitying smile.

"Why the cash, the cash," she repeated; "the ready money, which goes where it's sent and needs no negotiation. And bonds, too—they come in very handy at times. But diamonds and sealskins—bah! I'd lose caste in my profession if I were convicted of stealing such beggarly things!"

Then with a French shrug, and a gesture with both hands. "If there were $10,000 worth it might be worth while."

"If you steal bonds," she was asked, "how do you manage to dispose of them with safety?"

"I don't attempt to dispose of them, you foolish man! I work them back. I just wait, and after awhile a little advertisement, carefully and diplomatically worded, appears in the newspapers, and, somehow, it always reaches the eye it is intended for. Negotiations are entered into for their return, and in the course of time the transaction is closed to the profit of both parties.

"The last big affair I had in bonds amounted to £42,000. I laid low for a while and then gradually worked them back to the original holder, and we were mutually benefited."

"Mutually benefited?" questioned her interviewer, a little astounded at the daring woman's peculiar reasoning.

"Yes, mutually benefited," she replied. "I retained my bit, and the other fellow got his property back—in part," she added, with a sly wink. "If I had not cared to give him his bonds back he would have been out just £42,000; but as it turned out he is better off—and so am I."

Could any smoother scheme for dishonestly enriching oneself and escaping the consequences be devised? By returning a portion of the bonds, or other property, she manages to become possessed of, Sophie Lyons makes the rightful owner a shielder of criminals—particeps criminis, in law—and thus secures herself against future persecution.

For ten years of her extraordinary career Sophie made her home in the capitals of Europe, where she met some of the most prominent men of the past decade. She seems to have laid her plans while a pupil in the highly respectable seminary at Lille, France, whither she went in her early girlhood, and after she was expelled from school for some indiscretion which involved her arrest, she began her roguish career in earnest and flashed across the criminal horizon of the continent with meteoric brilliancy. As the dashing Mme. de Varney, the foremost adventuress of her time, she earned hundreds of thousands of dollars, all of which she dissipated in riotous living, and managed to make the acquaintance of half the prominent men of Europe. Victor Hugo was among her conquests, and in some way she met the Prince of Wales, Lord Roseberry, then the husband of one of the Rothschild women, and any number of Russian Dukes, German Princes and French noblemen, among them the Duc de Morny, who on one occasion saved her from a long term of imprisonment.

In the case of Sophie Lyons, the arguments of the moralists receive a sad blow. After a long career of law breaking, for which she has known only a small degree of legal penalty, she is entering upon a comfortable old age (if such can be said of a woman of five-and-thirty), with a magnificent home, affectionate children and a snug fortune of $90,000. Truly, "the wicked seem to flourish like a green bay tree."

Effectively Cured of Indigestion and Nervous Troubles By South American Nervine—No Trifling With Disease—This Medicine Cures at the Nerve Centers and thus Effects a Certain Cure—Never Fails in Cases of Indigestion, Weakness and Nervous Prostration.

"In a multitude of counsellors there is safety," said a wise man centuries ago. A multitude of counsellors testify that South American Nervine cures disease and removes suffering as no other medicine will do. In these pages, from week to week, has appeared the testimony of well known people—men and women, in all parts of the Dominion, telling in distinct and thankful terms what this wonderful discovery has done for them. A large volume would be needed to contain all the evidence that comes to the discoverer of this medicine.

This talk is to-day illustrated with faces of three well known people who add their testimonials to the others. Here we have Mr. H. H. Darroch, of Mount Forest, who found himself weak to desperation after an attack of la grippe. South American Nervine was the only medicine to be found that gave him back his former strength.

Mr. Thomas Sullivan, a second figure in the group, was a sufferer for a number of years with aggravated indigestion. He had been treated by several doctors, with very little benefit. A friend recommended South American Nervine, and after taking a few bottles he has found himself completely relieved of swelling of stomach and other disagreeable evidences of indigestion. In a brief sentence, he says—"it has cured me."

Mr. Noble Wright, of Orangeville, was a sufferer for a long period with indigestion and sluggish liver, these culminating in gastric and nasal catarrh. Doctors and doctors' medicines were unavailing to cure. Having taken only two bottles of South American Nervine he found himself greatly benefited, and after six bottles had been used he is cured.

Baffled though doctors often are with disease, when the root trouble is discovered a cure is not difficult. Here rests the entire success of South American Nervine. Certain nerves control entirely the stomach, liver and all the internal organs of the body. Let these become weakened and disease follows and will continue until strength is given to these nerve centers. The motor power is centered there. Attempts to heal an organ is only patchwork of the worst kind and cannot possibly be effective. South American Nervine heals at the nerve centres, and for this reason people, after having tried doctors and doctors' medicines without success, because the effort is only to give temporary relief, find it effects an absolute, positive and unmistakeable cure.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(do lingering was poor Pa's disease).
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mothers others talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Pape,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,
They gave us every one, a kiss.
And said, "be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home.
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be whate'er befall.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Tradition of the Horseshoe.

In Marrocco iron is considered a great protection against demons, who are the lineal representatives, after all, of the hostile spirits, says The Cornhill Magazine. Hence it is usual to place a knife or dagger under a sick man's pillow, his illness, of course, being attributed to demoniacal possession. In India the mourner who performs the necessary but somewhat dangerous duty of putting fire into the dead man's mouth carries a key or knife in his hand to keep off evil spirits. In short, a bit of iron is a very useful thing to have about you at any time if you desire to escape the unfavorable attention of the ghosts, the trolls, the fairies and the demons generally. This is a good reason for buying a pocketknife. It is also a reason for nailing up a horseshoe.

"But why a horseshoe in particular," you ask, "more than any other odd piece of iron?" Well, primarily, the good luck depends more upon the iron as iron than on the special shape or function of the horseshoe as a horseshoe. But there are also many reasons why the superstition should happen to fix itself more particularly upon horseshoes. We must remember that in Europe at least it is the cattle, the horse and the domestic beasts in general that are specially liable to the hostile attacks of "the little people." Therefore the elves and trolls are most likely to be dreaded on farms or in the country, where horses and cattle most do congregate. Now, if you want to nail up a bit of iron as a protection against the fiery darts of the evil ones on your stables and cowhouses, which is the place where one oftenest sees them, nothing is more likely to come handy to your purpose than a cast horseshoe. Besides it has obvious congruity for the place and object, and it can be readily picked up in the roads almost anywhere.

Specified.

"There is a young country boy staying at our boarding house," writes a correspondent, "who is a perfect little gentleman in his way. The other day he brought his sister in to dinner and gave her a general introduction somewhat as follows, 'Ladies and gentlemen, this is my sister.' Then he electrified the gathering by continuing, 'My sister, these are ladies and gentlemen.' Whereat the ladies and gentlemen present were highly delighted at such indorsement."

Growth of Hair.

"Eight years ago, I had the varioloid, and lost my hair, which previously was quite abundant. I tried a variety of preparations, but without beneficial result, till I began to fear I should be permanently bald. EVENING GOWNS AND A VARIETY OF WRAPS AND CLOAKS.

Novelties In Jewelry—Mock Pearl Necklaces and Russian Styles of Bracelets. Get Out Grandmother's Gold Chain. Mercury Metamorphosed Into Viking.

Two important questions now vex the feminine mind. One is regarding evening gowns for the many social functions, and the other is about the wraps and cloaks. It is supposed that nearly every woman now has her winter dresses decided upon if not already made, and many winter gowns have coats to match, either figaro regent or a plain coat with full skirt which falls into trumpetlike flutings. By the way, if there is an amateur dressmaker who wishes to make one of these fanlike skirts let me tell her a little secret. She must not lay open the seams to press them flat, but simply stitch them, as that throws the surface up in a round, rolling shape. The seams to the waist and those under the arms should be pressed open or stitched down closely on each side of the seam, but this must be done no farther than the lower waist line. The seams, when pressed, make the skirt of the coat set out like a "sprung" collar. I think I have described nearly all the latest styles of jackets and coats recently, but every day sees some new and elegant design in long cloaks and superb evening wraps, as well as many varieties of velvet capes. One of the latest of these had a snug jacket with the skirt perhaps 12 inches below the waist line and was sleeveless. There were a triple cape above that, simply gathered, and a pointed butterfly collar with medici collar above. Every edge was bordered with a two inch band of silver fox, headed by a fine line of jet trimming. At the end of the pointed collar were a bow and ends of black grosgrain ribbon. Three rows of fur bordered the skirt of the gray cheviot gown worn with this, and en passant I may say fur borders everything except handkerchiefs this season. This wrap has already been reproduced in wool, the shaggy effect being preferred. Then when the fur is of the same tone the one blends into the other in an exquisite manner. But in many and indeed most cases, the fur forms quite a sharp contrast to the material which it trims. Ermine is very popular, and swan's down is seen on many evening dresses around the necks and around the long wraps for evening wear.

I saw one evening wrap today that was very handsome. It was of mat white corded velutina lined with willow green satin, duchess striped with salmon pink. There was a deep capuchin hood, and both hood and long wrap were bordered with a three inch band of white swan's down. No other trimming has the same delicate lightness.

It is well that all the designers evolve things a little different, which gives each woman just what she wants. No two coats or cloaks or wraps are exactly alike, and I fancy that for this winter they are more diversified than usual. One long coat wrap for a lady was of invisible green velvet, cut princess back and with the front draped across and up to the left shoulder in rich folds and closed all the way down the left side under a fur band, which also extends all around the bottom. The upper part of the sleeves are in large velvet puffs, and the forearm of thick ribbed black silk. This makes a most superb garment and a graceful one as well.

Some of the long velvet mantles are truly works of art and skill, and they are embroidered in the most elaborate and intricate manner and beaded in fine beads set on in such a way as to pick out and define the tracery of the embroidery. Beaded embroidery is found also on some of the prettiest evening and dancing dresses. I took particular note of a dainty maize courtauld crape made with a demitrain bordered with a headed ruffle of white lace. All up the front breadth was a delicate pattern wrought in outline with brown silk and amber beads. Anything prettier could hardly be imagined. The waist was of the crape, drawn to a point and finished with a piping. The bust was draped with an all over embroidery of the same kind as that on the skirt, and the short puffed sleeves were of the same. I saw the owner of this lovely gown try it on. Long maize perinot gloves reaching nearly to the shoulder and a wide necklace of small amber beads go with this. Amber is to be quite a fad in jewelry this winter, and it certainly is very becoming. It matches a blond's hair and enhances the delicacy of her coloring, while it blends with the darker beauty of the brunette most admirably. It is quite costly, is fine amber jewelry, but nothing pretty is cheap.

SEASONABLE WRAPS.

Another pretty evening dress for a young lady was made of the new silk courtauld crape, pale lilac, with a plain skirt gathered in the back. There are two lace flounces gathered to form a slight heading. All around the bottom of these were sewed an inch apart wax pearl beads as large as peas. The ruffles were slightly lifted in front, and a spray of white and purple flowers reached diagonally in a graceful sweep from above the top of one to nearly the top of the other ruffle. The waist was gathered top and bottom, slightly joined in front and had two rows of white lace insertion going all around it. There was a bertha made of the same lace studded with pearl beads. The sleeves were simple frills of lace with the beads. Both sleeves and bertha were stiffened with wire. Two lilac bows set high on the shoulders gave pertness to this gown. A wide necklace of fancy mock pearls went with this. This season there will be a large amount of this kind of jewelry worn by the youthful. Pearls are not only expensive, but not always safe investments, as there is no telling when they will get "homesick" for the sea and lose their luster. Women always love pearls for their pure luster, but more than one who could well afford the real wear the imitations. They are so perfect as to deceive almost any one, and so they are worn with as much courage as if genuine. Bracelets are to be worn, and the heavy Russian styles will probably be the favorites in dead gold, often set with diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires all together.

I thought human ingenuity could go no farther in the invention of dress material, but there is a new fabric called changeable honeycomb suitings. The surface of this is raised nearly an eighth of an inch, and under this lies the contrasting color. It is shown in dark tortoise shell and black pearl colors with dusky red and a rich blue as under color. It is extremely rich and will be for winter dresses. I noted one just put on exhibition of the pearl and blue, with rolls of navy blue velvet, four of them, equidistant around the bottom, but the material is so rich that it really needs nothing beyond the hem. There is a porcupine plush, however, that has been presented expressly for trimming to these honeycomb suitings and it is cut on the straight and set on as bands and bretelles. Among the silks I note the bengalines in all the season's colors, made to be used in combinations, plain and novelty. The wide cord plain is for the trimming or sleeves and the novelty is for skirts, but some use them in a directly opposite manner. There are several styles of brocades with bengaline gowns. One of the prettiest small things that belong to a lady's costuming is the dainty viking style of setting a pair of sharp little wings in her hair, one on each side of the head. The hair should be dressed something like a Diana helmet, and these wings, which are fastened to hairpins, stuck in. The viking wings can be had in black, or any light color, or of lace spangled with diamond dust. This fancy in wings has obtained all summer, but they were called Mercury then. They have changed to viking now.

To Fight the C. P. R.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—The Pacific Mail and the Occidental Steamship Companies have entered into an agreement with the Oceanic company by which it is expected to divert a considerable portion of the passenger business which has lately been secured by the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company. Under the new agreement passengers for the Orient may proceed by way of Honolulu on the Oceanic steamers, afterwards resuming their journey on the Pacific Mail or the Occidental steamers. In return both companies will take eastbound tourists from the Orient to Honolulu and leave them there to be picked up by the Oceanic company.

Another Armenian Story Denied.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 2.—The story published in the London Daily News on January 29, to the effect that the Armenians in Tarsus had been forbidden to use their cemetery on the ground that they used it as a depot for arms is officially declared to be untrue. The story is said to have arisen from the posting of a Turkish guard in a ruined building in the cemetery supposed to be the tomb of Sardanapalus.

Starving in Dakota.

YANKTON, S. D., Feb. 2.—A pathetic appeal for aid for the starving settlers on the Sioux reservation in the unorganized county of Gregory has been sent out. Six hundred and fifty families, comprising 3,500 persons, are hungry, and women and children are going barefooted. They have subsisted thus far on boiled corn.

The Plain Truth Tells.

Constipation, headache, biliousness, and bad blood, are promptly cured by Burdock Blood Bitters, which act upon the stomach, liver, bowels and blood, curing all their diseases.

Hamilton's Chief of Police.

HAMILTON, Feb. 2.—The police commissioners met yesterday and appointed Sergt.-Major Alexander Smith to the position of chief of police, to succeed Hugh McKinnon. Mayor A. D. Stewart, who is chairman of the board of commissioners, was one of the twenty-one applicants for the position, but on motion of Magistrate Jelfs, seconded by Judge Muir, Smith was elected and Mayor Stewart made it unanimous. The new chief has been for eight years sergt.-major, and has been connected with the force for the past twenty-two years.

A Railway Deal Consummated.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—H. J. Beemer, who is here, says that the Pontiac and Pacific Junction railway has purchased the Aylmer branch of the Canadian Pacific railway. This will give the road an independent entrance to this city once their bridge from Hull to Ottawa is built. The length of the road is about nine miles. The purchase price is $84,000. This is about the amount of the subsidies which the Pontiac road gets from the Dominion and the Province of Quebec for a road to Ottawa.

Frightfully Mangled.

SUTTON FALLS, Que., Feb. 2.—Mr. Wm. Bates, a resident of this place, after returning home yesterday on the six o'clock C. P. R. express from the south, carelessly started for home down the railway track and was struck by the train, which was backing up for water, and was mangled frightfully, dying in about an hour.

The Mail-Empire.

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—The deal which has been spoken of for some time between the Mail and Empire for the amalgamation of these papers has gone into effect, the Empire becoming merged into the mail. In future, it is said, the organ of the Conservative party will be known as the Mail-Empire.

ANOTHER WATERLOO OF PRICES!

A "SKY ROCKET" Stock Taking Boom

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

ALL OUR FURNISHINGS,

Everything included in the great price wreckage—nothing reserved—nothing held back. They ought to go like smoke—for about

One-Half Value IS THE PRICE WE SET ON THEM.

We must clear them out. We won't carry them over. If you can't see what tremendous efforts are directed your way, who have you to blame for not catching the biggest bargains ever let loose in Canada?

Plans have been made to accomodate a large number of purchasers with the greatest possible comfort. The goods are new, quality strictly first-class, and those who want trash will have to look elsewhere.

NEW YEAR
NEW GOODS
NEW LEAF
1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will let off cheap.

DIRT!

Your watch needs cleaning and oiling, once every eighteen months if you would preserve its time-keeping qualities. Consider: In that time the balance wheel turns on its delicate axes 13,996,800,000 times. It does not "rest" at night like ordinary machines, but keeps at its work unceasingly. You oil an engine, or a sewing machine, or any other mechanical contrivance, daily or weekly; but that delicate instrument of precision—your watch—is allowed to go uncared for until it is clogged with dirt, and stops. The best of oil becomes thick and dirty in time; in this condition it wears the pivots and destroys that exactness of their fit in the jewel-holes which is necessary to a correct performance

Let me look at your watch—I will give you a conscientious opinion as to whether it needs attention.

TORONTO, FOR EXAMPLE

Prof. Smith Discusses "English Models for Municipal Government."

IN REPLY TO DR. ALBERT SHAW

The Latter Referred to Toronto as a Striking Example of the English System—Its Prosperity Not Due to the System of Government.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Goldwin Smith contributes a signed editorial to the Sun on "English Models for Municipal Government," in which he comments on Dr. Albert Shaw's recent book on municipal government in Great Britain. Dr. Smith says: "In borrowing any part of the British institutions it is necessary to consider the relation of that part to the whole and the effect of the whole upon the part. If you want men to do hard work, you must pay them or they will pay themselves. So it will be at least till the Angel Gabriel is mayor, with a city council of seraphs. The pay may be either money or dignity.

"A municipality is now practically a commercial concern, its chief business being the raising and expenditure of money. A commercial concern would hardly be well managed in which the incidence of expenditure was separated from the control. The question will become more serious if politicians improve upon the lesson which they have now learned of buying the votes of the many with the money of the few. In every great city, moreover, there is a body of electors who, though inhabitants, are hardly permanent citizens. If the city were ruined the mechanic would have only to take up his tools and go elsewhere.

"Dr. Shaw was pointing the other day to Toronto as a striking instance of the success of the English system. But if he has read Canadian papers since, he will have seen that Toronto has the same troubles, both in the way of maladministration and corruption, as her sisters on the Yankee side of the line, and that if she is prosperous and attractive, she owes it to natural advantages and the industry of her citizens, not to a municipal government which she is now struggling to reform."

SOUTH PERTH PROTEST.

Four Charges to Be Heard—An Adjournment to Stratford.

MITCHELL, Ont., Feb. 4.—After sitting steady for three days the trial of the election petition against John Mc Neill patron member elect for South Perth was adjourned to Stratford on Thursday. On resuming both the judges pronounced judgment dismissing the charges against alien voters and those persons non-resident in the riding who were charged with having voted knowing they had not the right to vote. Their lordships held that to constitute a corrupt practice it would be necessary to show that the person so voting had knowledge of the fact that he was not entitled to vote and that the person so voting was aware that in a counting of the ballots the vote would be thrown out. In defference to this judgment counsel for the petitioner afterwards abandoned upwards of a hundred charges. Many of the other charges which were entered into proved to be of a trivial nature with little or no evidence to support them and they were either dismissed or abandoned by petitioner's counsel after evidence had been offered. The only charge on which anything of importance was brought out was one in which it was shown that Jas. Dougherty, of Mitchell, had hired a horse and buggy to take a voter to the poll. It was argued by the prosecutor that this was corrupt practice, but as the question of agency is to be considered in connection with the charge their Lordships reserved judgment until Thursday when the question of agency will be taken up at Stratford. Four charges remained to be heard.

WHITEWAY'S DIFFICULTIES.

Too Many of His Followers Are After Places in the Cabinet.

ST. JOHN, Nfld., Feb. 4.—Sir Wm. Whiteway is experiencing great difficulty in forming a Cabinet owing to the number of aspirants for places. Over one half of his following of twenty-two members want seats. Those who are in a position to cause trouble are demanding permanent positions which it is impossible to give owing to the party's announcement in favor of retrenchment and reform.

The Telegram, the Government organ, announces that it would be prepared to make public the names of the new ministry. The latest issue fails to make good this promise. It simply denies the statements of the Opposition press that trouble exists in the Government camp. A report is still current that Harvey, late Whitewayite leader in the Legislative Council, will not resume his position owing to his opposition to confederation.

They do not Despair.

An utter loss of hope is not characteristic of Consumptives, though no other form of disease is so fatal, unless its progress is arrested by use of Scott's Emulsion, which is Cod Liver Oil made so palatable as cream.

HOFFMANN'S SAD STORY

The Sailors of the Elbe Bitterly Accused of Cowardice.

HOW HE SAVED ARE TREATED

A Correspondent of the New York Sun Tells of the Shabby Treatment the Survivors Received from the English Agents of the Company.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Three of the rescued passengers of the steamer Elbe called upon the Sun's correspondent in London on Friday to emphasize a certain feature of their experience of which little has been said in the first telling of the awful story of the disaster. It is impossible to ignore these statements, although they form a terrible indictment against the German merchant marine more than against the North German Lloyd steamship company. Mr. Hoffman's story is the worst. He says he entered the boat against the protests of the crew. His wife handed him their boy, and then he was about to assist her in when the order was given for the women and children to go on the starboard side. She blindly obeyed although her husband called her back. Before he could move the chief engineer appeared at the side of the boat and shouted, "Give me that child." The boy put his hands to the man and the engineer dragged him out, although his father tried to hold him. Hoffman then attempted to follow the boy, but the engineer jumped into the place the child had vacated, and at the same instant the boat was launched.

The boat quickly drifted past the first lifeboat which had capsized and to which Miss Boecker was clinging. The four passengers begged the officers and crew to pick her up, but they refused. Mr. Hoffmann and another passenger managed to get hold of her and after infinite exertions dragged her aboard. Then instead of showing the slightest sympathy for Hoffmann and his grief over the loss of his wife and child, the chief engineer bewailed his failure to bring a pair of cuffs containing valuable buttons. The anguish of the stricken man in telling the story was strong evidence of his sincerity, and none could condemn him for the bitterness he expressed toward the man whom he accused of being the cause of his boy's death.

Mr. Vevera corroborates Hoffman's story and describes how, after permission had repeatedly been refused to him to enter the boat, he jumped in from above when it was launched and had a severe struggle with a member of the crew who tried to put him overboard. It was only when he told the man that he would drag him into the water that he desisted.

"I have given only a bare outline of the most serious features of the charges," says the correspondent. "The English press does not hesitate to say that the simple fact that fifteen of the crew were saved and only five passengers constitutes a dark blot upon the German escutcheon.

"The rescued passengers have said little of their treatment by the English representatives of the North German Lloyds. It is a matter of genuine public importance, however, that these facts be made known as widely as possible. The German consul at Lowestoft clothed the survivors as soon as they landed. When the British agent of the steamship company arrived he gave each passenger $5. He brought them to London and asked them to go to a second-class hotel with the officers and crew. The passengers refused to remain longer in the vicinity of the men whom they denounce most bitterly as cowards. Quarters were therefore provided at the Euston hotel.

"The agent of the steamship company asked what else was wanted besides passage to America. They replied that it would be a great favor if they could have a clean shirt, socks, etc., to put on before they reached America. The agent then doled out $5 more to each of the three passengers. The survivors elected to call on the Umbria. A reporter who heard what was being done for the passengers was unkind enough to say some hard things to the steamship agent before the survivors left for Liverpool, with the result that each man received a third pound, but out of this money they had to pay their own fare to Liverpool, which is $4 third class. They took with them a letter to the Cunard office at Liverpool from the agent, requesting that he supply them with a £12 berth, the lowest saloon rate to New York. This is cheaper than the fare which had been paid on the Elbe. The agent was good enough to add: "We shall regard it as a favor if you will give them the best berths available at the price." When they reach New York, if they are economical in Liverpool and refrain from giving fees and indulging in extras on the Umbria, each man will be able to buy one square meal."

Traces of the Wreck.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The skipper of the smack Delta which arrived at Lowestoft yesterday saw a small boat and a human body in dark clothes floating in the North Sea about forty miles southeast of that port. Other skippers who came in say they passed doors, furniture spars and boxes. Six lifeboats and three lifeboat tanks have been picked up on the Suffolk coast.

Stabbed His Son and Suicided.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—What may prove a double tragedy, a murder and a suicide, happened at 296 Third street, when David Salliver stabbed his 27-year-old son William in the breast with a sword cane and then jumped off the roof, killing himself instantly. The son is suffering from a serious wound and was taken to the Bellevue hospital, where he may die. The father had been drinking.

Queen Lil Under Arrest.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Star publishes a Honolulu despatch under date of January 19 which says: All of the leaders of the revolt have been captured and are being court-martialled. Three of them pleaded guilty of high treason. Queen Lil has also been arrested, charged with complicity with the insurgents. The government is rigorously maintaining martial law.

HOT FIGHTING AT WEI-HAI-WEI

Ling-Kung-Tan, the Last Stronghold at That Point, Falls Before the Victorious Japs—Their Fleets Engaged in a Desperate Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Central News has this despatch from Shanghai: A Chin-Kiang despatch dated February 2 says that a small hunting party from the American warship Concord accidentally shot a native on Friday and was overpowered and carried off by other natives. An armed force was sent to rescue the party. Nothing further was known of the affair when the despatch left Chin-Kiang.

The Central News correspondent in Hiroshima telegraphs under yesterday's date: Premier Count Ito and Viscount Hutau, Minister of Foreign Affairs, had a second interview with China's peace envoys yesterday. The main object of the meeting was to exchange credentials. The Ministers found the credentials of the envoys to be very imperfect and to leave them absolutely powerless to conduct binding negotiations. They refused at once to continue negotiations and requested the envoys to leave the country as soon as possible. The envoys sailed to-day on the steamer Owarimaru for Nagasaki, where they will await the arrival of the mail steamer for China. They will be accompanied until they depart by the inspector-general of police and several assistant inspectors, who will prevent any hostile demonstrations on the part of the people.

"The parliamentary resolution to approve all war expenditures regardless of amount and date is prefaced with the declaration that the objects of the war have not been realized yet."

The Central News correspondent in Wei-Hai-Wei telegraphs under the date of Feb. 1 via Talien-Wan:—The Chinese warships were much damaged in yesterday's fight. After the Paichi Yaso forts capitulated the Japanese turned the captured guns against the Chinese warships, hitting them repeatedly and forcing them to change their positions. A violent snowstorm in the afternoon of Jan. 31 compelled the Japanese fleet to remain inactive and thus thus frustrated the Japanese plans to bring on a general naval engagement. The Japanese still hold the entrance to the harbor.

A Central News despatch sent from Hai-Chang on Friday says that Viceroy Liu-Kung-Ti has arrived at New Chwang and will assume spreme command of the Chinese operations in Manchuria. Gen. Nodzu, the Japanese commander, expects to be attacked to-day or to-morrow. His spies report that there are about fifty thousand Chinese troops in the neighborhook of Yang-Kow and New Chwang.

A Central News despatch from Chee-Foo says: "The Japanese have captured the Island of Ling-Kung-Tan, the last stronghold of the Chinese at Wei-Hai-Wei. The bombardment was terrific and lasted for hours. The Chinese answered it with unusual spirit, but many of their guns were disabled early in the engagement. Toward the close of the bombardment six Japanese ships landed marines who captured the batteries. The fighting was severe and many were killed and wounded on each side."

As this despatch is sent the two fleets are hotly engaged.

DEPORTED THE SCHOOLMASTER.

How the Liberty-Loving People of the Republic Treat Foreigners.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 4.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Grand Forks, N. D., says:—Early in December the Minto School Board engaged Prof. Alex. McConnell, of Toronto, as principal of the Public schools. When he arrived to take charge of the schools he applied to County Superintendent Woods for the required certification of examination. The superintendent declined to grant the certificate on the ground that his employment was an infraction of the Alien Contract Labor Law. McConnell subsequently took a State examination and received a state certificate, but a protest was made by Minto people and the matter was referred to the authorities at Washington. On Wednesday McConnell was arrested by Immigrant Inspector Reyford on a warrant issued by the Secretary of the Treasury requiring the deportation of the school teacher to the country whence he came, and he was sent across the Canadian border line. The affair has caused quite a commotion at Minto.

A Toronto Man Meets With a Fatal Accident in New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Emanuel Samuel, who is in the real estate business in Toronto, met a fatal accident while visiting the family of his father-in-law, Morris Jacobs. The window opening on the air shaft was open, and in some way that it has been impossible to learn Mr. Samuel fell through to the bottom. He sustained a compound fracture of the skull. Dr. Charles Good was summoned, but he found the case hopeless. Mr. Samuel died at six o'clock. He was in good circumstances.

Farm Products Under the Wilson Bill.

BUFFALO, Feb. 4.—The customs receipts at the port of Buffalo for January, 1894, were but $43,983; for January of this year they were $63,396, an increase of $19,469. In almost every instance where the duty has been diminished the importations have nearly doubled and in some cases they have increased to even a larger extent. This is especially true with Canadian barley and foreign fabrics. Barley is now being shipped here in immense quantities. Other Canadian farm products since the new law went into effect have found a demand in Buffalo markets. Live stock, including sheep, lambs, cattle and some horses, contribute to the influx of taxable goods from across the border.

THE REFORM POLICY.

The Hon. Wilfrid Laurier on the Liberal Platform.

THE SYSTEM OF PROTECTION.

A Powerful Arraignment of His Opponents' Policy—An Able Presentation of His Own—A clear Exposition—Facts and Figures.

On the evening of January 23nd Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, Dominion Liberal leader, addressed a large gathering in Montreal. Mr. Laurier said:

Mr. Laurier's Address.

Is this Montreal? Is this the great Conservative Protectionist city of Canada? Why, sir, well might I put the question, well might I express a doubt, for, looking at this sea of upturned faces, listening to the clamors and plaudits of this great audience, feeling the warmth of the greeting extended to one who is known to be neither a Conservative nor a Protectionist, I might well imagine that I was now standing, not in the city of Montreal, but in old Scotland—in Liberal and Free Trade Scotland. But this is Montreal, and I do not forget, for one instant, that for the last eighteen years, as often as the people have been called to cast their ballots, the electors of Montreal have thrown in their lot, by overwhelming majorities, with the powers that be—with a Conservative Government and the policy of that government—let me speak frankly with the commercial policy of that government—Protection. . . . . .

There are Conservatives in this audience, there are Ministerialists; there are Conservatives who perhaps are no longer Ministerialists. There may be present some who adhered at the outset to the policy of protection, but who remember that in the opinion, nay, in the very language of those who preached the policy, it was to be temporary, and not permanent, and who believe it has passed its appointed time and that now the time has come for a change. There may be others who were believers at the outset, but have had their faith rudely shaken by experience. There may be some, believers then, and who are believers yet, but who, shocked and alarmed by the revelations of corruption and malfeasance in office, which are constantly coming to light, notwithstanding all efforts to keep them in the dark, and remembering also the promises which were held out by the men in power that all wrongs would be redressed, that all offenders would be punished, and finding that these promises have been violated as often as made, have now come to the conclusion that the duty of the hour demands that prompt and salutary justice should be meted out to the men who, recreant to their promises, have left offenders unpunished, and from whom it would be folly to expect

The Redress of Any Wrongs.

Before all men, I am here to present the policy of the Liberal party. Rather, I will not say that I am here to present the policy of the Liberal party, because that policy is well known, but I am here to defend and advocate the policy of the Liberal party. In this city of Montreal, above all other places, it has been the joke—the old, but stale joke in which Conservative orators and editors have found an unfailing source of enjoyment—to say that the Liberal party have no programme and no policy. It is an old, stale joke, as pointless as it is old and stale. Why, the policy of the Liberal party has been declared in the solemn convention which sat in Ottawa in June, 1893, and which was called to determine that policy. And the Liberal party then determined what its policy would be not only on immediate questions, but upon all those questions which even remotely would affect the Canadian people. That policy is outlined in the book I have before me. That policy comprehends the following subjects:

First, condemnation of the fiscal policy of the Conservative Government together with their declaration of the policy of the Liberal policy on the same subject.

Second, reciprocity of trade with our neighbors.

Third, repression of corruption and malfeasance in office.

Fourth, economy in the administration of public affairs.

Fifth, the right and duty of Parliament to investigate all corruption and malfeasance in office.

Sixth, the selling of public lands to actual settlers and not to speculators.

Seventh, the franchise—the equitable distribution of Parliamentary representation.

Eighth, temperance.

This is the whole programme of the Liberal party. It would be impossible, in the short time at my disposal, to go over this whole subject minutely or even generally; but above all those questions there is one which is of the utmost importance. This is the trade policy. Upon that question, I need not tell you that we stand at the very antipodes of the Conservative party. The Conservative party believe in protection. All their hope is in protection. The Liberal party believe in free trade on broad lines such as exist in Great Britain, and their immediate object is a revenue tariff—a tariff to be derived from Customs, but which will levy no duties, except for the purposes of revenue; a tariff which will neither hurt nor favor any class to the prejudice or favor of anybody; a tariff whose aim and purpose will be

To Derive the Maximum Benefit from the minimum taxation. Now, I have spoken frankly. As I told you a moment ago, I do not forget that I am speaking here in Montreal. I do not forget that Montreal has been a protectionist city, but I would not be worthy the position I occupy in the ranks of the Liberal party if I were in the city of Montreal to hold any language different to that which I have been accustomed to speak in the rural parts of our community. (Applause). As I stood among the farmers and settlers of Manitoba, so I stand to-day upon the platform of the Liberal party, so I stand here upon the platform which was recorded upon that very question, and which is plainly set forth in the resolution adopted by the convention of which I spoke a moment ago. The resolution reads as follows:

We, the Liberal party of Canada in convention assembled, declare:

That the customs tariff of the Dominion should be based, not as it is now, upon the protective principle, but upon the requirements of the public service;

That the existing tariff, founded upon an unsound principle, and used, as it has been by the Government, as a corrupting agency wherewith to keep themselves in office, has developed monopolies, trusts and combinations;

It has decreased the value of farm and other landed property;

It has oppressed the masses to the enrichment of a few;

It has checked immigration;

It has caused great loss of population;

It has impeded commerce;

It has discriminated against Great Britain.

In these and in many other ways it has occasioned great public and private injury, all of which evils must continue to grow in intensity as long as the present tariff system remains in force.

That the highest interests of Canada demand a removal of this obstacle to our country's progress, by the adoption of a sound fiscal policy, which, while not doing injustice to any class, will promote domestic and foreign trade, and hasten the return of prosperity to our people:

That to that end, the tariff should be reduced to the needs of honest, economical and efficient government;

That it should be so adjusted as to make free, or to bear as lightly as possible upon, the necessaries of life, and should be so arranged as to promote freer trade with the whole world, more particularly with Great Britain and the United States.

We believe that the results of the protective system have greviously disappointed thousands of persons who honestly supported it, and that the country, in the light of experience, is now prepared to declare for a sound fiscal policy.

The issue between the two political parties on this question is now clearly defined.

The Government themselves admit the failure of their fiscal policy, and now profess their willingness to make some changes, but they say that such changes must be based only on the principle of protection.

We denounce the principle of protection as radically unsound, and unjust to the masses of the people, and we declare our conviction that any tariff changes based on that principle, must fail to afford any substantial relief from the burdens under which the country labors.

This issue we unhesitatingly accept, and upon it we await with the fullest confidence the verdict of the electors of Canada."

Now, perhaps I may be told: Oh, Montreal is not the place to attack protection.

Perhaps if there should be here some enthusiastic, overzealous Protectionist, he may say: Do you not know that protection has done wonders for Montreal? Do you not know that during the last decade, from 1881 to 1891, under a Protectionist regime, the population of Montreal has increased 39 per cent.? Yes, I know that, I read it only the day before yesterday in the Montreal Gazette. Do you not know that the population of Montreal was 150,000 in 1881 and is now 215,000, and an increase of 39 per cent.? I know all that. I do not at all forget it, but I would like to reply to any one who uses this language that if that increase in the population of Montreal is to be claimed as a benefit protection, protection has wrought a very different result in the country at large. The increase of population in the country at large has not been 39 per cent., as in Montreal, nor 30 per cent., nor 25, nor 20, nor even 15 per cent. The total increase of population has been only 11 per cent., while in the previous decade it was 17 per cent. I would ask any man who claims and honestly believes that it is Protection which developed the population of this city. If you believe that protection increased the population of Montreal 39 p. c., you must admit that, on the other hand, it has had the result of diminishing the rate of increase in the country at large from 17 down to 11 per cent. Do you believe, if the result of protection be to enrich the cities and at the same time to impoverish the country, that the prosperity of the citizens can be of very long duration? Cities cannot thrive by themselves; cities can thrive

Only When the Country Thrives.

I grant you that for a time perhaps, if the country does not thrive the cities may prosper; but in the long run, if the country is not flourishing, the cities must decay as well. In the face of such a result, to pretend that it would be a benefit for Montreal to keep to the policy of protection, which has had the effect of decreasing the rate of increase in the country at large, would be simply to repeat the operation of the old woman who had a hen which laid a golden egg every morning, but who killed the hen and so lost everything. There is only one sound, profitable, desirable, patriotic system. It is that which can be conducive to the prosperity—not of one class or section, not only of the cities—but of all classes, of the cities and the country at large; and judged by that test, the policy of the Government stands condemned. . . . . In the next place I shall assert this, and it is perhaps a statement to which

No One Will Take Exception, that Montreal has no interests which are distinct and separate from the rest of the country. The interests of the country are the interests of Montreal, and the interests of Montreal are those of the country at large. (Renewed applause.)

In the next place I will assert that so far as Canada is concerned, leaving aside the city of Montreal—separating, if it were possible, Montreal from the rest of the country—the system of protection has been the bane and the curse of Canada. The bane and the curse of Canada I repeat. Now, there is an easy way to decide this, in a young country like Canada, the increase of population is the best test of its prosperity, we have millions of acres of land to which we invite the population of the whole world. We have not been satisfied with a normal increase of population, but have been making efforts to bring population from abroad; and for the last twenty years, ever since Confederation has existed, we have lavished hundreds of thousands of dollars every year in order to bring in immigrants from abroad. We have stationed agents in all the great cities of Europe and flooded every market place and fair with books pamphlets and reports showing the advantages of Canada. In 1878, the Conservative party, not satisfied with the progress which had been made, adopted the policy of protection. Upon what ground? Upon the ground that it would give labor to every one born in Canada and to the thousands who would come in from abroad. That was the object. But when the census came out in 1891 what was the result? It showed that whereas from 1871 to 1881, in a period of great commercial depression, our population had increased by 17 per cent., yet under the system of protection, from 1881 to 1891 the rate of increase was reduced to 11 per cent. More than that. The records show that the

was about half a million souls, and yet during those ten years, from 1881 to 1891 we had brought into the country, according to the records of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, no less than 800,000 immigrants who had landed at Quebec and Montreal to settle upon our waste lands. The census returns show that our population had not increased to the extent of that 800,000 but only a little over half a million, so that we had lost the whole natural increase of Canada, besides 200,000 or 300,000 of strangers we had brought into the country. Was there ever such a record? We read in the Good Book that the avenging angel was sent once to slay the first born of a wicked people, but our census returns show that the whole progeny of our people was slain—that the whole natural increase of the population was swept away. Under such circumstances is there a man who will not say that, in a country which has no many advantages to offer to immigrants, protection has been a bane and a curse? I will go further. I will take the proposition and look at it from the point of view of Montreal alone. I said a moment ago that the interests of Montreal are the interests of Canada. They cannot be set apart. What conduces to the prosperity of one must conduce to the prosperity of the other; and if a protective tariff has not conduced to the prosperity of Canada, I have no hesitation in saying that it cannot contribute to the development of Montreal. That proposition is well borne out by the facts. What was the population of Montreal in 1881? It was 155,237, and in 1891 it was 215,650 or an increase of 39 per cent. So far so good. I want to discuss this question fairly, and in order to Put it Squarely Before You, and bring it home to the judgment of every one, I will give you what the population of Montreal was in 1871 and what it reached in 1881. In 1871 it was 107,225; in 1881 it had increased to a little more than 165,000, but for the purpose of comparison we must deduct 15,000 increase caused by the addition to the boundaries of the city. So that the increase in the boundaries of Montreal was from 107,225 in 1871 to 140,747 in 1881 or 31 per cent., whereas in the following decade it was 39 per cent. Any protectionist may tell me, "here is the justification of protection, here is the vindication of our policy that the greater rate of increase was due to the development of commerce, through the large manufacturing establishments which were treated and maintained by protection." That reason, however, is not borne out by the facts. It would be true if the population of workingmen employed in manufactures had progressed in the same proportion as the total population of the city itself. But such is not the case. And perhaps I may astonish a good many here when I tell them that the development of the working population has not been in the same ratio as the development of the whole city. Here are the figures, and those figures I find in a very good book, the report of the Montreal Board of Trade, published in 1892, the semi-annual report; and this report, I may say in passing, was printed at the Montreal Gazette, which I am sure ought to give it a certificate of orthodoxy in the hands of sound, orthodox protectionists themselves. The figures are to be found in a table inserted at page 91. In 1871 there were manufactures in the city of Montreal, and in those factories workingmen were employed. That was ten years before the National Policy. What was the number of men employed in 1871 in the manufactures of Montreal? It was 21,877; in 1881 that number increased to 33,355, an increase of 11,538 or 53 per cent. That was

Under a Revenue Tariff.

What are the figures under protection? In 1881, just a year after the inauguration of the National Policy, the number of men employed in the manufactures of Montreal was 33,355, and in 1891 it had increased to 38,562, an increase of 5,207, or an increase of 16 per cent. Thus under protection there was an increase of 16 per cent., as compared with an increase of 53 per cent. under a revenue tariff. Here is a demonstration as incontrovertible as possible that the increase in the population of Montreal is not due to the development of manufacturing establishments in that city. But that is not all. Let us look at the investment of capital. In the year 1871, the amount of capital invested in manufactures in Montreal was $11,101,031; in 1881, after ten years of revenue tariff, that amount had increased to $32,185,691, an increase of $21,000,000, or 190 per cent., under a revenue tariff. What was it under protection? In 1881 the amount invested was $32,185,691: in 1891 it was $51,212,133, an increase of $19,000,000, or 60 per cent. This shows a decrease in the amount of capital invested in manufactures from 190 per cent. in the previous decade to 60 per cent. in the decade under protection. Now, I am told that a good deal of the capital subscribed and appearing in the figures of the Board of Trade, during the regime of protection, was watered and not solid. But even if it was watered, it does not detract at all from the argument. I believe that nobody ever said that the investment of capital from 1871 to 1881 was watered, whereas in the other period they say it was. What is evident is that the development of manufactures from 1871 to 1881 was a healthy development under a healthy system, whereas the investment of capital from 1881 to 1891 was unhealthy, under an unhealthy system, and

A Good Deal of it Was Wasted

and is lost; and stock-holders, in order to prevent greater loss, resorted to combines, restricted production, closed up their establishments, reduced the number of hands, and to-day what do you see in this city? You have thousands of men clamoring for work; you have hunger in thousands of homes, and private charity is unable to satisfy all the demands for relief. Public charity has to be organized. And all this under a system which professedly taxes the people in order to give work to all who are willing to work. Can there be such a delusion, such a policy, such a mockery? And yet in the face of such results, there are men to day who still cling to that system. This is the system which they say has made Montreal the commercial metropolis of Canada. But I say here, on my reputation as a public man, that the record shows that if your city has developed, it is not protection which has developed it to such a degree. What is the cause which has made Montreal the great metropolis it is? The cause is to be found in her wonderful geographical position. . . . My words may carry perhaps no conviction, but let me give you the opinion of an American authority, Mr. Edward O'Brien, who was Commissioner of Navigation in the American government under the Presidency of Mr. Harrison. Some few weeks ago he published an interview in the New York Times reviewing the whole question of transportation between America and Europe, and in this interview he speaks of your city and harbor of Montreal. I invite the closest attention of you all to this. The facts which I give you are not new I am sure, but they are presented in a condensed form. The facts are not new, but in war it requires one thousand bullets to kill a man, and it may require a thousand repetitions of the same argument in order to destroy some fallacy, commercial or otherwise. Mr. O'Brien speaks as follows:

"From Liverpool to New York is 3,040 miles. From Liverpool to Montreal is 2,790 miles. From New York to Duluth (via railroad to Buffalo) is 1,487 miles, and via the Erie Canal 1517 miles. From Montreal to Duluth via the St. Lawrence is 1,354. From Liverpool to Duluth, via Montreal and the St. Lawrence, is 4,144 miles, which will shortly be unbroken deep water navigation. From Liverpool to Duluth, via New York, is 4,477 miles, or 4,577 miles, according as the route be via the New York Central railroad or the Erie canal to Buffalo. Montreal is 250 miles nearer Liverpool than New York is, and 33 or 133 miles nearer Duluth. From Liverpool to Duluth the route, via Montreal, is 333 or 314 miles shorter than the route via New York. Let us translate these distances into dollars and cents and see what commercial advantages the Canadians will realize on the completion of the great eighty three and a half million dollar water route from the great lakes to the seaboard."

That is the advantage of Montreal. Now perhaps some one may tell me: Oh, we can have all this with with protection; and some will say, it will come to the same thing whether we have protection or not. I say that you cannot have the benefit of that trade to the ocean unless you have return cargoes coming from Europe, and there is nothing surer than that protection destroys maritime trade. There is no fact that is surer than this. It has been proven by the the experience of all nations. Let me again quote the authority to which I alluded a moment ago, that is the authority of Mr. O'Brien, upon the result of protection upon the American Maritime Trade.

"We have lost the ocean carrying trade. We once carried a large trade for other nations, and the bulk of our own exports and imports in our own vessels. But our shipping has dwindled both actually and relatively compared to other nations until we now depend almost entirely on foreign ships. Since 1858, the proportion of our foreign trade carried in our own vessels has dwindled from seventy-three and seven-tenths to twelve and two-tenths per cent., or five-sixths." That has been the result of protection upon the American traffic. Now what has been the result of a different system and a different policy? In England, for instance, let me give you the figures. I have given you the result of protection on the result of the American maritime trade, and now let me give you the result of the freedom of trade upon the English maritime trade. I quote from an article recently published in the Boston Globe and very carefully prepared: "Fifty years ago, England controlled one-third of the carrying trade on the high seas, but now it controls more than one-half or literally possesses 55 per cent. of the carrying power of the world. Its tonage of vessels increased from 3,310,000 tons in 1840 to 10,230,000 in 1892, or 210 per cent. It has increased steadily with a greater ratio of gain than that of any other country the past ten years, or from 5.8 in 1882 to 56.6 in 1892.

That is the result, sir, of a different system. Now, I ask every man here how best will Montreal take advantage of its situation? Montreal, situated as she is, at the end of ocean navigation and at the head of inland navigation, how best will she take advantage of it by a system of protection which will kill her maritime trade, or will she not best take advantage of it by as far as it is possible to remove them.

. . . . Before we go further I would like to place under the gaze of the Conservatives present a page of their own history, a page of a very recent history, a page with reference to the introduction of

into this country. Now I appeal to them to speak out their minds on the question. Is is not a fact that when protection was introduced to the Canadian people, in the opinion, nay, in the very language of Sir John Macdonald, and of Sir Charles Tupper, and of all the authors of protection it was never intended that protection should be a permanent institution. Did they not tell us that protection was only to be a temporary measure in this country, and to use the language which was then made use of, that protection was simply intended to give a lift to our manufactures in order to enable them to meet competition from abroad. Let me ask you is that not a fact? Gentlemen, you know that that is the case. I defy any one to point out to me, in France, in Germany, in the United States in any protectionist country where the promoters of a protectionist tariff came forward with their policy and at the same time said to the people that it was to be a permanent institution in the country. On the contrary, every statesman who ever brought forward such a policy always said to his people, "This is only to be a temporary policy; we must levy a little extra taxation upon the people in order to give a start to our manufactures." This was always the first shape of the introduction of a protective tariff. And what was the second shape? The second shape turned out to be the same in Canada and everywhere else. I defy any man to point to me any person in France, in Germany, in the United States, in any protectionist country, I defy him to show me any protected industry which was not introduced as a temporary protective industry in the first place, and about which it was not said that after a while it would stand on its own legs. The day never comes in the minds of some when a protected industry can stand on its own legs. I can understand that is human nature, but what I do not understand is that those who introduce a protective tariff and who introduce it simply for a time, at last get intoxicated with the poison of their own doctrine. They are just like the man who commences to drink moderately, and who becomes a slave to the habit, and then would fain impress upon himself and his friends that liquor is indispensable to his health. So it is with Those Protected Manufacturers.

THE REFORM POLICY.

Further, I insist that the policy of the Conservative party was not intended to be permanent, and a man who ought to know, Mr. Dalton McCarthy, who was deep in the counsels of his party at that time, and who was then looked upon as the heir apparent to the old Chieftain, has declared over and over again that the leaders of the Conservative party never intended to saddle forever the people of Canada with a protective tariff. I say to the Conservatives who may be present here that if they want to come back to the policy of their party, they will have to adopt that policy which was told to them by one of the greatest of their then leaders. But Sir John Macdonald has disappeared. Sir Charles Tupper has disappeared also, and the men who are now in power made a lame effort last session to remove to a certain extent the shackles which are now weighing upon the people. They made the effort, I say, but the effort was too strong for their strength and they had to come back. Now, sir, I may be told again: "Do you pretend that if we were to abolish the system of protection that our manufacturers can live in the city of Montreal?" Why, sir, I certainly do pretend it. I contend that the manufacturers of Montreal can do better under a revenue tariff than they can do under protection (cheers). I, myself am not much of a manufacturer, I am a lawyer, and perhaps my advice will not be taken with relish by those who are not of the same mind as myself, and who may say to me: "Oh, it is all very well for you to say so, but what do you know about the business?" Well, I have read something. I do not manufacture, but

I Have Read Something and every morning I read the Montreal Gazette, which is something. You need not laugh, gentlemen. For my part, I read the Gazette every morning. I breakfast upon it. I will not say that it is absolutely wholesome food, but I am like Mithradites, I am poison proof, having read the Gazette for so many years, I have read in the Gazette the statement that if you remove protection, raw materials would no longer be free. I say that if we were to have a revenue tariff, raw materials would be free. Raw materials are not free to-day under the protective system. There are certain raw materials which are free. Wool is free; thank heaven they have not thought of taxing it. Cotton is free also, but is iron free? Cotton is a raw material and wool is a raw material for certain manufactures. But there are two articles which are raw material of every manufacturer, and these articles are coal and iron, and are they free? If you have a revenue tariff the object will be to develop the country, and all raw material should be free under such a tariff. I think I can give you, gentlemen, a little illustration taken from the history of England as to the effect of protection and non-protection. I do not pretend to be a manufacturer myself, as I told you, but I have read something of the recent history of Europe, of England and of Germany, for instance. Germany is a country after the heart of the Canadian protectionist. Germany for the Germans is the motto there, and you know Prince Bismarck, who was in power for a great many years, Never Did Things By Halves.

About the year 1880 Prince Bismarck was in power and they had an infant industry in Germany at that time. In 1880 that was not exactly an infant industry in years, for it was already seventy years old, but it was still an infant industry. It is a characteristic you know of all infant industries that they never grow and that they always remain babes. Beetroot sugar was that industry in Germany. In 1880 that industry in Germany was seventy years old, because, as you are aware, it arose from the continental policy under Napoleon, when Napoleon was fighting against England and when they closed the ports and harbors of France, of Italy, of Belgium, of Holland, and a part of Germany against British goods, and against colonial sugars consequently. Then, the French people and the German people, who could no longer eat colonial sugars, commenced to grow beet roots and to make beet root sugar, and other seventy years the German people and the French people were still protected by enormous import duties, by enormous protective duties. In 1880 Prince Bismarck undertook to give still more protection to the refiners of beet root sugar. He put enormous import duties on sugar, not satisfied with that he placed upon the export of German sugar to foreign countries enormous bounties. He gave to the refiners of German sugars enormous bounties on every ton they exported. Thus protected with an import duty and an export bounty the refiners of sugar were able to flood the English market with German sugars, which were retailed upon the counter of the English trader at a price actually lower than the cost of production. Now, I admit, that this was a very serious matter for the English refiners of sugar. There was German sugar coming in competition with their own, and on account of the taxes imposed on the German people it was sold to Englishmen actually lower than the cost of production.

England is a Free Trade Country, but human nature is everywhere the same, and so the English refiners went to the Government. The Government at that time was in the hands of Lord Salisbury. It was a Conservative Government, but, in England, Conservatives and Liberals are all alike, they are all free traders. No one would dare to avow himself a protectionist in England. (Cheers). The English refiners put their complaint before Lord Salisbury. They represented that they could not compete with the German sugars which were actually sold to the English mechanic at a price below the cost of production. Well, Lord Salisbury said in effect to this deputation of refiners; "Do I understand you gentlemen? You tell me that in consequence of the export duties paid by the German people to the refiners of German sugar that this German sugar is sold to-day to the English people at a price lower than the cost of production. If that be the case," said Lord Salisbury, "If the English people to-day are supplied with sugar at a price below the cost of production, I do not think the English people have very much to complain about after all." (Cheers and Laughter.) "And if the German taxpayers will tax themselves in order to supply the English consumer with sugar, I think the English consumers can stand it just as long, and perhaps longer, than the Germans." (Cheers.) Lord Salisbury dismissed the sugar refiners with these remarks.

But, sir, before I proceed any further, let us change the scene of action. Let us suppose that this incident had not taken place in England but in Canada. In the city of Montreal there are some sugar refineries, and it is supposed, rightly or wrongly, perhaps rightly, that the refineries of sugar in Montreal are pretty deep in the confidence of the Government. (Laughter). Now, if the city of Montreal had been flooded with German sugars which were sold to the poor mechanics of the city of Montreal at a price actually lower than the cost of production, I imagine that the sugar refiners in the city of Montreal would have done just the same as the English refiners and gone to the Government to lay their case before Mr. Foster, the Minister of Finance. I have told you what was the answer of Lord Salisbury to the English refiners of sugar, but do you think the Canadian Finance Minister, would have been the same to a Canadian deputation of sugar refiners under similar circumstances? (No, no.) Mr. Foster would have said: "Why, gentlemen, will you tell me that these German sugar refiners have the audacity to bring their sugar and sell it in Canada, at a lower price than the cost of production. Oh, gentlemen, that will never do. Canada for the Canadians and Canadian sugars for Canadian mouths and we will have duties levied to prevent German sugar from coming in to interfere with Canadian refiners." (Laughter.) "Let me ask you, gentlemen, which is the wisest of the two opinions, that of Lord Salisbury or that of Mr. Foster. Which do you suppose is the better policy? It is the policy of Canada which taxes her people to give them a dear article of food, or is it the policy of England which says: "We are ready to profit by the whole world, and if they give us anything free and cheap we will take it." I think the policy of England is the wiser one. (Cheers.)

That the Answer of Mr. Foster,

But what took place in England when the sugar refiners got this answer from Lord Salisbury. The sugar refiners did not pine; they did not lament; they did not weep. But as true Britons, they went to work and they converted their machinery so as to make it useful for the manufacture of jams and preserves and they bought the cheap German sugars to manufacture them. (Cheers.) They not only bought the cheap German sugar produced at the expense of the German taxpayers but they converted them into jams, and jellies and preserves and they sent them back to Germany at a great profit to themselves. (Cheers). Men of Montreal, what example will you follow? I will tell you what I would do about that, but before I tell you what I will do, I will tell you what the Conservatives will do, (Laughter). The Conservatives are the great loyal party of Canada, as you know. (Laughter.) Whenever they are driven to the wall and beaten in argument, they have an argument of their own to use upon their opponents, and they say to them: "You are not loyal and of this country." But their loyalty is only lip loyalty. (Cheers). They don't go for their example to Great Britain. Oh, no, why should they go to Great Britain for example. One of their ministers, Sir Charles Hibert Tupper, told us during last session on the floor of the Parliament that England was in a state of decadence, and that England's prestige and supremacy as a commercial nation was gone. He told us that the trade of England was driven from all the ports of civilized nations, and that she had to place her wares and goods by force of arms upon helpless savages and poor barbarians. That was the language of Sir Charles Hibert Tupper. That is not Liberal loyalty of course. That is Tory loyalty, but thank Heaven it is not Liberal loyalty. (Cheers and laughter.) I do not always proclaim my loyalty, but sir, although I am of French origin I am a Liberal of the English school. The men of the Liberal party go for their example not to England, not to the United States (Laughter) to the land which has been the pioneer of freedom in every sense, the pioneer of freedom in religion, the pioneer in civil and commercial life as well. (Cheers.) It is to Great Britain.

That We Look for an Example.

But, gentlemen, the Conservative party would not do that; they go to Germany and to the United States. You know, gentlemen, that these things are repeated, and will be repeated every day by the Tory party. Do you think that that is the way to make a nation rich and wealthy? Do you think that that is the way for a nation like ours to meet the battle of life which must ever end by the survival of the fittest? Which is the best policy for us to follow? Is it the sound, common sense of England, which takes its sugar wherever it comes from, at the lowest possible price, or the policy of Germany, which in order to maintain its infant industries takes the money out of the pockets of the German people and puts it into the pockets of the German sugar refiners. There is no use pursuing that argument any further, the policy of England is the common-sense one. (Cheers).

I now come to another argument which seems to weigh very much upon the minds of our Conservative friends, although I must say that it never has disturbed my head. The Conservatives do not sleep soundly about it, and they ask you every day in the Montreal Gazette and the Empire, and all the Conservative papers, and all the Conservative orators say to you, "Oh, if you are going to reduce the tariff

How are You Going to Get a Revenue?"

That is the question which seems to bother the Conservatives very much, and during the peregrinations of the Ministers before the death of Sir John Thompson, while they were visiting the Maritime Provinces, Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper amongst others, laid before the people of those Provinces a most doleful picture as to what was to happen to them if we had a tariff for revenue purposes only. He told them that in such an event we would have a heavy taxation upon man, servants, and carriages, and dogs, and guns, and in general language he pictured to them all these great hardships which I am sure must have sent a thrill of horror into the souls of his listeners. Gentlemen, it is not necessary to make any very serious argument to answer that question. We are asked how are you going to raise a revenue, and the answer is simply this: "By having a tariff for revenue." The tariff that we have in Canada to-day is not a tariff for revenue, and I could quote to prove this the words of Mr. Foster, the Finance Minister, which he gave utterance to not later than last session of Parliament. Mr. Foster then said: "The other and third method is the protective tariff by which you select a certain list of articles and place upon them certain rates of import with a view to raising a certain amount of money for the services of the country, but more especially with this view, that whilst you raise the amount of money that is necessary for the country you must stimulate the development of the resources of the country." Gentlemen, you have it here plainly stated that the object of the tariff is not to raise a revenue. That is only an incident of the protective tariff, but the first object of the tariff is to raise money so as to develop our infant industries that is to say, to raise taxes not to place in the treasury, but to place them in the pockets of certain favored classes and individuals. (Cheers.) Now, reverse the principle. Have a tariff not for protection, but simply for revenue, and it is quite clear, nay, it is as clear as can be, that with a lesser amount of duties,

You Will Have More Revenue

than you have under the present system at the present time. (Hear, hear.) If it is my good fortune to visit the Maritime Provinces, I will be able to tell to the audiences that were addressed by Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper that they need not fear the taxes on their man servants, or their carriages, or their guns or their dogs; though I must say in passing that it would not break my heart at all if we were to make the swells who can afford carriages and man servants, and guns and dogs, contribute their due share to the revenue of the country.

Now, sir, there is another and a very serious question. I have told you that our object is to have a Customs tariff based upon the principles of revenue only. How is this to be effected? As far as the settlement of that question goes we are met between two extreme sets of men. We are met by those who fear that we will go too far, and by those who fear that we will not go far enough. We are met by those who fear we will move too rapidly and by those who believe we will be overcautious. Those who dread that we will move too rapidly would simply have us to go skin deep in reform, to stand perfectly immovable as it were. On the contrary those who fear that we will not go far enough, would have us simply to go practically into a revolution. What between immoveability on the one side, and revolution on the other, there is another sound course and that is the true principle of reform; the principle of British reform which moves gradually step by step, and which never flinches until the end has been achieved. (Cheers.) I refer to that British reform which was very careful not to on any industry and in the language of the resolution which I have quoted to you "While not doing injustice to any class, will promote domestic and foreign trade and hasten the return of prosperity to our people." (Cheers.) To-day in the streets of Montreal you meet upon every hand men with very long faces, I do not know whether their anxiety is absolutely genuine, or whether it is put on. Perhaps it is genuine, and perhaps it is put on also. These people say to you, "If the Liberals get into power, and very probably they will next time, they are going to abolish protection, and by abolishing protection they are going to create a panic, a certain disturbance of values that will bring on a financial crisis." Now, sir, if that reasoning means anything it would simply mean this: That reform would be for ever impossible, and that if it be the misfortune of a country to be saddled with a vicious system—I do not care of what kind, economic, political or any other—then nobody should dare to touch that system because the process of reform would cause some displacement of interests. (Cheers.) But, gentlemen, there is a way, and a way of reform. There is, I say, a way and a way of reforming, and as I told you but moment ago I am here speaking on behalf of the Liberal part. I told you that I and also all my friends were Liberals of the English school, and we are willing to go for precedence to the old land, which as passed through that ordeal before us. In 1846 Sir Robert Peel carried England over from protection to free trade, and he did it by a gradual process which avoided all disturbance of values and which avoided all financial crisis. That is a precedent which, good for England, is good for Canada, and which ought to be still more sensible for Canada to adopt than it was for England, because the interests involved are not so great in Canada to-day as ther were in England then (Cheers), and the step was a much longer one than the step would be here. The step in England was all the way from protection to free trade, whereas we propose in Canada to go from protection to give a revenue tariff. Under such circumstances the duty is plain for the Liberal party. (Cheers.) I have exposed here exactly what we want. Upon the question of principle there can be no compromise. We stand here against protection and in favor of a customs tariff based upon the principles of revenue and nothing else. (Cheers.) That is a position well understood, and I believe that under such a system all parties, all classes and all interests, the farmers, the manufacturers, the merchants and the shippers of produce will know exactly where they stand and will be in a better position to do business than they are under the shifting process of a protective tariff.

The Conservatives have always another argument against us, and their last and supreme argument is always the loyalty question. I take the newspapers of the Conservative persuasion, and they are full of insinuations against the loyalty of the Liberal party. In the last century old Doctor Johnson used to say that patriotism was the last refuge of a scoundrel. In this century in Canada I have no hesitation in saying that loyalty is the last refuge—of a Canadian Tory. (Cheers and laughter.) Gentlemen, I resent any such imputation as that. Let my opponents come on with that accusation, and I will only be too glad to face them, but for insinuations of that kind there is nothing to meet them with but absolute contempt. (Cheers.) Gentlemen, I am of French origin, as you all know. The blood flows in my veins of that great nation which exulted in turns the admiration, the love, the pity, and the hatred of Europe, but never its indifference. (Cheers.) At the same time I have stated over and over again that though I am of French origin, and though I am proud of my origin, I love England and I love British institutions. (Continuous cheering). I have stated that over and over again, and I must repeat it once more, perhaps in the city of Montreal, I love England, I love British institutions, and why? Because, under British institutions, under the banner of St. George, my fellow countrymen and myself of French origin,

Have Found Far Greater Freedom

than we could ever have hoped for had we remained subject to France. (Loud cheers). If I wanted examples or precepts of Art I would go to France; if I wanted philosophical counsels I would go to Germany; but, for means of Government, for all economic principles, I go to the land of sound government, and sound commonsense, Old England. (Cheers.) It is from that land that I take my theories, and upon that platform—between friend and foe, speaking here to-night—upon that platform, exemplified as I have told you, the Liberal party of Canada will fight the next battle whenever the next battle may come. (Loud cheers.)

A Pretty Face

Mrs. McFarlane, mother of Mrs. Wm. Bowman, Water street, was stricken with paralysis yesterday morning, and no hopes are held out for her recovery. When Mrs. Bowman went to awaken her mother on Sunday morning she found her lying in an unconscious condition. Although medical assistance was at once summoned, she has as yet not recovered consciousness. The old lady is nearly 70 years of age.

Sold Out.

Mr. Ald. Dawson, grocer, No. 355 George street, has sold out his stock of first-class groceries and provisions to Mr. W. J. Hall, dealer in bankrupt stocks. The entire stock has been removed to Mr. John Cameron's grocery store, where it will be slaughtered in the usual manner, regardless of original values. Housekeepers will get extraordinary "snaps" in staple groceries and provisions as long as this sacrificing sale lasts. d26tf.

Arrested for Wife Beating.

County High Constable Cochrane, assisted by Constable Moore, yesterday arrested Benjamin Harrison, of Smith, on a warrant issued by County Police Magistrate Edmison, charging him with "assaulting, beating and ill-treating his wife." The prisoner was arraigned this morning before Police Magistrate Edmison and remanded till three o'clock. The arrest was made yesterday, because Harrison was creating a disturbance in the north part of the town at a house where one of his daughters was in service. The police were teleposed for and the arrest made.

THAT APPLICATION FOR FRANCHISE.

The application of Messrs. Carnegie and Dennistoun for a street franchise for electric poles will be considered at the meeting of the council to-night. Now here is an opportunity for Mr. Kendry to show that he is mayor of the town. He is president of the Auburn Woollen Mills Company and Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Dennistoun are said to be also interested in the company. It is also more than probable that the Auburn Woollen Mills Company and these gentlemen are also interested in the dam that will supply the power for the proposed electric enterprise. The people of the town are satisfied that a franchise should, under proper conditions, be granted. Mr. Kendry has been elected mayor by acclamation three times and must naturally be supposed to possess the confidence of a large body of the citizens of the town, and if Messrs. Carnegie and Dennistoun wish to secure a franchise it cannot be their object to peddle it out through the country, or hand it over to any local body. The people do not wish to have two or three sets of poles in the streets, unless their presence is in the interest of the public. This application involves a pure business transaction—it is a pure matter of business and should be dealt with as such. If the two gentlemen are looking for a franchise in their own interest let the town see to it that the franchise is granted only on proper and fully specified conditions as to commencement of work, and thorough independence of any speculative intention with respect to the sale of the franchise, and also let it be understood that the franchise is not transferable. In fact, let every possible condition be inserted in any agreement that will tend to protect the interests of the town, and prevent the franchise from being dealt with as a speculation. The good faith of the applicants, in every regard, must be unmistakably demonstrated before the council should consent to the granting of the application in question. The contract must be of a competitive character—it must provide for bona fide competition in electric lighting. Now Mr. Kendry is Mayor of the town and it is his duty, as head of the council, to see that any contract, as to the franchise in question, must be executed with the direct understanding and on the express condition that there be no amalgamation with the existing Light and Power company. The people favour the granting of the franchise for the purpose of securing competition—and if this is not effectively provided for them, there should be no franchise granted. There should be no granting of a franchise to serve private interests. The public should only be considered.

When the applications for street railway franchises were made to the council, that body very properly exacted the deposit of a substantial sum in cash, as a guarantee of the good faith of the applicants, and the claims of those not complying were ruled out. The council should not fail to adopt the same practice with reference to the application in question.

The Charity Carnival Ball.

The grand Charity Carnival Ball to be held in Bradburn's opera house, on Tuesday Feb. 12th, promises to be the most brilliant and successful event of the season. The demand for tickets is rapidly increasing. Parties from Port Hope, Belleville, Lindsay and Lakefield will attend. The plan for reserved seats 50c each, in the gallery, boxes and a limited number on the floor, is now open at Sailsbury's Bookstore. Secure the best seats by engaging them early. Owing to numerous complaints and requests it has been definitely decided to donate the funds over and above expenses to the poor of Peterborough, under the auspices of the Catholic Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's and the Protestant Home Association. The prizes for the best costumes are on view at J. McClelland's jewelery store. Come in costume, if possible, and compete for them. If not, come in ordinary evening dress with some colour. All will be welcome; none turned away. Masks may be worn or not according to taste. Music by the Battallion Band and Butcher's orchestra. Doors open 8 p.m. Dancing to commence 8.30 p.m. At midnight the floor will be open to any of the spectators who wish to join in the lance. Tickets $1.00 admitting gentleman and lady, or two ladies together, can be procured from the Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's, Mrs. Geo. Rubidge, Stratton's, Sailsbury's and the Street Railway Office. Reserved seats 50c each at Sailsbury's where plan may be seen. 2d

CURLIANA.

The Belleville Intelligencer says: Two rinks of Campbellford Colts came to the city last evening, to play the return game with two rinks of Colts from the local club. Play began sharp at 8 o'clock in the presence of a large number of interested spectators. On rink No. 2 the visitors got a four end at the beginning, and on No. 1 rink Campbellford also had a lead. These majorities, however, the local men soon reduced until the score stood even up, and thus it remained, with slight variation, for a number of ends. Then Skip Pope got two three ends, which put him six in the lead, and which he maintained to the finish. Skip Willis had a foeman worthy of his steel (or stone) in Skip Smith, and the contest was a battle royal, with a pretty finish. Campbellford lay five shots with the skips each one stone to play. Smith came down for a guard, but was too strong and carried destruction into his own ranks. Willis, with his last shot, turned the tally to three for his rink by a pretty shot. Following are the rinks and the result:

RINK NO. 1.

Belleville.	Campbellford.
W Brown,	E W Burke,
H Smart,	C A Smith,
E H LaRoche	R Lowrey,
J F Willis, sk.....14	F J Smith, sk..... 12

RINK NO. 2.

M Wright,	W Neill,
Frank Lewis,	G A Bence,
A McFee,	T S Tait,
W W Pope, sk.....21	J T Routh, skip.....15
35	27

Majority for Belleville, 8.

It may be of interest to some of our readers to know the standing of the three clubs in the Colts' Association for the trophy. The following table shows the games won and lost and yet to be played:

	Won.	Lost.	To Play.
Campbellford.....	1	3	0
Peterborough.....	2	0	2
Belleville.....	1	1	2

Campbellford is out of the race, and the fight is now between Belleville and Peterborough. Peterborough, by right has already won the Colts' trophy, as Belleville has defaulted in not coming here on the date scheduled, but the local boys do not want the cup unless they have won it on its merits, consequently Peterborough will wait until Belleville can make arrangements to come up for a game. Campbellford sent a weak rink down to Belleville, but were confident of victory. They were in strong hopes that Belleville would win one of its two games with Peterborough, which would enable Campbellford then to play off the tie with the Peterborough Colts The fates willed it otherwise, however, and the Campbellford boys are now out of the running. The struggle therefore is between Belleville and Peterborough and the local Colts are quite confident that when the series has been completed it will be to Peterborough that the trophy will fall this year.

HOCKEY.

The "Invincibles" chalked another victory to their credit on Saturday night when they met and defeated the Bank of Toronto hockey club of Toronto, by a score of nine goals to five.

The Bank of Toronto team is a very strong aggregation and certainly played an extremely fast game. They had some of the best players of Toronto with them. They are all rather heavy men, much superior in weight to the Peterboroughs, but it takes a little more than a heavy team to defeat "ours," which conclusion was come to by the visiting team. The visitors played a strong combination game and made many brilliant individual plays. Big yellow haired "Jack" Gilmour was by far the strongest man on the Toronto side. His playing was finished and pretty to watch. This team is, without doubt, the strongest Peterborough has met this year. They came down, as they said, to have a little practice. It is hoped that they had it, and incidentally that they learned a thing or two.

The Peterboroughs played with their usual team, with the exception of Davidson, who took Lefevre's place on the right wing. They played with that dash and brilliancy which has distinguished them in other battles. The sides lined up as follows:—

Peterboroughs.		Toronto.
G Dixon.....	goal	B Carlisle
W J Montgomery..	point	W Warden
J Parson.....	cover point	H Brummel
R Davidson	forwards	G Crawford
H Wonham		T Parsons
W Phelan		J Gilmour
L King		H Reid
Walter Stocker..	goal umpires.....	J P Hurley

Referee, H B Dunsford.

The puck was faced at 8.30. During the whole of the first half the Torontoe played hard and well. Peterborough quickly scored the first three games amid the cheers of the spectators. These goals were the result of the perfect combination and timely work of the Peterborough forwards. The Toronto braced up a little and scored the next three goals. They were heartily cheered. One of these goals was a little fluke, the puck being thrown out from behind the goal struck the skate of a player and bounded between the sticks.

During the second half the play was much more brilliant — there was not so much shinney. Time after time the Peterborough forwards outstripped the wind, and carried the puck down the ice, and through the Toronto goal with a vim that was irresistible. In these rushes the splendid playing of Phelan and King shone forth. Once in a while "Monty" would be seized with a desire to make a goal and seizing the puck he would carry it all the way down the ice through the Toronto's goal and would then skate peacefully back to his place at point with a satisfied smile on his face. He played superbly. The Toronto men might get it as far as "Monty" but no farther. Parson played a wonderfully calm and collected game at cover. He was very sure and his timely plays did not a little towards Peterborough's success. Gilmour was a tower of strength for the visitors. His play in this half was clean and certain. The Toronto players were a little slower towards the end. The Peterborough's played fast from start to finish. They were a veritable whirlwind which same blew the Toronto men clean off their feet.

The games were scored as follows:

FIRST HALF.

1	Peterborough, scored by	Wonham	in 3 min.
2	" "	Wonham	7 "
3	" "	Davidson	14 "
4	Toronto, "	Gilmour	5 "
5	" "	Montgomery	4 "
6	" "	Reid	1 "

SECOND HALF.

1	Peterborough, scored by	Phelan	in 10 min.
2	" "	Phelan	1½ "
3	" "	Wonham	6 "
4	" "	King	7 "
5	Toronto, "	Reid	1 "
6	Peterborough, "	Davidson	1½ "
7	Toronto, "	Gilmour	12 "
8	Peterborough, "	Montgomery	1½ "

Walter Phelan played what was probably his best game of the season and was more than a match for his doughty opponent Gilmour, who is considered a star.

The visiting team was not composed entirely of Bank of Toronto men, and the extra players who were taken on were picked from the best in Toronto, the victory, therefore, is all the more creditable to the home team.

Mr. "Jack" Wright, a well known commercial man, was in the gallery, and gave ample evidence that his sympathies were with Peterborough by the impromptu war crys which he composed and sang for the edification of the players and spectators.

Dickson proved a stone wall between the flags and made some most difficult stops, while the new man, Davidson, acquitted himself well in his position on the forward line.

Spectators lined the galleries and applauded freely. The Torontos were warmly cheered for any clever play.

A large contingent from Toronto came down with the players.

A second spectacular hockey match will take place at the rink on Saturday night at 8 o'clock, after the champion skater, Rubenstein, has given an exhibition of fancy skating. The opposing teams are from the Bank of Montreal and the Ontario Bank. The costumes will be very ludicrous and, it is safe to say, this match will create a bigger sensation than the last one.

A match is on this afternoon between the Collegiate Institute and the Peterborough II.

The fourth game in the town series was played between the first and second teams of the Volts at the rink on Saturday afternoon with the result that the second team won by a score of 9 goals to 5. The teams lined up as follows:—

1st Volts.		2nd Volts.
B Clurton	goal	Kelly
R Thorne.....	point.....	King
Lewis	cover point.....	Knowles
Dunsford	forwards	McIntosh
Moore.....		Hicks
Adams		Lord
.....		Hall

R J Hillier.....umpires.....B Bellegham
Referee, W Crossley.

The first team of the Volts played under great disadvantage, two of their best men being off, and only one being replaced, they having thus to play six against seven, and in the second half five against six, and so suffered an unavoidable defeat.

At the conclusion of the services a very large number appended their signatures to the petition.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during this month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any further notice. dw

To-Morrow Night's Treat.

The attraction at the Opera House tomorrow evening will be Lincoln J. Carter's great scenic melodrama, "The Fast Mail." It has been one of the greatest successes known to the stage for years. It has a story of thrilling interest, and the scenic and other mechanical effects are said to be marvelous. There is a representation of an engine room on a Mississippi steamboat, with the furnaces under the boiler in active operation. A very realistic train of cars shoots across the stage, and the Niagara Falls scene is one of the most elaborate and daring things ever undertaken in the drama. It is described as a beautiful, vivid and accurate representation of that stupendous marvel of nature. The Falls are shown by moonlight, with the roaring and plunging waters, and the mist that rises from the seething current. One of the most prominent of the play's features is the complete freight train of 14 cars, with an illuminated caboose, drawn by a practical locomotive. The play itself has thrilling situations in abundance, plenty of humour to lighten its tone and give it an agreeable flavour throughout. Seats are now on sale at Street Railway Office. Prices 25, 35 and 50c. Box seats 75c.

INSPECTOR GARVIN.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—In a recent issue of the Peterborough Review there appeared a long letter from Inspector Garvin, wherein after pouring out seven vials of wrath upon the School Board, he gives a brief review of his checkered career in Peterborough. It is needless to enter into details; but it appears from the Inspector's own words, which in this instance should be taken at par, that he wanted to have a Model School here, and, of course, to be Principal of it himself. This enterprise was intended to be a financial gain to the Inspector, as well as an incalculable benefit to the town and to the teachers generally. This brilliant scheme didn't materialize, simply because the School Board, fifteen in number, sat on it. Then again we have the Inspector's own word for it, that the St. Andrew's people wanted him to be their choir leader. This would have been worth $500 a year, besides the honour of being the leader. Now one would think that if anything could soften the heart of a School Board it would be the dulcet strains of church music, but the practical board thought they had hired Inspector Garvin to devote all his time to the schools, and here again the School Board refused consent, and for the second time sat on the ambitious warbler, and the Inspector, in disgust, hung his harp on a willow tree. During Inspector Garvin's short reign here, he managed to have some young teachers dismissed. They refused, I am told, to fall down and worship the golden image, and therefore they had to run the risk of professional extinction. One of these young teachers obtained a situation in Toronto, and Inspector Hughes reckons her among his best teachers. Mr. Garvin, in his letter, refers to the inefficiency of this teacher in a way which most people will think rather small, vicious and spiteful. But the Inspector goes farther, for he even doubts the opinion of Inspector Hughes in reference to the ability of his own teachers. Inspector Hughes has been more than twenty years in Toronto, and as an educator and gentleman, he stands high. He is esteemed by the teachers for his fairness and impartiality. Now I submit that from this long service and good record the opinion of Inspector Hughes is entitled to far more respect than if, through some strange peculiarities of his own, he had adopted the itinerant plan of Inspecting the public schools of the Province.

Some people think that Inspector Garvin [illegible] short time since he tackled D'Alton McCarthy in his own stronghold, and it is said that only the Statesman happened to know a little more of the subject in debate than the Inspector, the latter would have come out on top of the heap. The veteran statesman will be here in a few days; suppose the Inspector should have another fly at him. There's nothing like perseverance.

TERROR IN MEXICO.

Guerillas Raiding the Frontier Settlers—Troops for the Border.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 4.—A special from Oaxaca, Mexico, states that the government is rapidly concentrating all federal troops stationed in the Southern States on the Guatemalan frontier. Regiments are passing through there almost constantly, en route to the State of Chiapas. Couriers who have just arrived bring information of the further depredations committed by renegade bands of Guatemalans on the Mexican settlers of the frontier. Many murders and robberies have been committed. The whole Mexican country is in a state of excitement and terror.

MME. JONIAUX IS GUILTY.

The Belgian Poisoner Will Suffer Penal Servitude.

ANTWERP, Feb. 4.—Mme. Joniaux on Saturday was found guilty of six counts and was sentenced to death. This sentence, according to the Belgian law, will be commuted to penal servitude for life.

The woman was tried for the murder by poison of her sister, Mlle Leonie Ablay; her uncle, M. Jacques VanDen Kerchove; and her brother, M. Alfred Ablay. The convicted woman was of good social standing and her trial has excited widespread interest.

Gen. Wallace After the Customs.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 4.—Gen. Lew Wallaces proposes to make trouble for somebody because he was not compelled to pay duty at the Detroit custom house on a copy of "Ben Hur" which he bought on a train in Canada while on his way to Detroit. Among a pile of books which the train "butcher" threw down besides him he found a paper covered copy of his famous work which the boy offered to him for twenty-five cents. As the book cannot be purchased in this country for less than $1.50 owing to the copyright, the general was ruffled. Inspector J. D. Long went through the satchel of Gen. Wallace in the station but passed the volume without asking for duty. Gen. Wallace announced his intention of taking the matter to Washington. He says that although "Ben Hur" has been translated into almost every tongue he has only received 15 cent royalty from foreign publishers.

Another Fatal Explosion.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Feb. 4.—One man was blown to death and five seriously hurt at the Westinghouse Electric Works at Brinton. The name of the dead man is John Dugar, 31 years old, single. All were laborers in the new Westinghouse plant. They had been sent to the warehouse for certain castings. The articles wanted were in a barrel which had formerly contained wood alcohol, and during the period it had been heated up; gas generated. The men knocked in the head and and one lighted a match to look for the castings. A terrific explosion followed. The men standing about the barrel were struck by the iron missiles and their clothing scorched by the blinding flash.

Armstrong's Scheme Jumped On.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The leading papers discuss the Atlantic and Lake Superior railway scheme. The Chronicle says it deserves the condemnation of all those who know the facts regarding the annuity and of the whole scheme. The Financial News says the scheme is already condemned by the former history of Mr. C. N. Armstrong and the Montreal and Sorel line. It adds: "With the Canadian Pacific doing badly and the Grand Trunk trembling on the brink of insolvency English investors are not likely to put their money into a competing road." Mr. Armstrong himself says that these newspaper statements are misleading and inaccurate. He declares that he will publish the real facts shortly.

Wanted at Montreal.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 4.—Geo. Pare, alias Bowland, was discharged from state prison here September 10 after serving five years for burglary in Cheshire county. Pare was wanted by Montreal officers to answer a charge of burglary. It was the officers' intention to take him to Canada on the completion of his sentence but for some unaccountable reason the papers did not arrive in season and Pare disappeared. Concord officers located him in Manchester where he was living under the name of Howard. He was arrested and brought here yesterday and will be held awaiting extradition papers.

An Arcade Romance.

BUFFALO, Feb. 4.—The village of Arcade is much flurried over the elopement of Miss Nellie Knight, daughter of a prominent lawyer of Arcade, and Albert Kent, a dashing young Canadian commercial traveller. The couple are now supposed to be at the home of Kent's parents in Canada. The young lady's parents opposed the match, but love laughs at lockamiths, and, seizing an occasion when the young lady was at home alone, the Romeo came with a fast team and cutter, bundled the young lady and her trunk into a sleigh and got away before the family returned.

To the Memory of Charles I.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Harold Frederick cables from London to the Times: "A curious foot note for current history is furnished by the fact that on the anniversary of the execution of Charles I. the police this year for the first time allowed funeral wreaths to be placed on his statute at Trafalgar Square. A requiem service at the ritualistic St. Margaret. Pattens drew a crowded gathering of well dressed people, among whom were members in kilts and the Stuart tartan.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet emergency.

THE GLENWILLIAMS ASSAULT.

Joe McMaster Committed to Stand His Trial and Bailed.

GEORGETOWN, Ont., Feb. 4.—Joe McMaster, who assaulted young Turner at Glenwilliams, was brought from Milton jail yesterday and arraigned before Magistrates Kennedy and Barber, charged with assaulting with intent to do grevious bodily harm one Albert Turner. County Crown Attorney Matheson prosecuted. The prisoner's interests were looked after by Barrister John Shilton, of Toronto.

Turner, who looks anything but well, said that he attended church at Glenwilliams on the evening of January 20; that after the service, and as he and Miss Wheeler were moving away from the church steps McMaster jumped between them, shoving him (Turner) off the sidewalk. He regained his position beside the lady and they walked peaceably along until they reached Mr. Martin's house. Miss Wheeler here excused herself, stating that she left her wraps in Martin's. While waiting her outcoming he received a blow which felled him to the ground. He attempted to rise, but was struck and went down again. The pounding continued until he became unconscious.

Several other witnesses were examined, all of whom swore they saw McMaster assault Turner.

Their worships considered a clear case had been made out against McMaster and they committed him to stand his trial at the spring assizes. After consultation they decided to accept bail. This was forthcoming.

METHODIST CHURCH DESTROYED.

The Pioneer Building of the Denomination in London Burned.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 4.—The pioneer of the Methodist churches in this city, the Queen's avenue Methodist church, was burned to the ground on Saturday night, together with the Wesley hall. It is a mystery how the fire started, but it is supposed to have been from the furnaces in the basement. The pipe organ was the finest west of Toronto and was valued at $14,000.

The fire spread so rapidly that it was impossible to save anything, and besides the pipe organ, three pianos, two class organs and a number of musical instruments belonging to the orchestra were destroyed. A large crowd witnessed the destruction of the building.

The fire settles a number of questions which have been a sort of disturbing element in the church for a couple of years past, the principal one being that in regard to the rebuilding, which a large number of the members of the church claimed was a pressing necessity, but which was indefinitely postponed in deference to the wishes of some of the wealthier members of the congregation.

The loss will be fully $75,000, on which there is, so far as known at present, but $26,000 insurance.

Nearly Murdered and Then Robbed.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 4.—Ned Flanders, a man about forty years of age, was terribly beaten, and claims to have been robbed of $240 while walking along Pierce avenue on the American side of the river. Flanders, it is said, had got hold of the money from the sale of a house and lot and had been drinking heavy through the day. It is said he had visited some disreputable houses, and had been followed from Zieger's saloon on Pierce avenue when he was pounced upon by three men and hit on the head several times, the result of which several ugly scalp wounds. In the melee that followed one of his assailants must have used a knife as two of Flanders' fingers were almost severed. Flanders managed to make his way to Dr. Talbots, who dressed his wounds and had the man sent to the Emergency Hospital. The doctor notified the police who arrested three well-known characters named "Reddy" Winslow, Jim McGrath and Geo. Wiehl on suspicion. The former two have confessed to the crime, one turning state's evidence on the other but exonerating Wiehl from having any connection with the affair. Part of the money has been recovered. Flanders is lying in a precarious condition at the hospital.

The wife of Senator Donelson M. Caffery of Louisiana was born in St. Mary's parish in that state. She was a Miss Richardson and is a descendent of a good old Huguenot family. She is a lady of medium height, with rather dark hair and eyes, and is very domestic in her tastes. She is devoted to her family of several children.

NEW YEAR NEW GOODS NEW LEAF 1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will let off cheap.

A HAIR RECEIVER.

Directions For Making Some Toilet Conveniences.

Three small palmleaf fans will form the foundation for a group of toilet conveniences that will be welcome beside any bureau. When the three are finished they are to be tacked in place on the wall or on the door, and may be arranged with the hair receiver in the center, with fan handles pointing upward. This fan is prepared by shirring on its front a bag of silk, flowered or plain, covering half the fan. It is loose at the top and makes a handy receptacle for combings. A big bow to match is fastened at the beginning of the handle. The one used for holding a brush and comb is given a similar shaped and arranged bag, only that is put on so that when the fan is tacked aslant, the bag will be in the right position for holding the articles intended for it. This bag is stiffened in some way, either by a piece of canvas or pasteboard cut in the same shape and fastened on the fan before the bag is.

The whiskholder is made by fastening a pasteboard strap covered with silk or ribbon across the center. The fan ought to be decorated in some way before this is done. A good way is to apply some gilding slantwise across half of it, leaving the other half plain. On this for a background paint in oils a group of flowers or some decorative design. If one cannot paint, this, and the other two fans as well, can be easily decorated by coarse worsted of any desired color, caught back and forth from the edge to the center, following the lines of the veins. Between put silver tinsel, fastened in the same way. The worsted must match the silk of the bags and the ribbon on the handles. If well arranged, the whole makes a very pretty as well as convenient addition to one's room.

ANNIE I. WILLIS.

THE BEST POLICY.

Where Honesty Should Begin, and Where It Should Often End.

Stealing is one matter; dishonesty is quite another. To most of us there is no temptation to take what doesn't belong to us. There is a temptation, and we don't often resist it, to be something short of perfectly frank and true. One reason for this is that the current pleasant speech which means nothing insensibly enlarges into other pleasant speeches which do mean something, but don't mean the truth. No one expects to be entirely believed who says "I am glad to see you," or "I regret to add." Yet from these stock phrases it is smooth sailing into what says more and means still less.

Obviously one could not go about the world dealing, like Mr. Gradgrind, solely in facts. Often facts are brutal. A good and wise mother was once asked by a daughter with a morbid conscience and a tender heart: "What shall I say to a guest who interrupts me and whom I am not at all glad to see? Shall I imply that I am?" The answer was carefully considered. When it was given it was this: "Try to put yourself in her place, first of all. Then you may find something very pleasant to say without bringing your own personality into the matter at all. If not, you can usually take refuge in the weather and exclaim that she is brave to face the storm or wise to test the sunshine. If your handclasp is hearty and your face is smiling you have done your part. And then work to make the welcome for her that was not ready."

"I believe in always speaking the truth," said another girl in a moment of reflection, "but there is no need of speaking all the truth." There is a volume of sense in that one sentence. Silence may be false on occasions where it is cowardly not to bear witness. Oftener it may be the result of kindly feeling of tender consideration for what the speech would hurt. Remember that to hurt is to harm. This is as palpable as that falsehood even well meant is wrong. It is a difficult, tactful question in ethics to decide between the hurting and the falsifying. It has an answer though. Women are more given by their very softness of nature, to untruths than are men. Yet they oftener glide out of a hard position without the taint of deceit. This, the world says, is because tact is a feminine belonging. Now tact answers the whole problem. And what is it? Its other name is love. RUTH HALL.

A TRIO OF HAPPY CITIZENS.

Effectively Cured of Indigestion and Nervous Troubles By South American Nervine—No Trifling With Disease—This Medicine Cures at the Nerve Centers and thus Effects a Certain Cure—Never Fails in Cases of Indigestion, Weakness and Nervous Prostration.

"In a multitude of counsellors there is safety," said a wise man centuries ago. A multitude of counsellors testify that South American Nervine cures disease and removes suffering as no other medicine will do. In these pages, from week to week, has appeared the testimony of well known people—men and women, in all parts of the Dominion, telling in distinct and thankful terms what this wonderful discovery has done for them. A large volume would be needed to contain all the evidence that comes to the discoverer of this medicine.

This talk is to-day illustrated with faces of three well known people who add their testimonials to the others. Here we have Mr. H. H. Darroch, of Mount Forest, who found himself weak to desperation after an attack of la grippe. South American Nervine was the only medicine to be found that gave him back his former strength.

Mr. Thomas Sullivan, a second figure in the group, was a sufferer for a number of years with aggravated indigestion. He had been treated by several doctors, with very little benefit. A friend recommended South American Nervine, and after taking a few bottles he has found himself completely relieved of swelling of stomach and other disagreeable evidences of indigestion. In a brief sentence, he says—"it has cured me."

Mr. Noble Wright, of Orangeville, was a sufferer for a long period with indigestion and sluggish liver, these culminating in gastric and nasal catarrh. Doctors and doctors' medicines were unavailing to cure. Having taken only two bottles of South American Nervine he found himself greatly benefited, and after six bottles had been used he is cured.

Baffled though doctors often are with disease, when the root trouble is discovered a cure is not difficult. Here rests the entire success of South American Nervine. Certain nerves control entirely the stomach, liver and all the internal organs of the body. Let these become weakened and disease follows and will continue until strength is given to these nerve centers. The motor power is centered there. Attempts to heal an organ is only patchwork of the worst kind and cannot possibly be effective. South American Nervine heals at the nerve centres, and for this reason people, after having tried doctors and doctors' medicines without success, because the effort is only to give temporary relief, find it effects an absolute, positive and unmistakeable cure.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees.
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done,
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small,
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but came, I mean,
They gave us every one, a kiss,
And said, "be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home,
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

HOUSEHOLD SILVERWARE.

Washing and Polishing the Silver—A Good Silver Polish.

When not in use, silver plate may be kept in canton flannel bags or cases which keeps it from the dust and also insures it from scratching. The proper care of silver in use begins with the washing after it has been used at table or elsewhere. Ordinarily it follows the glassware, being second in the wash, and authorities differ somewhat as to the best manner in which to treat it. One class of experts hold that it should only be washed in boiling hot water, free from soap, while others would have fine soap dissolved in the water. All agree that the water should be hot—the nearer to boiling the better—and that it should be free from coarse soap, or anything else which may be productive of scratch or blemish of any sort. As to the use of soap, this may properly be determined by the condition of the articles to receive treatment, according to Good Housekeeping, which recommends after the washing to rinse the plate in hot, clean water, wipe dry with a soft cloth and immediately rub with soft leather—chamois is by far the best. It must be borne in mind that the articles are to be wiped entirely dry, and that the polishing leather must also be dry and clean.

When extra polishing is necessary, the initial steps are those above described for washing. Every piece of plate must be made as clean as possible and wiped entirely dry. There are a good many kinds of "silver polish" upon the market, but about the best, after all, and the base of most of them, is the old French whiting, which taken in its purity may be used without danger of injury to the silver. It is wet with water or alcohol—the latter giving a specially brilliant effect—taken upon a soft rag, and the article thoroughly but carefully rubbed over. The surplus is then wiped away with a soft cloth, a proper brush is used to remove any traces of whiting from the chasing, and the article is lightly polished with leather.

If the article has been properly done, the heart of the mistress will swell with pride as she glances over the shining surfaces, whether these represent the fluted Queen Anne style of decoration, so popular for a tea and coffee service, or the bright finish with a beaded border. This latter, while very attractive with its bright, shining surface at first, is liable to become scratched with careless usage. A point in favor of the fluted style for silver plated ware is its perfect imitation of the solid silverware. It is a style, too, that is always more or less in fashion.

The Russian Statesman.

M. de Giers has passed away a statesman whose position for many years as the chief counsellor in foreign matters of the Czar of Russia gave him a unique influence on European international affairs. Fortunately for Europe, M. de Giers was devoted to a pacific policy, and it is as one of the trustees of the world's peace that he will chiefly be remembered. His advancement was partly due to his marriage to Princess Cantacuzene, whose uncle, Prince Gortschakoff, brought him into the Chancellery as head of one of its most important departments, but was in the main the natural result of his business capacity, tact and courtly manners.

What Alexander III. especially valued was honesty in his advisers, and he admired the conscientiousness with which his Foreign Minister, while bowing to the will of his autocratic master, clung to his own ideas of what was right.

M. de Giers was born in 1820 at Radziwiloff, in Poland. He was the son of Carl Giers, who had emigrated from Finland to Poland a century ago, and was ennobled by the Czar after fifty years of service to the State. He was educated at the Krasuve-Selo Lyceum. In 1844 he was sent as counsellor to the Russian Embassy at Constantinople; in 1858, as Consul General in Egypt; in 1863, Ambassador to Teheran; in 1867, to Switzerland, and in in 1872 to Stockholm. In 1875 he was called to St. Petersburg as assistant to Prince Gortschakoff, and in 1882 he was himself appointed Minister of Foreign Affairs. He was thus described by one who knew him: "He is a slight, careworn looking man, with haggard eyes, thin hands and a nervous smile. Modest in demeanor, melancholy in mood and kind to a fault, he is liked but not feared by the officials and diplomatists of his department, who are accustomed to find in him the greatest indulgence for all blunders or breaches of duty. A gentle rebuke for failure, a shake of the head for excess of zeal, is all they have to dread."

AYER'S Hair VIGOR

Restores natural color to the hair, and also prevents it falling out. Mrs. H. W. Fenwick, of Digby, N. S., says:

"A little more than two years ago my hair began to turn gray and fall out. After the use of one bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair was restored to its original color and ceased falling out. An occasional application has since kept the hair in good condition."—Mrs. H. F. FENWICK, Digby, N. S.

Growth of Hair.

"Eight years ago, I had the varioloid, and lost my hair, which previously was quite abundant. I tried a variety of preparations, but without beneficial result, till I began to fear I should be permanently bald. About six months ago, my husband brought home a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor, and I began at once to use it. In a short time, new hair began to appear, and there is now every prospect of as thick a growth of hair as before my illness."—Mrs. A. WEBER, Polymnia St., New Orleans, La.

Moved by Thomas Webster and A. A. Moore, that the bridge over mill race, South street, Warsaw, be rebuilt, also a railing place along sidewalk, and that the same be left in reeve's hands with power to act.—Carried. Council adjourned to meet again on Saturday, March 2nd, 1895, at 10 o'clock a.m., for the purpose of receiving auditors' report, appoint pathmasters, fence viewers and pound keepers, and other general business.

OMEMEE.

The Mirror says:—"A sitting of the police court was held at Bradburn's Hall on Wednesday last, before His Honour, Col. Deacon. The hall was filled with an interested crowd. The first case was that of Wyllie vs. Cardwell. It seems that on the 10th of January, B. M. Wyllie, of Peterborough, was authorized to remove a piano from the Cardwell House for Jackson & Co., assisted by Mr. Buller, of Peterborough. It was found that help would have to be procured, and Wyllie had several employed to do the job. Words ensued during the evening and Wyllie was assaulted by some parties in the hotel. Wm. Cardwell, proprietor of the hotel, was blamed for the assault. The interests of the complainant were looked after by County Attorney Devlin, of Lindsay, and E. B. Stone of Peterborough. The case for the defence was represented by W. A. Stratton, of Peterborough. After hearing the evidence, Colonel Deacon imposed a fine of $10.00 and costs on the defendant, amounting in all to $19.05. The second case was that of stealing the piano, preferred against Wm. McMaster, Charles Henderson and Henry McGill. The piano was taken from the Cardwell House without the kowledge of Wyllie, who had secured possession of it. The evidence showed that the piano was not taken out of the hotel with the intentions of stealing but merely a joke. The Colonel reprimanded them for their joke and let them off on suspended sentence, with the costs of the court to be paid by them, which amounted to $10.05. The next trial was that of attempted assault on B. M. Wyllie, against W. McMaster. McMaster was found guilty of the offence and a fine of $5.00 and costs, amounting in all to $7.45.

THIS WINTER.

Particularly Fruitful in Colds—If Neglected, these May Result Seriously and Fatally.

KINGSTON, Feb. 4th.—Open weather, such as has prevailed most of this winter, is particularly fruitful in colds. Many are apt to neglect a cold, particularly the young people. They have abundant reason afterwards to regret their folly, for nothing is more likely to cause kidney disease than a neglected cold. The delicacy of these organs may be assigned as a reason for this. Once the kidneys are attacked, it is but a step to diabetes, Bright's disease or some such dangerous affection. Those who find themselves attacked by any form of kidney ailment, resulting from a cold, will obtain a sure, cheap and easy remedy in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Eloped With Her Tutor.

HALIFAX, Feb. 4.—The steamer Mongolian, which arrived yesterday, had among her steerage intermediate passengers from Liverpool a couple registered as man and wife. They were John Brown, aged 50, and Gertrude Bentley, aged 18. They were immediately arrested by detectives on instructions from the girl's father, who is a wealthy manufacturer of Liverpool. Brown, who left behind a wife and five children, was Miss Gertrude's private tutor and is a graduate of Oxford. He was released subsequently and as he has means he employed lawyers who will endeavor to get the girl out of possession of the police. The couple will then proceed to Vancouver, for which place they are booked. The young lady is attractive and well educated and was much affected when separated from Brown. The latter admits he is married and that he is eloping with Miss Bentley.

A Cobourg Centenarian.

COBOURG, Feb. 4.—Mary Shrewsburg, relict of Thos. Shrewsburg, died here yesterday, aged 110 years. She came from England over 75 years ago, and settled in Cobourg. For some time past she has been cared for by the Woman's Auxilary of St. Peter's English church.

An Important Customs Decision.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—It is reported that Controller Wallace will decide, if he has not already done so, that electricity generated on the American side of the river at Niagara can be imported free of duty into Canada.

A Privy Council Decision.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The Privy Council has dismissed with costs the appeal of Hamelin v. Bannerman, affirming the judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench and confirming the amount of damages given by that court.

Features of Millinery.

There is a fancy for small bonnets—in fact, the bonnets are as tiny as the hats are enormous. One of the most striking of these is the Valkyrie capote, with two black wings across the front. The only large bonnets worn are of beaver in modified Empire shape, with strings of black satin ribbon tied under the chin and flaring brims filled underneath, next to the hair, with flowers or loops of ribbon.

Another striking feature of this season's millinery is the George Washington cocked hat. The Louis Seize bow wired to form three or four open loops, with wired and twisted ends, is its favorite decoration. Round hats are of glossy beaver, satin antique, felt and velvet, flaring away from the face and disclosing a single rose resting against the hair, and have a large panache of four or five ostrich feathers on the side or stiff wings of black standing up smartly in the loops.

Lace and fur, fur heads with roses and feathers with chiffon appear in rather daring, but none the less charming, incongruity on the same hat. Sable, and the brown fur that imitates it, and Persian lamb are the furs most used, point duchess and the lighter applique laces as well as Venetian patterns are seen in the laces, and the flowers are roses, violets and poppies.

A CANDLESTICK TIMEPIECE.

It Indicates the Time as Correctly as a Clock.

A candlestick timepiece, as shown in the accompanying cut, says Invention, has been designed by an English inventor, which is said to be as accurate as a clock.

In this invention the candle is entirely exposed to the air, which keeps it cool, the globe and fittings resting upon and, by gravity only, following the candle in its decrease in length whilst burning, consequently, it is stated, the pressure exerted upon the candle is uniform throughout. A valuable feature of this candlestick is its simplicity. It has no parts depending on wheels or springs to get out of order.

To work this apparatus it is only necessary to light the candle, lift the globe gallery and sliding piece by the knob; then pass the flame up through a hole in the center of the dome, thus illuminating the globe, which may be made of opal or other transparent material, allow the lower end of candle to descend gently into the socket in base, then as the candle burns and decreases in length the part resting on it descends with it, but the gallery being free to revolve in the steps, or sliding pieces upon which it rests, is caused to turn round by the action of the spiral groove in rod B, carrying with it the globe and causing the figures to pass the hand or indicator, which, whilst it descends with the other parts, is prevented from turning by the guide rods.

A Brave Rescue by Firemen.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—A fire which broke out in the picture framing establishment of Mr. T. Bean, 27 St. Antoine street, although extinguished by the brigade, was attended by a serious property loss and narrowly escaped being the cause of a tragedy. The firemen at the risk of their lives rescued from the top flat of the burning building Mrs. John Martin, an aged and almost helpless lady, from death. The fire started in Mr. Bean's store from some unknown cause, and quickly spread to the restaurant of Mr. J. McKinley and to his and Mr. John Martin's dwellings above. The firemen were quickly on the scene but the flames spread so quickly that Mrs. Martin's escape was cut off. In the face of smoke and flames the men made their way to the fire-imprisoned lady, and the crowd cheered when they again appeared bringing her in their arms to safety. Both the stores on the street flat were gutted by fire.

Port Hope Burglars Run Down.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 4.—On Thursday night last the grocery store of Mr. George Glass, Walton street, was entered and a large quantity of groceries and provisions taken. Several parties were suspected by Chief Constable Douglas, who got out a search warrant and the house opposite the post-office, occupied by Mrs. Nelson and sons, William and Thomas Nelson and wife, Alexander Crummer, brother of Mrs. Nelson, was searched on Saturday, and a sleigh load of butter, cheese, bacon, pickles, tea and other groceries were found that had been stolen from Mr. Glass and identified by Mr. Stephens, Mr. Glass' foreman. In addition, forty yards of Brussels carpet, stolen some months ago from Mr. George Smith's livery stable, was also found. Crummer and Thomas Nelson, in the presence of a number of witnesses, acknowledges both the robberies. They are now in custody.

London West's Defaulter.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—John M. Lord, the London West ex-tax collector, charged with embezzlement, pleaded guilty to the four charges preferred against him. He was then remanded to Thursday for sentence. A petition in his behalf has been started. It is said that some of the most prominent people of London West, including the reeve, have promised to sign.

A Farmer's Narrow Escape.

BRANTFORD, Feb. 4.—When crossing Colborne street at the corner of George street yesterday Walter Cunningham, farmer, was struck and knocked down by a trolley. Fortunately the motor was reversed in good time, and beyond a shaking up by the sudden fall. Mr. Cunningham escaped without injury.

Liberator Directors to be Arrested.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Summons have been issued for Francis M. Coldwells, member of Parliament for North Lambeth; Henry Granville Wright, the solicitor, who is now in prison for forgery in connection with the Liberator Building Society frauds; Messrs. Dibbley and Brook, directors of the society; and Mr. Theobald, the auditor of the concern. All are accused of conspiracy and fraud.

No Hope for the Chicora.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Feb. 4.—The steamer Ludington arrived at this port covered with ice after a dangerous and fruitless search for the wrecked steamer Chicora. Captain Henry Stines of the Ludington has now abandoned hope of seeing his brother who commanded the Chicora.

Liberal Members Summoned.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—An urgent Liberal whip has been issued. It summons the members for four to-morrow afternoon when questions of privilege are likely to be raised taking precedence over the address, and important divisions are expected.

A Dangerous Anarchist Arrested.

ROME, Feb. 4.—The police have arrested Ravaglio Cappelli, a dangerous anarchist, and two of his friends. In Cappelli's lodgings they found several bombs and an infernal machine loaded with powder and bullets and a parcel of revolutionary plans.

Killed in a Railway Wreck.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 4.—A wreck occurred on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Woodell. An eastbound train jumped the track, and entering a siding crashed into the rear of a freight train standing there. Ed. Robinson, of Glenwood, flagman, was instantly killed.

A British Conservative Resigns.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—H. S. Nailor-Leland has resigned his seat in the House of Commons. He is a Conservative and represented Colchester. In 1889 he married Miss Jane Chamberlain, daughter of H. S. Chamberlain, of Cleveland, U.S.

Cecil Rhodes Sworn In.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Mr. Cecil Rhodes, the premier of Cape Colony, was sworn in as a member of the Queen's Privy Council at Osborne yesterday. Mr. Rhodes afterwards took lunch with the Queen, and a short time later went on board the steamer Athens on his return to the Cape Colony.

Glass Works Destroyed.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 4.—The Phœnix Glass Works at Monaca were destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss $150,000. The works employed five hundred people.

An Insane Preacher's Deed.

AURORA, Mo., Feb. 2.—Bud Ellis, a farmer and Methodist preacher, living four miles from this city, became suddenly insane yesterday. He cut his wife's throat and shot his little girl through the head, killing both. Then going to a farm where he formerly resided he blew his own brains out. He was a widower until a week ago when he married a widow named Rickman who also had a little girl. The latter was saved by being absent at school.

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

DIRT!

Your watch needs cleaning and oiling, once every eighteen months if you would preserve its time-keeping qualities. Consider: In that time the balance wheel turns on its delicate axes 13,296,800,000 times. It does not "rest" at night like ordinary machines, but keeps at its work unceasingly. You oil an engine, or a sewing machine, or any other mechanical contrivance, daily or weekly; but that delicate instrument of precision—your watch—is allowed to go uncared for until it is clogged with dirt, and stops. The best of oil becomes thick and dirty in time; in this condition it wears the pivots and destroys that exactness of their fit in the jewel-holes which is necessary to a correct performance

Let me look at your watch—I will give you a conscientious opinion as to whether it needs attention.

MRS. ELIOT'S DARK RECORD

Even Her Relatives Denounce Her As a Notoriously Bad Woman—She Comes From Ingersoll—Concerned in Other Affairs.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 5.—An Ingersoll Ont., despatch says Mrs. Nellie Pope, wife of Dr. Horace Elliott Pope, who was murdered in Detroit Saturday morning, was born near this place, and though she spent but a fraction of her life here she has a record that is unsavory in the extreme. She is regarded by relations and those who have met her as a woman of desperate traits, and when her cousins were informed of the murder every one of them anticipated the conclusion of the story, and declared that Mrs. Pope was the one who killed her husband. When told that a man had confessed the crime, and that there was nothing mysterious about it, they seemed to doubt the statement and still insisted that Mrs. Pope was directly responsible. When the details of the horror were enumerated as reported in the papers, there was but one belief, "If Mrs. Pope did not commit the deed she was certainly accessory before the fact." These are the impressions of people who have not seen Mrs. Pope for four or five years. Their suspicions are grounded upon some of the woman's acts when she attempted to rob Dr. Moses Edgar Tripp of his estate. Her conduct in this connection was most reprehensible, and there are court records to substantiate it. Not satisfied with having tried to despoil six children of what would come to them at their father's death, she prompted the arrest of the man she had partially ruined on a charge of murdering his mother, although she did not lodge the complaint herself.

THAT ELBE DISASTER.

Statements From the Company and the Rescued Woman.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The agents of the North German Lloyd steamship company last night sent the following statement to the press regarding charges against the officers and crew of the Elbe and the London agents of the company by three of the passengers who survived the disaster:—

"The charges that have been made are unfounded according to our investigations. Nobody saw Hoffman's child in boat No. 3. When the port side boat No. 5 which contained Miss Boecker besides other passengers was filled by the waves in lowering, the order was heard that women and children should be taken to boats on the starboard side, where they found protection against the strong wind, the starboard being the leaside. The assistant purser, the steward Knobe and third officer Stollberg drew Miss Boecker into boat No. 3.

Miss Boecker writes as follows:

"Kobe is one of the men who saved me. Order prevailed on deck. There were very few cries heard. I had hold of a piece of lumber and cried for help when the lifeboat was in my neighborhood. I was observed, and an oar was stretched out to me. My dress was so heavy from the water that the men did not succeed until after considerable time in drawing me into the boat. Capable seamen were in the boat, who fought courageously against storm and waves."

Canucks Not Wanted.

BUFFALO, Feb. 4.—The first prosecution under the new state law Act of 1894 prohibiting the employment of aliens on public works whether by city, county, state or municipal governments, or by contractors for work for municipalities was concluded to-day, and resulted in a decision against the Barber Asphalt Company for the employment of an Italian named Capella, a resident for some time but not a citizen of the United States. The courts sentenced the superintendent of the Asphalt company to pay a fine of $100 or serve 100 days in the penitentiary. The defence questioned the constitutionality of the Act and will carry the case to the Supreme Court. The defence did not seek to evade the issue, admitting that the knew Capella was an alien and that they had many more aliens in their employ. The progress of the case has especial interest for Canada.

A Determined Suicide.

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Feb 5.—Two boys went to their fish house on Round Lake Monday afternoon and were horrified to find the body of a woman frozen in the ice. It was Mrs. Eugene Cross, whose husband is a sailor in Chicago. She had cut the hole larger with an axe and deliberately ended her life. The day previous doctors dressed a gash over her heart which was doubtless the first attempt at suicide. The woman was not in her right mind.

HON. MR. LAURIER IN TORONTO.

His Remarks as to the Government and the Session.

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—Hon. Wilfrid Laurier is in the city. He will speak in Massey hall to-night, and with him will be Hon. G. W. Ross and Mr. G. C. Gibbons, Q.C., of London.

"Will you, in your address to-night say anything about the recent decision of the Privy Council regarding the Manitoba school question and whether it would be advisable to grant remedial legislation?" a reporter asked.

"Well, really," said he, "I came to Toronto to receive information and not to give it."

In speaking of the prospect of the Government, he said he was not well enough in the confidence of the Government to answer.

"I have no opinion as to what they will do," he said.

"Why don't we have a session now?" he broke out. "This is session time. Why not have a session and elections after?"

"The excuse given for the delay, in the announcement, that it is not known when the lists will be finished, is a mistake," broke in Mr. James Sutherland. "It could easily be ascertained."

"Yes," said Mr. Laurier. "The lists should be ready by March 1. If they were printed by each constituency they would be completed within a week.

"It seems that they don't seem decided themselves," said he.

Mr. Laurier said that he was quite confident of success, whether the Government decided on elections or a session. He is here for the Provincial Liberal convention which opens to-day.

Japan Declines to Treat With China's Peace Envoys.

TOKIO, Feb. 5.—At the meeting of the plenipotenaries of Japan and China on the 2nd inst., Count Ito, in an address to the Chinese plenipotenaries, pointed out to them the defectiveness and insufficiency of their powers. He gave them positive assurances, however, that whenever China manifested a serious and sincere desire for peace by confiding actual full powers to Chinese officials of such a nature and scope as would render it certain that the terms which might be agreed upon would be confirmed by the Chinese Government and would actually be carried out in good faith, Japan would be prepared to enter upon new negotiations.

Whiteway's Troubles.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 5.—The domestic quarrels of Sir William Whiteway's friends are growing more bitter daily and the struggle for office has become so desperate as to cause serious alarm among the more judicious members of the party. The prospects of forming a Cabinet are gloomier than ever, as almost every conspicuous candidate has adopted a dog-in-the-manner policy which threatens a permanent dead-lock. The Whitewayite members of the House of Assembly who have been requested to retire are deaf to all entreaties and declare they will not resign their seats unless Sir William gives them safe and remunerative offices. This Sir William cannot do as the demands for economy in the public service are paramount. Meantime the men who ought to be in the cabinet are left unavailable and must remain so, since the foremost positions are placed beyond their reach by the obstinacy of the present incumbents. A caucus was held yesterday but the problem was left unsolved. Any arrangement is now likely to be deferred until to-morrow pending the arrival of an answer to the tentative despatch sent to Great Britain. The question out to the British Government was: "What assistance will be given in the present crisis in case the Newfoundland Government accept a Royal Commission of enquiry and bind itself to abide by the commissioners' recommendations." It is hoped that the Imperial Government will promise something which will enable the Whitewayites to accept the commission without the loss of prestige which the demand for an unconditional acceptance would cost them.

THAT NEW RAILWAY.

Its President Issues a Statement Regarding the Enterprise.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—A Star special cable from London says:—Senator J. R. Thibaudeau, the president of the Atlantic and Lake Superior railway, is issuing to the press to-night a reply to the attacks upon the scheme. Mr. Thibaudeau denies that the line is being built as a rival to the Canadian Pacific. He claims the road will develop a new territory and must benefit the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific by an exchange of traffic. He further denies that the Montreal and Sorel line of rail is included in the new scheme. Another denial is the emphatic statement that there has not been any negotiations for the purchase of sure interest at 4 per cent. during the twenty years currency of the proposed £500,000 bonds to be paid by the Canadian Government without costing the company a shilling. The whole amount, he says, is provided out of the Federal and Provincial subsidies to the companies forming the through line, the subsidies being a free and unconditional gift to the Atlantic and Lake Superior Company from the lines to which they were originally granted.

Death of an Old Clergyman.

HAMILTON, Feb. 5.—Rev. Mr. McGill, who resided on the mountain a few miles from Hamilton, and who was the oldest clergyman in this part of the country, if not in Ontario, died at his home Sunday. Rev. Mr. McGill was born in 1799, and retired a few years ago from active ministry in the Congregational church. He was of liberal views and was a great favorite with all. A son and daughter resided with him and he has one son who is assistant chief analyst for the Dominion Government at Ottawa.

Liberals of South Waterloo.

GALT, Ont., Feb. 5.—The Liberal convention for South Waterloo was held here yesterday. The meeting was a very large one and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. James Livingston, M.P., of Baden, was given the unanimous nomination of the convention, and after considerable persuasion he accepted the nomination.

Acquitted on a Charge of Larceny.

BERLIN, Ont., Feb. 5.—H. Gilbert, former proprietor of the American hotel, who was arrested at Toronto on a charge of larceny, was acquitted.

THE PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE

Queen Lil's Arrest Causes a Sensation—British and American Interests—A Warship Gone to Honolulu—The Americans Active.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The president yesterday sent to the House of Representatives the following report from Secretary Gresham relating to Hawaiian affairs:—

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
Feb. 4, 1895.

To the President:—The Secretary of State to whom was referred the resolution of the House of Representatives dated Feb. 1, 1895, requesting the President to transmit to the House of Representatives, if not incompatible with the public interests, all correspondence, documents, or other information, if any, in the possession of the Government in regard to arms having been furnished by British subjects to persons in rebellion against the Government of the Hawaiian Island or in regard to any intervention by representatives of Great Britain to prevent the application of martial law as proclaimed by said Government to those concerned in said rebellion who claim to be British subjects, has the honor to report that the department has no information in regard to arms having been furnished by British subjects to persons in rebellion against the Government of the Hawaiian Islands, but in a telegram from the United States Minister at Honolulu, Jan. 11, forwarded by way of San Francisco, Mr. Willis says: "Arms reported to have been brought from Vancouver by Norma."

This telegram and Mr. Willis' despatch No. 81 of the same date were given to the press on their receipt. Copies are also hereto appended.

Although not directly responsive to the resolution, copies are submitted of correspondence exchanged with the United States legation at Honolulu in regard to alleged fillibustering movements and apprehended shipments of arms from San Francisco in November last.

The Department of State has no information in regard to any intervention by representatives of Great Britain to prevent the application of martial law as proclaimed by the Hawaiian government to those concerned in the recent rebellion who claim to be British subjects, or of any foreign representatives whatever in the case, other than a statement contained in a note of the Hawaiian Minister to the undersigned under date of January 20, 1895, that "the British commissioner at Honolulu, Mr. Hawes, has called upon the government of Hawaii to give his assurances that no capital punishment will be inflicted upon the insurrectionists, there being fifteen Englishmen under arrest, which requested assurance the government has refused to give."

Copies of this note of Mr. Thurston's and of the reply of the undersigned are also annexed.

W. O. GRESHAM.

The most important feature of the correspondence submitted with the secretary's reports is a note from Mr. Thurston to Secretary Gresham dated January 20, in the course of which the writer says: "The subject of the presence of an American man-of-war at Honolulu has been recently the subject of discussion in the press and elsewhere. It does not lie within my province to suggest any course of action on the part of the United States concerning such subjects. I feel, however, that it is due to your government and to the large American population and properly interests in Hawaii to state that although the government of Hawaii is and will continue in the future as it has been in the past, fully able to maintain itself against the attacks of all domestic enemies in view of the serious nature of the charges now pending against a large number of both foreigners and natives and of other complicating conditions the state of affairs at the islands is critical as in the event of further insurrection of complication, although the government will use every endeavor to protect foreign interests and their property it is not impossible that sudden contingencies may arise or isolated acts of violence take place against which the government with its limited police and military force may temporarily be unable to afford protection."

Before the receipt of this note a warship had been ordered to Honolulu.

Serious Accident in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 5.—An electric car has just run into an open draw at Kinnickinnic Bridge. The list of dead is only three. Miss Nettie Ehlman, Miss Schmidtkunz and John W. Kennedy were killed. Several of the passengers (there were 11) were slightly injured. All have been accounted for. The motorman, Kennedy, did not try to stop his car until within five feet of the draw. He then set the brake but the car slid into the river. It plunged headforemost on the ice and struck there, half out of the water. Kennedy, the dead motorman, was a prominent member of the local street car union and leaves a wife and family. Miss Ehlman is the daughter of William A. Ehlman, the well-known musical director. She was an accomplished lady, about 24 years of age. Miss Schmidtkunz was employed in the bottling department of the Schultz Brewing Company.

A Farmer in Trouble.

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—In order to save paying a bill of $26, James Tate, a farmer of Thornhill, deliberately accused the postal clerks of stealing that amount from a letter. He bought a fanning mill from Manson Bros., of Stratford, and was to have remitted the $26 in part payment. Instead of this he sent a letter pretending to enclose the money. The Stratford firm referred the matter to the post office inspector, who, after an investigation, induced Tate to confess that he did not enclose the money as he had claimed.

MILLBROOK

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

EAST DURHAM LIBERALS.

Judging from the activity that is being displayed by the political organization in East Durham, one would imagine that a general election is not far off. The Conservatives of the riding are not going to have everything their own way and it would not be at all surprising if the present member, T. Dixon Craig, was heavily snowed under. The Liberals of the riding will hold a convention in Port Hope on the seventh of this month for the purpose of choosing a candidate for contesting the riding at the next election. Who will likely be the nominee of the convention is not known, but there are several good men in the Liberal ranks in East Durham that can redeem the riding. Never were the prospects for a Liberal victory brighter. There are two candidates already in the field, neither of which are friendly to the Liberal cause, and which will certainly split the Tory vote, while the Liberals will vote to a man for their candidate. Col. McLean is the McCarthyite candidate, but has always been a staunch Conservative. What action the Patrons are going to take in the coming elections is not known at present, but a large mass meeting will be held in the town hall here on Tuesday evening when Grand President Mallory will appear before the electors of East Durham for the first time and will probably state what course will be taken.

Posters are out for another grand carnival to be held on Friday evening next.

Mrs. J. C. Kells gave an "at home" on Thursday from five to 7 p.m., which was largely attended.

A fair from here will take in the ball to be given in Port Hope on Wednesday evening.

Messrs. Ira and John Nattras arrived home from Port Perry, where they were racing their horse "Demand." They got two seconds and one third. They will go to Port Hope on Monday.

Miss Millie Richardson, of Toronto, is visiting friends in town.

BABY LIKES IT.

Lactated Food is the Most Palatable of All Foods.

The most palatable prepared food known to mothers and physicians, and the one that baby likes best, is the well-known Lactated Food. Mothers should bear in mind that the quality of palatableness is a most important one, and deeply concerns baby's welfare.

We have seen instances of the evil results of feeding babies with foods that were repulsive to the stomach, and that caused nausea and disgust. Such feeding often causes serious trouble and sickness.

When pure Lactated Food is fed to baby, it is taken with a relish and soon that indicates a strong, vigorous and healthy stomach, and perfect digestion. In every home in Canada where Lactated Food has been made baby's chosen diet, there is a happiness, a peace and contentment unknown to homes where inferior foods are used.

Baby is deserving of the best possible diet, and it is now an established fact that Lactated Food is the king of foods in quality, and from an economical point of view, it is the cheapest.

A Pretty Face

Is the result of a healthy physical condition. "Beauty is but skin deep" yet it greatly depends on a clear complexion free from wrinkles and hollow cheeks.

Health always brings wealth of beauty. A healthy state of the system comes with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine prepared for woman's ailments—it cures those derangements and weaknesses which make woman's life miserable.

A woman who neglects to take proper exercise is particularly prone to excessive congestion, debility and a sluggish circulation. This is the time we advise the "Prescription." In all derangements and displacements of the special organs which result in "signs of inflammation," in catarrhal discharges from the inner membranes, and in distressing irregularities—this medicine is guaranteed to cure, or the money will be returned.

Paine's Celery Compound Used in the Frozen Regions.

Mr. James W. Davidson, who went with Lieut. Peary to the Arctic regions, was recently interviewed, and made the following interesting statements:

"Yes, indeed, I have not only heard of Paine's Celery Compound, but have used it, and have every reason to remember it. When I was selected by Lieutenant Peary to accompany him on his trip to the arctic regions to try and find the North Pole, it was partly because of my strong, healthy constitution, and his belief that I could endure the fatigue and danger incident to the trip. I had been associated with him as his business manager on his lecturing tour, and was on terms of the greatest intimacy with him.

"When the ship 'Falcon' left New York on her trip northward it had, among the stores, several cases of Paine's Celery Compound. The reputation of that medicine was so well established that it was the most natural thing in the world that the members of the party, and they comprised men from nearly every walk in life, from common sailors to men of science, should desire to use it.

"The record of our perilous trip to Camp Anniversary is too well known to need repetition. Once in camp we naturally took an inventory of our possessions, and I was exceedingly glad to find the Celery Compound. The medicine chest was open to all, and we were free to take from it what we thought was advisable. I, in company with several others, selected some of the Compound, taking a bottle of it to the cabin, knowing it would be handy when wanted. Nor was I mistaken, for the excessive cold weather soon had its effects, and I began to be troubled in a number of ways. In every case whenever I felt the slightest indisposition, I used the Compound, and of course found relief.

"One thing noticeable in the Arctic region was that the cold weather made us all exceedingly nervous. We became irritable and cross. The slightest thing would cause angry words to spring to our lips, and it required the greatest care to guard against our ill-temper getting the best of us. We had to watch one another to avoid getting into a passion. Our nerves were all unstrung and naturally it affected our health. I talked the matter over with some of the others, and made up my mind that possibly the Celery Compound would be beneficial, for I knew that it was used for nervous disorders at home. Well, sir, we tried it, and I must say that it helped every one of us, so much so that I might say it was a peace-maker among us.

"When the long night of six months came on, and we were in darkness, we found that the effects were very depressing. Imagine, if you can, living for six months in darkness, such as occurs here every night, and you can readily understand how we were situated. It is a wonder that some of us did not go mad. We had not very much to divert our attention, and the effect was something like solitary confinement in a dark cell.

"I have used Paine's Celery Compound for a dozen ills such as a person is liable to have at any time, and especially in this desolate country. It has always helped me, and I should be pleased to have more of it, if I should go North again.

"I do not know of any one thing that I can speak more highly of than Celery Compound. It certainly is a great medicine, and I am an advocate of it."

IS IT MURDER?

A Horribly Suggestive Case at Linwood, Ont.

BERLIN, Ont., Feb. 5.—Considerable excitement prevails in the northern part of the riding, and the people of the village of Linwood and vicinity are at present in a feverish state of mind. Saturday afternoon two strangers, man and woman, were seen passing through the village, accompanied by a child, travelling in a southerly direction, till finally they were observed to enter the woods about two miles from the village, where a fire was kindled, it being a very cold night. Here they remained for some time, when they left and wended their way to a farmer's by the name of John Wilcox, on the 13th line, where they sought and obtained shelter, now transpires that the child was with them when they left the bush, search was instituted with the result what appears to be part of human bones were found in the ashes where had been kindled. Adding to this substantial evidence the village constables ordered out and is now tracking fugitives in order that a solution may be reached.

On Trial for Bigamy.

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—The chapter of scandal and crime in the life of Millie Harkiss, of Orangeville, took another turn on Saturday night, when she was arrested by Detective Slemin on a charge of bigamy. Mrs. Harkiss is the elder sister of the 16-year-old bride of John Kidd, who himself is 26 years of age. The two sisters have taken part in several escapades. Millie was in December last tried at Brampton on the charge of shooting at her husband, but was acquitted. About four years ago she was married at Hamilton to Albert Whitmore. After two years the two separated. Last August she met John Harkiss, and subsequently the two were married. Hence the charge of bigamy, for which she is now to be tried.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet emergency.

ANOTHER BIGAMY CASE.

A Conspiracy Nipped in the Bud at Gananoque.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 5.—The arrest of John Williamson at Gananoque on Sunday night on a charge of conspiracy to commit bigamy has again revived the interest in the Dempster bigamy case. If the charge is correct Williamson had a fine scheme laid out to benefit himself at somebody else's expense. Dempster is an old widower with considerable property, somewhat half-witted, and in search of another wife. This was Williamson's chance and confiding his scheme to Mrs. Dowsley, a married woman, she undertook to wed the old man, and the proposal was made to Dempster that he deed one-half of his property to Williamson, and the other to Mrs. Dowsley when the marriage was consummated. This was agreed to and at first a mock ceremony was performed at New Dublin in which a prominent township official played the part of an Anglican minister. The deeds were accordingly made out as proposed, but Williamson, fearing that they would not hold good later, saw that a legal marriage took place. Then Mrs. Dempster's first husband, Dowsley, with whom she had not been living some years turned up and hearing of her second marriage had her arrested. As has already been made public she pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy, but sentence has been deferred till the other facts in the case were looked up. Detective Grear was working on the case, and had a warrant issued for Williamson but he could not be found. He turned up at Gananoque last Sunday night, however, and was arrested by Chief Ryan. The prisoner was brought down to Brockville appeared before Police Magistrate Deacon yesterday. The Crown-attorney did not have the evidence ready to proceed with the trial, and he was remanded for a week. Williamson applied for bail and it was granted in the sum of $1,000 in his own name and another security of a like sum. Further developments are looked for, as there is evidence to show that there was another conspiracy between Mrs. Dempster and another man who was to furnish power to take old Dempster's life. He cannot be found just now, but his arrest is expected.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

The Premier Returns—The Jute and Cordage Company Cases.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—The charge against Chas. Lewis, one of the pool sellers, and Frank Heard, clerk, was put back until next Saturday at the police court to-day. The charge was laid by D. Cochlin, and was that Lewis recorded a bet on the result of a race in the city of Ottawa and not upon a track or race course of any association. Mr. Latchford, who prosecuted, said he was not ready to go on, and anyway thought this a proper case for the Crown to take up. Warrants were out for other parties, and he thought if they were arrested all the cases might come on together. Mr. H. Pratt, who defended Lewis, said he was ready to go on as his client had had nothing to do with the selling at all. It was then agreed to let the case stand until Saturday, Lewis being released in personal bail of $1,000 and Chas. Kelly and W. C. Bangs in $500 each for his appearance.

In the cases of the Queen v. the Canada Jute Company and the Consumers' Cordage Company a motion was made this morning in the Exchequer Court by Hon. J. S. Hall, Q.C., for a judgment by consent similar to the one already delivered in the case of the Dominion Bag Co. It was granted accordingly. The seized goods of the companies mentioned have now to be released by the Customs Department.

NORTH POLE IN CANADA

THEREFORE TO BE FOUND BY CANADIAN SCIENTISTS AND EXPLORERS.

The "Men of the Northern Zone" who Really Think of Going to the Arctic—Willis Chipman, of Toronto, Originator of a New Plan of Attack.

Much interest was excited by an article in a recent issue of the Popular Science Monthly upon "Arctic Exploration," in which the writer, Stuart Jenkins, gave reasons for his belief that the man above others best able to win the North Pole were Canadian surveyors—accustomed to out-door work in low temperatures from life-long training. The article was pithy and well-written. Investigation reveals, however, as hinted therein, that the conception of the idea belongs elsewhere, the credit being due to the well-known civil and sanitary engineer, Willis Chipman of Toronto, whose portrait appears to-day, and who at the last meeting of the Ontario Land Surveyors brought the scheme under the association's notice. Youthful in appearance though Mr. Chipman is, every transit-man in Ontario knows him as "the father" of the association, for to him it owed its inception in 1886, and to his executive ability it is mostly indebted for its membership of over 250, for its ample bank account and for that perfect organisation which secures it a foremost place among similar associations. Mr.

WILLIS CHIPMAN.

Chipman's scheme was ridiculed at first, but his eloquence, bolstered by facts and figures, won the surveyors over, so that a committee was appointed to take it up and report at next spring's meeting.

It certainly is a strong committee, the members being all famous in Canadian exploratory work. William Ogilvie, who thoroughly explored the Yukon country, at present engaged on the Takn river and Inlet survey; O. J. Klotz, who, in addition to other work attended by much hardship, was on the Alaska boundary survey; J. W. Tyrrell, who acted as geographer with Commander Gordon in Hudson's Bay, and last year with his brother, Geologist Tyrrell, at great hazard pierced the hitherto-untraversed Barren Lands to Chesterfield Inlet and canoed down Hudson's Bay (as described in an Express interview upon the return); L. B. Stewart, the companion of Prof. Coleman in his last year's ascent and survey of Mount Brown; M. J. Butler, president of the Ontario Surveyors' Association, member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and of the Institute of Great Britain, an active, energetic man; J. McAree, whose reputation as a science devotee, is wide; and Mr. Chipman himself. No wonder the last-named is enthusiastic over the prospects; and no wonder, his belief that if a small party of such men set out, it would go hard if they could not reach the pole, plant their wonted "monument" on the long-sought spot, and spread aloft to the Arctic winds the Union Jack with the maple leaf and beaver in its fly.

When waited upon, Mr. Chipman readily gave his views, incidentally mentioning some points wherein he was at variance with Mr. Jenkins and others.

"As far as the use of sledges is concerned, he is right," said he, "for to my mind the lesson taught by the hosts of polar expeditions since 300 years ago when the region first engrossed geographers, is that no great open sea—which Parry thought he discerned—really exists. The contingency of [illegible] water around the Pole [illegible] is almost [illegible] and Nares [illegible] a result [illegible] sledge journeys [illegible] Jenkins, but the bringing of such a craft to the head of summer navigation would be like the bath-tub, plentifully be-pasted with steamship labels that I once saw carried by a just-arrived Englishman, on a Winnipeg street. The Esquimaux on Canada's north coast between longitude 125 degrees and 140 degrees believe that land, not water, lies beyond the great northern pack, while McClure thought that the pack was held stationary by a northern belt of islands, one of which is supposed to have been sighted from the Plover's masthead.

"The double system of travel by small boat and sledge is far from new. Parry in 1827 having penetrated thus to within 545 miles of the Pole, when he returned owing to the temporary disadvantages of fissured and soft ice and a southward drift of the ice that nearly offset his advance.

"What I gather from careful study," Mr. Chipman continued, "is that an unbroken tract of ice will be found clear to the Pole, if the season be favorable. Crevices will occur, filled sometimes with water, pools may be met with, but my contention is that it will be melted-ice water and not that of the deep sea. The ice-pack possibly cracks occasionally in the summer, but quickly is frozen again. For some hundred miles north of Canada's north shore the ice is very rough, but I believe the farther the northing after that the less hummocky, and for the reason that the ice floe only melts or cracks near the shores, not towards the Pole—the centre of the Palæocrystic sea. That is why I pin my faith on sledges. The means of progression that enabled Markham in '76 to attain the latitude of eighty-three degrees twenty minutes, that brought Lockwood and Brainard in '83 to within 500 miles of the Pole—the "farthest north" of all—is good enough for me, and therefore I cannot subscrib to the Peterboro' canoes with which Mr Jenkins would embarden his party. If, indeed, trial should prove the existence of water channels too wide for sleds to bridge, much better results would accrue from the employment of aluminum sledge-boats.

"Nordenskjold's opinion is that the best means is by wintering at Smith's Sound, or the Seven Islands, off Spitsbergen, and making either a starting point. Parry advised Spitzbergen. My reason for adopting Smith's Sound is that I consider it better to go from the known to the unknown. Better keep to the beaten track even though it be strewed with gnawed bones and dismantled wrecks. Profit by the experience of the gallant men who have already braved the terrors of Baffin's Bay. Eunor Julian, a British Columbian, commenting upon Mr. Jenkin's article, holds that a surveyor's party, sailing 750 miles from the Mackenzie river delta to Prince Patrick island, would thence have only to go 900 more in sledges to reach the Pole, and alleges it to be the safest and quickest route. Evidently, this gentleman lacks knowledge of his subject for the deep sea is never open north of the Mackenzie River mouths, and Prince Patrick Island is nearly double the distance from the Pole that Grinnell Land is—the latter being my choice of a "good-bye" point. The most northerly discovered place in this Canada of ours—Grinnell Land—is less remote from the Pole than the Seven Islands off Spitsbergen and Frans Josaf Land as well.

"Peary's late trip on foot through 'Greenland's icy mountains'—his traverse of the ice-cap—proves what may be accomplished.

"Peary," declared the speaker, "I regard as the ideal Arctic explorer; he's a civil engineer as well and that's the next best thing to a Canadian surveyor. Take his record, 1,300 odometric miles in ninety six days, sometimes covering twenty and twenty-five with a maximum of thirty. His daily programme was breakfast, four to six hours of marching, one-half hour's halt for pemmican and to rest the dogs, a second and equal 'trick' at walking, and then supper and bivouac.

"It's robbing Peary of no credit when I say that men like the Tyrrells, who went 2,200 hazardous miles by canoe (850 of which were through absolutely new country devoid even of a wood splinter for fuel), by snow-shoe 650 miles (throughout which they slept under the open sky, tentless, in a forty degree below zero temperature), and by dog-sled 350; men like 'Yukon' Ogilvie, who has traversed the Rock Mountains from end to end, and amid a thousand hardships explored the country around and between Rivers Yukon and Mackenzie; men like Geologist Low, who spent last winter in Labrador, and was the first white man to pierce the interior, are the men, if any, scientifically educated, plucky, strong and inured to fatigue, to follow the line of collimation of their transits and smoke their pipes in camp, right over the North Pole. This expedition would be no 'picnic,' the men chosen must be good men and true, incapable of flinching at work, discomfort or danger, nor liable to dismay among mountains of ice or illimitable snow areas crushed topsy-turvy. But it can be done by men of our profession—the weakest, bodily, of whom thinks nothing of walking thirty-five miles a day, whatever the temperature, for six months or a year, as any topographer on a railway trial line has to, for his work includes location and measurements of all houses, fences, streams, hill-tops, etc., 1,500 feet each side of the centre-line. Surveyors prosecute their calling amid hardships, and I believe that the hardships farther north do not increase in proportion to the latitude.

"Just one other reason why I should suggest Grinnell Land as winter head-quarters, and that is that in summer time reindeer may be hunted there and the meat sent forward on sledges. Mr. Julian suggests dried and pressed cow dung for fuel, but anyone who has been in the Northwest knows the disadvantages of 'buffalo chips.'' Sawdust soaked in coal oil and pressed into bricks is Mr. Jenkins's idea, but the experience of all sledge-men from Parry to Peary is that methylated spirit is the only fuel. In the summer and during sledge journeys it would be needed only for cooking and burnt in a 3 allow lamp of iron, with six or seven wicks.

"The line of march would be set by compass, the marching hours corresponding with what in our latitude is night time for the reason that there is constant light in summer, but brighter in daytime, so that chances of snow blindness would be lessened and an additional warmth taken advantage of for sleeping.

"The Esquimaux measure their riches by dogs, and our party should be moderately wealthy, because an extra number taken along, if pemmican ran short, might serve in case of extreme necessity to sustain life and vigor in the rest.

"The scheme, I hold, is perfectly feasible," said Mr. Chipman, enthusiastically, in conclusion. "The North Pole is in Canada, and as Lieutenant-Governor Shultz of Manitoba reminds us, in the Dominion still live survivors of the boat's crews of Franklin, Dease, Richardson, Simpson and Back to keep alive the old traditions of discovery. Who then but Canadians have the best right to locate [illegible] The Jeannette [illegible] Greely [illegible] Parry [illegible] laid down nearly seventy years ago by Parry.

"Before they tempt the icy maw of the far north money must be forthcoming, but that should be a small item, when a sledge expedition would cost merely hundreds, where by vessels it would be thousands. My committee will meet early this year and consider the best methods of running a meridian line to serve as a base for future surveys and exploration. The line would run north from some point on the north-westerly shore of Baffin's Bay in the Dominion of Canada, and would be marked by permanent monuments. Our report will also contain estimates of the probable cost and a recommendation of some practical schemes for defraying it. Probably the Government may be induced to assist us materially. The Polar expedition to set forth when these preliminaries are finished would be only a question of dollars and cents."

INCONTROVERTIBLE EVIDENCE

A YOUNG LADY RAISED FROM A SICK BED.

Hope for those Suffering From Nervous Prostration, Weakness and Low Spirits.

From the St. Mary's Argus.

The accumulation of evidence is what convinces. A man bringing a case before a jury without evidence to convince them of the justice of his plea, has a poor chance, but when witness after witness is produced to back up the plea, then the jury easily find a verdict in his favour. This is the case with one of the greatest life preservers known to the world at present. The evidence of hundreds and thousands of witnesses has been published, testifying to its priceless value, and the jury—the public—are being convinced. St. Mary's has many witnesses who could bear golden testimonials. The Argus gave recently a remarkable case in the cure of Mr. Gideon Elliott. Again we present another. Miss Mary Scott, daughter of Mr. John Scott, had become completely prostrated; was pale, nervous, low-spirited and in such a condition as to alarm her parents and friends. She had not been able to leave her bed for over six weeks. Doctor's medicines were not helping her. Mrs. Scott had been reading of the wonderful cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and some acquaintances recommended them. She purchased three boxes and before the first box was finished an improvement was noticed and continuing the use of the pills Miss Scott was soon able to perform work about the house and is now enjoying better health than for years Mrs. Scott also testified as to the great benefit she herself had derived from the use of the three boxes of Pink Pills and declares that they would not be without them in the house.

An impoverished condition of the blood or a disordered condition of the nerves are the fruitful sources of most ills that afflict mankind, and to any thus afflicted Dr. Williams' Pills offer a speedy and certain cure. No other remedy has ever met with such great and continued success, which is the strongest proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills accomplish all that is claimed for them. Sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark, never in bulk, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form should be avoided.

Gives Instant Relief.

ITCHING PILES is an exceedingly painful and annoying affection, found often in the rich and poor, male and female. The principal symptoms are a severe itching, which is worst at night when the skin becomes warm in bed. It usually is the first to show that frequently it is bleeding and protruding. Often the private or unmentionable parts are affected, the parts will become moist, raw, inflamed and intensely irritated. Whether one or more particularly afflicted with this disease, causing unbearable irritation and distress. These and many other symptoms of Itching Piles or Irritation in any part of the body are immediately allayed and quickly cured by Chase's Ointment. It will instantly stop itching, heal the sores and ulcers, dry up the moisture.

PIN WORMS is an ailment entirely different as to cause from Itching Piles, yet its effects and symptoms are exactly the same. The same intolerable itching; the same crawling, crawling, filmish sensation characterizes both diseases. Chase's Ointment acts like magic. It will at once afford relief from this torment.

Died Suddenly.

Mrs. Macfarlane, mother of Mrs. W. H. Bowman, Water street, aged 66, born in Tunbridge Wells, Sussex county, England. She came to Canada when ten years of age and lived in Quebec, London and then in Port Hope for a number of years, where she was well known and universally liked. She came to Peterborough in 1870 and has lived with her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Bowman, ever since. Of twelve children only two are now living, Mrs. W. H. Bowman and John Macfarlane. When retiring on Saturday she did not even complain of being unwell, but was found in an unconscious state from which she never rallied and died Monday morning at one a.m. The cause of death was apoplexy. Funeral to-morrow at two p.m.

DOMINION VOTERS' LISTS.

Approaching eleven o clock, on Monday night, His Honor, Judge Weller, Revising Barrister, completed the final revision of the voters' lists, for West Peterborough. The Townships' lists were completed last week. The work of preparing and revising these lists is very great and each revision shows more distinctly than ever the great expense the county and the political parties are put to and the utter uselessness of the expenditure. Even now when the work is supposed to be done, the lists are anything but satisfactory, as both parties will find out when the actual canvass is entered upon. Over two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars have been expended by the Government, not taking into account the heavy costs placed upon the political parties, and time will prove that the lists are not as correct nor as convenient as those prepared by the municipal assessors. Names will be found of persons who are dead, moved away and out of the country, and dozens of those who are entitled to be placed upon the lists are off them for want of attention. The work of both parties has been efficient as possible under the circumstances, yet it will prove unsatisfactory when voting time arrives. Mr. Hayes appeared for the Conservative party and Mr. R. R. Hall for the Liberals. At the conclusion of the work Mr. Hayes and Mr. Hall thanked His Honour for the consideration and fairness displayed during the revision, which was duly acknowledged by His Honour. Neither party claim to have gained much advantage. It was very difficult to perform the work of revising lists four years old.

THE PETERBOROUGH WATER COMPANY.

Satisfactory Reports Presented — The Election of Officers for the Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Water Company was held yesterday afternoon, with the following stockholders present: Messrs. John Burnham, M. P., R. A. Morrow, G. W. Hatton, R. B. McKee, Wm. Cluxton, A. Belcher, R. M. Dennistoun, F. J. Taylor, John E. Belcher and Edgecombe Pearce.

After the transaction of routine business the directors report was submitted, showing a very satisfactory state of affairs.

The Superintendent's statement showed that 15 4-10 miles of mains were now laid in the town, and that 115 stop valves and 114 hydrants were placed in position. During the past year 490 feet of 4-inch pipe and 2,101 feet of 5-inch pipe, approximately half an mile in all, has been laid as well as 5 stop valves and two hydrants placed in position. The services from a half to 8 inch pipes now in use, aggregate 804.

A vote of thanks was tendered the directors for the satisfactory manner in which they had discharged their duties during the year.

The following shareholders were elected to comprise the Board of Directors for 1895: Messrs. John Burnham, M.P., R. A. Morrow, G. W. Hatton, R. B. McKee and Edg. Pearce.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors the following officers were elected:

President—John Burnham, M.P.
Vice-President—R. A. Morrow.
Sec.-Treas.—G. W. Hatton.
Auditor—F. W. Taylor.

—The Rugby Minstrels will meet in Jackson's piano store this evening for practice at eight o'clock sharp.

—Miss Minnie Armstrong, formerly with Miss Frise, dressmaker, will continue the business of the latter, 176 McDonnel street.

—Although it was piercingly cold in town to-day and many ears were badly frost bitten, the thermometer did not sink as low as it did out in Minden, where it dropped to 40 degrees below zero.

—The members of the "Fast Mail" troupe, which occupies the boards at the opera house to-night, are registered at the Grand Central. The personnel of the troupe is composed of eleven members.

—The Children's Aid Society wish it said that they would be greatly oblized to those persons who assume to represent it, but are acting without authority, if they would, in the interest of the Society, desist.

PERSONAL.

Mr. J. L. Wells, of Winnipeg, brother of Mrs. Andrew Macfarlane, Homewood Avenue, who has been spending the last few weeks in town, returned home to-day.

The Carleton Place Herald says:—"Mr. F. S. Johnston, formerly designer in the Hawthorne Woollen Mills, now in Peterborough, has secured his old position here, and will return in a couple of weeks. The mills are now running on full time.

Mr. Holmes E. Eyre, of Harlem, the well known Ayrshire breeder of that district, was in town last evening en route for Toronto, where he will attend the meeting of the Provincial Farmers' Institute and the annual meeting of the Ayrshire Breeders Association.

To-Night's Attraction.

"The Fast Mail," which is claimed to be the greatest of all railroad plays, will appear in the opera house here to-night. It earned a reputation for scenic and mechanical effects on its visit to Peterborough two years ago. Among these effects are the two trains of cars, one a freight, which occupy the stage for five minutes switching, backing up and unloading. This company seen here last year, should attract a bumper house. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents; box seats 75 cents.

The Tornado Coming.

Lincoln J. Carter, the successful young author and manager of "The Fast Mail," announces as his second bid for public approval, "The Tornado," and recognizing that much of his great success with his first play was due to the fact that he always kept faith with the public, he has adopted as a trade mark this motto, "To hold, as well as win success, keep all your play-bill promises." The company appears at the Opera House [illegible] Feb. 9th. Prices, 25, 35 and 50 cents. See advertisement. 1d

HOCKEY.

The second hockey match in Millbrook this season was play on Saturday evening when the home seven defeated Keene by a score of five to nothing. As this was the first match the visiters ever played and only the second for the home team, the game was not characterised by any brilliant combination play, but, judging from the manner in which the two teams take hold of the game, there is material in both clubs for a strong seven. The following were the teams and the score :—

Millbrook.		Keene.
Handley	goal	Soules
Deyell	point	McCarty
Wilgar	cover point	McIntyre
Pickup	forwards	Miller
Leach	forwards	Walsh
J Nattress	forwards	Quinn
C Leach	forwards	Dickson
VanHomerigh	umpire	Moore

Referee, K. S. Clarry.

Game.	Team.	Scorer.
1st game	4 min	Wilgar
2nd "	15 min	Nattress
3rd "	6 min	Wilgar
4th "	10 min	Nattress
5th "	11 min	Nattress

For Millbrook, Handley in goal made same clever stops, while the lightning rushes of Wilgar and Leach up the ice were greatly applauded. A return match will likely be played next Thursday.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME A DRAW.

The most exciting game in the town Hockey League was played at the rink last night between the Collegiate Institute team and the Peterborough Juniors. The playing was very fine on both side and for a time it was very doubtful who would score the first game. First the puck would be sent to one and then to the other, and it was at one of these times that Crossley got in front of the Peterborough goal clear, and placed the first game to the credit of the Collegiates. The play then went on for about half an hour before any other game was scored, when Davidson by a very fine shot scored a game for the Peterborough club. After the scoring of this game, which made the match a tie, the match was continued until after time, and as neither side scored, the referee decided to call the game a draw and it will have to be played over again. There was a tendency on the part of some of the players to be a little rough, which is not at all necessary in a friendly game of this kind. The teams were composed as follows :

Collegiate.		Peterboroughs.
Hamilton	Goal	Wasson
H Lewis	Point	Thompson
C Pon-sette	Cover Point	Jones
W Davidson	Forwards	Stenson
W Crossley	Forwards	R Davidson
B Bellegham	Forwards	Ferguson
V McGill	Umpire	L King

S Adams, Referee

The Port Hope hockeyists play in Belleville this week, and as in all the other games they play have already made arrangements for "crooked work." The majority of the players which will go down to Belleville from Port Hope will be picked men from the star players of Toronto. The practice of securing "ringers" for every match of any importance is one of the surest "sport killers" in existence, and Port Hope sets an example to all Ontario in this line in every game in which Canadians indulge. The practice is infectious and once a team gets a name for this kind of thing weaker clubs, rather than meet defeat at their hands, will also bring in foreign players. There is no credit in winning a game in this manner, and the younger local players lose all ambition when they see themselves invariably supplanted by imported material whenever an important match is played. Peterborough has a fairly clean record regarding the "ringing in" of outside players, and in cricket, Rugby and Association football, hockey and baseball has always played home men exclusively and can look back with pride on the record made by the teams which it has placed on the field in these respective sports. Hockey has hitherto been a strictly amateur game in Ontario, and home players only have been played in every, city, town and village which has boasted a hockey team, but Port Hope because she has a good record for this year and because it is going to run up against a first class team takes refuge in playing one of its old time contemptible tricks, viz., the importation of star players to help them out of the hole. Port Hope should most assuredly be placed on the black list, and if respectable organizations refuse to give the town a game the management of the various athletic clubs in that town have none but themselves to blame.

The Harbord street Collegiate hockey team, Toronto will play a match here with the Collegiate team Wednesday evening. This promises to be a fine game as the Toronto Collegiate team are the strongest in the province.

DECAPITATION IS POSTPONED.

The Town Officials Have not Lost Their Heads.

A COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE WILL DISCUSS THE QUESTION.

No Positions Have Yet Been Declared Vacant—Hundreds of Citizens Attend the Meeting of the Council—The Assessors Appointed — Some Hot Words.

At a meeting of the town council last night there were present the mayor and councillors Cahill, Sproule, Best, Denne, Mills, Phelan, Dawson, Clinkscale, Sawers, Stone, Brady and Mason.

As the rumor had spread abroad that the report of the Committee on Appointments would evoke an animated discussion regarding the re-appointment or dismissal of a number of town officials, the council chamber was crowded, as probably it never was crowded before. The entire body of the room was filled and the citizens gradually spread up in behind the bar and finally lined the three sides of the chamber, dozens deep. A number of ex-councillors being present they were on motion of councillor Cahill invited to take seats inside the bar.

COMMUNICATIONS

Were received from F. Fairen regarding the granting to him of a billiard license.

Received.

From Alfred Dundas, applying for the position of fireman.

Referred to the Committee on Appointments.

From David Evans, butcher, asking for a rebate of license fees.

Referred to the License Committee.

From the Single Tax Association of Toronto, asking for the signature of the Council to a petition to the Local Legislature for local option in taxation.

Referred to Court of Revision.

From the Geo. Matthews Co., asking for better fire protection in the way of a hydrant being placed near their packing house.

Referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Frederick Smiley, asking a grant to aid him in issuing a tourists' guide illustrating the advantages of Peterborough and the Midland Counties as a summer resort.

Referred to the Printing Committee.

From the Peterborough Porcelain and Carbon Company, protesting against being assessed for taxation, and asking for exemption for the ensuing five years.

Referred to the Court of Revision.

The following

2. That a cheque for $100 be issued to the Treasurer of the County of Peterborough for a fine in the case of Queen vs. McCarthy, and that the clerk of the police court be instructed to pay to the County Treasurer the fine in the case of Queen vs. Welsh.

3. In reference to the communication from the Children's Aid Society the committee is of the opinion that it is not necessary or desirable to arrange for a temporary home for children at present and recommend that when cases arise in which a temporary home for a child is required by the society, the charity committee be authorized to arrange for such home as each case may arise and that cheques be issued by the Finance Committee on the certificate of the Charity Committee.

4. In regard to the communication from the Ratepayers Association in reference to union with Ashburnham, your committee recommend that a reply be given that we have not, at present sufficient data to take action.

The adoption of the report was moved by Messrs. Cahill and Brady.

Councillor Stone rose to speak on the question of the Ashburnham union. The people of both corporations, he stated, had voted for the union and the council had no right to burk the will of the people. The ratepayers in his ward had urged on him to take active measures in regard to this question. He had heard that the largest ratepayers in the town objected to the union, but he had, as yet, met none such. The Ratepayers Association, comprised of men of landed interest, were in favour of it. Union, he was confident, would reduce the rate of taxation in Peterborough fully two mills on the dollar.

Messrs. Dawson and Cahill called for an explanation at this point. Mr. Stone continued to say that it was not the men of straw who wanted union, but the most responsible property holders in both places. He moved that the last clause be stricken from the report.

On motion of Councillors Sawers and Sproule, the report was considered clause by clause to expedite matters.

The first and second clauses were passed but when the third came up for discussion the Mayor called the attention of the council to the fact that this clause differed very materially from a former recommendation of the committee in regard to this matter.

Mr. Cahill, in speaking in favour of the report, expressed himself as greatly opposed to the establishment of "refuges of this nature all over the country." When a man was thrown upon the country as a pauper he lost his independence and invariably became a pauper for all time in consequence of losing his self respect.

Councillors Sawers and Sproule expressed themselves in favour of the report, [illegible] policy of a technicality which could be easily remedied.

Mr. Best held that if union took place it should be solely on the condition that a purely "property holder vote" was taken first.

Mr. Dawson wanted to know how union was going to reduce the taxation two mills on the dollar.

Mr. Stone replied that this was merely his own opinion based on a thorough investigation of the figures. The whole affair rested, be assured, on the basis of assessment. Ashburnham was assessed very low, consequently the rate was high. On a fair basis of assessment, after a union had been effected, the rate would most undoubtedly be reduced below 14 mills even. He moved in amendment to the report, seconded by Mr. Sproule that Councillors Cahill, Best, Mills, Clinkscale, Phelan, Brady, and the mover, form a special committee to meet representatives from Ashburnham to promote the union.

The amendment was lost, and on motion of Councillors Cahill and Phelan, the report was adopted.

Mr. Cahill stated in reply to Mr. Stone's argument, that the Ashburnham citizens complained that they were assessed at too high a rate now. With all due respect to the Ratepayers' Association, he did not think they quite understood what they were talking about when they advocated union.

THE PROPERTY COMMITTEE

reported as follows:

1. The Collector's office is in need of repairs and the committee wishes to be authorized to have the ceiling repaired, and other necessary work in the office done.

2. That the committee be authorized to purchase a typewriting machine.

3. The committee, as instructed by the council, had the property of the town in and about the firehall insured, the amount of insurance placed on it being $4,070. The premium for this policy for three years is $34, and your committee recommend that a cheque for that amount be issued to W. H. Hill.

The adoption of the report was moved by Councillors Dawson and Mills.

Carried.

THE COMMITTEE ON PRINTING

recommended:

1. That the following rates be paid for the town Printing:—

Printing.	Per 100.	Per 50.
Full sheet posters	$4 00	$3 00
Sheet bills	3 00	2 00
Half bills	2 00	1 50
Quarter bills	1 50	1 00
Double Royal bills	5 00	4 00

Ballots per 100 up to 1,000, 75c.; over 2,000, 65c., per 100 for excess.

Collector's receipts, $1.00 per 100.

Advertising, 8c. first insertion, subsequent insertions, 3c. per line.

Bylaws per 100 copies in pamphlet form (leaded small pica type) of four pages and over, $5; each subsequent page, $1.00.

Voters' lists per 100 names, $4.50 per 200 copies.

Assessment schedules per 100, 35c., on No. 2. book paper.

General job work (binding, blank books, etc.) as ordered by the chairman of the Printing Committee and clerk at prices approved of by them when ordering the work.

2. That the town printing be divided as follows:—

Review—Ballots, assessors' and collector's rolls, assessor's blotters, part of general work and half of blank books, such as minute and account books.

EXAMINER—Voters' lists, collector's receipts, collector's tax book and half of blank books, such as account and minute books.

Times—Posters, advertising, bylaws, assessment schedules and part of general job work.

J. A. Harper—Police court blanks and part of general job work.

The committee reserves the right to advertise in any other paper should they deem it advisable.

That the thanks of this council be tendered Mr. Wm. Telford for dedicating his poem on the death of Sir John Thompson to this council.

The adoption of the report was moved by Councillors Mills and Denne.

Carried.

THE LICENSE COMMITTEE

recommended that Geo. Carton be given a refund of $30.00 on the peddlars license fee paid by him, and that a cheque be issued to him for that amount.

2. That no action be taken in reference to the application of F. Fairen.

3. That the fee for an auctioneer's license be reduced to $30 per annum, and that a bylaw be prepared to give effect to this recommendation.

4. That the chairman of this committee be authorized to ascertain whether dog tags can be procured in town and ab what price they can be purchased.

The adoption of the report was moved by Councillors Sproule and Sawers.

Mr. Dawson mentioned that the auctioneer's license was raised to $100 at the request of the local auctioneers. If they wished a reduction they should apply to the council for it. Seconded by Mr. Clinkscale, he moved in amendment to the report that this clause be referred back to the committee.

Mr. Stone pointed out that the auctioneers had applied to the committee to reduce the fee.

The amendment was lost and the report was then carried.

THE CHARITY COMMITTEE

reported that at a meeting held on January 22nd they considered the proposed formation of a Central Board for the distribution of charity as recommended by the council of last year and adopted the following resolution: "That in the opinion of this committee we cannot accept the proposals submitted to us respecting the distribution of the charity funds, but would be very thankful to receive any suggestions for a better manner of organization, whereby this committee may be able to direct the distribution of the town charity, being more responsible to the ratepayers for the relief of the poor." At the same meeting a resolution was adopted that the committee would be pleased to meet the clergymen for a further consideration of the matter.

A conference with the clergymen was accordingly held on the evening of Jan. 30th, when after hearing the views of the clergy, the following resolution was adopted: "That this committee having heard the suggestions and explanations respecting the formation of a charity board for the whole town approves of these views, provided that a member of the Charity Committee from each ward be added to that Charity Board.

This committee, however, cannot accept the proposition of the council that the charity funds be limited to any sum, as they cannot see under such restriction.

In reference to the latter clause of this resolution and in explanation of it, your committee has to report that the clergymen objected to the restricted amount as formerly recommended.

The adoption of the first clause of the report was moved by councillors Sawers and Clinkscale.—Carried.

Councillors Sproule and Clinkscale moved that the second clause be referred back to the committee with power to act.—Carried.

THE STREET AND BRIDGE

Committee reported that in reference to the communication of Mr. B. H. Kane, asking to have the line of Gilchrist street defined, they recommend that the request be granted and that Messrs. Ranney & Innes be employed to do the work, provided that Mr. Kane will pay one half of the cost. The committee believed that it would be advisable to be represented at the Good Road's Convention, in Toronto, and decided to send two or three representatives.

Councillors Best and Mills moved the adoption of the report which was carried.

THE COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS

reported as follows:

1. That John Kincaid, J. J. Hartley, Thos. B. McGrath, and Thos. McKee be appointed assessors for 1895.

2. That no action be taken at present in reference to the application of Lewis Spry.

3. That the services of the Relief Officer be dispensed with.

4. That the office of Town Solicitor be declared vacant, to take effect on March 1st.

5. That the office of Street and Bridge Inspector be declared vacant to take effect on March 1st.

6. That the offices of Chief of Police and Constables be declared vacant, to take effect on March 1st.

[illegible] moved

[illegible] Mason moved that the last clause of the report be struck out.

Mr. Mills agreed with Mr. Sproule.

Mr. Stone was on his dignity in a moment. His integrity had been attacked. He had been practically charged with falsifying a report. He cast back the insinuation in the face of the man who made it. The report had been brought in exactly as it had been drafted.

Councillor Dawson backed up Mr. Stone in his statement.

Mr. Dawson characterized the report as a low contemptible piece of business.

At this juncture the hisses and uproar in the chamber arose to such a pitch that the Mayor had to insist on order.

Mr. Dawson continued to say that if any one could point out a single instance of where one of these officers had neglected his duty he would be the first to raise his hand against that officer.

Councillors Best and Mills moved in amendment to the amendment to the first clause that John Kincaid and John McKee be appointed for the northern division, and that Henry Carveth and Wm. Aldridge be appointed for the southern division.

Lost.

Mr. Mason's amendment was then voted on and lost.

The first clause of the report was then put and carried.

The second clause was also carried.

The third clause, on being read, brought Mr. Sproule to his feet to explain that Councillor Sawers had offered to do the work of relief officer free of charge. The change therefore was recommended on the ground of economy, a saving of $100 being thereby accomplished.

Councillor Brady objected to everything being left in the hand of Mr. Sawers, the chairman of the committee. He stated that he would immediately resign from the charity committee if such a state of affairs was permitted by the council.

Councillor Denne and Sproule moved that the last four clauses be grouped and voted on as one.

Councillors Cahill and Brady moved in amendment that these four clauses be referred to a committe of the whole council to report to the council.

The amendment was carried on the following division:—

Yeas—The Mayor and Councillors Cahill, Dawson, Stone, Mason, Clinkscale and Brady—7.

Nays—Councillors Sproule, Best, Denne Phelan, Mills and Sawers—6.

The recommendation of the report will, therefore, be thrashed out in Committee of the Whole.

THE STREET INSPECTOR

submitted a report showing that the amount of $361.65 had been expended on the street during the month of January.

Referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

BY-LAWS.

Councillor Sproule introduced a by-law reducing the town auctioneers' license fee to $50. It passed its third reading and was duly signed.

Councillor Stone introduced a by-law for the appointment of the town assessors for the year 1895. Messrs. McKee and Kincaid were appointed for Wards One and Three, and Messrs. McGrath and Hartley for Wards Two and Four. The salary of each was fixed at $125 each. The by-law was passed.

RESOLUTIONS.

Councillors Dawson and Clinkscale, moved that all corporation laborers engaged in breaking stone be paid ten cents a yard more than they were last year.—Carried.

It was moved by councillors Sawers and Clinkscale that the Charity Committee ask for tenders for wood, for the town, for 1895, and be given power to award the contract.—Carried.

Councillors Stone and Phelan moved that F. Fairen be granted a refund of forty dollars on his billiard license.

The motion was lost on the following division.

Yeas—Councillors Cahill, Sproule, Denne, Phelan and Stone—5.

Nays—Councillors Best, Mills, Dawson, Clinkscale, Sawers, Mason and Brady—7.

Moved by Councillors Mills and Cahill, that the account of W. Salisbury of $5.00 for stamps be paid.

Carried.

On motion of Councillors Stone and Dawson, Mr. Cochrane was accorded a hearing, and voiced a complaint to the effect that since the storm Aylmer street, north of Smith street, had been impassable. The Street and Bridge Committee had been instructed to look into the matter.

Councillor Stone, on behalf of the town carters, stated that while some of them had to pay license fees, others were apparently exempted. The matter was referred to the License Committee, after which the council adjourned.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs George Stewart, Otonabee.

The numerous friends of Mr. George Stewart and family, of Otonabee, will learn with deep regret of the death of Mrs. Stewart, which event took place on Monday, Feb. 4th. The deceased lady—Margaret Jane Ryan—daughter of Mrs. Thomas Barrie, town, was born in Otonabee. For many years she has been a great though patient sufferer from rheumatism, and a few days ago this grievous affliction became complicated with a pulmonary affection which caused her death. Mrs. Stewart leaves behind her her husband and five sons and four daughters to mourn her loss. Two of the sons are living out of Ontario, one Arthur, in Brooklyn, N. Y., and the other, Newton, resides in the Northwest. The second daughter, Mrs. James Finnie, was married this winter. Mrs. Stewart has six sisters living, Mrs. E. H. D. Hall, Mrs. A. P. Morgan, Mrs. A. Nicholls and Mrs. Alex. Hamilton, town, and Mrs. Kimball, of Kansas. Her brothers are Mr. John Ryan, town, and Mr. Thomas Ryan, at present residing in Atlanta. Mrs. Stewart was a devoted member of the congregation of St. Paul's and a regular attendant in the days of health, and the fact that she was unable to attend the services of the church was not one of the smallest elements in her affliction. Mrs. Stewart was held in very high esteem in the community where she has passed the greater part of her life and her estimable and amiable qualities of character were conspicuous in all the relations of wife, mother, friend and neighbour. The funeral takes place from the family residence, River Road, Otonabee, on Wednesday at 2.30 o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during [illegible] month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any further [illegible]

WOMAN'S WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS.

Women and Hens—Profit For Women In a Good Business Hen.

Early in the month of October our market man told us that eggs had already risen in price so that we could only get 11 for 25 cents. They will probably be no cheaper than that in New York before next spring, when warm weather comes. The fashionable white Leghorn eggs are even higher. They bring fairly dizzy prices all the year around. During the Christmas holidays the price will go up still more, until at times eggs will be 3 and 4 cents apiece—that, too, not the fancy fresh laid, but just the output of the plain, common hen. At times it will be impossible at some of our groceries to get them at all. The demand for eggs for table use rapidly increases. There seems a disposition among civilized people to use less meat and more eggs and milk. If I were a woman out of employment, I should select some spot near a good market and go very cautiously into the egg business. Any woman can learn it who has patience and pluck enough to earn her living at anything else. For egg production I should select the rose comb Brown Leghorn fowls. At that calling they beat all other hens. For broilers and egg laying both I should get the handsome Plymouth Rocks. Then the Light Brahmas are excellent winter layers and make heavy birds for roasting. With these three breeds the poultry woman would be equipped. If only one kind could be kept, then it should be the rose comb Brown Leghorn for egg production, since eggs are the article that is scarcest all the cool and cold weather. A warm henhouse is wanted for the winter. The poultry books and hen papers will give so much information that even an amateur can succeed who has common business ability. Of course there will be many discouragements, and three women out of four will give up before success comes. But to the fourth woman who holds on, success is sure and an independent, healthful occupation, with a happy home. The wise thing for the hen woman to do is to find private customers, such as hotel and restaurant keepers, for her wares. A very little capital is required, and two ladies might go in together on the co-operative plan.

Here is one of the indignities and insults that women must put up with because they cannot vote: A woman teacher may give all the best years of her life to the public school at the small salary that affords a plain living. She may be more capable than she ever was in her work, but as soon as she reaches the age of 50, perhaps before, the masculine board of education sneeringly observes that it wants "fresh blood and youth in the women teachers." She must step down and out into the world to begin all over again or be dependent on some grudging relative for her living. Perhaps some of the very men who turn her into the street went to school to her and owe to her teaching all the little intelligence they ever had or will have—it matters not. It matters not either that 50, "the youth of age," is the time when the human being who has lived right is just coming into the flower of his life intellectually and is more capable than he ever was before. Nothing of this counts. Out the crushed, insulted woman must go. The thoroughly mean and fiendishly low down part of the thing is that a man school principal or teacher of the same age is never discharged. I know at this moment a board of education that systematically weeds out the lady teachers approaching middle age, when at the same time year after year it keeps in office a cranky old male principal who is now 75 years old. Women teachers, you have no vote. You have no voice in the selection of these men who thus barbarously dispose of you. This and this only is the reason why you are turned out.

Long public documents and reports must be indexed, and much depends on the knowledge and skill of the indexer. It is gratifying to read that the leading indexer in all Great Britain is a young lady, Miss Nancy Bailey. She is now employed in making out the index to the parliamentary debates published officially in Hansard's Guide. The importance of the place the young lady holds may be judged from the fact that W. T. Stead wrote to her as follows: "I would prefer to index Hansard rather than have a seat in the house of commons."

Chicago alone has no less than 20 women lawyers. Ireland has one, Miss Egan, who lately obtained the degree of LL. B. from Dublin university. She passed her examination with first honors.

Harmony and peace between husbands and wives will come when the two sexes are entirely independent of each other pecuniarily. There is no other way. To obtain this perfect pecuniary independence for herself should be the task to which every woman should now set herself.

A demand for trained library assistants has arisen, and the day is nearly over of the gum chewing, impudent girl who refuses to wait on you when you know the books you want are in and who only cares to earn a few dollars a week till she gets money enough together to buy her wedding garments. At Drexel institute, Philadelphia, a library class has been established, which will henceforth train young women to be real librarians, polite and intelligent. English literature and cataloguing are two of the main branches of instruction.

Miss Helen Shafer, president of Wellesley college, has been made an LL. D. by Oberlin college, where she was graduated.

A limited but well paying field for women's industry is that of designing book covers. Mrs. Whitman of Boston gets from $25 to $50 for one design.

HOW TO COOK POULTRY.

Some Savory Dishes For the Table Prepared With Chicken.

All housewives claim to a knowledge of how chickens should be broiled, boiled and roasted, but there are numberless secrets concerning these everyday processes that greatly affect the results. For instance: In nine cases out of ten, broiled chickens, and indeed broiled birds, are rendered more acceptable when these have been steamed for a few minutes just previous to placing on the broiler. This steaming insures against any tough tendons or rawness next to the bone. Then again a roasted fowl is always more juicy and rich for having thin slices of bacon pinned or tied around it. Following are some recipes from Good Housekeeping not generally known:

A chicken pie in favor at the south is prepared by first boiling the fowl tender. Then put a layer of seasoned chicken in a dish with plenty of butter, then a layer of cold, boiled rice. Repeat till dish is full, with rice on top. Set in oven till very hot, then serve.

To make a chicken pie with oysters, line a dish with rich crust, put a layer of boiled chicken, then raw oysters, seasoning each, and adding bits of butter, fill up with heated oyster liquor, skimmed and mixed with white chicken stock. Cover with crust and bake.

Here is a French recipe: Tie thin bacon over the breast. Put in pan with a small carrot, a small onion stuck with 2 cloves, a sprig of parsley. Half cover with hot water or stock. Cover the pan and simmer 40 minutes. Remove fowl, baste with butter, dredge with flour and brown in the oven. Serve with sauce made from pot liquor.

A dish known in some sections as chicken a la royale is prepared with a boiled fowl, which is cut up, seasoned, rolled in flour and fried brown in butter. Serve with sauce of 2 tablespoonfuls of braided flour, 3 cupfuls of chicken stock, a half bay leaf, a teaspoonful each of celery salt and chopped parsley. Boil 20 minutes. Strain and add 8 chopped mushrooms. Cook 10 minutes. Add the yolks of two raw eggs and the juice of a half of a lemon.

Crocheted Garters.

The materials required are a ball of knitting silk, three-quarters of a yard of white elastic and one yard of ribbon. Make a chain of 18 stitches. Double crochet backward and forward for three rows, always taking up the back part of the stitch on your needle and making one extra chain when the work is turned. For the fourth row crochet five doubles, eight chains, skip eight stitches and double crochet in the last five of the row. The next four rows are done in plain doubles. Repeat these last five rows until the piece is one inch longer than the desired size. The border is in two rows. The first, two chains and one double; the second, a simple shell, two chains, four doubles, one single, all the way around. Run the elastic through the loops, join the ends and add a bow of ribbon.

A Fillet of Veal.

Cut in slices one inch thick, 6 inches long. Spread with stuffing, roll up and tie. Line pan with bacon, put in rolls, moisten with 1 glassful of stock and simmer till done. Strain and skim sauce.

Salt rheum with its intense itching, dry, hot skin is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, because it purifies the blood.

TAKE CARE OF THE PIANO.

Points in Tuning and Polishing—Avoid Extremes of Temperature.

Owners often let their pianos go month after month simply from neglect to give orders for tuning. This is a mistake, as your piano may become seriously injured. Have your piano regularly tuned, and if a reliable make it will last for years. It is impossible to specify any number of times per year that the instrument must be tuned. Generally speaking, most pianos require attention three or four times annually. So much depends, however, upon temperature as well as the make of instrument, use and kind of use, its condition, etc., that where one piano needs five or six tunings yearly another might do equally well with but two tunings during the same time. A competent tuner will attend to the regulating of the action and voicing, which is quite as important as the tuning.

Keep the piano during the winter in the coolest part of the room and the temperature as even as possible. Never set it close to a register, as too much heat is liable to shrink and crack the sounding board. Dampness is one of the greatest enemies to the piano, therefore the instrument should be closed in damp weather when not in use. In dry, pleasant weather leave the piano open, so the dry air can get to the action and key board. This will keep out the dampness from the action, keep the keys from sticking, the ivories from turning yellow and the strings from rusting. All of these troubles are liable to occur if the piano is kept closed too much.

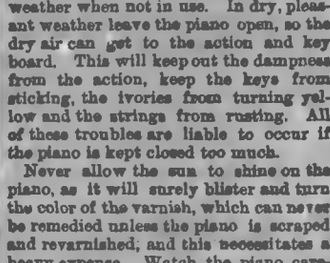
Never allow the sun to shine on the piano, as it will surely blister and turn the color of the varnish, which can never be remedied unless the piano is scraped and revarnished; and this necessitates a heavy expense. Watch the piano carefully that the moths do not get into it; as they will do the piano serious injury.

Every first class piano undergoes a process of varnishing that requires from six to ten weeks' time, and receives half a dozen heavy coats of fine varnish, which are in turn rubbed and polished until the surface is as smooth as glass. Every one has observed after purchasing a new piano, especially in damp weather, that it soon takes on a dull, smoky appearance. This is the effect of the dampness on the surface of the varnish.

To remove this, a writer in the Boston Budget says: "Use a fine sponge and tepid water. A chamois skin as dry as it can be wrung out of water should be used to dry the surface after using the sponge. This will usually be sufficient. Should you wish a higher polish, oil the case with piano oil and remove the oil thoroughly from the varnish with a piece of cotton flannel moistened with a little alcohol. Never allow the alcohol cloth to be left any length of time on the varnish, as the alcohol would burn it."

Effective Ribbon Work.

Many of the Christmas presents this season will represent the popular ribbon work. Ladies initiated in its mysteries will perhaps be glad to know that the side of a handkerchief case is an excellent background to show off the ribbon plaiting. The Decorator and Furnisher suggests the following plan for a case:



RIBBON WORK HANDKERCHIEF CASE.

Make the ribbon work up as a panel in a frame of colored plush or velvet. Execute the plaiting in two colors, using one for the longitudinal stands. The plaiting is composed only of simple darning alternately over two and under two bands, the pair picked up in each row being just one band further to the left than was the case in the preceding row. Nothing could be easier, and the effect is quite as good as that of many of the patterns which require more care and attention. When it is necessary to make up the plaiting upon a tolerably firm foundation, as the case of a handkerchief sachet, it should be backed with thin paper.

Canadian Potato Cakes.

Mash fine 12 boiled potatoes; add salt, pepper, a tablespoonful of butter and 2 tablespoonfuls of flour. Mix and roll into a sheet half an inch thick. Cut into rounds and bake like cakes on a hot greased griddle on top of the stove, or in a buttered dripping pan in a hot oven for five minutes. Serve very hot.

Make a Sweeping Cap.

The tidy housewife protects her hair when sweeping from the dust. This cannot be more easily and conveniently accomplished than by wearing a sweeping cap. Make a circle 18 inches in diameter of cambric or other soft, light fabric. Put on a casing an inch from the edge and run in a piece of thin elastic. Draw up to fit the head and fasten. The edge may be pinked all around or bound with a contrasting color. Aside from wearing this when sweeping, use it when cooking or baking; also when taking care of butter. Its advantages are manifest.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood.

Hood's Pills are the best after dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

Minard's Liniment cures Garget in cows.

Words of Weight and Wisdom

Canada's Well-known Railroad Contractor, Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, III.

Treated by Several Doctors and Tried Nearly Every Proprietary Medicine—Got Very Little Benefit—Was Influenced to Use South American Nervine—Found Immediate Relief—"The Nervousness Has Entirely Left My System"—"I Will Never Be Without It in My Home."

MR. J. W. DINWOODIE, CAMPBELLFORD, ONT.

Men of affairs usually weigh their words. They are not of that class of people who carry their hearts upon their sleeve. One of the best known men of affairs in Canada is Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, the large railroad contractor, evidence of whose work is to be found in all parts of the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to chain one section of our vast Dominion with another and bring its people into easy touch with each other through the medium of the iron horse, as Mr. Dinwoodie has in a short lifetime done, is a work of which any man may be proud. Hard and brainy labor, however, is necessary to success of this character, and the strongest constitutions are in danger of breaking down under the strain. It has been so with Mr. Dinwoodie. The great thought that he has had to give to his work, and the care and responsibility that it has carried with it finally told on his constitution, and he became a victim of nervous troubles, his liver and kidneys becoming seriously disordered.

Naturally he consulted a medical man. Comparatively no relief was obtained. He changed his doctor, and did not stop with one, two or three physicians, but he got no better. Various proprietary medicines were recommended, and, as he says himself, "Tried them all but got very little benefit. Last fall I was camping out, and I was feeling very ill. I happened to pick up a paper with the advertisement for South American Nervine. I determined to give it a trial, and procured a bottle from the local druggist. After having taken but a few doses I found very great relief. The severe pain that I had been suffering in the small of my back left me and the nervousness that had rendered me, in a large measure, unfit for work, has as a result of the continued use of Nervine, become banished from my system. I am now able to enjoy refreshing sleep the night through. I keep South American Nervine always in the house, and I do not hesitate to say that it is the very best medicine I have ever taken, and most confidently recommend it to anyone troubled with nervousness of whatever form and the attendant diseases of the liver and stomach that follow this weakness."

The important fact can not be too often emphasized that South American Nervine cures at the nerve centers, from which emanate all diseases. This being an undoubted scientific truth, fully and perfectly demonstrated by science, it is never an experiment to use Nervine, but in this remedy is always found a certain cure.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want.
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their means were few and small.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

'TIS WORSE THAN DEATH

BELGIUM'S CAPITAL PENALTY A SYSTEM OF REFINED TORTURE.

It Is Said to Kill the Victim in Three Years, Notwithstanding All Efforts to Ameliorate the Punishment Except Through Hearing and Seeing.

Though the death penalty was practically abolished in Belgium over thirty years ago, the punishment of those convicted of capital crimes is so awful that none has yet been able to endure it more than three years. Another curious thing is that little Belgium until recently had two public executioners, while but one was sufficient for her vaster neighbor, France—Diebler, otherwise known as "Monsieur de Paris." The King of the Belgians recently ordered the retirement on a pension of 1,837 francs of the "executor of high works" (as he is euphoniously termed), who was stationed at Liege. The executioner at Brussels still holds his place.

The duties of the public executioner in Belgium are singular, but not arduous. The courts still continue to sentence malefactors to death, but the guillotine has been replaced by a scaffold, on which is posted a copy of the sentence. Much ceremony is observed in affixing this document. A troop of gendarmes, with their imposing helmets plumed with horsehair, is drawn up about the place of execution, which they gravely guard with sabres drawn, while the red-robed executioner mounts the steps, nails up the decrees of the court, and after a moment, takes it down again.

But the condemned man might more mercifully have perished by the axe or rope. He is placed in a dungeon so constructed that from the moment he enters it he will never hear the sound of human voices nor see a living being. His food is passed in through a sliding panel in the door of his cell.

Not one of these prisoners has been able to survive this confinement more than three years. The authorities have striven in vain to prolong their lives by varying their food as much as possible, but those who are moderately or lightly nourished gradually waste away, while those who are generously fed go mad and die raving maniacs.

OUR LITERARY VISITOR.

David Christie Murray, the English novelist, has concluded his tour through Canada. His visit was a notable event in literary and journalistic circles, as Mr. Murray has won distinction in both fields and his books are well known. He is not yet forty-eight years old, having been born April 13, 1847, at West Bromwich, Staffordshire, where he was educated at a private school. He began newspaper life as a reporter on the Birmingham Morning News. In 1873 he went to London and served on the Daily News and World. During the Russo-Turkish war he acted as special correspondent for the Edinburgh Scotsman and the London Times. On his return he published his first long work of fiction in Chambers' Journal. "A Life's Atonement." "Joseph's Coat" appeared in 1880. "Val Strange" and "Coals of Fire," a collection of short stories, in 1881. New novels from his pen have appeared at regular intervals since that time, among which are "Hearts," "The Way of the World," "A Dangerous Cat's-paw," "Wild Dorrie," etc.

Mixed Metaphors.

A certain politician, lately condemning the Government for its recent policy concerning the income-tax, is reported to have said: "They'll keep cutting the wool off the sheep that lays the golden eggs until they pump it dry."

"The glorious work will never be accomplished until the good ship Temperance shall sail from one end of the land till the other, and with a cry of 'Victory' at each step she takes, shall plant her banner in every city, town and village in the United Kingdom."

An Irishman, in the midst of a tirade against landlords and capitalists, declared that "if these men were landed on an uninhabited island, they wouldn't be there half an hour before they would have their hands in the pockets of the naked savages."

The Care of Shoes.

When shoes are taken off they should be aired until they are thoroughly dry both inside and out. Then they should be wiped off with soft cloths so that no dust or dirt will remain on them. After that they should be stuffed with tissue paper and laced or buttoned, in order to preserve their shape.

THE INAUGURAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Mr. J. J. Hartley Re-elected Chairman for the Ensuing Year.

The Board of Health held its inaugural meeting for 1895 yesterday afternoon in the town clerk's office. There were present Messrs. J. J. Hartley, Henry Denne, B. Shortly, C. Stapleton and Wm. Blackwell.

Mr. J. J. Hartley was unanimously re-elected chairman for the ensuing year.

Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, reported that two cases of diphtheria had recently broken out in the vicinity of Whyte's dam. In one of the houses it was asserted that the backing up of the water at this dam was the cause of the outbreak. In the other house the effect was not attributed to the dam at all. The doctor thought if the water could possibly be kept at the same level all the time that no danger could emanate from the dam. When the water was run off in the summer the stench was often unbearable. Just how the disease could break out in the winter, when the water and ground was all frozen up, the doctor could not explain, but knew of cases where certain soils would often retain the disease for some time before giving forth the poisonous germs.

Mr. Shortly was in favour of doing away with the dam in the interest of the public health.

Mr. Blackwell thought the odor arising from the soaked ground when the water was run off, would certainly be very injurious when exposed to the hot rays of the sun.

The Medical Health Officer stated that the alternate raising and lowering of the water kept the shores in a constant state of fermentation.

On motion of Mr. Denne and Mr. Stapleton, Dr. Clarke was instructed to inspect the ground affected by the water and report to the Board. He will be accompanied by several members of the Board.

Mr. Hartley thought it would be as well if both Patterson's and Whyte's dams were done away with, thus giving the water a clear sweep.

On motion of Messrs. Denne and Stapleton, the Board adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman upon such a date as he can make arrangements with the Health Committee of the town council to talk over the matter of the dams. The inspection will not take place until after this meeting.

DON'T FORGET THIS.

Something That Should be Remembered by Young and Old—It Conveys a Lesson.

QUEBEC, Feb. 5.—There are some things that people cannot hear too often, for even the most important truths escape the memory in the hurry of life. One thing that should not be forgotten is that kidney diseases cause ninety per cent. of the sickness of to-day. The next thing to remember is that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured and will cure any and every [illegible]

ABORIGINAL ASTRONOMY.

Indian Notions About the Sun, the Moon and the Stars.

"The Indians of North America have some queer and rather picturesque notions about astronomy. The North Star, they declare, is the only fixed celestial body; it never goes anywhere. The Milky Way is the road taken by the ghosts of the dead. Once upon a time, tradition says, a warrior of the Omaha tribe came to life again some days after he was supposed to have died. He told his friends that he had had rather a disagreeable experience. According to his account, it appeared that he had reached the Milky Way, which, of course, was a brilliantly lighted thoroughfare. But on his journey thither, which occupied four days and nights, he was wholly in the dark. It is for this reason that the Omahas make a practice of keeping fires lighted for four nights and days by the grave of any of their people who die. When they see the aurora borealis they understand it as a sign that many human beings are dying.

The Osages, in common with many other tribes, believe that the constellations are gods and goddesses. They have the tradition to the effect that once upon a time the Osages possessed neither bodies nor souls. They appeared to a divinity known as the Male Red Man, who furnished them with souls and bodies of birds. Thus they pursued existence for awhile in the likeness of feathered creatures. In this guise they first visited the earth. There they met another divinity called the Black Bear. He offered to serve them, and they asked him to various constellations with a petition in their behalf. They wanted human bodies for themselves. The Black Bear went successively to the Sun, to the Moon, to the Morning Star, to the constellation of the Deer Head—meaning the Pleiades—to the constellation of the Goose Foot, and finally to the Female Red Bird, who was found brooding on her nest. She it was who granted the request which the others had refused, giving to the Osages the bodies in which they have since dwelt.

"The sun is a god devoutly worshiped by most Indians. The ceremony of the sun dance, as performed by the Sioux and Ponkas, has often been described. Everybody has heard how the warriors torture themselves, one part of the performance gone through by the young braves consisting in attaching himself to the dance pole by lariats passed through loops of his own skin, then freeing himself by dashing away on horseback or otherwise. For three days and nights they dance, gazing continually at the sun by day and the moon by night, while it is supposed that they swallow neither food nor water. As a matter of fact, however, the dance-pole is planted usually in a spot near which certain succulent roots grow. These they pluck up slyly, eating them and sucking the juices. Among the Sioux Indians the buffalo bull is importantly associated with the sun dance. Oddly enough, in ancient Egypt the sun god Ra was associated with the deified bull and called Apis.

"Among the Sioux and many other tribes of Indians the power of fire and wind are associated with the destruction of life. On the other hand, the powers of earth and water are associated with the protection of life. The sun, lightning and fire are fire powers. Red is the symbolic color of these powers. Red, therefore, is associated with war and is always conspicuous in the war paint. At the four corners of the earth are located four winds. Under these corners are the pillars which uphold the earth. The wind powers are black. Their servants are the four black spirits of night. Associated with them are the black raven and the wolf which howls at night.

"The moon is a goddess. It is owing to her diableric that men sometimes become as women. Among the Indians a queer form of mania is frequently developed. While under its influence men adopt the ways of women, assume their dress and voice, and practice sewing and other domestic arts such as properly belong to the gentler sex. A part of the discipline is to undergo prolonged fasting. After this has been carried to a certain point the faster experiences hallucinations, which are termed visions. In his first vision the moon goddess comes to the young man with a bow in one hand and a strap for carrying a burden held in the other. Among savages it is the woman's business to carry burdens. The youthful warrior grasps at the bow, but, if he is not very quick, the goddess is apt to substitute the strap. On this account he is subject afterward to the peculiar mania already described.

"The Indians generally seem to have no well-defined notion of a hell. They say to their children: 'If you are not brave and good you will go after you die to live with the spirits of bad people.' Among the Oregon Indians and those of many other tribes it is understood that the spirits of the dead go back to the land of the 'Old Woman Who Never Dies,' in the Southwest. The old woman is the mother of all. On going back to her the Indians are reborn into the world as infants. A common notion among the Indians is that the world is shaped like a cup, and on this account it is not possible for anyone to climb out of it and obtain an entrance into the regions which belong to the gods."—Washington Star.

The Dyspeptic's Panacea.

Recurring to the specific subject of business and dyspepsia, it is noted that the demand for hot milk, which nobody likes, and for hot water, which every true stomach detests, is steadily on the increase at restaurants, hotels, chop-houses, boarding-houses and other food arsenals of almost any city.

"Mafia" Murder in New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Francesco Barcia, a butcher of 248 Elizabeth street, was shot down a few feet from his home late last evening. The murderer, Francesco Carsalta, a barber of 51st street and Sixth avenue, was arrested. The men had quarreled, and the immediate cause of the fight is plain. But the ominious word "Mafia" went around among the loungers in the Italian saloons of the neighborhood as the policemen left the scene of the murder with Carsalota. The opinion seemed general that the murder was the result of a carefully arranged plot. Although there is no direct evidence to substantiate the belief, it is remarkable that the police have been unable to obtain a single adult witness who will state that he saw Carsalta do the shooting, and there is only the haziest notion as to the subject of the quarrel that led to the crime. A dozen men were present all the time, but either they pretend to have turned their heads away as the shot was fired or their identity cannot be sufficiently established to warrent their being held as witnesses.

Peace Prospects Good.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 5.—About 4,000 workingmen marched through the streets of the city to-day and eventually gathered in front of the National Palace. They greeted President Diaz with loud cheers, and presented him with with an address praising the Government's attitude in the boundary dispute with Guatemala. In his reply the President said that the diplomatic controversy presented no new features. It is stated semi-officially that the outlook for peace is more hopeful than ever Guatemala having in the main agreed to Mexico's demands. The general opinion now is that there will be no war. The reports in several papers that war would be declared yesterday was merely guesswork. War can only be declared by Congress, and that body has not even been convoked. Stories of a Central American alliance against Mexico are discredited here, although it is probable that Honduras, Costa Rica and Nicaragua agreed to lend moral support to Guatemala.

CUSTOMS VACANCIES.

Hamilton Men After Them—Watters' Place is Filled.

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 5.—J. E. Kilvert, collector of Customs at this port, has gone to Ottawa to assume the duties of Thomas J. Watters, acting Commissioner of Customs, who has been suspended awaiting trial by the courts there. It is generally believed Mr. Kilvert will be appointed Commissioner of Customs in the place of Mr. Parmalee, who was promoted. Mr. Kilvert's salary as collector here is $3,000; the assistant commissionership is worth only $2,800, which would be no promotion. But the commissionership pays $4,000 a year and this would be some inducement to the latter to remove his home from Hamilton to Ottawa.

Should things turn out as outlined above the vacant collectorship here would go in all probability to Alex. McKay, whose [illegible] for re-election are not bright. The name of David Creighton is also mentioned in connection with the place here, but it is more probable he would be offered the assistant commissionership of customs at Ottawa.

Railway Changes.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—The Aylmer branch of the C.P.R. has been purchased by the Pontiac and Pacific Junction railway. The price paid was $34,000. The Aylmer branch is the third oldest railway line entering Ottawa. It was built in 1877, about the time the old Occidental line was constructed.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 5.—The Western New York and Pennsylvania Railroad Company, comprising 389 miles of track in addition to equipments, will be sold to-day at ten o'clock by United States Marshal Walker. The foreclosure of mortgages forced the sale of the property. The company has been in the hands of a receiver since 1887.

Atlantic Gales.

CANSO, N.S., Feb. 5.—The schooner Georgie Campbell, arrived yesterday from Gloucester. Capt. McPherson reports the gale of Saturday night and Sunday as quite severe, they having carried away an eye-bolt from the foremost head. They will repair at this port and proceed for the Banks the first chance. The schooners Carrie and Annie, of Boston, arrived from Newfoundland with a fare of 1,100 barrels of salt herring. Capt. Gaton reports the loss of a stay in the gale of Saturday night and Sunday and will repair here. This is the heaviest storm of the season.

Livery Stable Burned in Cobourg.

COBOURG, Ont., Feb. 2.—Fire destroyed the livery stable of D. Sinclair, of this town. The contents together with one horse were burned. Cause of the fire is unknown. Loss $700. Contents were insured in British American for $300 and building partly insured.

Fire at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Feb. 5.—The schooner Julia, wintering at Wolfe Island dock, and Dawson's storehouse were burned yesterday morning. The vessel was insured for $1,500. The loss on the storehouse is partly covered by insurance.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 5, 1895.

On the street here one load of white wheat sold at 63 to 64c and some goose at 60 1-2c; 800 bushels of barley changed hands at 47 to 48c, and 200 bushels of oats at 34 1-2 to 35c.

At outside railway points some small transactions in wheat have taken place at 57 to 58c. Manitoba west is quoted at 78c.

The New York stock exchange gossips came down to Wall street in a state of disappointment. Apparently they had expected an instant consummation of the foreign loan, the arrival of a fleet of ships with $300,000,000 gold in their holds, a procession of trucks with kegs of gold from the wharfs to the sub-treasury and the mounting up of the Federal reserve to the figures of 1887. This child-like conception of finance was responsible for the stock market's decided weakness at the opening. Some local speculators encouraged this pessimism by giving out selling orders to foreign houses. This was immediately hailed as London liquidation. There was, however, nothing genuine of the kind. Early London market for Americans was firm except for Union Pacific and St. Paul which declined for special reasons. Sterling exchange rates yielded again at the opening, but steadied later.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Americans opened weak to-day, and declined on a less sanguine view [illegible]

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

DIRT!

Your watch needs cleaning and oiling, once every eighteen months if you would preserve its time-keeping qualities. Consider: In that time the balance wheel turns on its delicate axes 13,996,800, 000 times. It does not "rest" at night like ordinary machines, but keeps at its work unceasingly Run oil an engine, or a sewing machine, or any other mechanical contrivance, daily or weekly; but that delicate instrument of precision—your watch—is allowed to go uncared for until it is clogged with dirt, and stops. The best of oil becomes thick and dirty in time; in this condition it wears the pivots and destroys that exactness of their fit in the jewel-holes which is necessary to a correct performance

Let me look at your watch—I will give you a conscientious opinion as to whether it needs attention.

NEW LINE TO FRANCE

Improved Steamship Communication an Early Possibility.

AUSTRALIA AS A COMPETITOR

Our Sister Colony in the Antipodes Making an Effort to Vie With Canada in Cheese Production — Other Topics Discussed by Cable Letter.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—There seems to be a prospect of improved steam communication between Canada and France in the near future and the probable early ratification of the Franco-Canadian treaty is of course stimulating the organization of the scheme. The proposal is to run a line of steamers regularly between Belgium, France and Canada in the winter and summer if reasonable encouragement can be obtained from the Dominion Government and the merchants and shippers. There is at present intermittent communication between Antwerp and Montreal in the summer months, but the intention, if satisfactory arrangements can be made, is to build new and suitable steamers and to open a regular advertised service to Montreal during the season of navigation, and to Halifax during parts of the year, commencing in April or May next. Not only will the service be of value so far as trade with France is concerned, but it should lead also to the expansion of Canadian exports to and imports from both Belgium and Germany via Antwerp. There is also the chance that additional communication will be provided, as it is well known that the Hansa line have it in contemplation to arrange for the calling of their steamers at a French port. Much more might be done in the way of increasing the commercial relations of the Dominion with France, if the steamers of the Compagnie Trans-Atlantique to Havre were utilized. The surtaxe d'entrepot, which is added on importations into France via a European country other than the country of origin does not apply to imports from Canada by way of United States. The same remarks apply to the trade with Germany by way of the Hamburg and Bremen lines. These questions are receiving the attention of those interested in the development of trade between Canada and the Continent and in the exploitation of new markets for its products.

The Dead Meat Trade.

Some of the American papers have stated that Canada is at the bottom of the dispute that is now raging between the American companies and the dealers in the London market with regard to allowances. Hitherto the custom has been when selling dead meat to allow a drawback of one pound per quarter to dealers, but the American companies have expressed their determination to discontinue it. The Canadian dealers, however, have not taken any part in the discussion although the growing monopoly of the American companies has always been calculated to seriously interfere with the possible development of a dead meat trade from Canada, in view of the powerful combination they represent. All that Canada is interested in at present is the live fat cattle trade, pending the removal of the restrictions imposed by the Board of Agriculture, which, however, does not seem to be within measurable distance. The reputation of Canadian cattle somewhat suffered in the latter part of the last season, owing to the fact that many of the animals that arrived were of inferior quality, fit only for fattening and not for immediate slaughter. This is a matter for regret, because it costs no more to bring a fat animal than a stocker, and the difference in price is very appreciable both to the shipper and the farmer.

The Photographic Exhibition.

It is to be hoped that Canadian photographers will make a brave show at the forthcoming photographic exhibition at the Imperial Institute. The galleries are well adapted for the purpose, and selections of photographs of the scenery in the different provinces, illustrating also the industries of the country, agricultural, dairying, mining, lumbering, fishing and manufacturing would be a valuable object lesson and give the British public a better and more vivid idea than they have ever had of the resources and capabilities of Canada. Such an exhibition would also assist in a very marked way the efforts that are being made to encourage the investment of capital in the country, and besides would form a splendid advertisement of the Queen's highway to the east, about which so much has been written.

Australian Cheese in England.

The Australasian colonies are making wonderful strides in the development of the export of dairy produce. For some time they have regarded Canada's preeminent position in the cheese trade with a certain amount of envy, and it is an open secret that they mean to endeavor to get a share of the trade which they are also trying to do in the case of live cattle. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, although it may not always be palatable, and this will probably be the feeling of Canada in reference to the announcement that about a ton of cheese has been made at the Hawkesbury Agricultural College in New South Wales on the Canadian Cheddar system with the object of sending it to England to test the market. Specimens of the cheese are to be sent to the Government analyst of the Agricultural department before shipment in order that they be compared with cheese of Canadian manufacture.

Australian Live Cattle.

Particulars are now available of the result of the recent experiments in the shipment of live cattle from Australia to England, and they will be interesting to Canadian readers. All animals from the Antipodean colonies are slaughtered at the ports of landing, owing to the admitted prevalence of pleuro-pneumonia among the Australian herds. Seventeen animals are included in the account sales, eight short horns and nine Devons. The latter were very superior in quality, well above the average and equal to the best cattle received from the United States. The short horns were fine cattle also, but from the butchers' standpoint were too fat, although this seems almost incredible, in view of the fact that the animals had travelled 12,000 miles. In consequence, they did not bring so much per pound as the Devon. The day's allowance of food per animal on the voyage was 16 pounds of hay, oaten or lucerne, 6 pounds of maize and 4 pounds of bran. Three of the short horns (1,092 pounds each) realized 4 5-8d per pound, or £84 1s, and the remaining five (1,151 pounds each), 4 1-2d per pound, or £109 5s 7d. Four of the Devons (weighing 843 pounds each) brought 5 1-4d per pound or £73 12s 5d, while the remaining five (weighing 922 pounds each) were sold at 5d per pound, or £96 6s 7d. The total sum realized was therefore £343 15s 7d, the average price per head being £20 4s 5d.

The expense of bringing animals to England is stated to have averaged £12 per head, but it is expected that this amount will be reduced to about £10 in future shipments. The chief items were freight, including the carriage of fodder used on the voyage, £6 6s, and cost of food per bullock, £2 12s. As stated in a previous despatch, arrangements are being made to ship a larger number of animals from the different colonies this year to further test the question, and the result of the experiment will be watched with interest. The Australians seem to think there is money in the business. This is not always the experience of the Canadian shippers, but it must be remembered that the price of cattle in Australia is very much lower than it is in the Dominion.

GETTING OUT THE FIGHTERS.

Patron Nominations for the Dominion Elections—Mr. McNeill Backed.

BEAVERTON, Ont., Feb. 6.—The convention of the Patron Association of North Ontario and Muskoka was held here yesterday. Five nominations were made for the Dominion Parliament, all of whom withdrew except Messrs. R. C. Brandon and Henry Glendinning. Mr. Brandon, who has been a practical and prominent farmer all his life, was elected. The selection was made unanimous.

GALT, Feb. 6.—At the convention of the Patrons of South Waterloo riding, held yesterday, Mr. William Slater, of North Dumfries, was nominated as their candidate in the coming elections.

MITCHELL, Ont., Feb. 6.—A large representative gathering of the Patrons of Industry in the South Riding of Perth met here yesterday. In discussing the present situation the meeting was enthusiastic in its adherence to the policy and objects of the Patron order. The meeting was unanimous in its determination to stand by Mr. John McNeill through the protest trial now pending, and action was taken to raise the necessary expenses connected therewith. It is the determination of the order to run a candidate in the coming Dominion election, and on account of the pending protest trial the meeting adjourned to meet again at Sebringville on the 14th instant. to complete arrangements to that end.

U. S. EXPORTS AND IMPORTS.

The Fall of Prices Last Year Greater Than Since 1873.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—In giving out the final figures of the trade of the United States in the calendar year 1894, Mr. Worthington C. Ford, chief of the Bureau of Statistics, said: It is almost impossible to judge of the course of trade by value alone. In no single year since 1873 has there been such a sudden and marked falling in prices, export and import, as has occurred in the last 18 months. Such a sudden change practically throws out any comparison of totals. For example, the value of domestic exports in the fiscal year 1894 was only $3,000,000 less than the value of the exports in the fiscal year 1891; yet the value of the exports in the calendar year 1894 was $150,000,000 less than in the calendar year 1891. Quite as interesting a difference is shown in the imports. The value of free imports in the fiscal years 1894 and 1891 was $579,795,526 and $566,944,852 respectively, a difference in favor of last of $13,500,000. A comparison of imports for the calendar years would show a difference in favor of 1891 of $25,000,000.

Dutiable imports were greatly affected by the uncertainty of tariff legislation that the calendar year of 1894 appears almost disastrous in its total, that difference being $100,000,000 in favor of the calendar year of 1891.

The relation between free and dutiable has been doubly disturbed by the excessive importations of sugar, which aggravated the free total and the marked reductions in the imports of articles affected by the tariff.

Grapefruit are selling very cheap.

LAURIER AT TORONTO

Young Libs Assemble for the Purpose of Forming a Federation.

ADDRESSED BY THE LEADER

Mr. Laurier Replies to Certain Statements Made by the Finance Minister—His Position in Regard to the Manitoba Schools Clearly Announced.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.— A large number of Young Liberal delegates from all parts of the province arrived in the city yesterday to attend a monster convention, arranged by the Young Liberals of Toronto, which is being held for the purpose of organising all the Young Liberals of the province into one solid federation. Among the delegates present are some of the prominent Liberals in the country.

During the day the delegates assembled in Temperance Hall to transact their business, and at night Hon. Wilfrid Laurier addressed a large meeting in the Massey Hall on the political topics of the day.

The convention decided on forming a provincial federation. Mr. Stewart Lyon, president of the Toronto Young Liberals, was elected president, and Mr. James Day provisional secretary. The convention will conclude its business to-day.

Mr. Laurier's Address.

There was an immense crowd at the meeting in the evening. The speakers were Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. G. C. Gibbons, of London, Hon. Geo. W. Ross, and Mr. Wm. Paterson, M.P., of Brant. Sir Oliver Mowat and his Cabinet were present.

Hon. Mr. Laurier was received with much enthusiasm. He commenced by referring to Hon. Mr. Foster's recent statement that if he wished to retain his good name he would not get into power. Mr. Laurier said Mr. Foster's plan of maintaining his reputation was to evade the settlement of great questions. It was possible to maintain one's reputation by sending a deputation through the country interviewing the manufacturers in secret and the farmers in public and lecturing the farmers and browbeating them. So with the Manitoba school question. By referring the question to the courts to know whether it was constitutional or unconstitutional, and, if the courts decided it was constitutional, by referring it again to the courts to know whether we have power to interfere or not, and if they decide that we have the power, then by calling on our opponents to tell us what we should do—that is the way by which men can maintain their reputations for capabilities and small cuteness. In the meantime, said Mr. Laurier, the country might suffer. Passions might be aroused which perhaps might bring this country to the verge and brink of dangerous agitation, but the government would be secure in the enjoyment of power.

Touching on the question of dissolution, Mr. Laurier drew attention to Mr. Foster's statement that the Government had not considered the question of dissolution, and contrasted it with Mr. Ouimet's statement twice in a fortnight that there was going to be another session.

Mr. Laurier then turned to Mr. Foster's claims in recent speeches that the policy of protection had advanced the prosperity of the country. Mr. Foster claimed everything on behalf of protection. Why should he not as well claim that the large increase in the capacity of Great Britain consume our food products and the marvellous capacity which our neighbors to the south have developed for taking our young men and women are due to the policy of protection.

Regarding the Manitoba school question, Mr. Laurier said he was anxious not to make the position of the Government more difficult to them than it was already. As to his position, he repeated what he had said before, that it was with him simply a question of fact not of politics at all. If all the children of Roman Catholics were by the school laws of Manitoba made to attend Protestant schools it was an outrage which no Protestant community would tolerate. He had nothing more to say of his position. These were the grounds on which he stood. He did not want to make any political capital out of the matter.

Hon. Geo. W. Ross and Mr. Wm. Paterson followed with able speeches.

The Arms Were Not From Canada.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—The rifles and ammunition carried by the Hawaiian rebels from America were shipped from San Francisco, not from British Columbia, as was first reported. According to the statement of the Englishman, Capt. Davis, who landed the arms in Hawaii, they were loaded in a sailing vessel here and subsequently transferred to his craft.

Eleven Killed by an Avalanche.

CHRISTIANA, Feb. 6.—Shocks of earth quake were felt at Christiansand, Molde, Aalesand and Bergen in the northern part of Norway yesterday. No damage is reported. Eleven persons were killed by an avalanche at Kvanangen in the province of Finmarken.

Y.P.S.C.E. NOTES.

"CHRISTIAN CITIZEN CLIPPINGS."

The most serious infidelity of to-day is the infidelity of orthodox Christians who "are at ease in Zion" and leave unbelievers to do their work.

The following sentence from Edmund Burke is worth thinking about at this time:—"When bad men combine, the good must associate; else they would fall, one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle."

One of the political journals calls attention to the fact that Christ never preached politics, and recommends his followers to imitate his example.

It is true that Christ did not preach politics, but he did plant principles which eventually and inevitably produced free governments.

A government of the people, by the people, and for the people, pre-supposes the direct and constant participation of the people. The overwhelming majority of our citizens are, at least, nominal Christians. If these were, as their religion and their citizenship ought to compel them to be, earnestly and actively concerned with politics, the laws and execution of the laws would respond to Christianity as a ship does to the rudder. Christians ought to go into politics—and stay in.

THE JUNIOR EXECUTIVE.

The Junior Executive met on Saturday evening at the residence of Miss Mann. A paper by Miss Robinson on "How the pledge helps" was read, and this very important topic was discussed. It was decided to hold a rally on the second Friday in March, in the evening. A committee was appointed to draft a programme. It was decided to change the regular meeting night. Hereafter the meeting will be held on the first Tuesday of each month. The topic for the next regular meeting will be "New plans that work well in your society." It will be presented by Miss Mann.

ST. PAUL'S SOCIETY.

Held their monthly business meeting on Monday night. Reports throughout were encouraging. This society will hold a union meeting with the juniors at 10 o'clock next Sunday morning. This will not interfere with the weekly meeting which will take place as usual on Monday night. Miss E. J. Best presented the topic after the business was dispensed with. This portion of the meeting was very profitable to all. Misses Cameron and Patterson rendered a duet in a very pleasing manner. The old-style social with modern trimmings will be a feature worthy attention. This will be at the end of this month. The social committee promise us a rare treat on this occasion.

LOCAL UNION.

At the executive meeting on Tuesday night the following committees were appointed to make arrangements for the county convention to be held on Easter Monday, April 15th:

Programme—Rev. Messrs. Young and McWilliams, Mrs. A. Parker, Miss McEwan and Miss Quinn.

Billeting—Miss Rae, convenor, with two from each society.

Music—Mr. Crowe, and the convenors of the various music committees.

Church arrangements—Messrs Percy Kennedy and A. J. Johnston.

SMITH.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Council room, Feb. 4th, 1895. Council met persuant to adjournment. All the members present, the reeve in the chair. After routine Councillor Armstrong was appointed a delegate to attend the annual meeting of the Good Roads Association, to be held in Toronto on the 7th and 8th of Feb. for the purpose of obtaining as much information as possible in regard to road making. The petition of Wm. Pearson and others asking the council not to close up the road allowance between lots 24 and 25 in the 15th con. was laid over for another consideration. Messrs. Garbutt and Fitzgerald were appointed a committee to arrange with the medical health officer for the disinfection of the house at Young's Point, in which cases of diphtheria have occurred. The application of Thos. Young re support of Mr. Moffatt, was received, and resolution passed that no action be taken thereon. The following claims were ordered to be paid: Geo. Westlake, services on board of health, $5; W. Davis, support of W. Freeburn, $15; John A. Davidson, work on road, $3. After verbally appointing overseers of highways, pound keepers and fence viewers, the council adjourned to the 4th day of March.

A Pretty Face

is the result of a healthy physical condition. "Beauty is but skin deep" yet it greatly depends on a clear complexion free from wrinkles and hollow cheeks.

Health always brings wealth of beauty. A healthy state of the system comes with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine prepared for woman's ailments—it cures those derangements and weaknesses which make woman's life miserable.

A woman who neglects to take proper exercise is particularly prone to excessive congestion, debility and a sluggish circulation. This is the time we advise the "Prescription." In all derangements and displacements of the special organs which result in "signs of inflammation," in catarrhal discharges from the lining membranes, and in distressing irregularities—this medicine is guaranteed to cure, or the money will be returned.

Biliousness and Liver Complaint, headache, etc., are cured by Burdock Pills.

FROZE HIMSELF TO DEATH.

A Cincinnati Man Ends His Life in a Deliberate Manner.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 6.—W. H. Goodne, of 255 Central avenue, deliberately froze himself to death in Lake View Park. His body was found on one of the benches in the park in the morning. The following letter was found in his pocket:—

"To whom it may concern:—I am W. H. Goodne, of 225 Central avenue. Don't take me home but drop me at your morgue and let my wife know. Break it gently to my wife and then drop me in some handy hole so it won't take any expense. My wife has no means to foot any bills. Signed, W. H. Goodne."

Another letter was found addressed to his wife in which he asked her forgiveness, and advised her to make the daughter help earn living.

Brusseau Makes a Confession.

DETROIT, Feb. 6.—William Brusseau spent three hours last night confessing to Detective Sergeant Baker and Detective Sadler. He seems to be mentally wrecked, possibly from the effect of the deed. He says the body lay in the chair when Mrs. Pope awakened him and that she must have committed the murder. Brusseau says Mrs. Pope made six attempts on her husband's life by means of coal gas. Then she decided to cut his throat or shoot him in such a way as to indicate suicide. The past six weeks she had been studying out some definite way of doing the deed which was performed on Saturday morning. The inquest on the body of Dr. Horace E. Pope was held yesterday. After hearing the testimony, the corner instructed the jury to bring in a verdict that Pope came to his death at the hands of William Brusseau. The prosecuting attorney says that Mrs. Pope and Brusseau were indicted together for the murder. Brusseau is under arrest.

A French Liner Overdue.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Up to a late hour last night the French line steamer La Gascogne had not been sighted. She is now nearly three days overdue, as she should have arrived Sunday morning. As the steamers of this line come and go with regularity the impression gains ground that she met with some kind of mishap. The fact that the White Star steamer Runic from Liverpool and the Netherland-American liner Werkendam from Rotterdam have arrived about on time tends to strengthen the belief that La Gascogne has not had plain sailing. She has 162 passengers, a cargo of miscellaneous merchandise and the French mails. Her crew number 310.

NEW YEAR NEW GOODS NEW LEAF 1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will set off cheap.

The Linwood Mystery.

BERLIN, Ont., Feb. 6.—The only developments in the supposed Linwood child murder case are that the constable was out in pursuit of the couple yesterday morning. They are described as being about 35 years old each. Several of the villagers, whose suspicions had been aroused, visited the place where the fire had been made, and at once began kicking the ashes around more or less, and when Dr. McEachern visited the place he had some difficulty in gathering up any of the supposed remains. In an interview with him he says the cluster he secured is supposed of ashes, snow and other substance; but he would not swear that it was that of human bones. There can be no further developments until the arrest has been effect. There is a conflict of opinion. Some say, "They had a child with them," or "I think they had," while others say they saw them in the neighborhood for a few days and took no notice of the presence of a child.

Kingsville Has a Bad Fire.

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Feb. 6.—The village of Kingsville, about 8 miles from here, was visited by a disastrous fire yesterday which destroyed a large portion of the business part on the south side of Talbot street. The fire appears to have originated in Shain's drygoods store and extended either way destroying the Dunlop, Andrew Wigle's and Conklin blocks. The sufferers besides the owners of the buildings are W. J. Shain, drygoods, Jas. Wigle, grocer, Thornton's millinery, Brown's barber shop, Pierce's grocery, S. L. McKay's hardware, Wride's barber shop and the Mechanics' Institute over S. L. McKay's hardware store. Loss $80,000, mostly covered by insurance.

Bad Fire in Quebec.

FARNHAM, Que., Feb. 6.—W. L. Hibbard's saw mill was destroyed by fire. J. R. Smith's furniture shop was in the same building, also the plant of the electric light company. The whole building is a total loss. The wind was so high that it burnt in a very short time and nothing of any consequence could be saved. Loss about $6,000. The Canadian Pacific bridge of the St. Hyacinthe branch, near the building, caught and was destroyed. The Central Vermont railway bridge, as well as the water works building, were in imminent danger.

An Escaped Thief Recaptured.

WIARTON, Ont., Feb. 6.—Wm. Crandell, the man arrested at Galt last week for stealing from the express office and other places here, made his escape by jumping from the window of Rogers Hotel, where he was confined. The constable had his clothes but he took two blankets from his bed, and while the constable was watching his room door he came round to the front hall and stole an old coat of Rogers. It was a bitter cold night. He was recaptured south of Tara in a farm house, both feet being badly frozen.

"No Trouble" Burned to Death.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—A fire broke out last night in the exchange stables at Point St. Charles. The fire was not of much consequence, but it resulted in the loss of a valuable horse "No Trouble," owned by J. Burke, of Ottawa, which was here to race in the Jacques Cartier races, and was burned to death. "No Trouble" was a very fast horse, being the winner of the 2.17 at Ottawa, and was entered in the same class here. "Money Maid," another horse owned by Mr. Burke, was also badly burned.

IMPERIAL HOUSE OPENS

Programme for the Session Outlined in the Queen's Speech.

THE ANTI-LORDS RESOLUTIONS

There Were Left Out of the Speech, But Will be Introduced in the Commons—Lord Herschell Explains—Proceedings in the Commons.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Parliament re-assembled yesterday with the customary ceremonies. The session was opened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon by the reading by commission of the Speech from the Throne. There was a fair attendance of members of the House of Commons, but few of the members of the Upper House were present. In the Speech from the Throne the Queen referred to the war between China and Japan and the Armenian outrages and noted the fact that offenses against the law in Ireland have sunk during the past year to the lowest level which has hitherto been marked in the official record. In regard to the work of the session the Queen in her speech says: "Proposals will be submitted to you for remedying the defects which experience has brought to light in the working of law governing the landlord and the tenant in Ireland and for dealing with the cases of certain evicted tenants whose situation still constitutes a peril to social order. A bill will be presented dealing with the church establishment in Wales. Bills will also be laid before you having for their object popular control of the liquor traffic, the abolition of the system of plural voting and a provision for the payment of charges of returning officers of elections. The commission issued in 1893, to report as to the best means of unifying the government of the metropolis has presented its report and a bill will be laid before you founded upon its recommendations. A proposal will be submitted to you facilitating the construction of light railways, a measure which I trust will be found beneficial to the rural districts. Bills will also be presented to you for the promotion of means of conciliation in trades disputes and amending the Factory Acts, and you will also be asked to consider measures for the completion of a county government in Scotland, and for further legislation in respect to the Crofter population in that country."

In the Upper House.

In the House of Lords Lord Salisbury, speaking of the references in the Queen's speech to the Armenian troubles, said he would not at present say much about the Armenian difficulty, inasmuch as the matter was under investigation. He expressed doubt, however, whether the proposed inquiries would prove exhaustive. The question was a thorny one and the Government must be careful not to excite hopes among any section of the Armenian population that they were not prepared to see fulfilled.

In regard to the anti-Lords question, Lord Salisbury said: "We do not read in the speech anything of that most portentious resolution which the Premier announced and which he asked the support of the people in carrying into effect. The doubles of treatment and tactics employed in the matter seem to indicate that there are two leaders in the Ministry."

Lord Rosebery said he cordially agreed with Lord Salisbury in regard to Armenia, in which matter the British Government acted in accord with the governments of Russia, France and Italy. In respect to the other matters, he said the Government would endeavor to fulfil all their pledges. The anti-Lords resolutions, he said, would be introduced in the House of Commons. It would not have been respectful to Parliament to have included it in the Queen's speech.

The Duke of Devonshire said he doubted whether the Government would be able to carry their programme with the exception of the Irish Land bill, which both sides might think it necessary to pass.

Baron Herschell, Lord Chancellor, surprised the House by stating his desire to make a personal statement. Instantly the House was hushed and the Lord Chancellor said that he wished to speak of the accusations of misconduct which had been made against him in the English press. Within the past few weeks, he said, charges had been made that he had sought to transfer Justice Sir Roland Vaughan Williams from the Queen's Bench divison of the High Court of Justice for the purpose of removing him from a place of power to proceed rigorously against certain persons in high place when they were involved in questionable financial transactions. These hints and positive statements, Lord Herschell said, were positively untrue, and he desired to put himself on record as having denied them absolutely.

The Queen's speech was agreed to and the Peers adjourned.

In the Commons.

In the Commons Mr. Balfour said he was not disposed to make any comment upon that part of the Queen's speech dealing with foreign matters, believing it would be harmful to interfere with the Government in their management of the details of such questions. He would say, however, that he deplored the fact that the speech made no mention of the navy. The House ought not to be left in doubt in regard to the continuance of the naval programme. It was a matter of infinitely more importance than any that had been touched upon in the speech, and he was therefore surprised that no mention had been made of it.

Home Secretary Asquith, Mr. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Sir William Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, respectively gave formal notice of the introduction of the Welsh church disestablishment, Irish land and local veto bills. Mr. Chas. E. H. Vincent, member for Central Sheffield, called attention to the omission in the speech from the throne of references to colonial questions, especially those dealt with at the intercolonial conference at Ottawa.

Mr. Sydney Charles Buxton, Parliamentary Secretary to the Colonial Office, replying for the Government, said that the question discussed at the Ottawa conference had received careful attention, and the Government intended at the present session to introduce a bill to enable the Australasian colonies to enter into fiscal relations with each other and with Canada.

Through the kindness of Dr. Burnham, a copy of the Peterborough Gazette of Friday, December 5th, 1845, lies on the EXAMINER table. It is No. 17 of the Gazette—"published for a Company of Proprietors by J. H. Dunsford." The editorial page contains a copy of the address presented by the city council of Montreal to Lord Metcalf on the occasion of his resignation of the Governor-Generalship on account of ill-health. The same page contains a reference to cabinet meetings held in the private residence of Sir Robert Peel, who was confined with the gout, and it is intimated that "the order-in-council for the suspension of the 'Corn Laws' is confidently expected. The advertising pages show the advertisements of only two citizens now living—Mr. Wm. Cluxton and Mr. Jas. Stevenson, agent for R. Barret. A bazaar to raise funds for the purchase of communion plate and internal decorations for St. John's church is announced. At a concert in connection, Baron DeFleur was announced as [illegible]. The prospectus of the Cobourg [illegible] Grammar School, with [illegible] C. Taylor, M. A., as principal, [illegible] Baldwin, Esq., B. A., as [illegible]. The paper also contains a notice of application for incorporation of the town of Peterborough.

The Young People's Association.

The fortnightly meeting of the Young in the Sunday school Monday night. The People's Association of St. John's, was held Vice-President, Mr. T. J. Baker, occupied the chair. Reports were received from the various committees on their work during the past two weeks. At the conclusion of the business, a short programme, consisting of a humorous recitation by Miss Burley, an instrumental selection by Mr. Roadhouse, and the cymbal drill by Miss D. Comstock, was rendered. Refreshments were served, and a vote of thanks tendered to Mrs. Morphet for her kindness in providing them. The meeting adjourned until Feb. 18th.

At the Opera House Last Night.

"The Fast Mail," one of Lincoln J. Carter's most popular productions, was presented at Bradburn's Opera House last evening. Although the weather was bitterly cold, the play was well patronized, as its fame had preceded it to the town. The audience manifested its appreciation during the evening by bestowing the most liberal applause as the intricacies of the well-woven plot became apparent. The troupe, composed of eleven members, was one of the best which has visited Peterborough this season and without doubt, should the play be again presented here when the weather is more propitious, a crowded house will greet "The Fast Mail." On Saturday evening, "The Tornado," another of Carter's productions, and one even more popular than "The Fast Mail," will be presented.

A Peterborough Boy's Success.

Many of the friends of Maxwell Hall will be glad to hear of his advancement. Fifteen years ago he left his native town after serving a number of years in the the employ of the late firm of Nicholls & Hall, and also head bookkeeper with the late firm of Boyd, Smith & Co., of Peterborough, and after two years in business for himself he secured a situation as secretary and head bookkeeper for the Longford Lumber Co., of Longford Mills, Ont., which position he has held with honour to himself and benefit to the firm he has represented. Owing to circumstances over which he had no control, he had to resign his position to arrange a position for one of the members of the Company who has been mayor of Orillia for two years. No sooner had Mr. Hall resigned than his valued service was sought and secured by the successful business known as "The Huntsville Lumber Co., (Ltd.)" of Huntsville, Ont. Mr. Hall becomes a stockholder and at once assumes the financial management of the company, and we have no doubt, with the marked ability and application to business he has always displayed, his new venture will be a success. He still retains his position as secretary-treasurer of the Longford Quarry and Lime Co., and in a short time his family will move to their handsome residence in Orillia, which Mr. Hall had erected in 1891, by Mr. John Harper, of Norwood, Ont. Mr. Hall was the recipient of a handsome gold watch, suitably inscribed, and presented by Wm. Thompson, Esq., president of the company, for fifteen years faithful services. Mrs. Hall was also presented with a beautiful 5 o'clock silver tea service.

Mr. G Gumpricht is in town. Orders may be left at Messrs Taylor & Macdonald's or at the Peterborough Bookstore.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

One of the objects the Children's Aid Society, and the Government that provided the legislation, had in view is the gradual abolition of pauperism. A case in point will demonstrate this. A family of six children depend on a hard-working mother, who is not quite able to make both ends meet. The Society says in effect to her that if she will allow it to put a few of her children out in families, where they would be welcome, and where she could often see them, it will be glad to do so. As long as she can get charity from the town of course she will not do this, but it is a thing that ought to be done in the widow's interests, in the interest of the children, and last but not least, of the town. No hardship is involved and much corporation and soulless charity-giving is done away with. The society quietly and thoroughly investigates each case, and this new legislation for the better protection of children is one of the greatest advances yet made on behalf of the public and of the public's wards.

PERSONAL.

Capt. Clair Calcutt is taking a course of bookkeeping at the Peterborough Business College.

The Empire and Mail One

A few days ago the Daily Mail announced that negotiations had been completed between the Empire and Mail for a consolidated paper, and to-morrow the change will take place. The new paper is to be called "The Daily Mail and Empire." The Empire to-day says : "An amalgamation having been effected between the Empire and the Toronto Mail, both of these papers cease publication in their present shape to-day, and a new paper, to be called The Daily Mail and Empire, will make its first appearance to-morrow. All accounts due the Empire for advertisements, subscriptions, etc., to date, remain payable to the Empire Printing and Publishing Company, Limited, and all subscribers having paid in advance will receive for the balance of their terms the new paper, which there is every assurance will faithfully maintain the policy in political matters hitherto advocated by the Empire."

A Tornado Coming.

The EXAMINER gave the following notice of that excellent production, "The Tornado," when it was played here last season :—"The opera house was well filled last night from stage to gallery to witness the production of Lincoln J. Carter's great scenic play, "The Tornado." The scenic embellishments in all the thrilling scenes and original situations were well put on, when the depth and breadth of the stage are taken into account. The great tornado scene in act one and scene three of act two, entitled, "Up in the rigging of the steamship Erma furling sail," was quite realistic. The steamship collision was exciting, and the view of pier at the end of Randolph street, Chicago, was brilliant, while the great fire scene and the laughingly hurried escape of the inmates in their night clothes caught the audience capitally and a paroxysm of merriment seemed to seize the spectators, who laughed to their hearts' content." A PECULIAR CASE IN THE POLICE COURT.

A Young Man Gets Into Trouble Over a Horse Blanket.

Last Saturdry afternoon an Otonabee farmer who was in town, and who left his horse at a down town hotel, missed his blanket and robe, on returning to the hotel after a trip up street. Suspicion pointed to a wealthy young farmer residing near Springville. The Otonabee man secured a search warrant and, last night, hearing that the suspect was away from home, the amateur detective drove out to the Springville homestead and actually found his missing blanket strapped to the back of a horse in the stables.

The blanket was secured and brought back to town, but no trace of the robe could be found. The farmer on whose premises the blanket was found, was at once placed under arrest by the local police as he was in town last night.

This morning a hearing was given the prisoner before the Magistrate. He stated that he found the blanket in question on the street. He was remanded until Friday, and was liberated on his own recognisance.

Emperor Francis Joseph.

The great struggle between the crown and Parliament has come to an end in Hungary, and already no fewer than 25,000 telegrams have been addressed to that most popular of Emperors, Francis Joseph. The messages which expressed profoundest gratitude for the royal sanctioning of the recent ecclesiastical reforms, arrived not only from societies and corporations, but from thousands of private individuals also. The enthusiasm and delight of the liberals has taken the shape of numerous loyal demonstrations throughout Hungary. Fetes by day and torchlight processions by night are the order of the hour, and a spirit of rejoicing and delight reigns throughout the nation. Only the ultramontane press strikes a jarring note, but the ill-humor with the crown counts for little, and the Emperor-king, Francis Joseph, remains at this moment the most popular man in Europe.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH.

Their Wedding Journey.

The old folks had gone to bed and Sime and 'Mandy were in the dim little parlor, where burned a slow fire of sizzling hickory logs in the old-fashioned fireplace. The wintry blasts shook the old farm house and the windows rattled, and a puff of smoke now and then came down the chimney on a return trip and circled familiarly about the room, but Sime and 'Mandy didn't mind it. They were sitting very close together. Sime, with throbbing heart and faltering tongue, had declared himself and 'Mandy had listened shyly and with downcast eyes.

Sime's arm stole in a casual and apparently accidental way along the back of her chair.

"And you'll have me, 'Mandy?"

"Yes, Sime."

It was spoken softly, but Simon heard it, and there was a sound like that of a quart of cold mush colliding violently with the side of a brick house.

Then the stalwart young man recovered himself and rose to his feet.

"'Mandy," he said, with the assured bearing of a man accustomed to acting with business-like promptness in all the great emergencies of life. "I've got to go to Chicago next Wednesday with four carloads of hogs, and we'll get married in the mornin' and make the trip together."—Chicago Tribune.

A Doctor's Unique Collection.

Dr. Luys, a leading Paris physician, has made what he considers to be a unique present to the medical faculty. It consists of a collection of 120 mummified cerebral lobes, which show numerous specimens of the various forms of brain disease, from the commonest to the most complicated. Dr. Luys organized this collection in the interest of science during his long connection with the Salpetriere and the Charite hospitals. The brains are mostly those of madmen, idiots, paralytics and deaf and dumb persons, a few lobes from the skulls of normally intelligent subjects being added for the purposes of scientific comparison.

Athletics in Japanese Schools.

Athletics hold an important but subordinate position in the schools of Japan. Once a year there is a gathering of all the students in a district to engage in athletic contests. In those seen by Mr. Hearn, and described in "Glimpses of Unfamiliar Japan," 6,000 boys and girls from all the schools within a distance of 25 miles were entered to take part. A circular race track, roomy enough for an army, allowed four different kinds of games to be performed at the same time.

There were races between the best runners of different schools, and races in which the rubners were tied together in pairs, the left leg of one to the right leg of the other.

Little girls—as pretty as butterflies in their sky blue [illegible] and many-colored robes—contested [illegible] races in which each one had to pick as she ran three balls of different colors out of a number scattered over the turf.

The most wonderful spectacle was the dumbbell exercise. Six thousand boys and girls, massed in ranks about 300 deep; 6,000 pairs of arms rising and falling exactly together; 6,000 pairs of sandaled feet retreating together at the signal of the masters of gymnastics, directing all from the tops of little wooden towers; 6,000 voices chanting at once the "One, two, three," at the dumbbell drill—"Ichi, ni—[illegible]hi—go, roku, shichi, hachi."

The games began at eight o'clock in the morning and ended at five in the evening. Then, at a signal, fully 6,000 voices pealed out the national anthem and concluded with three cheers for the Emperor and Empress of Japan. The Japanese, instead of shouting when they cheer, chant with a long cry, "A-a-a-a-a!" which sounds like the opening tones of a musical chorus.—Scientific American.

HOCKEY.

The Peterborough's will likely journey to Kingston on Saturday afternoon to play the championship game in the league series on Saturday night. An effort is being made to secure a special car which can be made possible if the friends of the boys will accompany them. It would leave here at 1.40 p.m. Saturday, and arrive in Peterborough on Monday at 8.20 a.m.

The crack hockey team from the Harbord street Collegiate Institute, Toronto, will play a friendly game with the fast seven from the Peterborough Collegiate Institute to-night at the rink. The puck will be faced at 8 p.m. sharp and a most interesting game will, without doubt, be witnessed.

CURLIANA.

The finals in this grouping of the Tankard series were played on the rink last evening between Peterborough and Lakefield, with the result that the home men were victorious by a score of 8 shots, thus earning the privilege of going to Toronto to play in the grand semi-finals with the other victors in the different groupings. The rinks which played last night were composed as follows:

Lakefield.	Peterborough.

Majority for Peterborough, 8 shots.

An odd coincidence exists in the fact that while Skip Attrill's rink pulled Skip Rutherford's man out of the hole in the morning match with Keene, the same kind offices were performed by Skip Rutherford's rink for Skip Attrill's at night. The draw was an intensely interesting one to watch, and the crowd of spectators migrated from one end of the rink to the other, as the ends changed, until the last stone had been played.

THE ROD.

When the Cabinet Ministers visit Peterborough on Feb. 7th, a deputation of sportsmen and gentlemen interested in bass fishing will wait upon Hon. Mr. Costigan, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, to present a protest against the present regulations governing bass fishing. Last year the close season for bass was changed from April 14th to June 16th to May 10th to July 1st. It is claimed by the sportsmen that the new close season permitted the bass to be slaughtered on the spawning beds, that the season running to July 1st was too late, and that the old close season, which stopped bass fishing on June 16th, was the better.

THE VILLAGE COUNCILLORS IN SESSION ON MONDAY.

The Auditors' Report—The Pool and Billiard Table Bylaw Passed.

The Ashburnham council met in regular monthly session Monday evening. The members present were the Reeve and councillors Smith, Craig and Rutherford. The following were presented and ordered to be paid:

ACCOUNTS

G A Craig, wood	$ 6 75
E McCabe	11 50
R J Weir	9 00
Geo Knamerons	2 00
G W; Craig	2 70
Adam Hall	3 15
Pay sheet No. 1	62 14

The auditors' report was presented, and on motion of Messrs. Smith and Rutherford, the same was received and adopted. It was further resolved that the abstract statement be published according to law, and the detailed statement printed for distribution.

A charity account for wood was disapproved by Councillor Smith, who claimed that the charge, $4 per cord, was too expensive. Mr. Rutherford agreed with Mr. Smith.

Some discussion arose concerning the advisability of the council continuing to support an elderly woman who has already been kept by the village during the past three years, it being reported that she was able to support herself without relief from the corporation. The matter was dropped with the understanding that the members of the civic board should thoroughly investigate the matter.

A BY-LAW

regulating pool and billiard rooms passed its several readings. The bylaw fixes the license fee at $40 for each and every table, and prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors in the same room in which the tables are kept.

The auditors were paid $10 each instead of $8, for their services, on motion of Councillor Calcutt, seconded by Councillor Smith.

On motion of Councillor Rutherford, seconded by Councillor Smith, it was decided to purchase ten cords of wood to be used for charity.

The council then adjourned.

ST. ANDREW'S CHOIR HAS A JOLLY EVENING.

A Drive to Lakefield on the Invitation of Messrs. J. J. Lundy and T. Fitzgerald.

Mr. J. J. Lundy and Mr. Tobias Fitzgerald tendered the members of St. Andrew's choir a drive to Lakefield last evening.

Twenty-one of the young ladies and gentlemen took advantage of the kind invitation, although on leaving town the thermometer registered 18 degrees below zero.

On arriving at Lakefield the party drove to the Queens Hotel where an appetising repast had been prepared. A most pleasant evening was spent in social enjoyment after which the big busload started for home, the thermometer indicating that the temperature had dropped two degrees lower still.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during this month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any farther notice. dw

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Speeches will be delivered and the questions of the day discussed by the following Cabinet Ministers:—

HON. GEO. E. FOSTER,
Minister of Finance.

HON. JOHN HAGGART,
Minister of Railways and Canals.

HON. JOHN COSTIGAN,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

HON. W. B. IVES,
Minister of Trade and Commerce.

HON. DR. MONTAGUE,

The meeting will also be addressed by HON. N. CLARKE WALLACE, Comptroller of Customs, James Stevenson, M.P., West Peterborough, John Burnham, M.P. East Peterborough, and others.

The Ministers will arrive at the G and Trunk station, Peterborough, at 5.10 p.m., and will be received by the Liberal-Conservative Associations of West and East Peterborough, and by Liberal-Conservatives of both ridings, who are cordially invited to be present in sleighs.

The hon. gentlemen will be escorted to their hotel. The Fire Brigade Band will attend.

A reception will be held in the parlour of the Oriental Hotel from 7 till 7.30 o'clock, when the ministers will be pleased to meet all who may desire to call on them.

The chair will be taken at the Opera House at 8 o'clock sharp.

Ladies are cordially invited and seats will be reserved for them in the galleries.

A NEW FRENCH CABINET

A MODERATE MINISTRY WITH MORE SOCIALIST MEMBERS.

M. Ribot's Second Term as Premier—Regarded as a Safe Man by French Politicians—Not, However, Popular in the Ordinary Sense of the Word.

The French Cabinet crisis appears to be closed by the coming into power of a moderate Ministry. The general opinion is that the Ribot Cabinet will last until Easter, and that then the crisis will begin again, which will force President Faure to dissolve the Chamber.

But M. Ribot is not a popular man, and the new Chamber will be as much divided as is the present one, and will contain more socialist members.

M. Dupuy, the ex-Premier, said the other day:—"I hear the galloping of a horse." The horse to which he referred will be ridden by a general who will restore order in France.

The cabinet is as follows: Premiership and Finance—Ribot; War—Gen. Jamont; Marine—Vice-Admiral Besnard; Foreign Affairs—Hanotaux; Interior—Deputy Leygues; Justice—Deputy Trarieux; Public

M. RIBOT.

Works—Dupuy-Dutemps; Public Instruction—Poincare; Colonies—Deputy Chautemps; Agriculture—Senator Gardaud; Commerce—Deputy Andre Lebon.

M. Alexandre Felix Ribot has been a prominent figure in French politics for some years past, and this is the second time that he has filled the position of Premier. The first time was in December, 1892, when he succeeded M. Loubet in that office, which, however, he only retained a few months. Prior to that he had been Minister of Foreign Affairs in two cabinets—that of M. de Freycinet, in 1890, and that of M. Loubet, in 1892. It was while holding the portfolio of Foreign Affairs that he demanded of President Harrison the recall of a military attache of the United States Legation in Paris, at whose conduct the French government had taken umbrage.

M. Ribot, who is now in his fifty-third year, is regarded as pre-eminently a safe man. Though not popular in the ordinary sense of the word, he has few enemies, and his attitude toward the Church party has, while retaining perfect independence of it, been always respectful and liberal. He has always shown himself utterly fearless in his dealings with the extreme radicals and socialists. An undoubted authority in all that relates to jurisprudence, he is credited with having a thorough understanding of industrial, commercial and financial affairs. In the Chamber he has shown himself a powerful and at times a brilliant speaker.

The Journal des Debats is the only one of the Paris newspapers that supports the Premiership of M. Ribot. The other papers denounce the Anglo mania of Ribot, and predict disastrous results from his administration.

Warning Him.

"This new soap," said the barber, "is very nice. It is largely made of cream, with just a little dash of alcohol in it."

"Well, remember, I'm a temperate man," returned Dobbers, "and don't put any more of it in my mouth than you can help."—National Barber.

Unkind.

"I see that Scriphius employs a typewriter now."

"Yes."

"Doing lots of work?

"No. He wants somebody to blame for his mistakes in English."—Washington Star.

He Did Not Dance.

Miss Fan Tastic (who has just been introduced to educated Indian)—Do you dance, Mr. Orontyabeka?

Mr. O.—Once, alas! I did, but the customs of the savage I have now abandoned forever.—Truth.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, and in this way positively cures catarrh.

B. B. B.

Purifies, renovates and regulates the entire system, thus curing dyspepsia, constipation, sickheadache, biliousness, rheumatism, dropsy and all diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It also removes all the impurities from the system from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

Women's Work.

It is rather unfortunate that the many clever and progressive women at the present time to the fore in business and public affairs are not clever enough to clothe themselves in the armor of right-ousness so completely that there is no crevice through which the arrows of newspaper gibings may penetrate with the unpleasant barb of truth. There are such a number of critics always ready to unjustly ridicule women's doings that any really weak spot is sure to be pierced by a stinging shaft. It is quite evident that men will never be satisfied with the work done by women until it is done infinitely better than men themselves could possibly do it, and for the earlier attaining of that end they are prone to condemn as peculiarly feminine and unworkmanlike those little weaknesses and peccadilloes that are in reality common to human nature of both sexes.

For example, is was truly a pity, a very great pity, that the women connected with the World's fair work found themselves unable to stir in the business until they were possessed of silver badges, cost $10 or $15 each, paid for out of the general fund. Still, man is essentially the badge wearing animal and has always been notoriously fond of "a ribbon to stick in his coat," as his Masonic and hundreds of other secret societies will testify, and if women are snared by the same vanity a fellow feeling should modify the severity of masculine criticism. It would seem that women's chief difficulty in any sort of organized work lies in the tendency, after having settled on a definite end, to lose sight of it in the fascinating intricacies of side issues, as a result of which tendency what was merely the means is apt to become an end in itself. There is one universal rule for harmony and perfection in every sort of work, art, music, politics and public functions, and that is—keep the accessories subordinate. And although the heart of man is not invariably inclined to keep this law he will laugh at women's work just so long as women will pile up as stumbling blocks in their own path personal grievances, questions of precedence and the thousand and one unimportancies of a kindred nature.

ISABELLA PROCTOR.

"Up to the Scratch."

Is this expression derived from the old idea that a witch was deprived of her power by a person drawing her blood by scratching her? In the trial of Richard Hathaway, as a cheat and impostor, at Surrey assizes, March 24, 1706, it was alleged against him that he did, in the presence and hearing of divers persons, falsely, devilishly and knowingly, and as a false impostor, pretend and affirm that he was bewitched by Sarah Morduck, and that by reason thereof he could not eat, but had fasted ten weeks successively, and pretended also that he was affected with divers diseases, and that by drawing blood from the said Sarah by scratching he should be freed from his said pretended bewitching, and that the defendant did thereupon scratch the said Sarah and draw blood from her, and thereupon falsely affirm that by drawing the said blood he was freed from the said diseases, whereas, in truth and fact, he never was bewitched, nor had fasted, as aforesaid, and knew himself not to be bewitched by the said Sarah.

Forby, "Vocabulary of East Anglia," volume 2, 1830, says:

"Where a witch is known to harbor resentment against any one, or to have expressed an intention of doing him an injury, it is held to be a sure preservative if the party threatened can draw blood from the sorceress, and many a poor old woman has been sacrificed from the received opinion that a witch will not come to the scratch."—Notes and Queries

Salt rheum with its intense itching, dry, hot skin is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, because it purifies the blood.

WORK OF A DANCER.

There is No Play About the Work of a Professional Performer.

Did you ever think, as you watched a nimble girl glide around the stage on her toes or go through a series of seemingly impossible feats, that she is offering the result of years of hard work and daily practice?

A man will watch a performer in a novelty dance and allow his applause to be guided by the things that he had for supper or the previous condition of his liver. He forgets, or does not think, that the performer before him has practiced three hours a day for 10 years, perhaps, and means to go on doing the same thing as long as she remains before the people in a professional capacity. It never occurs to him, unless he be of the thoughtful, investigating kind, that the girl who smiles and dances back of the footlights may have a great toe that is twice the size that it ought to be. The work used to be a source of pain to her, but that time has long passed, and now a callous lump deadens the hurt that came every time she placed the weight of her body upon that usually unruly and weak part of her anatomy.

The good old style of step dancers is not prominent now. Since Carmencita, Otero, Loie Fuller and the Midway artists entered the field the performers of the Lizzie and Lucy Daly sort have not been much in evidence. It is serpentine one day, Spanish the next, and then we are entertained by "novelty" creations that are as numerous as the dancers that now infest the earth.

The new branch of the theatrical business known as the continuous plan has made the work of the dancer much harder than it ever was before. There was a performer last week who went on at 2.30 in the afternoon, 6.30 and 9 in the evening. This girl reached the theatre shortly before 2 o'clock, made up for her act, and did not leave until nearly 10 o'clock at night.

Young women who are fortunate enough to secure engagements in such organizations as "A Gaiety Girl" and "A Trip to Chinatown" have no need to complain about the hours they have. Only on matinee days do they appear more than once.

The few steps that Decima Moore, a London success, executes every night, taken with half a dozen cute runs from the stage, wear out a pair of her dainty brown slippers every week.

The dancers who use their toes have to get their shoes re covered every other day. The body of the shoe is longer than the foot by at least three-quarters of an inch,

BEFORE AND AFTER USING.

the space between having a bunch of cotton in it. The "tosing" on a rough stage floor spoils the pink satin at the outset, and in the course of three or four minutes this fabric breaks. Dancers have found that the quickest way out of the difficulty is to change the covering after each performance.

The four leading dancers of A Gaity Girl Company are, by the way, the best of the sort that have been seen together in a long time. The three dancers in the carnival novelty in the closing scene had the three highest, most honest kicks of the season, not to mention the new figures presented. A member of this trio sustained herself on one toe, while she whirled twice around, kicking above her head from each of the four sides, and never once touching the active foot to the floor. This work cost a pair of shoes every night.

There is a maker of dancing slippers in New York who does nearly all of the making for the dancers of this country. He keeps measurements on hand and can send a slipper model on notice of a few hours. The usual price is $3.50 per pair.

Canada's Well-known Railroad Contractor, Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, III.

Treated by Several Doctors and Tried Nearly Every Proprietary Medicine—Got Very Little Benefit—Was Influenced to Use South American Nervine—Found Immediate Relief—"The Nervousness Has Entirely Left My System"—"I Will Never Be Without It in My Home."

MR. J. W. DINWOODIE, CAMPBELLFORD, ONT.

Men of affairs usually weigh their words. They are not of that class of people who carry their hearts upon their sleeve. One of the best known men of affairs in Canada is Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, the large railroad contractor, evidence of whose work is to be found in all parts of the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to chain one section of our vast Dominion with another and bring its people into easy touch with each other through the medium of the iron horse, as Mr. Dinwoodie has in a short lifetime done, is a work of which any man may be proud. Hard and brainy labor, however, is necessary to success of this character, and the strongest constitutions are in danger of breaking down under the strain. It has been so with Mr. Dinwoodie. The great thought that he has had to give to his work, and the care and responsibility that it has carried with it finally told on his constitution, and he became a victim of nervous troubles, his liver and kidneys becoming seriously disordered.

Naturally he consulted a medical man. Comparatively no relief was obtained. He changed his doctor, and did not stop with one, two or three physicians, but he got no better. Various proprietary medicines were recommended, and, as he says himself, "Tried them all, but got very little benefit. Last fall I was camping out, and I was feeling very ill. I happened to pick up a paper with the advertisement for South American Nervine. I determined to give it a trial, and procured a bottle from the local druggist. After having taken but a few doses I found very great relief. The severe pain that I had been suffering in the small of my back left me and the nervousness that had rendered me, in a large measure, unfit for work, has as a result of the continued use of Nervine, become banished from my system. I am now able to enjoy refreshing sleep the night through. I keep South American Nervine always in the house, and I do not hesitate to say that it is the very best medicine I have ever taken, and most confidently recommend it to anyone troubled with nervousness of whatever form and the attendant diseases of the liver and stomach that follow this weakness."

The important fact can not be too often emphasized that South American Nervine cures at the nerve centers, from which emanate all diseases. This being an undoubted scientific truth, fully and perfectly demonstrated by science, it is never an experiment to use Nervine, but in this remedy is always found a certain cure.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,

They gave us every one, a kiss,
And said, "be good and mind Mamma,
And we will help you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home.
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife."
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

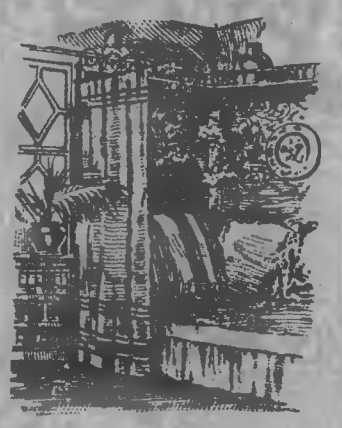
THE GIRL'S SANCTUM.

An Object Lesson in Artistic Furnishing For Youthful Amateurs.

When a girl leaves school, she feels the want of a quiet nook, all her own, where she can retire in her leisure and enjoy those day dreams which are the precious possession of youth. It is not necessary for it to be one of the largest and handsomest rooms in the house—those naturally fall to the lot of the seniors. Some unused bedroom, or even attic, answers the purpose and is transformed by clever fingers into a charming retreat.

A few rolls of paper and a can of enamel paint in the hands of a tasteful amateur will work wonders in the way of wall decoration. A few dollars will purchase Chinese matting or an art square of ingrain for a floor cover, and a dozen yards of cretonne make a brave show when cut up for box and cushion covers. It is convenient to fill the chimney recess with bookshelves painted to correspond with the other woodwork and neatly edged with leather, held by brass nails. A pretty overmantel and a small hanging bracket with a cupboard are other useful additions.

As girls are not as a rule overburdened with superfluous cash and will probably be glad to utilize any available furniture, The Housewife makes these helpful suggestions: Plain tables with a single drawer make quite presentable writing and occasional tables if they are stained or enameled, brass drop handles substituted for the ugly wooden knobs and a square of Japanese leather glued to the top. A plain kitchen table standing firmly on its four legs and entirely covered with a pretty cloth is not an expensive item; neither is an old fashioned pine washing stand, with a narrow shelf and a large cupboard beneath, which can be painted willow green, sparrow's egg blue, amber, primrose yellow or other suitable color and have brass fittings screwed in, when it forms quite a nice sideboard.



CORNER NOOK IN GIRL'S ROOM.

It can be embellished in various ways, but most easily by inserting Japanese leather in the panels of the doors and surrounding these by a hand painted design. Trunks with loose cretonne covers fastened to a feather pillow form useful receptacles and seats. A basket chair nicely cushioned, and a box ottoman couch are also priceless possessions, while the bamboo furniture so largely imported of late lends itself to decoration and is made in a variety of ingenious and useful contrivances, which recommend it for such an apartment.

The authority quoted furnishes these hints concerning the all important corner nook for the girl's study or own room. The curtain is hung from one of those convenient swinging brackets. The wide, low divan with its large pillars may be covered in blue or red linen or any other suitable material. The dwarf bookcase near the divan may be a packing box covered with leather paper. The drapery may be velvet stripes applique on dyed serge and the spindlework around the upper shelf made of empty spools. So the outlines are firm and ample, the effect must be covetable and delightsome. Even the delightful window may be attained by a wood framework laid against the ordinary two or four pane window.

Annual Report of Presbyterian Church.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The congregation of the Presbyterian church, Havelock, held their annual business meeting on Thursday evening, Jan. 31st. The pastor, Rev. Dr. McClelland, presided.

There was a very good attendance of members and adherents. After devotional exercises, the financial statement was read by the treasurer, Mr. A. McAuley, and was satisfactory. The receipts were: Cash on hand from last year, $75.43; contributions per envelope system, $393.57; weekly plate collections, $148.93, and Sunday receipts which gave a total of $882.50. The expenditure was $819.42, leaving a balance on hand of $63.17.

During the last fall the congregation erected and elegant and commodious manse. James Pengelly of Norwood, was the contractor, and discharged his duties to the entire satisfaction of the building committee. The manse report showed receipts by subscription, $444.60; amount raised by mortgage on the manse, $1000; from the Ladies' Aid Society, $85.16; total receipts, $1,529.76. Expenditure—contract of manse, $1,131.27; furnace, $75; sundry expenses, $351.69, making a total expenditure of $1,557.96.

The Sunday school report showed an average attendance of 73. Average weekly offering, 80c. per Sunday, and increase of 31c. per Sunday over last year. Total receipts for year, $96.91, total expenditure, $48.13; balance on hand, Dec. 31st, 1894 $18.78.

The session report, read by Mr. Richard Chiles, showed that during the past year 26 new names were added to the communion roll—6 by certificate and 20 by profession of faith.

There were 4 removals leaving a total membership at date of 92. The number of baptisms was 11.

The report of the Ladies Aid Society, most creditable, organized July 31st, 1894, showed receipts of $113.66 including a balance of $10.71 from a former defunct society. This society donated $85.16 to manse fund.

The board of management was elected for the coming year: W. B. Burnett, chairman; J. H. Gould, secretary; A. McAuley, treasurer; John Carey, A. C. Buchanan, Abraham Waller, John Morrow and James Hendry.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. A. McAuley for his valuable services during the past year as treasurer.

The three trustees of the church property were re-elected.

The chairman then announced he had business of a different nature to perform but informed the audience that it was not a marriage ceremony which was going to take place. He spoke encouragingly of the progress of the choir and the close attention to their duties by the members thereof, and particularly of the organist, Miss Jessie Chiles, whom he invited to come forward, when the following address and presentation was made.

To Miss Jessie Chiles, Organist of Havelock Presbyterian Church:—

We, the minister, elders, members, and adherents of this congregation assembled at this, our annual business meeting, desire to embrace this opportunity of testifying our great appreciation of your valuable, faithful and efficient service as our organist.

Your duties in that capacity are responsible and arduous, but you have discharged them with a regularity and devotion that that reflects great credit upon you.

We do not wish to flatter you in the least or make use of language we do not feel or mean, but we cannot help saying that you have excellent talents as a musician and you have given us the benefit of these talents in a liberal and lagrudging way.

The service of praise in the worship of God is a most important and powerful adjunct to the preaching of the Gospel from the pulpit. This is now almost universally recognized, and while the world skilfully proclaimed it needs to be sustained and supported by proper musical accompaniments.

In all the departments of God's worship and work we should do our best, and at our best we are unprofitable servants and unworthy of the least of God's mercies. We believe you have always done your best and we are much pleased with the manner in which you have always discharged your duties.

We are not able to recompense you as we would like, not to the extent of your merit, but you must take the will for the deed and, therefore, we now ask you now now to accept of this purse as a small token of our appreciation of your services.

May you long be spared to engage in the Master's services and do the work to which he has called you and to spend and to be spent for us who gave His life a ransom for sinners and rose again in order that we might live.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

A. McCLELLAND, Minister.
J. H. GOULD.

The meeting was closed with the benediction, after which coffee and cake was served by the ladies.

RUSKIN AND THE WORKINGMAN.

A Comment on Mr. Murray's Paper Read Before the Fortnightly Club.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—It was a matter of great regret to me that I was unable to attend the late open meeting of the Fornightly Club, but Mr. Murray has kindly allowed me to read his admirable paper on Ruskin, upon which, with your permission, I should like to make a few remarks.

Mr. Murray exactly hit the mark when he entitled his paper "A Prophet of the Century"; for a prophet is one who knows intuitively that he has a message from God for his generation. He may learn many things from others, but all his knowledge is but an auxiliary to the expression of that truth which he has not learnt, but which literally is revealed to him.

There is one word which describes the message of all prophets, viz., Righteousness, and Ruskin was in all things a preacher of Righteousness. But UNRIGHTEOUSNESS was most flagrant, unblushing, and bold in the commercial sphere, and therefore the man of art was constrained to preach commercial righeousness.

All his writings on

are simply the proclamation of the eternal truth, that the well-being of the State, which is the object of political economy, is fundamentally conditioned by its righteousness. Unrighteous, immoral theories as to the laws governing the relations of employer and employed, and the exchange of commodities, were and are still openly acknowledged by men who "profess and call themselves Christians."

These theories were supported by the Science of Political Economy. We were bidden to buy in the lowest, and sell in the highest market, not merely tea and sugar, but labour. LAISSEZ-FAIRE was the watchword of the Manchester School which meant not, "let well alone," but rather LET ILL ALONE. Against all this Ruskin lifted up his voice, he "cried aloud and spared not."

As with the prophets of old, his message was received with scoffing unbelief. Like John the Baptist he was a "VOX CLAMANTIS IN DESERTO." There were perversities, paradoxes and impracticabilities in his political economy—yes, and there are spots on the sun. The wiseacres of Ruskin's day saw the spots, but they could not see the sun. To-day the Manchester School with its gospel—save the mark!—of unlimited competition is utterly discredited, and though it would be going too far to say that Ruskin is the father of modern Political economy, there can be no question that his influence and spirit are permeating all schools of thought and all fields of labour. Nay, a writer by no means an enthusiastic admirer admits that, although until of late "he was seldom treated as a serious political economist, it has recently been admitted that he has actually pointed out some real weaknesses of the old abstract political economy as a scientific theory."

It is easy for anyone, it is comparatively easy for a professional man, to gird at the iniquities connected with modern commercial transactions; easy for a clergyman, because his temptations lie in other directions; yet it is his duty to protest when Christian men declare that it is impossible to conduct business on Christian principles. If this be so, then the foundations of modern society are rotten, and the edifice will inevitably fall to pieces. It was so with Israel of old, it was so with the luxurious and emasculated society of Rome. it was so with France in the last century, and history will repeat itself unless we give heed to its warnings, and hearken to our prophets, amongst whom there is none whose voice is more true, more pure and more melodious than that of John Ruskin.

IT IS SUPERLATIVELY

There can be no more hideous mockery, no viler sin in the sight of God, than to profess the Christian faith on Sunday, and declare it impracticable on Monday. "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things that I say?"

Like the prophets of old, Ruskin was the friend of the poor. But, as Mr. Murray well points out, HE NEVER FLATTERED THEM. He was, I think, a democrat; he was certainly not a demagogue. The working man all over the world is to-day a great power. Let him seek for light, let him not like a blind Samson use his strength to pull down the fabric of the edifice in which he dwells, only to bury himself in its ruins. Education, the indispensable prerequisite for intelligent action, is within his reach. The best writings of the best men are at his command. If he uses his voting power the right and wrong of the question before him, if he uses his voting power simply to aggrandize himself, he will be simply justifying the forecasts of his enemies, and will inevitably bring upon himself a swift retribution.

WITHOUT STUDYING

I believe there are men, men of high gifts, the very best men in our country, who would gladly lay their treasures of knowledge and wisdom at the feet of the workingmen if they would take them. Why should not the workingmen of Peterborough try to secure the services of such men to talk to them on the "Conduct of Life" with a guaranteed audience of two to three hundred BONA FIDE working men? It could be done.

Ruskin, though the true friend of the poor, is equally the guide of those rich or well-born ones, who—and there are many such—truly and earnestly desire the advancement in well-being of the whole community. Because he feared God he flattered none, but to all alike spoke the simple truth. The aristocrat or plutocrat, (and the latter is likely to be the worse of the two), who seeks to seclude himself altogether from the company of those whom he deems his inferiors, who cares nothing for their interests, who knows nothing of their aspirations and thoughts, is an offender against the essential spirit of the Gospel, but in no less a degree is the demagogue, who seeks to poison the mind of the poor against the rich or the well born as such, and who aims, not to raise the level of all classes, but to pull down the cultivated, the gentle, the courteous, the educated, to the level of his own vulgarity.

MEDICAL MEN

Devote Time to Discussing the Prevalence of Bright's Disease, its Causes and Cure.

Toronto, Feb. 6th.—A local medical society has lately devoted considerable of its time to discussing Bright's disease, its causes and its cure. The alarming prevalence of this disease has called forth this discussion, and the many cures of the case effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills have been investigated by the society. Here are some of those examined into: Dr. A. G. McCormack, Richmond, Que.; James Blair, Napanee; Mrs. J. Oliver, Phillipsville; Mrs. F. Brown, Toronto; W. Langley, London, and A. Coley, Somerset, Man. The doctors are perfectly satisfied from the evidence supplied them that each was a genuine case of Bright's disease, and that every case was thoroughly cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Justice Gayner Gives His Opinion of the Trolley Trouble.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—Hon. Wm. J. Gayner, justice of the Supreme Court, has written a letter to the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration, in which in discussing the circumstances attending the Brooklyn trolley strike he says:

"In the immediate dispute which led to the conflict between the companies and the men, I see nothing worthy of serious attention. The dispute was too small not to have been settled easily, except for the inflamed condition brought on by the attempt to create vast inflated wealth on the one side being met by justly aroused uneasiness and apprehension on the other. Under healthy conditions the dispute would not have lasted an hour, if it arose at all. I remind you that in the case of the other two large companies here, the same dispute was settled at once. Until the cause is removed, it is idle to try to prevent the effects. I submit this in the hope that it may promote thought and do some good."

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 6, 1895.

All of the news in Chicago was favorable to an advance in wheat and the close was firm at 7-8c to 1c higher for May with sales of cash 1-8c higher. Corn advanced 1-2c to 1c for cash and the futures respectively, and oats gained 1-2c to 5-8c.

The East Buffalo live stock market closed strong; all sold.

The London stock market was quiet and steady. Americans opened firm, but gave way on a belief that the negotiations for a loan had been temporarily suspended. There was a slight recovery at the close. Nothing definite is learned here about the the American loan.

The delay in announcing the completion of the negotiations for the sale of a block of new bonds by the Government operated against the New York stock market again. There was no pronounced pressure to sell, however, and the decline which took place during the early hours of 1-4 to 3 1-8 per cent. was due to the desire on the part of traders to accept profits as well as to reduce their lines so as to be in shape to take advantage of new developments at Washington. There was also a tendency to restrict operations until the House disposed of the Springer bill.

PULLMAN GOES SOUTH

The Palace Car President Objects to Appearing in Court.

EUGENE DEBS GIVES EVIDENCE

He Disclaims Ever Having Advised or Even Countenanced Interference With State Mails—He Defends the Existence of the Railway Union.

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—It was expected that George M. Pullman would take the stand in the opening of the Debs case yesterday, but the Marshal reported he could not find him and that it was his belief that the palace car president was in his office part of the day but refused to allow the officer to gain admission to his presence. Later it is claimed Mr. Pullman took a train to Florida.

Eugene V. Debs was the principal witness of the day. He told the story of his life from the time when at 14 years of age he became fireman of a locomotive down to the organization of the American Railway Union and his election as president at a salary of $2,000 a year. Mr. Debs said the object of the organization was to unite warring factions of railroad employes and make their cause a common one against the General Managers Association. This was made necessary by the fact that the large roads were constantly swallowing the small ones and a movement was on foot to reduce wages.

When he first heard of the troubles at Pullman, Mr. Debs sent Vice-President Howard there and told him to avert the threatened strike if possible. He stated further that during the continuance of the strike he was at no time guilty of any violation of the Federal law nor did at any time from the first meeting of the A.R.U. until the end of the strike countenance any acts of violence or advise any one to violate the laws of the nation, the state laws or any city ordinance. He emphatically stated that at all meetings his words were to the effect that under no circumstances must mail trains be interfered with.

Before court adjourned Attorney Gregory for the defence requested Judge Grosscup to order an investigation concerning the Marshal's inability to serve George M. Pullman.

COLOMBIAN REVOLUTION.

Sinews of War for the Rebels Provided From Outside Sources.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The Tribune says: Private cable advices received in this city and information gathered here show that the revolutionists in Colombia have secured $4,000,000 from outside sources to carry on the fight. This, with the money they had already secured, will do much toward supplying them with the sinews of war, which the government party so sadly lack.

Private advices show that the revolutionists are growing more hopeful every day and think that by separating the Roman Church from the government of the republic they will be able to place their country in a comparatively advanced position, similar to that of Mexico. The church, headed by the Archbishop of Bogota, is a strong ally of the government party.

A Double Tragedy in New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—A double tragedy occurred in the Germania hotel, at 116 Greenwich street, a resort for immigrants of the poorer classes. William Becker, aged 30, was murdered there by Carl Fenecke, with whose wife Becker is said to have been intimate at one time. After killing Becker, Fenecke killed himself, shooting himself through the heart. Becker was shot in the back of the head. Fenecke and his victim arrived here from Hamburg on Sunday.

A Sad Story of Suffering.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Feb. 7.—A pathetic story comes from Coga Valley, this county, three children, ranging from six to two years, were found alone in their home with the body of their dead mother, having survived the cold and privation two days and two nights. The husband left Sunday for a lumber camp, and returning last night he found his wife dead in a chair and the almost frozen and famished children huddled together in a bed.

German Claims in Samoa.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—The Post, the favorite organ of the Foreign Office, says: "The Tripartite Land committee in Samoa has concluded its work. The result is that the German claims are almost completely recognized and the excessive demands of the British and American only most moderately. The districts granted to the Germans are far better suited for cultivation than are the others."

ANTIPODEAN FEDERATION.

The Premier's Conference Decides Upon the Measures to be Adopted.

HOBARTTOWN, Tasmania, Feb. 7.—The Premiers' conference has approved the Federation bill drawn by Premier G. Turner, of Victoria, and Premier Kingston, of South Australia. Premier G. H. Reid, of New South Wales, will introduce the bill in the Assembly in Sydney. After its passage there it will be submitted to the other assemblies. The title is "The Australian Federation Enabling Act."

The bill provides for a convention which shall draft a Federal constitution, ten delegates being elected by popular vote in each colony. When three or more colonies shall have chosen their delegates the convention shall be called and after framing the constitution shall adjourn to allow the colonies time to criticise the document. After final amendment and adoption the constitution shall be submitted to a referendum in each colony. If it be endorsed by three colonies it shall be submitted for Imperial sanction.

The postal conference upon resuming work resolved that steamers operated by colored laborers should be excluded in the future from English mail contracts.

The Enabling Act provides that if she chooses New Zealand also may be included in the Federation.

GREAT COLD IN GREAT BRITAIN.

England and Scotland Suffer Severely—Live Stock Dying.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The cold which is now being experienced throughout the Kingdom is the most severe that has been felt for years. The thermometer in the Midlands averages six degrees below zero.

Strong gales are reported from Queenstown and a heavy sea has been running since Friday. Many vessels are taking shelter at Queenstown and other ports.

In the Scotch Highlands snow has fallen almost incessantly. The roads are blocked and railway travel is impossible. All the travel by land or water has stopped north of Inverness on Moray Firth. Barns and sheds have been isolated by the drifts. Many cattle are dying under cover. Thousands of sheep and deer have perished from cold and hunger or from suffocation in the drifts. Small game has suffered more than before in ten years. The blizzard is driving the grouse seaward in great quantities.

Many deaths of aged and infant poor are reported from the midland counties. The gale has wrecked several fishing boats off the Fife and Berwick coasts and six or seven men were drowned.

REWARDED THE RESCUERS.

A Donation to the Captain and Crew of the Wild Flower.

BREMEN, Feb. 7.—The North German Lloyd steamship company has donated 2,000 marks to the captain and crew of the British fishing vessel Wild Flower which picked up the survivors of the Elbe.

LONDON, Feb. 7. — A fishing smack brought to Lowestoft last evening a trunk containing clothes, books and letters marked with the name of Charles Wix. The trunk was picked up about 30 miles off Lowestoft. Wix was a first cabin passenger on the Elbe. His home was in Orange, N. J.

The Hayward Murder Case.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 7.—In the Hayward case, Blixt, the self-confessed murderer, was on the stand for cross-examination until he complained of a severe headache, and was excused with the understanding that he should be called again to-day. Mrs. Blixt was next called. She testified that Blixt and Hayward had held many conferences, but she never knew what they were about. About 11 o'clock on the night of the murder Hayward came to their bedroom and called to Blixt, "Are you asleep?" About 3 o'clock he came downstairs, and, calling to Blixt, said: "That girl on the fifth floor has been murdered. She was murdered for her money. Is not that too bad? I am afraid my $7,000 is lost. I wonder if I'd better go and tell the insurance people in the morning. And they don't know who did it. They have no clue."

May Trade Under the Wilson Bill.

BUFFALO, Feb. 7.—The notable increase of trade with Canada under the new tariff law is shown by the Buffalo customs house figures on hay—an article now dutiable at $2 per ton and at $4 per ton under the McKinley bill. For three months ending December 31st last, 880 tons valued at $6,313 were imported, while for the same period under the McKinley law there was only 140 tons. The average value was a trifle over $8.50 per ton and about the same in each year. Hay has been but one of the minor articles of import for many years here, but imports from the Province of Quebec into northern New York and the New England States have always been considerable.

Bold Attempt to Rob a Bank.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 7.—An attempt was made to rob the First National Bank of East Portland shortly after noon yesterday. J. C. Reed, a sensational preacher, entered the bank, and, taking from his pocket a package, said to the cashier: "This is enough nitro-glycerine to blow you and me to hell." Before the cashier could act Reed bound and gagged him. The cashier of another bank across the street, noticing that something was wrong, picked up a shotgun and ran to the First National. He found the doors locked, but got the drop on the preacher through a window. The cashier was then liberated and the preacher taken to jail. He is believed to be insane.

Suing For Loss of a Vessel.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—The owners of the schooner Abraham W. Hendry and John Millard, of Liverpool, N. S., have libelled the steamer Cheateahooh; $24,500 damages is asked for loss of the vessel, cargo and effects of the crew. The schooner was bound from Ponce, P. R., for Boston. The steamer was bound for Savannah, Ga. The collision took place in the fog off Nantucket south shoals lightship July 26, 1894.

IS FOUR DAYS OVERDUE

Anxiety Increases as to the Fate of the Steamer La Gascogne.

NO NEWS HAS BEEN RECEIVED

The Teutonic and Circassian Are Also Overdue and it is Hoped Have Fallen in With the Missing Vessel and Are Rendering Her Assistance.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—No encouraging news to the many anxious friends of the passengers on board the overdue steamer La Gascogne had been received up to midnight and all kinds of conjectures as to the cause of the delay are indulged in. The White Star steamer Teutonic which sailed from Queenstown January 31 has not yet been sighted and it is thought possible that she may have fallen in with the La Gascogne and finding her in a disabled condition is assisting her into port. The Anchor liner Circassian, which sailed from Glasgow January 25, should have reached this port Monday, but has not yet arrived, and it is among the possibilities that she has fallen in with the La Gascogne. No steamers from Europe arrived yesterday.

La Gascogne is now four days overdue and news from some point regarding her is hourly expected. Her agents express the utmost confidence in her ultimately turning up safe, if not altogether sound. The United Press received a cablegram from Bermuda last night to the effect that La Gascogne had not been sighted off that coast. There are on board 39 cabin and more than 125 steerage passengers.

THE LINWOOD CASE.

Arrest of the Man and Woman Who Are Implicated.

BRAYTON, Ont., Feb. 7.—Constable C. W. Parcill, of Linwood, was in town on the track of the man and woman who, as reported, are the parties implicated in the disappearance of a child at Linwood the other day. Constable T. Flath, Drayton, arrested the man and woman near Goldstone and turned them over to Constable Parcill. The man gives the name of Archibald Dancy, Holt, P.O., and says the woman is his wife. They are tramping through the country begging, but deny having a child with them when in or near Linwood, and say they went into the woods and built a fire because they were refused shelter at some farmhouse and were cold. Constable Parcill left with the prisoners for Linwood.

The Elopement Case.

HALIFAX, Feb. 7.—Miss Gertrude Bentley, who eloped with John Brown, an English tutor, has evidently more admirers than one. It is now known her father wanted her to marry a man named John Winship. Yesterday Detective Power was handed a cable which had come from England. It was signed by Winship, who stated if Miss Bently returned he would forgive her and marry her. Brown has left Halifax. Those in whose custody Miss Bentley was have decided not to make known her whereabouts till they hear that Brown has passed Toronto. A telegram has been sent to the Chief of Police at Toronto saying Brown had left and the time the train would likely arrive there. Should Brown arrive at Toronto the Chief of Police is requested to notify Detective Power.

The Other Tyrrell Asked to Lend It.

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 7.—J. W. Tyrrell, C. E., has been requested by an American society to state on what terms he will take charge of an expedition for the Arctic regions to leave in the spring and explore Ellesmere land and to search for Bjorling and Kollstenius, two Swedish explorers who are lost in that region. It is proposed to form a depot of supplies at the head of Baffins Bay and from that point explore westward, covering about 1,000 miles by dog sleighs and return to the depot. Mr. Tyrell has had great success in previous explorations to the north and will probably accept the offer if his terms are agreed to.

Fire at Port Dalhousie.

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., Feb. 7.—Fire broke out in the frame house owned by John Howe, sr., of this place. John Howe, jr., the only occupant of the house at the time, narrowly escaped with his life. The adjoining house owned by Mrs. M. J. Irwin who keeps a boarding house was also consumed. There was no insurance on Mrs. Irwin's building or furniture; probable loss $2,000. Mr. Howe's loss will amount to about $1,500 with insurance on house for $350. Several men had their ears, fingers and feet frozen while working at the fire.

An Ex-Policeman Charged With Murder.

WINDSOR, Ont. Feb. 7.—The man arrested in Cleveland a few weeks ago charged with murder and giving the name of Johnson, has been identified as an ex-policeman of Windsor name Maike. He was on the Windsor police force in 1890-91 and was dropped for being absent from duty. There is nothing else against him there and a movement is on foot to get him released, as his character has heretofore been good and it is not believed by his friends in Windsor and Detroit that he is guilty.

A Hamilton Butcher in Trouble.

HAMILTON, Feb. 7.—John Scollard, a butcher who left here on Saturday suspiciously after getting $100 from his employer to pay for meat, has not been heard from, although he is believed to be in Toronto. It is known that a woman who is not his wife has been writing him from Toronto asking for money. His wife reported to the police that he had sent one girl away in advance and takes another with him.

NORWOOD NEWS NOTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. Wm. Richardson, jr., is seriously ill at his residence, Peterborough street.

Mr. T. Bidpath is spending a few days in Norwood.

Mr. Jas. Masterson, Burnley, is attending the High School here.

Epworth League of Methodist church will meet Sunday evenings instead of Monday evening as formerly.

Norwood orchestra will assist at Sara Lord Bailey entertainment in the town hall next Thursday night.

The hockey club meets several evenings a week for practice at the rink.

Last Saturday's Toronto Globe contained a photograph of Knox College football team. Among them were excellent portraits of Messrs. F. D. Roxburgh and F. Rutherford, two former Norwood players. This is one of the strongest teams in Ontario. Mr. Roxburgh is captain and he and Mr. Rutherford play a very strong game on left wing.

The following are the names of successful pupils at the recent promotion examinations. Names in order of merit:

PART I. TO PART II.

Clara Cumming, John Graham, Howard Robertson, Fred Cumming, Davie Thompson, Lily Stuart, Winnie Fleury, Charlie Stephenson, Charlie Hampton, Beverly Doucett, Arthur McKay, Sydney White, Charlie Searight, Walter Newall, Flora Hetherington.

PART II. TO II. BOOK.

Bert C[illegible], Zilda McNaughton, Susie Stephenson, Nellie Davies, Fleda Patterson, Hattie Fry, Albert Scriver, Willie Cook, Edgar Robertson, Hughie Puffer, Addie Burley.

Recommended—Myrtle Robertson, Tom Puffer, Flossie Anderson.

II. BOOK TO III. BOOK.

Walter Conway, Pearl Chandler, Ella Mahoney, Edgar Nibel, Edward Searight, Ethel Gear, John Morrow, Eddie Bongard, Charlie Aspey, Gordon Beavis, Ella Patterson, Edgar Walker, Eva Patterson, Mary Doherty, Mabel Newall, Mary Harrison, Charlie McNicholl.

III. BOOK TO IV. BOOK.

Regina Fry, Henry Nicoll, James Freeman, Annie Rogers, Frank Reynolds, Gerald Roxburgh, Stewart Barbary, James Kellett, Geraldine Fallon, Winnie Pengelly, Boyd Hampton, John Anderson, Lillie McGregor, Rose Squire, Florence McMaster.

The council met in the town hall on Monday evening, all the members present. The reeve read a circular in connection with local option in taxation, also a petition to the Legislature in that behalf. Moved by Councillors Drain and Stuart, that the petition be signed and forwarded as requested. Councillor Reynolds moved in amendment that no action be taken. Councillor Drain's motion carried. The following accounts were presented for payment: Jas. Jotcham, $3.45; A. S. Harrison, $2; J. Robinson, $5.25. The following tenders for chairs were opened: C. J. Searight, chairs from 32 to 40c. each; P. A. Minaker, 34 to 39½c. per chair. Moved by Councillors Drain and Reynolds, that the lowest tender be accepted, chairs to correspond with chairs in the hall.—Carried. This gives the contract to Mr. Searight. The reeve introduced the matter of the Children's Aid Society, stating that the Society wished him to sign a paper giving the constable of the Society authority to act in Norwood. On motion, the reeve was recommended to sign the order. Councillors Reynolds and Drain moved that the clerk advertise for tenders for 30,000 feet of pine plank, 5,000 feet of cedar 4x4 scantling, and 150 pieces of round cedar, to be at least 8 inches across the top end.—Carried.

PATRONS OF INDUSTRY.

The Election of Officers Took Place at the Annual Meeting.

The Patrons of Industry of the East and West Ridings of the County held their annual meeting in the Town Council Chamber Tuesday afternoon.

There were present Messrs. R. Tadhope, Westwood, president; Jas. Middleton, Peterborough, vice-president; Wm. F. Grylls, Lakefield, secretary-treasurer, and the following delegates:

Cold Springs, Otonabee—Dawson Kennedy.
Mount View, Asphodel—Wm. Oakman.
Elm Grove, Otonabee—R. Gillespie.
Oak Leaf, Otonabee—Wm. Nelson.
Last Chance, Otonabee—Wm. Brasley.
Farmers' Friend, Otonabee—H. T. Moore.
Union Hall, Monaghan — Andrew Young.
Justice, Dummer—Wm. Davis.

The officers were elected as follows:
President—Dawson Kennedy.
Vice-President—Jas. Middleton.
Secretary-Treasurer—W. F. Grylls.
Sentinel—Wm. Oakman.
Executive Committee — President, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, J. G. Weir and W. A. Barnard.
Auditors—Wm. Oakman and Jas. Middleton.
Delegate to Grand Association.—Mr. Dawson Kennedy.

The selection of candidates to contest in the East and West Ridings in the Dominion elections was postponed until a future meeting to be held at the call of the president.

A Pretty Face

Is the result of a healthy physical condition. "Beauty is but skin deep" yet it greatly depends on a clear complexion free from wrinkles and hollow cheeks.

Health always brings wealth of beauty. A healthy state of the system comes with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine prepared for woman's ailments—it cures those derangements and weaknesses which make woman's life miserable.

A woman who neglects to take proper exercise is particularly prone to excessive congestion, debility and a sluggish circulation. This is the time we advise the "Prescription." In all derangements and displacements of the special organs which result in "signs of inflammation," in catarrhal discharges from the lining membranes, and in distressing irregularities—this medicine is guaranteed to cure, or the money will be returned.

Signs of worms are variable appetite, itching at the nose, etc. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup is the best worm expeller.

Catarrh Relieved in 10 to 60 Minutes

One short puff of the breath through the Blower, supplied with each bottle of Dana's Catarrhal Powder, diffuses this Powder over the surface of the nasal passages. Painless and delightful to use, it relieves instantly, and permanently cures Catarrh Hay Fever, Colds, Headache, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis and Deafness. 50 cents. At all druggists.

BELMONT COUNCIL.

The council met at the Town Hall on Monday, the 21st January, 1895. Present, J. B. Peoples, Reeve; J. L. Aunger, Deputy Reeve; and Messrs. Sexsmith, Caskey and Wilson, Councillors.

Application of Chas. Chase in the matter of Joseph Covert. Statement of Mr. Covert; Mr. Covert is a great deal more trouble than he was; he was about helpless, would rather some other person kept him.

On motion of Mr. Aunger that Charles Covert be paid the sum of $9 for support of Joseph Covert from the 15th December, 1894, to the 15th January, 1895.

Applications for assessor were received as follows:—James Wilde, Joseph Doupe, J. A. Allan.

A By-law to appoint certain township officers received its several readings was passed and signed.

Officers:—Joseph Doupe, assessor; J. W. Burgess and W. J. W. Melville, auditors.

Applications for clerk:—John Wright, salary, $60; Andrew Hay, salary, $60; received and laid over.

Application of John Rupart to purchase timber on 4 concession line, Belmont, opposite lots 22 and 23. Would give $4 for said timber. On motion of Mr. Aunger that Mr. Rupart have the above timber for $4 and have one year from date to cut and remove said timber, the money to be paid before any timber is cut.

On motion of Co. Caskey that the resolution of council passed on the 15th December, 1894, selling timber on 1 concession line, Methuen, opposite lot 2 to N. Vanvolkenburg be rescinded as the said timber has sold to Jas. Vansickle.

LASSWADE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.

Messrs. Bell and McKee were the guests of Mrs. Simpson of last week.

We regret to chronicle the demise of Mr. Robert McGill, who died at the residence of his father-in-law, Mr. Wilson, on Sunday, Jan. 27th, after an illness of only a few hours. The deceased gentleman was clerk of the township of Chandos and had taught school for the last three years. He was very highly esteemed by all who knew him, and his sorrowing wife and family will have the sympathy of the whole community in their sad bereavement.

A very successful tea meeting was held here on Friday, Jan. 25th. Rev. Mr. Coon, of Coe Hill contributed greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. During the intermission an election cakes was disposed of.

The following interesting programme was rendered:—

NEW YEAR NEW GOODS NEW LEAF 1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will set off cheap.

HUSTLING HAVELOCK.

Annual Report of Presbyterian Church.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. J. N. Miller, Peterborough, representing piano and organ firms, has been in the village for the past week.

Miss McCabe, of Peterborough, gold medalist for the piano, is stopping at the Queen's Hotel. She has a number of pupils and is giving the best satisfaction.

Miss Raddon, organist Presbyterian church, Norwood, visits twice a week, when she gives lessons on the organ.

Mr. T. Smith, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, is busily engaged buying wood for Mr. T. G. Hazlitt, of Peterborough.

Mrs. A. Mathieson has resigned her position as caretaker of the Presbyterian church.

The posters are out for the concert to be held in Drains new hall on the 22nd inst. By all appearances it is going to be the best of the season.

On Friday evening a Pink Social was held, under the auspices of the English church, at Mr. J. McKeown's home. A large number of the young people and some of the old folks of the town were in attendance and spent a most enjoyable evening.

The roads are in very good condition at present and farmers are busily engaged hauling in wood and logs.

Mr. Mackay, of Campbellford, who has been at the Queen's hotel for the past few months, introducing his famous medicine for the cure of rheumatism and Catarrh, is doing a rushing business.

Business has been rushing on the C.P.R. for the past week. The recent heavy fall of snow hindered traffic for a few days, but when the tracks were cleared there was a sudden rush of trains.

Thursday evening the Laing Bros. gave a phonograph concert in the Methodist church which was a fine musical treat. The proceeds were placed to the funds of the church.

The funeral of the late Mr. John Geeney, who died Friday, after a long sickness, took place on Sunday at 3 p.m. The remains were interred in the Havelock new cemetery. A very large funeral.

A hockey team has been organized in this town. The next thing that should be attended to is a gymnasium and club-rooms.

Mr. Hugh Dryden has been appointed delegate from Havelock Court of Maccabees, No. 212, to the annual high court to be held at Sarnia on April 11th. Hugh is the right man in the right place, and will make an intelligent and useful representative.

The Flynn House is now one of the most comfortable village hotels in the country. Special accommodation is provided for commercial travellers. A very convenient sample room is provided, the rooms are neatly furnished and comfortably heated, and the table is well supplied.

A TRIP TO SOUTH MONAGHAN.

A Merry Party of Peterborough Young People Enjoy a Trip to the Country.

A big sleigh load of young people under the chaperonage of Mrs. Andrew Macfarlane and Mr. John Stanger drove out to the country on Friday last to the residence of Mr. Jos. Byers, South Monaghan, near Baillieboro. The night was cold and the drive a long one, but the hospitality which awaited all at the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Byers, the Misses Byers and Mr. Fred Byers was ample recompense for the rather lengthy trip. An orchestra was present and the evening was spent most enjoyably in dancing and playing cards. A number of young people residing in the neighbourhood were present on the occasion, and as the hosts, with great aforethought had removed the carpeting from a large room, the dancers had a merry time indeed. Although it was 7 o'clock in the morning when the Peterborough sleigh load arrived back in town, yet all look forward with pleasure to the acceptance of Mr. and Mrs. Byers' kind invitation to repeat the trip at some future date.

They do not Despair.

An utter loss of hope is not characteristic of Consumptives, though no other form of disease is so fatal, unless its progress is arrested by use of Scott's Emulsion, which is Cod Liver Oil made as palatable as cream.

Relief in Six Hours.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

On Friday evening a very exciting curling match took place between "Quills" and "Pills." There was a large attendance to witness the game. The following is the result:

Quills.	Pills.
E B Tate.	J L Medlin.
J Clarke.	F X Fortin.
F R P Barlee.	W A Eastland.
J W Ridpath, skip..12	E A Tanner, skip....11

Giving one of a majority in favour of Quills.

A rally of the Local Union of Christian Endeavour will be held on Friday evening at a quarter to eight o'clock in the Presbyterian church. A good programme is being prepared to which all are cordially invited.

Mr. H. T. Strickland, of Peterborough, was in the village on Friday.

Mrs. A. J. Fitzgerald of Norwood was in Lakefield this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McWilliams were in the village last week.

Miss Amy McWilliams, who has been visiting friends in Peterborough, returned home last Wednesday.

Miss Maud Baptie has returned home, after spending a month with her sister, Mrs. Stevenson, at Norwich.

Messrs. Baptie and Bowen have started a new bakery and confectionery store next to T. Hendren's furniture store.

Rev. W. Limbert, of the Methodist church, and Rev. A. C. Reeves, B.A., of the Presbyterian church, exchanged pulpits on Sunday evening.

On Monday the change of time of the arrival and departure of the trains came into effect. The change makes it very convenient now for the people of Peterborough, Ashburnham, Auburn and Nassau to take a run up to Lakefield and make their purchases with the Lakefield merchants, who are in a position to sell goods at such prices as to make it an object for the people of the places mentioned to do their trading here. The train arrives at 9.35 a.m., and leaves at 12.05 p.m., giving two and a half hours in which to make your purchases.

Munro Camp, No. 150, S. O. S., will meet in the Orange Hall on Thursday evening of next week.

The Sunshine Mission Band of the Methodist church held a very pleasant social at the house of Mr. William Abbott in Doure on Monday evening.

OMEMEE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Coldest weather in the history of the oldest citizen.

The town was quite excited and considerably annoyed over the Wylie-Cardwell case, caused by the seizure of a piano from Cardwell, owned by Jackson & Co., Peterborough, which Peterborough parties were chiefly interested in. The final police court trial comes off to-day (Wednesday), when Chas. Henderson, of Omemee, is under bail to answer to the charge of seriously wounding Mr. Wylie, bailiff, of Peterborough, while discharging his duties at the advice of Jackson & Co., of Peterborough, in taking a piano from the Cardwell House.

Township council sittings yesterday—Chas. Cornell, collector for the last five years, has also been appointed assessor, notwithstanding six other applications.

At the first meeting of the village council, Wm. McCrea was appointed chief constable instead of John Sheridan.

Mr. Aaron Cox, of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company was here on Monday and transacted quite a lot of business together with J. D. Thornton. This company is negotiating loans on the most reasonable conditions on good real estate.

WIDE AWAKE WARSAW.

An Important Dairy Enterprise Inaugurated.

On Tuesday, Feb. 2nd, the organization of the Warsaw Cheese and Buttar factory was held. This joint company, which has $1,940 of stock subscribed, marks a new era of enterprise in the promotion of day work in this vicinity. The organization was effected by the election of the following board of directors:—Messrs. E. Hawthorne, reeve of Dummer, Henry Smith, S. R. Payne, J. Edwards, and P. Fitzpatrick. At a subsequent meeting of the Board the following officers were selected:

President—E. Hawthorne.
Vice-President—Henry Smith.
Secretary—S B Payne.

This project has been under consideration for some time. It is the intention of the company to push the dairyin business to its utmost capacity in the section. During the summer cheese will be manufactured, and butter making during the winter—in fact all that can be got out of the business will be got out. The company will act as a separator to extract all the cream possible from the dairying industry.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet emergency.

Cause and Effect.

Neglected colds cause coughs, throat troubles, bronchitis, and consumption. These troubles can only be cured by the prompt use of Norway Pine Syrup, the best throat and lung remedy in the world

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria

Norway Pine Syrup strengthens the lungs and cures all throat troubles, coughs, colds, etc.

A Tornado Predicted for Saturday.

The EXAMINER gave the following notice of that excellent production, "The Tornado," when it was played here last season :—"The opera house was well filled last night from stage to gallery to witness the production of Lincoln J. Carter's great scenic play, "The Tornado." The scenic embellishments in all the thrilling scenes and original situations were well put on, when the depth and breadth of the stage are taken into account. The great tornado scene in act one and scene three of act two, entitled, "Up in the rigging of the steamship Erma furling sail," was quite realistic. The steamship collision was exciting, and the view of pier at the end of Randolph street, Chicago, was brilliant, while the great fire scene and the laughingly hurried escape of the inmates in their night clothes caught the audience capitally and a paroxysm of merriment seemed to seize the spectators, who laughed to their hearts' content." At Bradburn's Opera House, Saturday night. Prices 25, 35 and 50c. Box seats 75c. 1d

CONTENTS OF A STORE WINDOW DESTROYED.

A Blaze in Mr. J. T. Stenson's Premises Last Evening.

Last evening as Mr. J. C. Stenson's boy was about to light the gas jet in the south window of the store the match which he struck on the wall broke off just as it became ignited and fell amongst the cotton batting, with which the flooring of the window was spread.

The inflammable batting was in a blaze in an instant and before water could be procured the contents of the window, consisting of a number of pairs of fine ladies shoes, valued at $75 or $100, were destroyed.

Several pails of water quenched the flames and prevented them spreading to the rest of the store.

Mr. Stenson is fully protected from loss the value of the goods destroyed being fully covered by a policy with the Western Fire Assurance Company, Cox & Davis, being the local agents.

PERSONAL.

Miss Minnie Jones is convalescing after a very severe attack of quinsy.

Rev. Father Dube, formerly of the Cathedral clergy, and now of Arthur, Ont., was in town on a few days visit to friends, and returned home this morning.

This morning Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rev. C. B. Kenrick and Rev. Mr. Hedley left to attend the convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which is being held in Woodstock.

Mr. John Karr, of the Globe reportorial staff is in town to-day. He is handling the reports of the meetings of the touring cabinet ministers in the interests of his paper. Mr. Jackson is representing the Mail.

Mr. John O'Meara, of Ottawa, is in town to-day. Mr. O'Meara has been requested by a number of Conservatives of Ottawa, to allow his name to go before the convention and has the matter under consideration.

Miss Violet Dixon, it is learned, has never been able to rally from the shock which she experienced at the time of the burning of her uncle's residence in the Northwest last month, and is sinking with a slow decline.

The many friends of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Shorey in town, will be pleased to learn that all the members of the family, who recently suffered from an attack of a most virulent type of diphtheria, are out of danger, with the exception of Master Arthur, who is still critically ill, though hopes are entertained of his recovery.

Rev. Mr. Loucks, formerly curate in charge of St. John's South Ward Mission, was in town last evening and conducted service at the Mission, where the congregation accorded him a warm welcome. Mr. Loucks was on his way through to attend the convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in session at Woodstock.

The firm of Cox & Davis has, with that enterprise and energy which always characterises its actions, secured the services of Mr. Geo. K. Martin, Montreal, to take charge of the local business of the Canada Life Insurance Company. Mr. Martin is well known and has many friends in Peterborough, who will be most pleased to learn that he is about to take up his residence in town. He was formerly Inspector for the British Empire Insurance Company, and is rated one of the best insurance men in the Province.

HOCKEY.

Peterborough's name as far as hockey is concerned, was ably upheld by the Collegiate Institute team when it defeated the Harbord street Collegiate seven of Toronto by a score of 9 to 7 goals last night. The game was very closely contested from the start and many were doubtful which team would win. Lionel King played a star game and deserves a great deal of the credit for Peterborough's success. Crossley and Belleghem also played a very fine game. On the visiters' team the play of Snell, Davidson and Burns was much admired, and Sadler deserves great praise for the manner in which he attended to the goal.

In the first half of the game the local team seemed to forget that they were the masters of a splendid combination and depended more upon individual play. As the visitors excelled in this style of game the Peterborough Collegians were kept on the defense to such an extent as to mar their own chances of scoring. In the second half the local boys regained their heads and played as pretty a combination game as was ever seen in the rink. The game developed into one, the characteristic of which was the dash and brilliancy with which the Peterborough team carried everything before them. [illegible], Belleghem, Crossley or Davidson would come out of a scrimmage with the puck and a cheer would announce that the rubber was being carried to the Toronto's flags. Checking was of no avail, as by the time a local man was stopped by one of the visitors the puck had been accurately shot across the rink and was safe in the keeping of one of the other forwards. Again and again did the Peterboroughs outwit their adversaries in this manner, and while the Toronto's probably excelled in individual play yet as good as the local Collegians began to get their combination in order the visitors were almost powerless to stand before them.

The Toronto team were late in arriving, as the local express on the C.P.R. was about an hour late, caused by the road being blocked by snow, and members of the visiting team state that they had to help to shovel their way down here. It was shortly after 9 o'clock when the referee called the teams to line up. The teams were composed as follows :

Peterborough.		Toronto.
Hamilton	goal	Sadler
Lewis	point	King
Poussette	cover point	Burns
Davidson	forwards	Archibald
Crossley		Cooey
Belleghem		Davidson
King		Small (capt.)
W J English	Umpire	C Moodill

Walter Phelan—Referee.

At the sound of the referee's whistle the play began. Toronto secured the puck and soon had it down close to Peterborough's goal, but Crossley got hold of it and passed it to King, who succeeded in scoring the first game for Peterborough. Toronto followed up very well and kept the local team hustling. Snell finally got the front of Peterborough's goal open and scored by a very fine shot. King scored the next game for Peterborough and the spectators were by this time greatly excited and their enthusiasm rose still higher when Toronto scored the fourth game. This made a tie. It was now that Peterborough's defence got "a little off." They could not get the rubber at all and the result was that the following three games were scored against them. In fact the seventh game was scored for the Torontos by Davidson of Peterborough, who skated right through the goal with the puck. The eighth game was scored by Crossley for Peterborough, and the referee called half-time. The score now stood 5 to 3 in Toronto's favour.

After a short intermission had elapsed, the teams again lined up, and it was seen that a change had been made in the placing of the local team. Belleghem faced off in place of Crossley, and it was a great improvement, and the Toronto team did not seem to be "in it" for a minute. Peterborough played well, following up better, and did not, as was the case in the first half, hold the puck too long. One result was that the first five games in the last half were placed to Peterborough's credit, while the eighth and last game Toronto succeeded in scoring.

The following is the summary of the games :—

Game.	Team.	Scorer.
1	Peterborough	King
2	Toronto	Snell
3	Peterborough	King
4	Toronto	Archibald
5	Toronto	Snell
6	Toronto	Davidson
7	Toronto	Cooey
8	Peterborough	Crossley
9	Peterborough	King
10	Peterborough	Crossley
11	Peterborough	King
12	Peterborough	King
13	Peterborough	Belleghem
14	Toronto	Snell
15	Peterborough	King
16	Toronto	Snell

Peterborough, 9; Toronto, 7.

NOTES.

The Toronto team are a fine lot of fellows, and played a very gentlemanly game, no roughness being shown during the entire match.

Referee Phelan's decisions were given without fear, favour or affection and were very satisfactory.

Peterborough Collegiate can now say they have the strongest Collegiate Hockey team in the province.

As is usual, there were a number of offsides, but last night the number was excessive.

"Mac" McIntosh filled the office of timekeeper. He was pretty close on time.

Consumption—Low Condition

Wonderful Results From Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Miss Hannah Wyatt
Toronto, Ont.

"Four years ago while in the old country (England), my daughter Hannah was sent away from the hospital, in a very low condition with consumption of the lungs and bowels, and weak action of the heart. The trip across the water to this country seemed to make her feel better for a while. Then she began to get worse, and for 14 weeks she was unable to get off the bed. She grew worse for five months and lost the use of her limbs and lower part of body, and if she sat up in bed had to be propped up with pillows. Physicians

Said She Was Past All Help

and wanted me to send her to the 'Home for Incurables.' But I said as long as I could hold my hand up she should not go. We then began to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She is getting strong, walks around, is out doors every day; has no trouble with her throat and no cough, and her heart seems to be all right again. She has a first-class appetite. We regard her cure as nothing short of a miracle." W. WYATT, 89 Marion Street, Parkdale, Toronto, Ontario.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless. Sold by all druggists. 25c.

The Toronto boys were grandly entertained by the local team in the Palace Restaurant dining rooms, where a very elaborate supper had been prepared.

So delighted were the Harbord street boys with the game that they made arrangements to remain over in town and play another game this afternoon.

At the hour of going to press the score in the afternoon game stood 9—2 in favour of the P. C. I. boys.

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Dr. Burnham Re Elected Chairman for the Third Time.

The inaugural meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening with the following members present: Messrs. Geo. Burnham, M.D., W. G. Ferguson, J. J. McBain, Henry Denne, W. H. Wrighton, Peter Hamilton, R. P. Boucher, M.D., W. H. Law, W. H. Hill, L. M. Hayes, J. J. Hartley.

All the members having made the necessary declarations of office, the election of a chairman was proceeded with and resulted in the re-election of Dr. Burnham for the third term to that position.

The Doctor thanked the members briefly for the honour which they had accorded him in re-electing him as chairman, expressing the hope that the relationship between himself and the Board would continue to be as cordial as heretofore.

Mr. Henry Denne took the chair, on motion, and the Board went into a committee of the whole, to strike the standing committees for the year.

The personel of the different committees was arranged as follows :

Finance Committee—The Chairman of the Supervision and Property Committees and Messrs. Ferguson, Hayes, Hill and Boucher.

Supervision Committee—Messrs. McKee, Wrighton, Law, Edgecombe and Caldwell.

Property Committee—Messrs. Hamilton, McBain, Hartley, Denne and Stevenson.

Committee on Appointments—The whole Board.

At a subsequent meeting of the Committee on Appointments, Mr. W. H. Hill was elected chairman.

Mr. W. G. Ferguson was elected chairman of the Finance Committee, and Mr. Peter Hamilton of the Property Committee. Mr. McKee was chosen as Chairman of the Committee on Supervision.

WHITWAY MUST MOVE.

Public Business Demands a Settlement of Cabinet Difficulties.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 7.—It is understood that the Governor will not give Sir William Whiteway beyond to-day to complete his cabinet as public business is becoming demoralized. The main cause of the difficulty is the question of admitting to the Cabinet certain members who have overdrawn bank accounts. Sir William Whiteway is gazetted a member of the Legislative Council.

Bad Explosion in a Stove.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Feb. 7.—The fire in the kitchen of Mr. Thomas Gilmour, Clendenan avenue, went out at night and when he started it in the morning the water boiler exploded, wrecking the stove and sending pieces into the wall and ceiling. Mr. Gilmour sustained a broken arm and a cut in the face. Dr. Gilmour, son of the old gentleman, with Dr. Clendenan, attended the injured man.

West Durham to be Protested.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Judgment to the effect that the election petition trial against William H. Reed, the Conservative member for West Durham, may be proceeded with, has been given at Osgoode Hall. An effort was made to render the action void because the six months' time limit had expired, but the court enlarged the time. The case will come to trial at Bowmanville on the 28th of this month.

THE FRANCHISE MATTER.

Mr. Meldrum, a tenant of the Auburn Woollen Mills Company, and the Peterborough Milling Company, (in the matter of personnel, we believe, convertible terms) writes a letter to our evening contemporary in regard to the subject of the franchise applied for by Messrs. Carnegie and Dennistoun, and especially in regard to the position taken by the EXAMINER in the matter. Mr. Meldrum seems to misapprehend the position of the EXAMINER, for he makes insinuations and statements that are not exactly parallel with the facts. The EXAMINER did not insinuate anything against the integrity of Mr. Carnegie or Mr. Dennistoun, in connection with their franchise application—if any such interpretation is placed upon our words, it was not the intention that such a meaning should be taken. The comments of the EXAMINER were intended and made in the interests of the public. If Mr. Meldrum had written with a full knowledge of the facts, he might have modified his expressions as to the "disinterestedness" of the applicants for the franchise. We advocated, and still advocate, the giving of the franchise to Messrs. Dennistoun and Carnegie, but that did not, and does not, prevent us insisting upon the Mayor as head of the corporation seeing that effective conditions be annexed and effective safe-guards supplied. What the citizens of the town should have and what the citizens of the town will require is, that the Mayor and council see to it that such a conditional franchise is given Messrs. Dennistoun & Carnegie as will secure to the citizens the advantages of competition in the supply of light and power, which they are expecting, and not a franchise to be hawked about and one which, without any extravagant construction of the possibilities, might be transferred to the hands of the present Light and Power Company, a condition of things which would thwart the securing to the citizens of the benefits of competition. If Messrs. Carnegie and Dennistoun are honest and sincere in asking a franchise for the supply of light and power to the town and not asking a franchise for the mere purpose of making use of the surplus power at their disposal, they cannot object to clauses in any agreement that may be made with the town, which will give the citizens what the applicants claim they are anxious to give. If Mr. Meldrum can see any objections to the town receiving a substantial cash guarantee that the proposed work will be proceeded with and the citizens enjoy the advantages of competition, he should have stated them. Mr. Meldrum is apparently anxious that the gentlemen applying should receive the franchise without any sufficient stipulations; but it must be borne in mind that the citizens have some small rights in these matters, and should not grant franchises without some guarantee that the object aimed at and promised will be secured. The articles of the EXAMINER on the subject were written in the interests of competition and not of monopoly. Messrs. Carnegie and Dennistoun cannot be blamed for seeking a franchise—it is a pure matter of business on their part, but it remains for Mr. Meldrum to imply that it is not in the interest of the citizens to give the franchise in question without sufficient conditions. Mr. Meldrum does not usually sell and deliver his flour and make a bargain afterwards—a distinct stipulation as to price and terms of payment is made. Let the council grant the franchise, but grant it on conditions that will, without any doubt, secure competition. Mr. Meldrum is rather wide of the mark in accusing the EXAMINER of advocating monopoly, for no such construction can be placed upon its remarks, except by some persons who may have, at least incidental interest present or prospective, direct or indirect, in evoking such a construction.

In order that there can be no misconstruction in regard to the position of the EXAMINER in respect to its discussion of the franchise application, which certainly cannot be interpreted as being in favour of monopoly, it may be proper to define our position as follows:

First—Grant the franchise.

Second—See that a sufficient cash guarantee is given, that the new company will have its system in operation at a given time.

Three—See that the franchise becomes null and void in the event of amalgamation with any existing or future company.

Fourth—See that in return for the franchise the citizens are assured of competition in furnishing light and power.

Certainly, this position cannot be said to be in the interests of any monopoly, or in the interest of the Light and Power Company, any more than it is in the interest of the Auburn Company, and in the interests of the citizens, the paramount matter of importance. Competition is demanded and unless the conditions to secure it are insisted upon, there should be no franchise granted. Surely Messrs. Dennistoun and Carnegie, gentlemen of means, are in a position to give the cash guarantee required, and if they are sincere in their application as presented, they can have no objection to agreeing to this condition.

MR. JOHN SAWERS AND THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Mr. John Sawers announced to me this morning that he was going "to fight the Children's Aid Society from the word, go!" He was no doubt riled just then because our agent, Mr. Miller, had investigated a case requiring the Charity Committee's attention. An applicant had knocked at the Relief Officer's door but as Mr. Sawers was not within our agent took the complaint and investigated. He reported the facts to Mr. Sawers who received our "meddlesome interference" with very bad grace. I endeavored to explain to Mr. Sawers that the Society was a purely benevolent institution looking to the protection and the rescue not to the punishment of people. To this he answered that "the poor man's house was his castle" and that we were invading the poor man's rights. I characterize this as a false, and maliciously false statement, made for the purpose of belying a society that is only one of a vast number the world over. Must the two governments that provided the enlightened legislation taken from similar legislation in England and other countries where the system has been tried and found a godsend to the poor, for whose benefit it was primarily established, undo their legislative work? Must we too withdraw from a friendly co-operation with like minded people because Mr. Sawers says it is a fad? I would treat his statement with silent contempt, but his misstatements I am advised to attack. We appeal to public sentiment. If the facts are against us, then we ought to fail, but if they are distinctly in our favour, we ask the public to judge us accordingly.

Our sole aim is to HELP the poor and defenceless, and we have shown in the courts that we are no respecters of persons. Mr. Sawers vehemently denounced the large expenditure for charity. "There was $3000.00 spent for charity last year and I'm going to stop it," he said; and this too from the poor man's friend.

Yours, etc.,
HAMPDEN BURNHAM.

ANNUAL MEETING AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The Directors Bring in a Report One Clause of Which Demands Attention.

At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Lock Works Company held recently there were present Messrs. John Burnham, M.P., Thos. Brooks, John Carnegie, Wm. Clarton, A. C. Dunlop, R. B. McKee, J. Stevenson, M. P., and F. W. Taylor.

Reports were presented showing that the business for the past year had been most satisfactory.

In the report of the directors the following clause was embodied:—"Fortunately the company not being the owners of the premises at present occupied by them, are in no way tied to either them or the town, but are free to go whithersoever their financial interests may lead them, and recommend that if an early and satisfactory arrangement on both points be not made, it would be the duty of the incoming directors to look elsewhere for accommodation which will enable the company's business to be conducted on at least as favourable terms as it has been in the past."

The following directors were elected for the ensuing year:—Messrs. John Burnham, M.P., Thos. Brooks, J. Carnegie, Geo. A. Cox, J. D. Collins, James Stevenson, M.P., and W. Gross, Montreal.

Upon the adjournment of the annual meeting of the shareholders, the directors elected officers as follows:—

President—Jas. Stevenson.
Vice-President—John Carnegie.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during this month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any further notice. dw

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease).
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,
They gave us every one, a kiss,
Ans said, "be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home,
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

ST. VITUS' DANCE.

A New Treatment Always Attended With Success.

From the Niagara Falls Review.

There are, perhaps, not many readers of this paper who have St. Vitus' dance, or who have seen many cases of it. However, to those who may be interested on account of some friend, and to the physicians of this county, we commend the method of treatment given below, and a farther investigation of the case herewith described. The patient was Mabel Dorety, the eight-year-old daughter of the Doretys living on Ontario avenue, this town. The child was perfectly helpless, could not be left alone an instant, could not use her limbs at all nor take food or drink without assistance. Three of our best physicians treated her and gave up the case as hopeless. Mrs. Dorety finally gave her the celebrated nerve building preparation called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and she tells the result in her own words: "It was not long before I noticed a good effect, in less than three months she was so much better that the dread disease almost entirely disappeared, and the pills were discontinued. In a few months, however, she showed that the symptoms had not been entirely eradicated from her system, so I had her again commence the use of the Pink Pills. I feel certain that all traces of the awful malady will be swept away, for she goes to school now, and we have not the slightest anxiety in leaving her alone. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in my little girl's case have accomplished what physicians could not, and I am only too glad to let others know of this miraculous cure." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., for 50c per box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. Refuse imitations and substitutes.

POULTRY DUST BATH.

Why the Wise Farmer Will Provide Dust Boxes for His Bird.

Nearly, if not quite all species of fowls use the dust bath. They choose a spot of fine dry soil, and scrape little holes, where they pulverize the dirt until it is reduced to a fine dust. In this they roll and shake their feathers and allow the dust to penetrate to the skin. It appears that in some way this is deleterious to the parasites which infest the plumage or the skin. It has been said by some naturalists that a all insects breathe—not through the mouth as warm-blooded animals do, but through little opening in the skin situated in rows along the side of the body—the particles of dust close these openings, so that parasites die of suffocation as quickly as a quadruped would if held under water. This has been denied by some scientists, who say that these holes are defended by a very delicate but effective apparatus that makes it impossible for any foreign matter to enter, no matter how minute it may be Be this as it may, I know that wild birds take dust baths whenever the weather and the state of soil permit. Nature is a good guide, and whether the dust bath is for the prevention and absorption of effete matter which has become too odorous, or whether it acts as an insectide, it is certainly advantageous to fowls or they would not use the dust bath. I say that the careful poultry keeper will provide dust boxes for birds, filled with fine dust, coal ashes, thoroughly dried and mixed with insect powder. It makes but little difference which of these varieties of soil you use; the principal part is to have it clean. That is, not a highly manured soil, but a comparatively unfertile one is preferable. The next qualification is that it must be perfectly dry. —Albert F. Firestine, in Colman's Rural World.

The Diversions of Bishops.

Fencing, as a rule, is not cultivated by ecclesiastics, unless, perhaps, they happen to be military chaplains. There are at present, however, in France, an archbishop and two bishops who are experts in the use of the foils. Mgr. Ardin, Archbishop of Sens, has a bout with the shewers every morning in his palace. The Bishop of Chalons (Mgr. Latty) is also a good fencer, but these two prelates are distanced by Bishop Batifolier, of Meude, who is not only an agile escrimeur, but rides and drives as well as some of the most finished sportsmen of the Jockey Club, thus showing that the cares and responsibilities of a diocese are not incompatible with the cultivation of worldly accomplishments. —London Telegraph.

Rheumatism is primarily caused by acidity of the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, and thus cures the disease.

B. B. B.

Purifies, renovates and regulates the entire system, thus curing dyspepsia, constipation, sickheadache, biliousness, rheumatism, dropsy and all diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It also removes all the impurities from the system from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

GIVE ME THE BABY.

Give me the baby to hold, my dear—
To hold and hug and to love and kiss;
Ah, he will come to me, never a fear—
Come to the nest of a breast like this.
As warm for him as his face with cheer.
Give me the baby to hold, my dear.

Trustfully yield him to my caress:
"Bother," you say. What? A bother to me?
To fill up my soul with such happiness
As the love of a baby that laughs to be Smuggled away where my heart can bear.
Give me the baby to hold, my dear.

Ah, but his hands are grimed, you say.
And would soil my laces and clutch my hair.
Well, what would pleasure me more, I pray,
Than the touch and the tug of the wee hands there—
The wee hands there, and the warm face here?
Give me the baby to hold, my dear.

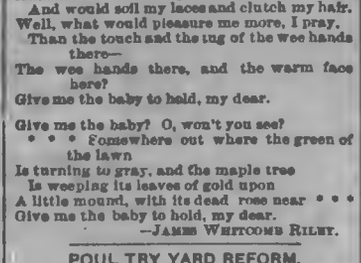
Give me the baby? O, won't you see?
* * * Somewhere out where the green of the lawn
Is turning to gray, and the maple tree
Is weeping its leaves of gold upon
A little mound, with its dead rose near * * *
Give me the baby to hold, my dear.

—JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

POUL TRY YARD REFORM.

A New Idea in Changeable Yards with Separate Buildings.

The plan sugyested in the illustration is one of the changeable yards with separate buildings, each building being divided into three apartments. The dimensions may be as preferred, but with yards 50 x 100 feet, the space taken up will be about an acre and a half. The house would necessarily be 16x50 feet, or about 16 feet square for each apartment. The openings from the houses to the yards are shown at AAA etc. The two middle yards will be occupied by the fowls of the middle apartment, and the yards on the right and left by the fowls in the apartments on those sides. The yards marked B may be occupied by the fowls, while grass or any kind of green food is growing in the yards marked C. When the green food is ready the fowls are turned into those yards, and the other yards are plowed and seeded down. By this method green food is always growing, and the droppings turned under. As it is not necessary for the green food to reach a height of but a few inches the changes will be frequent. A novelty in the arrangement is that the fowls are not opposite to each other in the different yards, and hence quarreling or fighting through the fence is thus avoided, a space of fifty feet separating the flocks. Any form of house may be used, and sixteen hens and a male may be kept in each apartment, thus allowing about one hundred fowls to the entire space. This plan gives sixteen feet in the poultry house to each fowl, while the changeable yards not only supply green food, but give fresh ground and clean yards, as well as ample room and a greater variety of food.—Farm and Fireside.



GROUND PLAN OF HOUSES AND YARDS.

Damage Done by One Shell.

What a single shell can do—one modern projectile flying true to its mark—was manifested at the battle between the Chinese and Japanese fleets off the Yalu river in September. One Canet shell weighing nearly 1,000 pounds, of the Holtzer make, struck the Chinese battle ship Ping Yuen, crushing through the after part of the armored deck, tearing a vast hole, through which the water poured in such volumes that the vessel went down, carrying most of her officers and crew with her. The cost of such a shell is somewhere between $500 and $1,000, but the cost of a battle ship is from $3,000,000 up. Such evidences of the power of a single shot go far to support Admiral Farragut's belief that in the race between projectile and plate the former was bound to win, and the result would be that armor would come off ships as it came off men, and for the same reason, that ceasing to be a protection it became a burden.—London Engineering.

ITCHING AND PIN WORMS. PILES

No More Misery.

ITCHING PILES is an exceeding painful and annoying affliction, found alike in the rich and poor, male and female. The principal symptoms are a severe itching, which is worst at night when the sufferer becomes warm in bed. So terrible is the itching that frequently it is impossible to procure sleep. Often the sufferer unconsciously during sleep scratches the parts until they are sore—ulcers and tumors form, purulent moisture is exuded. Females are peculiarly affected from this disease, causing unbearable irritation and trouble. These and every other symptom of Itching Piles or irritation in any part of the body are immediately allayed and quickly cured by Chase's Ointment. It will instantly stop itching, heal the sores and ulcers, dry up the moisture.

DR. CHASE'S

OINTMENT

Gives Instant Relief.

PIN WORMS is an ailment entirely different as to cause from Itching Piles, yet the effects and symptoms are exactly the same. The same intolerable itching; the same creeping, crawling, stinging sensation, characterizes both diseases. Chase's Ointment acts like magic. It will at once afford relief from this torment.

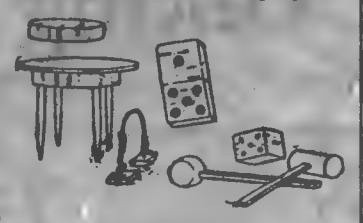
A RAINY DAY FUN SHOP

SOME EXCELLENT NURSERY AMUSEMENTS FOR THE YOUNGSTERS.

What May Be Done With Corks for Restless Boys and Girls—A Sure Remedy for Rainy Day Fretting by the Little Folks.

Every mother knows the trials of that day of downpour when restless babies drive her and nurse to the edge of distraction, and when all wonted diversions fail any longer to amuse.

Has that unhappy lady any idea that if she will send nurse down to the pantry for the box of old corks, which she thriftily lays away against time of need, woes will disappear as if by magic from the small bosoms, and so rapidly will



CORK PLAYTHINGS.

the hours pass that there will be a cry of surprise when nurse comes to announce the arrival of supper and bed time?

"Corks!" the lady mother says; "What on earth have they to do with keeping children quiet?—unless one uses them to cork up naughty, fretful mouths!"

First spread on the nursery table a big newspaper to catch all the messes that are to be made. Next get a bottle of good thick mucilage, a sharp penknife, a box of matches, Bobby's box of water-color paints, a hairpin or two, some old visiting cards, the pin cushion, and a stout pair of short but sharp-pointed scissors. All the nursery population will begin to be interested at seeing these preparations, and when they are completed chairs can be drawn up all round and the announcement made that the rainy-day amusement shop is open for business.

Perhaps the best thing to begin with is the cork out of the mustard pot, which is large and flat. Snip the sulphur heads of four matches, leaving them square at the ends. Sharpen the other ends a little, make four incisions with the pen knife into the under side of the cork, stick the pointed ends of the matches into these, and at once the attentive circle about the table begins to see that another little table is swiftly coming into being. Cut out a circle of visiting card somewhat larger than the mustard cork, paste it on top of the cork, and there stands a beautiful piece of nursery carpentry; a table complete. A small square bit of cork with four short bits of matches used as legs makes a good stool, and by taking the cork that once served to stop the mouth of a little glass jam jar and sticking in four matches for feet and two more on the upper side for a back, with a bit of cork at the top of these one has at once a delightful chair to go with the table and stool—furniture which no doll would be too proud to use. The next piece of manufacture might be a beautiful teetotum, and here Bobby's paints begin to come into play.

Cut a match in half; sharpen one end a little. Cut a thin slice crossways from a claret cork and stick the match through the middle of it, pointed end first. Cut out a circle of card board four times as large as the cork, and draw two lines at right angles across the disk. That will leave it divided into four quarters and these quarters are to be painted blue, yellow, green and red. Bore a hole in the centre of the disk and slip the blunt end of the match through it until the card board rests upon the cork. Next cut another, but rather thicker slice from the cork, bore a hole in the centre and stick the blunt end of the match through, pressing it down till it touches the card. This will leave about an inch of match to be taken between finger and thumb for spinning this fascinatingly beautiful teetotum.

Cutting long slices through the middle of the cork leaves pieces, which, with the aid of Bobby's paints, can be turned into a beautiful set of dominoes, and by cutting out square pieces one can make a beautiful set of noiseless dice to be used with the backgammon board.

But perhaps the nicest toy of all made in this nursery shop, which has for its sign, "Old corks taken in exchange for new playthings," it is the set of parlor croquet. To begin this heavy but fruitful labor, cut out eighteen small squares of cork. Bend into a curved hoop—a miniature of those used in lawn croquet—nine hair pins; and these with each end stuck into one of the squares of cork will stand upright and serve as table wickets of the game. Cut slices crossways from the vinegar bottle cork, and into the middle of each of these stick a match, whose end has been sharpened for the purpose. This

Canada's Well-known Railroad Contractor, Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, III.

Treated by Several Doctors and Tried Nearly Every Proprietary Medicine—Got Very Little Benefit—Was Influenced to Use South American Nervine—Found Immediate Relief—"The Nervousness Has Entirely Left My System"—"I Will Never Be Without It in My Home."

MR. J. W. DINWOODIE, CAMPBELLFORD, ONT.

Men of affairs usually weigh their words. They are not of that class of people who carry their hearts upon their sleeve. One of the best known men of affairs in Canada is Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, the large railroad contractor, evidence of whose work is to be found in all parts of the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to chain one section of our vast Dominion with another and bring its people into easy touch with each other through the medium of the iron horse, as Mr. Dinwoodie has in a short lifetime done, is a work of which any man may be proud. Hard and brainy labor, however, is necessary to success of this character, and the strongest constitutions are in danger of breaking down under the strain. It has been so with Mr. Dinwoodie. The great thought that he has had to give to his work, and the care and responsibility that it has carried with it finally told on his constitution, and he became a victim of nervous troubles, his liver and kidneys becoming seriously disordered.

Naturally he consulted a medical man. Comparatively no relief was obtained. He changed his doctor, and did not stop with one, two or three physicians, but he got no better. Various proprietary medicines were recommended, and, as he says himself, "Tried them all, but not very little benefit. Last fall I was camping out, and I was feeling very ill. I happened to pick up a paper with the advertisement for South American Nervine. I determined to give it a trial, and procured a bottle from the local druggist. After having taken but a few doses I found very great relief. The severe pain that I had been suffering in the small of my back left me and the nervousness that had rendered me, in a large measure, unfit for work, has as a result of the continued use of Nervine, become banished from my system. I am now able to enjoy refreshing sleep the night through. I keep South American Nervine always in the house, and I do not hesitate to say that it is the very best medicine I have ever taken, and most confidently recommend it to anyone troubled with nervousness of whatever form and the attendant diseases of the liver and stomach that follow this weakness."

can be painted around with rings of contrasting colors, as is done to the goal stakes of lawn croquet.

Next, for the mallets hunt about in the cork box for four small ones of even size—those from the small medicine phials serve nicely if they had not been stained by drugs. These, if a nice shape, need no cutting at all. Matches will serve as handles for these mallets, and a band of color must be painted around each so that players may distinguish their own mallets. Some nice large old sugar-coated pills would make beautiful balls for this nursery croquet, with a stripe of paint around each one, but if all the pills were given to Bobby the last time he ate too much cake and had a tummy ache, then fresh bread pinched up between the fingers, and then rolled on the table beneaths one's palm will make very good substitute balls and will take a stripe of paint quite well.

By this time there is no more fretting in the nursery. The tools can be put away, the newspaper with the waste matches and bits of cork folded and thrown into the waste basket, the teetotum spun, and when they are tired of that a game of croquet begun. The children have helped in all the processes of manufacture and have learned how to make the whole set of toys themselves. For many rainy days thereafter these will suffice, but when they begin to gall any ingenious mamma can show how to make others—chessmen, mice, ducks, cranes, hobby horses, even dogs and cats and men, if she has a little skill with paint brush, and pen knife.

How Life Was Put Into a Dead Man.

One of Daniel O'Connell's earliest displays of acuteness happened shortly after he was called to the bar. In an intricate case, where he had been made junior counsel more as a compliment to the family than from any other cause, the question was that of the validity of a will. The instrument was drawn up in proper form, and the witnesses swore that it had been legally executed.

One of them, an old servant, was very loquacious, and O'Connell, in examining him, allowed him to talk on, hoping he would say too much. The man had already sworn that he saw the deceased sign the will.

"Yes," he continued, "I saw him sign it, and sure there was life in him at the time."

This expression was repeated so frequently that O'Connell was led to believe that it had some peculiar meaning. He fixed his eyes upon the old man and said, gravely:

"You have taken a solemn oath, before God and man, to speak the truth and the whole truth. The eye of God is upon you. The eyes of your neighbors are fixed upon you also. Answer me, by the virtue of that sacred and solemn oath which has passed your lips, was the testator alive when he signed the will?"

The witness was struck by this solemn manner of address. His lips quivered, his limbs trembled, and he faltered out the reply:

"There was life in him!"

The question was repeated in a yet more impressive manner. Again he trembled and stammered forth his stock phrase.

Finally, by dint of clever leading and suggestion, O'Connell drew from him the fact that a pen had been placed in the dead man's hand, and the legatee himself had guided it and traced the signature. But to meet the exigency of legal questioning, a living fly had been placed in the dead man's mouth. Thus was "life in him" at the time.—Youth's Companion.

How About Your Son.

If my choice were free, I would rather give my boy the memory of a fairly happy and untrammeled life up to twenty, and leave him nothing then but a consequent reasonable optimism, an unsapped courage and a disposition to regard money as a means rather than an end than keep him constantly face to face with a scepter of possible poverty, fill him full of premature cares and leave him $5,000 or $25,000 a year and no memories or well-grounded healthy tastes, or world to live in, indeed, except such as he commonly sets out to make for himself under these circumstances, which is worse than nothing.—Scribner.

INSPECTOR GARVIN MAKES STATEMENTS.

HE REPUDIATES THE CHARGES MADE AGAINST HIM.

A Classification of the Charges and the Inspector's Reply Thereto—He Could Reduce Expenditure by Establishing a Model School.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Permit me to state the charges made against me before the Committee on Appointments on Thursday evening, and my replies thereto.

CHARGES.

1. The Inspector had not furnished the Board with bi-monthly reports as to the attendance of the teachers and their promptitude.

2. He reprimanded teachers before their pupils.

3. He ignored the text book in grammar, and insisted on the staff teaching along lines different from those laid down in the authorized books.

4. To make it appear that the schools were making marked progress he had promoted into the entrance classes eighteen pupils who were unfit for those divisions.

5. The Board had appointed a young lady teacher, and the Inspector had sought to over-ride them by secretly trying to force her to resign.

6. The Inspector had had another lady teacher dismissed without just cause, as Inspector Hughes of Toronto, had pronounced her a most successful teacher.

REPLIES.

1. It is something new to be accused of not reporting sufficiently. As the teachers had attended faithfully and promptly to their duties, there was nothing to report in that connection. In my half-yearly confidential reports I went fully into all particulars desired by the Board.

2. The teacher of the second entrance class was reprimanded by me before his pupils on one occasion. I was teaching inductively in his division for his particular benefit a grammar lesson. The pupils were led step by step to see an error in something they had previously learned. It did not follow that their present teacher was the party who taught it, but he resented the exposure of the error and said to me before the class that he could show authority for what had been taught. Thereupon he was given to understand that such an interruption could not be tolerated. Under the law an Inspector is supreme while in the schoolroom. The teacher in question knew that, and hence his conduct deserved censure.

3. As for the text book in grammar it is generally conceded by those qualified to judge to be

AN INFERIOR ONE.

Many of the definitions therein are faulty. These were frequently pointed out by me to the third and fourth book teachers, who were as frequently urged to teach grammar inductively and to lead their pupils to frame original and correct definitions for themselves.

4. The 18 pupils referred to had each taken the required number of marks on the total, but had failed slightly on some one subject. It was thought better by the Principal and myself to promote them into the entrance classes in June so as to give them the whole year under the entrance teachers rather than wait until January and disarrange the entrance classes by their promotion then. It is scarcely necessary for me to assert that in my reports to the Board, I have stated nothing but facts.

5. The young lady referred to applied two days before the appointments were made. She sent in no testimonials and there was no time in which to get private information from the Normal school. I did not object to her; on the contrary, stated that she might be the best of the six teachers about to be engaged. But I objected to the establishment of a precedent that a teacher should be appointed without proof of her fitness. The gentleman who moved that she be engaged was asked by me to leave her appointment in abeyance for one week when, if the testimony was satisfactory, I should be

HAPPY TO RECOMMEND HER.

This request was refused and the dangerous precedent established. After the meeting, the Secretary of the Board and myself walked to an ice cream social together, and on the way he suggested that I write to the Normal School, as it would be an unfortunate thing if the young lady took a position on the staff and should not be able to retain it. The suggestion was acted on by me the next morning. In a few days word came from the leading professor of the Ottawa Normal School that the teacher enquired about was "one of the weakest of the class and had just a bare pass." With such information what was I to do? Quite a number of trustees and teachers thought that I should have privately informed the two young ladies not re-engaged in July that I could not recommend their re-appointment. One of the two had been unnecessarily appointed to the staff of the West Ward school by the then and present chairman of the Committee on Appointments, notwithstanding that only five or six weeks before she had been disapproved of by both the Board and the Inspector. The West school had greatly suffered in consequence, and I dreaded a like result in the North school. After careful consideration I wrote

A CONFIDENTIAL LETTER to the young lady's father which contained the information received from the Normal School, and which stated that there were only two courses open to the Inspector, to ask for his daughter's resignation, which could be managed without any publicity given to the cause thereof, or to lay the first letter received before the Board. The father showed the letter to all, or nearly all, the trustees, notwithstanding that it was marked confidential, and he and his friends sought to retain the position for the daughter by making it appear that the Inspector was defying, or trying to over-ride the Board's authority. It was finally decided that she should have a term's trial. It would have been an easy matter for me to have given her a division in which so inexperienced a teacher could not have succeeded. But I could not do such a thing. On the contrary, I gave her much the easiest division, where the conditions were all favourable, and told her kindly that if she could succeed I should be most happy to say so. She succeeded admirably, and in my report in November I stated so

IN STRONG LANGUAGE.

6. The teacher referred to in the sixth charge had been dealt with by me as kindly and as justly. She could teach well, but unfortunately could not control her pupils and so could not hold their attention. No Inspector could possibly remedy such a defect. If Inspector Hughes made such a statement he will be a sadder and wiser man at the close of the term. At the end of her first term in the West ward school she passed two pupils out of fifty, the second term three. All the other pupils advanced from her room had to be shoved to make way for the incomers. These facts were placed before the Board last July, and I stated besides that if the Inspector was to be held responsible for the efficiency of the schools he could not take the responsibility of recommending her appointment. The Board of Education refused to take it and so she was not re-engaged. When it is known further that a motion moved by Dr. Boucher at a previous meeting and carried unanimously, insisted on my telling the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the work and efficiency of each teacher, it will be seen that the inspector was driven into

A PRETTY TIGHT CORNER.

He did his duty, but apparently has paid dearly for it. At the end of the first term of the young lady in question, several prominent trustees thought it better to dismiss her then, but I urged strongly, as the work of that grade had been new to her, that she be given a second trial. What more could I have done? Would I have dealt justly with the parents and children of the West Ward had I considered the good of the individual instead of the good of the many?

There were no other charges brought against my character or efficiency as an Inspector. The Board permitted me to plead my own case, but the judgment had been given before the trial. The privilege was granted me of sending in my resignation to date from the first of June, my engagement to expire the end of August, or to be publicly dismissed there and then. That, also, was a pretty tight corner to be in. I requested the Board to grant, and it was seconded strongly by Mr. Stevenson, that the resignation be left in abeyance until the 31st of May, when the whole matter could be settled without discussion in five minutes. I pointed out that I could not do my work with any heart for the balance of the term if forced to resign then, and that my influence and authority over teachers and pupils would whereas, if the resignation were left in abeyance for four months, there would be a chance of the members of the Board changing their opinions, which would sustain me in my efforts. But no, the fiat had gone forth. Every motion had been carefully prepared and written beforehand—the dismissal notice was type-written—and the whole proceedings planned with due attention to every detail and to final decent and dexterous dispatch.

It had been understood by me from the beginning that the position was a hard one to fill. There had been a bitter fight between sections of the Board before I came, one section being strongly opposed to the new system on the ground of economy. Fearing continued dissatisfaction on the part of those members and of a large portion of the community, I privately suggested to certain leading members of the Board the advisability of establishing a Model School and permitting me to teach it. I could have taught the teachers in-training for the fifteen weeks in the fall and still managed the public schools successfully. The Minister of Education approved of the scheme and granted me, as an Inspector, special permision to teach a Model School if one were established. It would have brought the Board in yearly an income of a grant of $300, and of fees to the amount of $200, and caused to be expended annually in the town an additional $2,000.

AN ORDINARY ROOM

anywhere near one of the schools would have done for the purpose, as chairs, a table, and a blackboard were all that were needed. The $500 yearly income would have paid a large portion of my salary; but the members spoken to would have none of it.

A couple of months after coming to Peterborough I was offered $500 a year to take charge of St. Andrew's choir—the organist to be provided by me. As I had been a choir leader for many years, and the duties had never in any way interfered with my efficiency as a teacher—the very opposite having been true as they served as a mental relaxation—I had no thought of refusing the offer. But thinking it best to talk it over with a number of my friends on the Board, I found to my amazement that they strongly disapproved of it. Out of consideration for their wishes I refused to accept the position and in the two years was some $600 or $700 poorer financially. If that sum of money were in the bank now to my credit I could bear the arbitrary and indefensible action of the Board last Thursday evening with considerably better grace.

This letter is written to let the public know my replies to charges that have been so industriously circulated. If there be any others let them be made known. If I have done aught that was not just and honourable by all means let it be publicly stated and proven and I will abide by the result. My character and reputation are much dearer to me than money.

Truly yours,
J. W. GARVIN.

JAMES CRISP'S FIX.

Suffered From Dyspepsia, as he Thought—It Was Kidney Disease all the Time.

BRAMPTON, Feb. 7th.—Half the people nowadays who suffer from some some ailment, don't know what is the matter with them, and each doctor a sufferer consults usually disagrees with all his professional brethren in his diagnosis. James Crisp, a telegraph operator here, suffered for years from what he thought was dyspepsia. He could get no relief by either dieting or doctors' prescriptions. Some fortunate instinct prompted him to take Dodd's Kidney Pills and they completely cured him. Mr. Crisp has kidney disease, and the drain of this on his system weakened his digestive organs and prevented their proper action. Many others are probably afflicted as he was.

QUEEN LIL ABDICATES

She is Now Mrs. Liliuokalani Dominis in the New Republic.

TRIAL OF THE REVOLUTIONISTS

The Leading Spirits in the Recent Revolt Tried Before a Military Court—The Uprising Proves to Have Been Nothing More Than a Weak Fiasco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—Advices from Honolulu state that Queen Liliuokalani has abdicated in favor of the republic. This is by far the most important outcome of the late rebellion. The document was drawn up by Hartwell at the request of the Queen. It was presented on the 26th inst. to President Dole. The document, according to the wording was executed freely and voluntarily. It was addressed to the President and goes on to say that the action was taken after full and free consultation with her personal friends and legal advisers.

On the receipt of the Queen's letter abdicating the throne and renouncing all her rights of government in Hawaii, a reply was sent by the Executive informing her that her act of abdication in nowise relieved her of any responsibility in the recent uprising which the pending investigation may discover and that she would be held liable to the republic for her share in it. This letter was addressed to "Mrs. Liliuokalani Dominis."

The court opened January 18 with the last eight prisoners who were charged with treason and levying war on the republic. Paul Niemann appeared as counsel for Wilcox, Grey, Weidmann and Marshall. Antone Rosa was counsel for James and William Lane. Nowlein and Bertlemann refused counsel. Wilcox and Nowlein pleaded guilty. The testimony was completed for the prosecution early in the afternoon of January 19. Wilcox, James Lane, Grey, Weidmann and Marshall testified for the defence, mainly proving the extremely weak and incapable conduct of the whole affair. Niemann pleaded for a light sentence, urging banishment.

The testimony developed that only 366 rifles were landed at Waialae and that the whole number of natives gathered was 210. Wilcox testified that he kept aloof from the business until about a week before the outbreak but finally was persuaded that his reputation with the natives made it dishonorable not to take part. Since his imprisonment Wilcox has been broken down. The inquiry about Carter's death was searching and the prosecution took pains to exonerate James Lane from the guilt of shooting him, fixing it upon William Poole. It was shown that Wilcox remained in command on Diamond Head and was not at Palolo during the battle. Nowlein commanded at Palolo aided by Weidemann, Grey and Marshall. Nowlein had distributed bombs to some of his officers. A few of these flung by hand had given the idea that the rebels were firing shells from a cannon, which was an error. Wilcox with forty men retreated into the mountains and walked across Manoa on Wednesday. His force dispersed entirely that night in the mountains, himself crossing to Nunann. Nowlein and his three younger companions got up Palolo Ridge and soon after to Woilili, where they lay concealed for a week, fed by the natives. The whole attempt proved an absolute fiasco through the incapacity of the leaders, a lack of discipline in the men and a general lack of courage and persistence.

On the 21st the military commission began the trial of the four leading men charged with procuring the importation of arms and ammunition—C. F. Galick Rickard, T. B. Walter and Major Seward. Walter alone pleaded guilty. Nowlein and John Cummings were also implicated. The latter was Kalakaua's last premier. A majority of the witnesses were prisoners who had been engaged in landing the arms. A great sensation was caused by Cummings stating that upon his inquiring where Seward got the money to pay for the arms the latter told him the Queen had given him a letter to Rudolph Spreckels who would furnish the funds. Cummings remarked that Rudolph had been here and had only just returned home. Samuel Nowlein's testimony was very damaging to Galick and Seward.

On the afternoon of the 22nd the third trial commenced of twelve native and half white prisoners captured from the field. Among them were Lot Lane, Bipikane, Thomas Poole, who had boasted of shooting Carter, and Kaauha, a former student at Hampton teaching tailoring at Kamehaincha school. A point of interest developed was the forsaking by many natives of the gathering at Waialae because no white men had come out to lead them. Later, on the 23nd, the ex-Queen, in her chamber of imprisonment above the court room, signed the document of submission and renunciation.

In court the 25th inst. was occupied with the trial of John F. Bowler. The evidence showed that Bowler arranged with Nowlein to take charge of the seizure of the telephone office. Bowler is a contractor and builder and is credited with accumulating much wealth under Kalakua. The case of V. V. Ashford was then taken up. The precise charge against Ashford has not appeared. It is rumored that the ex-Queen will give testimony against him.

It is expected that the work of the military court will last at least two weeks longer. No decisions of the court have yet been made known.

ANOTHER WATERLOO OF PRICES!

A "SKY ROCKET" Stock Taking Boom

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

DEFENDING THE CREW

The North German Lloyd Company Issues a Statement.

VEVERA'S STORY IS INCREDIBLE

It Has Been Proved That Three of the Rescued Sailors Pulled Miss Boecker Into the Boat—A Plea for Fair Play, Pending the Inquiry.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The following statement has been issued by the London agents of North German Lloyd, with regard to the stories circulated as to the conduct of the crew of the steamer Elbe, pending the inquiry which is now being conducted in regard to the affair:

"Rescued passengers of the Elbe arriving in the Umbria may repeat sensational statements made to the English press. Please note that they made no statements or complaints when before the American Consul-General and the following is extracted from the Liverpool Shipping Telegraph: Our London correspondent, in reference to the allegations against the Elbe's crew, says, after reading the reports: "I am satisfied that the correct account has not been made public. From a knowledge of the Elbe's decks I am prepared to risk the assertion that the official inquiry will show that the crew of the rescued boat did not behave improperly, the newspapers forgetting the deck house between the port and starboard sides and the relative positions of the boat and deck during a heavy list. The boat probably required ten hands to handle her. The officers in charge very likely belonged to that part of the boat.

"I should say the boat when in the water was nearly level with the promenade rail deck and was shoved off to avoid swamping by the sinking ship. Bearing in mind that the rescued boat was on the listed side and that the other side seemed safer, I should say that at the time of shoving off there was no one else at hand to take into her. Hoffmann and Vevera, I fancy, will turn out sensationmongers, whose heads have been turned by public attention. Vevera's statement that he alone saved the woman and pulled her into the boat is incredible and indicates general exaggeration (shown to be untrue by the facts now elicted that the third officer, purser's assistant and Steward Koke drew the woman into the boat.)"

The following verbatim extracts from leading articles in Liverpool papers speak for themselves, namely: "Passengers' stories must always be received with even more than the proverbial grain of salt, and the stories going the rounds of the press with respect to the behaviour of the crew on board the Elbe in that terrible moment do not seem worthy of credence. The North German Lloyd has been practically found to blame by some journals on the strength of a few distorted facts given by irresponsible people, laboring under the excitement naturally born of a great disaster, and eked out by other details which are on the face of them conflicting."

The same papers publish a letter signed by British ship owners, strongly urging a suspension of judgment in the face of the conflicting statements, and pointing out that the mouths of the crew, owners and agents are closed pending the official inquiry.

Why Priests May Not Wheel.

WASHINGTON, Del., Feb. 8.—Very Rev. Friar Sylvester Jeorg, of the Catholic Church of the Sacred Heart, had a controversy with some of the Wilmington clergy about riding bicyles, and he wrote to Rome for a decision. Cardinal Isidorus sent him a decision rendered last September by the Holy See. A bishop in Hungary, forbidding one of his priests to ride a bicycle, a controversy resulted, and the Bishop appealed to Rome. The Holy See gave this decision: "We embrace your action and your decision in the above matter, because the decision will save priests from being injured and prohibit them from setting a bad example and keep them from being joked by fellow priests." The letter is signed by Cardinal Isidorus. The receipt of the letter has caused a sensation in this city, as nearly every priest rides a machine, Bishop Curtis, although he is sixty-four years of age, being one of the most enthusiastic riders here.

Narrow Escapes in a Fire.

WOODBINE, N. J., Feb. 8.—The two storey brick building occupied by the Woodbine Machine and Tool Co. and D. Wilentschick, a pocket book manufacturer, was destroyed by fire yesterday, and the 36 men and women employed in the building had narrow escapes from death. A number of them were burned and injured by jumping from the windows.

A Big Tobacco Factory Destroyed.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 8.—The Miami Leaf tobacco warehouse, a six-storey brick building on the corner of Race and Commerce streets, burned yesterday. It is estimated that the loss will reach a quarter of a million dollars.

HOPE FOR LA GASCOGNE

The Missing Steamer May Yet Turn Up Safe in Port.

TWO OTHER VESSELS DELAYED

The White Star Liner Teutonic and the Rhyaland, From Antwerp, Not Yet Heard From—The Circassia Arrives and Reports Violent Gales.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The Standard's correspondent in Paris comments on the fears for the safety of the steamship La Gascogne: "Lieut. Deloucia," he says, "succeeded Capt. Santolli in the command of La Gascogne on the eve of starting. Many friends of passengers continue to inquire at the company's offices and the negative information given there has done little to allay their fears. The company has issued a note to the press saying there is no reason to fear a disaster and that presumably La Gascogne's machinery has broken down or she is detained by the weather."

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Austin Forget, the agent of the French line in this city, says he has not yet begun to grow anxious. He is confident that some trifling accident has happened to the La Gascogne's machinery. With the blinding snowstorm now prevailing off Fire Island and Sandy Hook it would be impossible to convey tidings of the sighting of the steamer even should she make her way up through the ice floes. The marine observer at Sandy Hook telegraphed last night that the weather was so thick that he could not see the channel and signals from an incoming vessel would be unobserved. Everything regarding the belated steamer is merely surmise, but the general impression is that she has broke down and will either make sail or be towed into some port.

While La Gascogne is now five days overdue, the White star steamer Teutonic, which should have reached here on Wednesday morning, has not been heard from. The Rhynland, from Antwerp, is overdue; all of which shows that the delay is general.

The Anchor line steamer Circassia, from Glasgow, and the Prince line steamer Black Prince have arrived, each reporting stories of extremely violent gales and heavy seas during the latter part of the voyage.

It is reported that a steamer is ashore off Freeport, L.I. The blast of a whistle could be heard, as if some boat were in distress.

Sir William on the Teutonic.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—Some anxiety is expressed on the street for the overdue Teutonic, on which Sir William Van Horne and R. B. Angus are passengers.

Fate of a Schooner.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Feb. 8.—There is doubt that the portion of wreck which drifted ashore at Lamberts Cove is what there is left of the schooner T. P. Dixon of Rockland, Maine, Capt. Boswick, which vessel left New York February 3 for Rockland. The wreckage consists of only the vessel's deck, broken off just aft foremast and the vessel's cabin. The bodies of three men and a dog were on top of the cabin when found. The men were encased in ice and their legs were hanging down the cabin skylight which was open.

PATRON M'NEILL IS SAFE.

Not Sufficient Evidence Forthcoming to Void the Election.

STRATFORD, Feb. 8.—The South Perth election trial was resumed here yesterday before Mr. Justice Burton, Mr. Justice Osler, Mr. B. B. Osler, and Mr. John Ingington appearing for the appellant, and Mr. A. B. Aylesworth and Mr. F. H. Thompson for the respondent. The bulk of the evidence was directed towards proving the agency of Jas. Dougherty, of Mitchell, who had hired a rig for election day in the interest of Mr. McNeill. Thirty witnesses were examined without further corrupt practices being established than the one proved against Dougherty at Mitchell last week.

After argument by counsel the judges announced that although the question whether Dougherty was an agent for McNeill was reserved by them for argument, the evidence had not shown corrupt practices sufficient in their judgment to void the election. The question of agency would only affect a small portion of the costs. They set down the 16th instant at Osgoode Hall to hear argument on this reserved point.

FULL POWERS TO NEGOTIATE.

The Peace Envoys Will Remain in Japan—Missionaries Flying From Natives.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The Central News correspondent in Shanghai says: The Ting-Yuen and Chin-Yuen, the vessels sunk at Wei-Hai-Wei, were struck by torpedoes in three fathoms of water.

The peace envoys have now been fully empowered to treat and will remain in Japan. Both countries are anxious to conclude the war but Japan does not mean to leave China a loop-hole for backing out.

The Central News correspondent in Shanghai says: The missionaries of Tai Ho Chang, on the border between the provinces of Sang-Tung and Kiang-Su are fleeing to the coast to escape the hostility of the natives. An American warship will meet them at Ngan-Ting and take them aboard.

Halifax Has Fine Weather.

HALIFAX, Feb. 8.—Halifax is keeping up its reputation this winter, having much warmer weather than elsewhere in Canada or in the Eastern States, as while it was 3 above zero here it was 20 to 30 degrees lower elsewhere. Cold and snow storms with high winds have been experienced through both England and America, but not here.

ASKED FOR SEED GRAIN

Moose Jaw Settlers' Memorial Presented to the Premier.

WATTERS APPEARS IN COURT

His Case Postponed for a Week—Rev. Mr. Carson Speaks of the Hard Times Over the Line—A Big Lumber Deal in the Upper Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 8.—Nicholas Flood-Davin, M. P., had an interview with Premier Bowell before the latter left for Toronto in regard to obtaining seed grain and potatoes for the settlers in the Moose Jaw and Regina districts. Some time ago there was a meeting of the Patrons of Industry and agriculturists for the districts, and a memorial was drafted for presentation to the Government asking seed grain and potatoes. This was owing to the failure of the crops last year. The memorial set forth that owing to the government having granted seed grain last year the settlers hesitated asking the same favor this year, but had no other recourse because they did not reap one half of the amount of grain which had been sown. Copies of the memorial were sent to Mr. Davin and Hon. T. M. Daly. Sir Mackenzie Bowell promised to consider the matter. Mr. Davin who will be here for a few days will have another interview with the Premier on his return from Toronto.

The case against Thomas J. Watters, acting Commissioner of Customs, was called in the police court yesterday. A. Ferguson, Q.C., who appeared for Mr. Watters, asked for a postponement of the case for a week. Mr. Hogg, Q.C., who was present for the Crown, consented to this being done, and Police Magistrate O'Gara agreed. Bail was renewed, Mr. Watters for $3,000 and James Isbester and Joseph Kavanagh $1,000 each. The case was postponed until Thursday.

A big lumber deal has been closed. Robert Thompson & Co., of Hamilton, purchased 146 half miles square of timber limits in the Upper Ottawa, known as the Lauseon Limits, the property of Ald. Lauseon of this city. It is understood that the price paid for the limits was $115,000 cash. This is said to be a low figure as the limits are reported to contain an extensive supply of splendid pine. Peter Ryan, of Toronto, negotiated the sale. There are numerous evidences of an improvement of the lumber trade. At Thackray's Mill, 200,000 feet of red pine deals are being kiln-dried and made into flooring for the American market. Some of the lumber is already being loaded on to cars for shipment.

Rev. W. W. Carson lectured last night in McLeod street church. Speaking to a reporter, Dr. Carson said he had read the Canadian papers and thought Canada in a far better position than the States. "Why, last August twelve months," said Dr. Carson, "the Detroit iron works closed down and this threw 500 men out of employment. They have not done a tap of work since. This meant many others being also thrown out and an immense amount of poverty resulting. Many first class mechanics are only too anxious to get a chance to shovel snow. The general tendency of the States seems to be either to make millionaires or paupers."

The delegates attending the Liberal convention in Toronto have returned. They pronounce the Liberal convention a great success. A. W. Fraser, who was one of the Ottawa delegates, has been appointed on the Executive of the Ontario Association.

Tax Collector Lord Gets Off.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 8.—John M. Lord, who pleaded guilty to stealing about $1,700 of London West money while acting as tax collector, was brought before Judge William Elliott to receive sentence on the charges to which he had pleaded guilty. Mr. Love, counsel for Lord, presented three petitions to the court, signed by many of the villagers and also several leading residents of the city having real estate in London West. "The purport of the petitions," said Mr. Love, "is to show that the unanimous opinion of the villagers is that the offence was not premeditated, but arose through the prisoner's lack of business ability. I might add that his family is in destitute circumstances, but not from extravagantliving or leading a double life. His Lordship considered the petition favorably and allowed the prisoner to go on suspended sentence.

Sudden Death of a Prominent Nova Scotian

GRAND NARROWS, N. S., Feb. 8.—William Routledge, formerly mine manager in employment of the Federal Mining Association and some years retired, was appointed last year a member of the board for granting certificates to colliery officials. A meeting was to have been held at Stellarton yesterday, and on his arrival here, en-route, Routledge dropped dead. Henry Mitchell and A. B. McGillivray, other members of Cape Breton Section of Board, accompanied the remains to Sydney. Deceased was very highly respected and leaves a grown up family.

Choked to Death at Dinner.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Feb. 8.—Donald Matheson, aged 80, living near Emerald Junction, was accidentally choked to death with a piece of meat while eating dinner. He was a respectable, well-to-do farmer and leaves a large family.

Hamilton Poultry and Pet Show.

HAMILTON, Feb. 8.—The Hamilton Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association are holding an exhibition in the old postoffice building on James street. There are 650 entries and the show is apparently a great success in all respects.

WHITEWAY FORMS A CABINET.

With One Exception the Personnel is the Same As the Former Ministry.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 8.—The Whiteway Cabinet crisis was ended last night and the new ministry will be gazetted to-day. The cabinet proper will be composed of Sir Wm. Whiteway, Premier and Attorney-General; Robert Bond, Colonial Secretary; Henry Woods, Surveyor-General, and A. W. Harvey, Edward Morris and George Emerson, members without portfolios. P. J. Scott will be Receiver-General and Eli Dawes chairman of the Board of Works without seats in the Cabinet. The new Cabinet is the same as that in the original Whiteway ministry which was dissolved last year on account of bribery convictions, except that George Emerson replaces James Fox. The Legislature will meet to-day when the new ministry will probably declare its policy.

Little is known in advance concerning the details of the declaration, but it is felt that the movement is favorable to the Ministers. The relaxation of the political strain which has aggravated the business depression is welcome to everybody and the people will not be so critical as they would have been under ordinary political conditions. The Ministers conferred until late last evening concerning the probable course of affairs in the legislature.

FOR BETTER ROADS.

The Good Roads Association's Annual Meeting in Toronto.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—The Good Roads Association of Ontario commenced its annual meeting yesterday in the Young Men's Christian Association building. The association's objects are implied by its name, and representatives from the different county and town councils throughout the province have been invited. Last evening's meeting was addressed by Hon. John Dryden. A session will also be held to-day.

The bicyclists are among those who are interested in the movement to secure better roadways throughout the country, and the Association of Wheelmen has contributed some hundreds of dollars towards the distribution of literature with the object in view.

REGARDING THE COPYRIGHT.

The Premier and Sir Hibbert Waited Upon by a Deputation.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—A deputation from the Canadian Copyright Association waited upon Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir C. H. Tupper at the Queen's hotel yesterday in regard to the copyright question.

The Premier and the Minister of Justice assured the deputation of their hearty sympathy with the objects of the association and of the determination of the Government to follow in the steps of the late Prime Minister in asserting the right of Canada to pass and enforce such legislation as the Copyright Act of 1889.

As soon as the Colonial Office has been heard from the Government hopes to be in a position to move in the matter.

Charged With Stealing Lumber.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 8.—John Housen and Mark Butts were yesterday brought to Windsor charged with stealing lumber from the Canada Southern Company in Sandwich South. They were remanded till Monday, bail in bonds of $250 each being accepted. John Housen was convicted of stealing timber from the same place two weeks ago and fined $40, which came due at the time of his trial for the present offence.

Injured by a Dynamite Explosion.

HAMILTON, Feb. 8.—William Archer, a laborer, was injured by an explosion of dynamite on section 20 of the T. H. & B. R. yesterday morning. The dynamite exploded unexpectedly while being thawed out and Archer was thrown some distance. He is now in St. Joseph's hospital and his face is so fearfully swollen that the doctor fears he will lose his eyesight.

Hamilton Lawyer Disappears.

HAMILTON, Feb. 8.—Martin Malone, barrister, has not been at his office since Friday last and his friends are anxious as to his whereabouts. It is said he went to Toronto last week to visit his mother, who was ill, but he has not been heard of since, and his law books have been removed from his office. No reason can be assigned for his sudden departure.

Tenders for G.T.R. Coal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—Yesterday was the last day on which tenders for the supply of coal to the Grand Trunk Railway would be received. The tenders are in for 100,000 tons of coal from the Nova Scotia mines, and 600,000 from the Pennsylvania and Ohio mines. The successful tenders will not be known until Tuesday.

A Pretty Face

Is the result of a healthy physical condition. "Beauty is but skin deep" yet it greatly depends on a clear complexion free from wrinkles and hollow cheeks.

Health always brings wealth of beauty. A healthy state of the system comes with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine prepared for woman's ailments—it cures those derangements and weaknesses which make woman's life miserable.

A woman who neglects to take proper exercise is particularly prone to excessive congestion, debility and a sluggish circulation. This is the time we advise the "Prescription." In all derangements and displacements of the special organs which result in "signs of inflammation," in catarrhal discharges from the lining membrance, and in distressing irregularities this medicine is guaranteed to cure, or the money will be returned.

Sparring Stopped in New York State.

ALBANY, Feb. 8.—The Norton bill, prohibiting boxing or sparring exhibitions, came up for final passage in the Assembly yesterday. The roll call was nearly completed before the members awoke to the fact that the bill was an important one and was being passed. They were awakened by Mr. Donnelly, who voted against the measure, saying that football playing was just as dangerous. Then he was followed by various members on both sides, who changed their votes to the negative. The bill, in spite of opposition, was passed.

Sullivan's Escape From a Fire.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 8.—Fire broke out in the Dennison hotel yesterday. The Wabash street wing was entirely destroyed. A fireman named Frank Nutter was fatally injured by a falling cornice. John L. Sullivan, the pugilist, had a narrow escape. The fire broke out below his room and he was quietly reading when he was startled by the suffocating smoke. Nearly every room in the hotel was occupied, the guests numbering between 400 and 500, and the panic among them was terrible.

Two Children Burned to Death.

CONCORD, N. H., Feb. 8.—At Andover Centre two little girls, children of Frank J. Boyd, a brakesman on the Northern Railroad, were burned to death in their home. Mrs. Boyd went out, leaving the children alone. When the mother returned after an absence of less than half an hour she found the older child dead and the other so badly burned that she died in two hours. It is supposed that the children's clothing took fire from a coal stove.

A College Burned Down.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 8.—Belhaven College caught fire yesterday from the furnace room. An alarm was turned in and the fire department responded promptly but the wind was blowing such a gale and the flames spread with such rapidity that the building was soon in ruins. There were 65 persons in the college and all escaped. The building and contents were valued at $50,000; insurance $19,000.

Miss Gould to Wed a Count.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—It is learned that Miss Anna Gould, the youngest sister of Gorge Gould, is engaged to Count de Castellane of Paris and that the wedding will take place in New York some time in the spring. The count is the eldest son of the Marquis de Castellane, the wealthy Parisian.

Mrs. Pope in Court.

DETROIT, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Nellie W. Pope was arraigned in police court yesterday on the charge of murdering her husband, Dr. Horace E. Pope. She pleaded not guilty and her examination was set for February 21. William Brusseau, her paramour, will be arraigned in a day or two.

Not the Time to Reduce Postage.

HOBART TOWN, Tasmania, Feb. 8.—The colonial postage conference has resolved that the time was not yet ripe for the realization of Henniker Heaton's famous scheme for reducing postage fees throughout Great Britain's colonial empire.

Seven Miners Killed.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Seven miners were killed by an explosion in the Timebury colliery near Bristol yesterday.

St. Andrew's Brotherhood Convention.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 8.—The fifth annual convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in Canada opened here yesterday. Already the number of visitors reported far outnumber that of former years. Rev. G. Osborne Troop, St. Martin's, Montreal, did not arrive in time to open the services. In his absence, Rev. Mr. Hedley, of Otonobee, Ont.; Rev. G. R. Beamish, Kingston; and Rev. Lennox T. Smith, St. Thomas Church, Toronto, delivered addresses on "The Practice of the Presence of God" under three headings, namely, "In childhood, in brotherhood and in manhood." Mr. Troop arrived by a later train in the evening. His address was on "Strength out of Weakness."

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 8, 1895.

On the street here 100 bushels of white wheat sold at 6 1-2c; 400 of barley at 48c; one load of peas at 62c, and 200 bushels of oats at 34 1-2 to 35c. Outside wheat still ranges from 57 to 58c. Straight roller flour is offered at $2.80, but buyers want it at $2.70 and $2.75.

Barley in Buffalo was firm. Sellers continue to hold up prices and there is a fair maltsters' demand locally and some out of town orders at values slightly below holders' views. Quotations are not changed, but the market situation is much stronger.

Wheat was dull and weak in Chicago and closed 3-8 to 1-2c lower. There was another boom in corn at the opening of the session, but the gain was lost on free realising and lack of support from the outside. Cash corn was higher. Oats followed corn, the close being 1-4 to 3-8c lower.

The London stock markets were irregular. Americans opened weak on the Norfolk and Western receivership, but closed firm on the prospect of the loan issue, although the best dealers regard this as a mere palliative measure.

Nothing of interest happened on the New York stock exchange. Prevalent belief was that the bond issue announcement would be made to-day. With this conviction all the financial markets came to a temporary halt. In sterling exchange, however, the marketing of bills noted on Wednesday was still in active progress and the slight upward reaction was more than offset by the renewed decline in rates to the lowest figures of the month.

NEW YEAR NEW GOODS NEW LEAF 1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will set off cheap.

TRIAL OF EUGENE DEBS.

Pullman's Secretary Also Disappears—Debs on the Stand.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The Debs case was proceeded with yesterday by the examination of Wm. R. Johnson, a colored porter in Geo. M. Pullman's office. Judge Grosscup conducted the examination, which was instituted with the view of finding out whether Mr. Pullman had evaded service of a subpoenae for his appearance in the court issued by the defence. Johnson said Mr. Pullman came to his office at 10.30 o'clock Tuesday morning. Deputy Marshal Jones arrived an hour later. Johnson took Jones' card into the private secretary, C. S. Sweet, who, without going into Mr. Pullman's room, brought back the card with the statement that Mr. Pullman was out. The defence tried to get Secretary Sweet into court but stated to the judge that he also had disappeared. The matter will be further investigated. The trial of the case was then resumed and President Debs was recalled and remained on the stand all day. His evidence contained nothing new.

THE SULTAN'S STERN REBUKE.

It Caused His Chief Secretary to Drop Dead Before Him.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The Daily News correspondent in Vienna sends this despatch: A letter from Moosh received in Constantinople says that the Sultan sent a commission of Ersinghain officials to Moosh prior to the arrival of the Armenian commission to enquire into the state of affairs. The guards at the Governor's palace twice drove away Armenians bringing a memorial to the commission, but the third time some of the members of the commission received the Armenians.

The Sultan's chief secretary Houreya Pasha, recently died suddenly of heart disease in the Sultan's presence, owing to the Sultan severely rebuking him for his over-hasty execution of his Majesty's order to telegraph Zeki Pasha to quell the Sassoun uprising. The scene occurred when the Sultan learned of the ruthless manner in which the Armenian movement had been repressed.

THOSE GREEN MOTORMEN.

Another Fatality in Brooklyn—Collided With a Coal Cart.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 8.—A trolley car going at a terrific rate of speed ran into a coal waggon yesterday and killed Henry Havemeyer, aged 18, driver of the waggon. Motorman Mahoney was arrested.

Motorman Canfield, a recent importation from Chicago, was arrested for running into a coal cart. He was intoxicated and a 44-calibre revolver, fully loaded, was found on his person. In this collision no one was hurt.

Imperial Aid Not Required.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. John Heywood Johnston, M.P. for the Horsham division of Sussex, asked the Chancellor of the Exchequer, whether it was the intention of the Government to make any pecuniary provision for Lady Thompson and the other members of the family of the late Sir John Thompson, Premier of the Dominion of Canada. Sir William Harcourt in reply, said it was understood that the Dominion Government had the matter of making provision for the family of the late Canadian Prime Minister in hand and under the circumstances it was considered unnecessary for the Imperial Government to take action.

THE TEN BEST GRAPES.

THAT IS, THE TEN BEST FOR THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Which Ought to Be Very Nearly Akin to Those Best for Cultivation in the Garden Lands of Canada—These Are for Eating.

The ten best grapes for table are not the best for general culture. What I propose is to name ten of the best for eating.

Iona.—I am inclined to place this at the head of the list. It is a delicious, juicy, watery grape, that bears long, very brittle clusters. The color is also that of wine. It ripens in central New York the first to middle of October, which of course makes it unsuitable for vineyard culture. The vine should be carefully covered for winter. But the grape, although thin skinned, is a wonderfully good keeper I have it well into winter, kept in open baskets in a cool room or cellar. It is hard to overpraise the Iona. If it fails to ripen before heavy frosts, put into baskets and it will ripen after cutting.

Brighton.—This is a seedling of Iona, and a most delicious fruit. The huge bunches are red in color, and ripen all along from early September into October. But unlike Iona it is not a good keeper; also unlike its parent, it fails to self-pollenize. I never yet saw a person who could not enjoy a bunch of Brightons in their prime. Both grapes have small seeds.

Goethe.—This is, to my taste, the best of Rogers' hybrids; although a well ripened Salem or Lindley or Massasoit or number thirty is good enough. Goethe is more like a hot house variety than any other and of a delicious meaty substance. It ripens late and keeps exceedingly well. I cover my vines carefully for winter.

Herbert.—This is one of the grandest grapes every way that ever grew. I like it better every year. It ripens the latter part of September and keeps well till December, but is not one of our best keepers. The flavor is rich, the skin is strong, but not tough, and the seeds are rather large like all of Rogers' hybrids.

Worden.—No grape appears for an early black to anyway compete with this. It has the general appearance of Concord, but it differs from that grape in being sweet as soon as colored, which is from two to three weeks before the Concord. It bears enormously and is a good keeper, considering the thinness of the skin.

Jefferson.—When the Jefferson finds a sufficiently long season it is incomparably noble. It is a sort of cross between Iona and Goethe in qualities. I have eaten them when but half ripe with more satisfaction than most ripe grapes. It ripens however so late as here to rarely perfect itself.

Goertner.—A grand red grape. This is also a Rogers' hybrid, and was not highly noted until recently. It deserves the highest possible commendation for size, color, crop and quality. It however does not perfectly self-pollenize.

Niagara.—Not quite an ideal of flavor. It has however proved so grand a cropper of great bunches of beautiful white grapes of good quality that it deserves the highest rank. It is also a really good keeper if cut when first perfected. It was thought that Diamond would supersede Niagara, but it has failed in health and evenness of ripening. Empire State has equally failed.

Delaware.—This needs no describing, it is however worthy of a place among the best ten only in favorable localities As far north as central New York I cannot often secure Delawares as delicious as those grown in the Hudson Valley and in Missouri.

I am at a loss which to place tenth in my list; either Lady, or Hayes, or or Duchess, or Wilder. Lady, if I could get a crop, would rank first in this soil and climate, but it is pronounced characterless elsewhere. With me it is the ideal of character. Duchess is a glorious grape, bearing enormous crops, and yet ripening unevenly, and must be cut as soon as ripe. Hayes is a delicate grower, but bears delicious fruit. Wilder and Agawam are superb. But on the whole I am inclined to give the tenth place to Eldorado. It is by no means as shy a bearer as sometimes reported, But if one wishes to increase the ten it will be safe to add Lady, Hayes, Salem, Wilder, Agawam and Duchess. The favorite grape of my children is Duchess.—E. P. Powell, in American Agriculturist.

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet emergency.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Pam to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Pape,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,
They gave us every one, a kiss.
And said, "be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home,
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

McCarthy Storm-Stayed.

The secretary of the local McCarthyite Association has received a telegram from Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, asking that the meeting announced for this evening in the Opera House be postponed, as, on account of the storms, the trains will be delayed.

The Conservative Meeting.

Owing to the space occupied in giving a report of the meeting held in the Opera House last evening, we are unable, to-day, to refer editorially to some matters which will receive attention to-morrow or Monday.

Liberal Convention.

The dates for conventions to nominate candidates to contest East and West Peterborough at the approaching Dominion elections will be announced in a few days. It is expected that candidates will be in the field in both constituencies during the present month.

St. Valentine's Day.

St. Valentine's Day falls on February 14th, this year, as usual. Miss Violet Dixon's Death.

The numerous friends of Miss Violet Dixon who had graduated from the Nicholls Hospital, will regret to learn of her death, which took place at Maple Creek, N.W.T., at the home of her uncle, Mr. John Dixon, on Thursday morning. The sad news, though not entirely unexpected, was wired to Mr. A. E. Dixon yesterday. The deceased young lady was an exceptionally bright and clever person and about 28 years of age. It will be remembered that Miss Dixon contracted her illness, which resulted in lung affection, last July while attending a patient in Peterborough, upon whom she was attending as nurse, and in the hope of securing relief, which her physicians held out no hope of, she, accompanied by Mr. A. E. Dixon, her uncle, left for the N. W. T. in November last. In December the residence of Mr. John Dixon, with whom she was staying, was destroyed by fire, and from that time she has gradually failed until death came to her relief on Thursday. She was the daughter of Mr. Wm. Dixon, and the family have the sincere sympathy of all in their deep affliction.

We regret says the Lindsay Watchman that the game between the Peterborough pedagogues and the Lindsay pedagogues had to be postponed on account of Mr. Kenner, one of the Peterborough team, accidentally breaking his arm. It is expected that the game will be played on Saturday afternoon. Mr. M. O'Brien will take Mr. Kenner's place on the Peterborough team.

HOCKEY.

Peterborough Collegiate Institute Hockey team again defeated the Harbord street Collegiate seven yesterday afternoon by a score of 13 to 5. The game was rather faster than that of the night before. Each team played six men as Archibald of the Toronto team was ill and unable to play. There was a slight change made in the local team. King as usual played a star game, while Adams was a valuable addition. Hamilton played a much better game at goal, some very well aimed shots being ably blocked by him. Walter Phelan filled the office of referee very satisfactorily. The following is the personnel of the teams :

Peterborough.		Toronto.

TROTTING.

The Lindsay Watchman says :—At the Port Perry races last Thursday the bay gelding known as Harry B. won the three minute trot defeating ten contestants. Harry B. is now owned in Peterborough by Mr. H. LeBrun, but was bred in Lindsay by Mr. Joseph J. Daly, and was known as "Judge Daly." He was sired by Phil. Rysdyk, and his dam was the well-known mare Essie D. It is claimed that he will easily trot in 2.30 next season.

The American Changes Proprietorship.

On Wednesday Mr. Alex. O'Brien, of Ashburnham, and who has resided about Peterborough for many years purchased the good will and business of the American Hotel, Hunter street, from Mr. P. E. Kennedy, and took possession. Mr. O'Brien will, no doubt, make this hotel one of the most popular in Peterborough, as he purposes conducting it in the best style and in first-class manner.

South Monaghan Bridge.

A deputation from South Monaghan, consisting of Reeve Fisher ex-reeve Morrison and several others waited upon Hon. John Haggart last evening soliciting aid for the re-erection of a new iron bridge across the river Otonabee at the place where once a bridge stood, and was afterwards destroyed by fire. It is needless to add that the Minister held out the greatest hopes to the deputation that their wishes would be complied with. Of course, what else ?

Policemen's Wages.

In Peterborough the police force consists of a chief and three men : Chief's salary, $750 ; men's, $14.68 per month and uniform. In St. Thomas, the chief is paid $800, and the five men each $44 a month and two suits. In Windsor, a chief and seven men, chief gets $800 and two suits, the men $480 and two suits. In Belleville, they employ a chief at $780, and six men at $44½ clothes and boots. In St Catherines, $1,000 is paid the chief and $40 per month and uniform to the men. In Port Hope one chief gets $630.

Peterborough, 18th January, 1894.

The report of the Board of Managers was submitted as follows :

It is with thankfulness that the Board informs the congregation of the very satisfactory state of its financial obligations.

As will be seen from this statement, after paying all current expenses, the Treasurer has a bank balance of $194.92 and this is apparently without any particular effort being exercised by the members of the congregation. We find this comfortable condition is due largely to the fact that our salary account this year is $465.10 less than last year. The Board submit that the said surplus of $194.92 be carried to the credit of the special mortgage account to form part of the sum of $500 by which amount the mortgage debt of $3,000 should be reduced from the ordinary revenue this year and in fact each year hereafter, until the whole is wiped out. To this end it will be necessary for some envelope contributors, who are not carrying their fair share of the burden, to increase their donations in proportion to their means. We regret that the ordinary collections have been $100 and the special collections $208 less than in 1893.

The arrears in envelope contribution is $320.61, but after writing off $87.50 there still remains $233.14 which should be paid without difficulty. That the congregation may not unduly congratulate itself it is well to recall the fact that in 1890 the annual interest upon the then mortgage debt amounted to $213.66 as against $175.00 this year. In 1890, the sum of $1,443 was contributed towards the reduction of the mortgage debt, this year $210 and that the envelope contributions were $384 more in 1890 than in 1894. It will thus be seen that the congregation is practically at a standstill and likely so to remain until some noble work in God's vineyard is laid upon the hearts and consciences of its members.

During the year this congregation was honoured by Knox College Senate, in the conferring upon Rev. E. F. Torrance, its pastor, the degree of D D. The members of the Board retiring this year by rotation are Messrs. A. Hall, W. G. Ferguson, Thos. A. Hay and Wm. Walsh, all of whom are eligible for re election.

Auditors for the ensuing year will also be appointed.

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. BENNET,
Secretary.

The retiring members of the Board for the year were Messrs. A. Hall, W. G. Ferguson, Wm. Walsh, and T. A. Hay. All were re-elected and Messrs. J. A. Fife and J. Crane were appointed auditors.

GOOD EVIDENCE

Offered the Value of the Most Popular Remedy Sold in Canada To-day.

NAPANEE, Feb. 8.—Lawyers have a rule to observe when in court that the best evidence obtainable must be given in proof of their case. This is the rule followed by the proprietors of Dodd's Kidney Pills. The evidence they give of the value of these Pills are testimonials from thousands of people who have been cured of various forms of kidney diseases by their use. And they are not minor forms of kidney diseases, but hundreds of cases of Bright's disease and diabetes, which doctors have always pronounced incurable, have been cured by these Pills. Never yet have Dodd's Kidney Pills failed when used according to directions.

Sold Out.

Mr. Alf. Dawson, grocer, No. 355 George street, has sold out his stock of first-class groceries and provisions to Mr. W. J. Hall, dealer in bankrupt stocks. The entire stock has been removed to Mr. John Cameron's grocery store, where it will be slaughtered in the usual manner, regardless of original values. Housekeepers will get extraordinary "snaps" in staple groceries and provisions as long as this sacrificing sale lasts. d28tf.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during this month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any further notice. dw

—The Rugby Minstrels meet to-night for practice at the usual hour in Jackson's Music Hall.

—As the hills are in first class order for coasting a great many young people improve the evenings with this sport, and no accidents are reported as yet.

—The charge of larceny preferred against a young farmer residing near Springville, who was charged with the theft of a horse blanket was dismissed at the police court this afternoon.

—Mr. Wm. Kennealy, while engaged in hauling ice from Mr. Calcutt's ice houses, Jubilee, Point, Rice, Lake, was kicked by one of the horses in the small of the back, breaking three ribs. Mr. Kennealy is progressing favourably.

—The recent cold snap has worked havoc amongst the plants in numerous small conservatories in town. Badly frost-bitten ears and noses are the rule and a few citizens have actually had their feet frozen, presumably through wearing shoes of too small a size, thus checking the circulation.

ANOTHER SNOW BLOCKADE.

Freights Cancelled and the Schedules Abandoned.

The trains on the Grand Trunk and C.P.R. are again all delayed to-day and the schedules have been abandoned for the present. The snow ploughs are out endeavouring to keep the rails clear of the drifting snow, which accumulates with marvellous rapidity in the cuts.

The Belleville train was five hours late in getting in here this morning, and the Port Hope train was also several hours behind time.

The Toronto mail train on the C.P.R. was an hour and a half overdue before it steamed into the station, as was the Toronto train on the Midland.

No freight trains are running, as all the available locomotives are busily engaged furnishing power for the snow ploughs.

Another Tornado To-morrow.

"The Tornado," at the Opera House to-morrow night, is Lincoln J Carter's great scenic play. The scenic embellishments in all the thrilling scenes and original situations are well put on. The great tornado scene in act one and scene three of act two, entitled. "Up in the Rigging of the S. S. Erma, Furling Sail," is quite realistic. The steamship collision is exciting, and the view of pier at end of Randolph street, Chicago, brilliant, while the great fire scene, and the laughingly hurried escape of the inmates in their night clothes is admirable. MINISTERIALISTS IN PETERBOROUGH.

A Trio of Ottawa Legislators Deliver Addresses.

HON. JOHN HAGGART, HON. T. M. DALY, HON. DR. MONTAGUE.

MESSRS. JOHN BURNHAM M. P. AND JAMES STEVENSON, M. P. ALSO SPEAK

The Ministers Were Met at the Train by Some of the Local Conservatives and Escorted to the Oriental by the Band—There was no Procession—The Large Audience Manifested Interest in the Proceedings but There was no Display of Enthusiasm—A Farmer Corners Dr. Montague to the Great Amusement of All.

The ministerial party at present engaged in stumping through Ontario, arrived in Peterborough yesterday afternoon by the G.T.R. at 5.10 and were met at the station by a fairly large concourse of citizens. The band was in attendance and as the ministerial party disembarked the members were greeted with cheers. The procession unfortunately was a single and consisted of but five backs and three private conveyances.

Hon. Mr. Foster was unable to come to Peterborough on account of press of business and the party, therefore,

WAS COMPOSED OF

Hon. John Haggart, Minister of Railways and Canals; Hon. T. M. Daly, Minister of the Interior, and Hon. Dr. Montague.

The procession proceeded to the Oriental Hotel, where the ministers and a number of local Conservatives dined in private after which a reception was held when a number of the followers of the government were given an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with the three members of the Cabinet.

Preparations on a most elaborate scale had been made for the visit of the ministers. The opera house was most lavishly decorated. Flags and bunting adorned all the available space, intermingled with such mottoes as "Welcome, Thrice Welcome," "Canada for Her Sons," "No Alien Need Apply," "Haggart, the protector of Canadian Workingmen," "We stand by the National Policy," Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario by T.V.C," "British Protection for Ever," "Protection Alike for Farmer and Manufacturer," etc.

THE LARGE AGRICULTURAL

district surrounding Peterborough had been made fully acquainted with the proposed visit of the ministerial party, through the indefatigable exertions of the members of the local Conservative Association, who saw that the whole countryside was well billed with posters, weeks ago, announcing the nature of the mass meeting to be held by the Ottawa legislators. It was, in consequence, expected that there would be a large turnout of farmers. For some reason, however, the expectations of the local Conservatives were not realised to any great extent. A number of farmers there certainly were, but they were those who were within a very few miles drive of the town. The meeting, however, was well attended, though there was a noticeable

LACK OF ENTHUSIASM, and the reception, with which the ministers met in the Opera House, could certainly not have been classed as cordial.

Hon. T. M. Daly's address was of the nature, which created such an uproar at the Board of Trade banquet in Toronto, last year, viz., lengthy unto tediousness. He dealt extensively in figures and decimals and told over again the old, old story of the National Policy.

The subject of the elections was referred to only indirectly by the speakers. Dr. Montague went back to English history and proposed to teach the growth and prosperity of English commerce from its inception. This prosperity he claimed was founded on a long continued foundation of protection. In closing the Canadian people had teachers before them to-day from which they could learn the lesson of how to act for their own interest. The one was experience and the other was the career and condition of the Liberal party which for seventeen years had been out of office and had been buffeted about from pillar to post.

Hon. John Haggart in his address occupied the greater part of the time in comparing the present policy of the Conservatives with that of the Liberals, twenty years ago and the sayings of Laurier with those of Mackenzie. He also made a brief mention of the Trent Valley Canal. In speaking of the proposed work the minister made a statement which elicited roars of laughter from the audience, viz., that the Conservative party never before election, which it did not afterwards fulfil. The Hon. John apparently quite forgot for a moment that for the last thirty years the great Conservative party has been making promise after promise concerning the T.V.C., and that the first spade yet remains to be turned.

The chair was taken by Mayor Kendry who opened the meeting by introducing the members of the cabinet.

The Speeches.

The Mayor pointed out that there were several important questions to be discussed which would be of particular interest to all residing in the district. One of these questions was that of the construction of the Trent Valley Canal. (Applause.) During the evening the policy of the Government

WOULD BE CLEARLY OUTLINED.

He understood that at the recent Reform meetings held in Toronto that Hon. Wilfred Laurier had stated that the object of the Reformers was to pit the interests of the farmer against that of the manufacturer. He deprecated such a policy. Peterborough, he stated, had been built up only through the united efforts of the farmer and the manufacturer. What was true in the case of Peterborough should apply to the country at large.

MR. JAMES STEVENSON, M.P.,

was received with loud applause. He said he would not attempt to make a speech, but would take another occasion to explain his views to the electors and to show what efforts he had made to promote the building of the Trent Valley Canal.—(Laughter.) He would, for the present, leave Hon. Mr. Haggart, Minister of Railways and Canals, who would explain fully what he intended to do in reference to the Trent Valley Canal. He (Mr. Stevenson) pledged his word that the audience could believe what Mr. Haggart told them on the subject. He had every confidence that Mr. Haggart would carry on the work to completion.—(Cheers.) After a few remarks in reference to the trade question, Mr. Stevenson gave way to who was warmly received. He also said he would not make a speech, but would simply define his position in relation to his representative position. He was elected as a protectionist in 1878 and after observing all the operations of that policy, he was as much of a protectionist to-day as he was in 1878.

The next speaker was Hon. T. M. Daly, Minister of the Interior. Mr. Daly is a portly, well nourished and rather handsome gentleman, with a fluent delivery and pleasant address. After he referred to the shifty policy of the Opposition, which was of such a character that one could not tell what their policy was. After sketching the genesis of the National policy, which was inaugurated in 1878 and which had been of such inestimable benefit to the country and a policy that would be overwhelmingly sustained at the coming elections (loud cheers); Mr. Daly read an extract from the speech of Hon. Mr. Laurier, last night, to the effect that for sixteen years the people of Canada had been in a condition of "feudalism and slavery," represented by protection. In contrast, a speech of Mr. Laurier, made in 1876, was quoted to show that that gentleman had at that time advocated a measure of protection to manufacturers. But a change had come over the spirit of his dream and to-day Hon. Mr. Laurier was advocating free trade on British lines. Mr. Blake's Malvern speech was cited to show that that gentleman had stated that "free trade was removed from the domain of practical politics." The speaker would leave to

A FEW PRELIMINARY REMARKS,

HIS ELOQUENT FRIEND,

Dr. Montague, to show the disastrous effects of free trade, but he, Mr. Daly, would ask the people of this town, which was a great manufacturing centre, what position their various manufacturies would be in without protection, which gave their men and boys and women employment? Protection had kept the factories in active operation, gave employment, and had furnished a home market for the produce of the farmers. The Dominion Government had, by placing a duty on pork, beef, lard, ham and bacon, thus protected the farmer from the competition of the United States, which would be in full force if the Liberal policy were unfortunately adopted. The speaker adverted to the fun that had been poked at protection by his Liberal friends, especially in reference to the manufactures enumerated under the head of manufactures. But, said Mr. Daly, the departments had collected and grouped these returns and the result of this grouping was to show that there had been a large increase in the output of the larger manufactures all over the country. With reference to the claim of Mr. Laurier that protection had filled up the cities at the expense of the country population,

MR. DALY POINTED OUT that that was the rule in the United States and Great Britain where the large increase of population in cities over the country prevailed. Mr Laurier's argument in reference to the census returns, showing that of six hundred thousand immigrants that had come into Canada only 300,000 remained. Mr. Laurier was not fair. He ommitted that large numbers of emigrants reporting at Canadian ports were destined for the United States, and should not be counted in the estimation of immigrants coming into Canada. Mr. Daly defended the immigration policy of the Government and pointed to the fact with pride that the increase of population in Manitoba in the years '91, '92 and '93 had been 47,000, not counting the increase in the Territories. Adverting again to the National Policy, he asserted that it was a policy for building up the country and the policy of Sir John Macdonald, in reference to the building of the Canadian Pacific railway and other public works, when speaking regarding the C. P. R., the speaker told, in a very happy manner, a story illustrating the benefits of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which was the best applauded portion of his address. In reference to the national debt the speaker explained that was made up principally of the following items: 109 millions of debts of the provinces assumed by the Dominion Government, the Canadian Pacific Railway 61 millions, Intercolonial Railway, 44 millions and the system of canals 36 millions. When the Soulanges Canal was completed we should have a fourteen feet waterway from Lake Erie to the St. Lawrence, and when the Ste. Marie Canal was finished—a great work begun by his honourable friend Mr. Haggart—was completed, we should have uninterrupted water communication between the head of Lake Superior and the St. Lawrence. Thus of 247 million dollars of public debt, over 140 millions of it was represented by these substantial assets. The speaker went on to point out that there had been a much larger percentage of increase of the public debt under Liberal rule from '74 to '78 and without such substantial assets to show for it. Mr. Daly concluded his eloquent address by a brilliant peroration, descriptive of the unrivalled natural resources of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and resumed his seat amidst loud applause. In the course of his concluding remarks, the speaker pointed out that the Canadians at the World's Fair had shown that they could hold their own in all branches of industry, including manufactures, against the competition of the world.

THE PRESENT DEBT OF 247 MILLIONS,

Hon. Dr. Montague opened his address by stating that the large gathering was but a sample of the receptions which had been accorded the Ministers

THROUGHOUT THEIR TOUR.

The great Conservative party, he stated, went before the people with a clear record. They did not rely upon enthusiasm to carry them to victory. Prophecy after prophecy had doubtless been heard to the effect that the Conservative party was about to be defeated, but the party had heard this cry so often that they had no fear of it. The doctor then outlined what he pleased to term the policy of the Liberal party. He facetiously declared that the Reform leaders had decided that Sir Richard Cartwright had been the cause of their defeat at the polls on numerous occasions and had thrown him overboard in the hope that of a Jonah, their political bark might yet be safely anchored in the cabinet harbor at Ottawa. Dr. Montague was pleased to see that Peterborough, through its manufacturing interests, fostered under the National Policy, had grown forty-two per cent. within the past ten years, while the population of the surrounding farming section had only swelled to the extent of twelve and a half per cent.

HAVING RID THEMSELVES

In regard to the C. P. R., Dr. Montague stated that this road last year, when hundreds of American railroads almost ceased operation through the collapse of trade, not only paid its own way, but paid in over $5,000 to the government treasury.

Hon. Wilfred Laurier, he stated, although he severely for its expenditure on public works, yet, in his recent trip, expressed to the people of Victoria that he thought they had been neglected, and that their harbor needed improvement. In Medicine Hat also he thought the citizens should have a new bridge, which he would use his influence to secure for them.

CRITICISED THE GOVERNMENT

The public expenditure under the Provincial Governments had, he stated, increased from 16 per cent. in Ontario, to 64 per cent. in Quebec within five years, while the expenditure of the Dominion Government had only increased in that time by one quarter of one per cent. This, he thought, was a sufficient refutation of any cry of extravagance concerning the administration at Ottawa.

Touching on the

QUESTION OF PROTECTION,

the speaker quoted expressions used by Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, to the effect that the Reform party was opposed to the system from first to last and that he would never rest while it existed. Sir Richard Cartwright had gone even farther, he had stated that protection was worse than war, worse than famine and worse than pestilence in Canada. Hon. Wilfred Laurier, he continued, took the same stand. The leader of the Opposition had openly declared that there must be no half measures, protection must go.

Before leaving the subject the speaker claimed that when the great disasters overtook last year the only thing which kept the wave from bursting and sweeping over Canada was the fact that the government stood firmly by its fiscal policy.

Dr. Montague cautioned the audience against going away under the impression that the policy of Mr. Laurier was to introduce unrestricted reciprocity. On the contrary he stated the leader of the Opposition did not desire to secure foreign markets for Canada, but rather to throw the Canadian market open to the world. Once this was done no return could be secured. It would be useless for Canada to ask for free trade, as the foreign markets after once securing an entry here would hardly be likely to give something for nothing. Though Liberals understand England as a free trade country, had been created by a protective policy which had been in force for five centuries. After the industries had been thus fostered, England had been able to throw down the barriers of protection and bid defiance to the world.

YET ITS SUBSTANTIABILITY

Protection, he claimed, was as favourable for the farmer as the manufacturer.

He asked if there was a farmer in the audience who would like the duty taken off pork, for instance—

A reply came like a flash. A young farmer sprang up and queried of Dr. Montague as to whether he knew the difference in the price of pork in Buffalo and Peterborough.

The Doctor tried to evade the question. He asked the speaker if he WAS A FARMER?

"Yes," came the reply.

"Are you a Liberal?"

"Yes," again.

The audience here took a hand in the proceedings and called for an answer to the farmer's query. The speaker had to eat humble pie and state that he wasn't posted and didn't know. He wanted to know, however, if the young farmer thought that the Domini n Government had made a mistake by putting an import duty on beef, pork and mutton when they found that 33,000,000 pounds of meat was coming into Canada from the United States?

The answer again was a prompt one: "Give us free trade and we are willing to compete with the world."

Dr. Montague undertook to explain that though the Liberal party promised unrestricted reciprocity they would never be able to arrange for it. The answer and the audience jeered the speaker unmercifully. Before leaving the subject he asked the farmer to bear in mind that though the prices of pork in Buffalo might be higher than it was in Peterborough at present, yet this would not always continue to be the case and there would come a time when the farmers would see that the policy of protection, though it might not apply in all cases advantageously at the present time, yet in the long run would prove its worth.

WAS A LAME ONE

The speaker concluded his address by a pleasing reference to the lavish decorations of the hall and what he termed the warmth of the reception accorded him and his colleagues.

HON. JOHN HAGGART

Was the last of the ministerial trio to take the platform. After saying some pleasant things about Peterborough and its progressive citizens, stated that he would only speak briefly on the issues of the day.

In dipping into his subject Mr. Haggart stated that the main differences between the two great political parties of Canada was that of the fiscal policy. The Conservatives believed that $36,000,000 were required annually to conduct the affairs of the Dominion, while the Liberal party affirmed that if the reins of power were in its hands a saving of $1,500,000 through cutting down the expenditures. The greatest part of the expenditure, the speaker explained was uncontrollable, that is certain sums had to be paid out every year in provincial subsidies, for the administration of justice, for legislation and a hundred other things, and no government could lessen this portion of the expenditure. Just what portion of the annual outlay the Reformers intended to reduce could never be ascertained, as the party in question dealt only in glittering generalities and would not particularize, when they complained regarding the expenditure.

COULD BE EFFECTED ANNUALLY

The Excise duties of Canada brought in an annual revenue of $9,000,000 and the balance of the sum needed to conduct the affairs of the country, with the exception of the amount received was required to be raised by an import duty or customs tax and was $19,000,000. The Opposition claimed that this was too great a sum to ask the Canadians to pay and claimed that $17,500,000 should be sufficient for the purpose. The Conservatives levied the import duties in a manner which protected the interest of the Canadians. Mr. Laurier, if in office, would with his policy raise the money required, but would raise it in such a manner that it would not protect the industries of the Dominion.

"How could Mr. Laurier," queried the speaker, "reduce the expenditure and at the same time carry out the promises he made at to raise the provincial subsidies to $1,500,000."

Premier Davis, of Prince Edward Island, who was Laurier's right hand man and who would be in the Cabinet, if ever the Reformers controlled the Government, had urged on the people of his province to support the Liberal party on the ground that the provincial subsidy would be raised and a direct tax on the Prince Edward Island people thus averted. If Laurier went into power he would take into his Cabinet, too, the remnants of the notorious Mercier government, which had almost financially ruined Quebec and nearly reduced her to bankruptcy.

MR. HAGGART WENT AS FAR as to say that in the course of six weeks or so the Liberals would deny and be ashamed of their present policy. He contended that while the Liberal leaders were now crying for free trade on the English system, that they were inconsistent. All of them wanted free trade except in those articles in which they were personally interested. Mr. Featherston, of Peel, favoured protection on pork; Mr. Lowell, of Welland, and Mr. Gibson, of Lincoln, wanted duty on fruits and wine, Mr. McGregor, of Essex, on corn and wine, and Mr. Campbell, of Kent, on corn, wine and flour; Mr. Lister on coal oil, Mr. Casey on flax fibre, Mr. Charlton on canned goods, and Mr. Joseph Martin on mutton. They were indeed

A HAPPY FAMILY.

The old policy of the Conservatives was the policy which suffced for the people. Luxuries were taxed, both those imported and those manufactured here, and running through all was the policy of defence for farmers. It was indeed difficult, Mr. Haggart continued, to find what the Liberals did want. Their policy changed with the changing moon.

The present contest was one of the most important since Confederation, because the Liberal party was not now asking for an amendment of the fiscal policy of the country, they were asking for a complete reversal of that policy. Mr. Laurier had been holding some great meetings lately in Montreal and Toronto. The Conservatives were always glad to see Mr. Laurier on the platform, and as spokesman for his party in Parliament, because there was no greater master in Canada of the art of saying nothing gracefully. Mr. Haggart said he was surprised that Sir Richard Cartwright, the financier of the Liberal party, had not accompanied Mr. Laurier to Montreal and Toronto. What was Sir Richard Cartwright's relation to

THE LIBERAL PARTY

at present? Lately that old chief of Liberalism had been reduced to the humiliating position of reading to some of his constituents a letter from Mr. Laurier to the effect that he (Sir Richard) was still within the ranks of the Reform party. In Quebec, too, a reform paper had recently expressed the opinion that if a fit of sickness should overtake Sir Richard, he could thus be got rid of, and Mr. Laurier would win in the coming elections. Mr. Haggart was unable to understand, he said, why Sir Richard had been thrown over and Mr. Patterson taken in his place. It was surely not because of his unrestricted reciprocity policy, nor because he had termed the outlying Provinces things of shreds and patches; nor because he had gone to Boston and made speeches there in which he had talked about to American Atlantic ports. It could not, surely, be for these reasons, because Mr. Laurier and the other Liberal leaders had concurred with him in all these matters. The reason was that some one had to be thrown over to appease the wrath of the public indignation against the Liberal party, owing to its long-continued political mistakes, and Sir Richard was selected as the man to be sacrificed.

DIVERTING CANADIAN TRAFFIC

Under the present policy, the speaker claimed, articles manufactured in Canada could be procured by the consumer as good as could be imported from any country in the world.

IN AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS

as good value could be gotten as in any other country, in fact better, as large quantities were actually being sent from Canada into the United States, as well as to England, Australia and New Zealand.

Hon. John, however, did not remind the audience of how the protective policy had made millionaires of the Masseys at the expense of the farmer.

Sugar manufactured in Canada could be had by the people as good and as cheap as procurable elsewhere, but again in this connection the millions of the Redpaths, accumulated at the expense of the poor man through the medium of Protection to the sugar industry, was not mentioned.

Mr. Haggart continued to say that in the case of woollen, cotton and leather, the commodities could as cheaply in Canada as elsewhere. This also would be the case with iron if the same policy had been adopted with regard to it years ago, in which case the industry would have been as great a one here now as it is in the United States. Protection to the iron industry in the United States had the effect of making that commodity cheaper there now than in any other country in the world, so cheap, in fact, that it was actually being exported and sold in the English markets in competition with the iron-masters there.

ALSO BE PROCURED

The policy of Canada should be as that of every other country in the world, with

THE EXCEPTION OF ENGLAND.

"Our own markets," he claimed, "should be kept for our own people." Mr. Haggart prophesied that the day would come when England would have to readopt the protective system. Thing were coming to a pretty pass, indeed, when the United States could undersell the great manufacturers in Manchester and Birmingham at their own doors.

"Will the people of England stand this long?" Mr. Haggart queried.

"No," and the day is fast approaching when a change will have to be made and the sooner that change is made the better it will be for the Empire and her colonies.

On rising to begin his address at half-past ten o'clock, Mr. Haggart had stated that as he had to leave at eleven o'clock, his speech would be but a brief one and as the time passed and to the Trent Valley Canal, the wonder of the audience grew apace. The idea became prevalent that the Minister of Railways and Canals might possibly omit to mention the work at all and the probability was that but a passing reference would have been given it, if a note from the audience had not been sent up to Mr. James Stevenson, M. P., with a plain hint that the large assemblage wanted the address localised for the rest of the time the Minister occupied the platform. Mr. Haggart was accordingly interrupted and switched over to the T. V. C.

NO REFERENCE WAS MADE

A titter went through the audience when Mr. Haggart declared the work of second importance to only one in the country and that was the one in his own constituency, known as the Tay Canal, which ran from the Rideau Canal up to the town of Perth. Although a boat never from one year's end to the other, the speaker claimed that it saved the people a large sum of money annually by reason of the fact that it regulated the freight charges on the railways.

Regarding the Trent Valley Canal, he stated that the policy of the party had now irretrievably committed it to the undertaking which was a sufficient guarantee, he thought, that the work would be carried to completion.

He spoke of the contracts being let and expressed the hope that long before the the elections came on or

IMMEDIATELY AFTERWARDS ANYWAY

the work would be underway. As the plans and specifications had all been drawn now for the section between Peterborough and Lakefield, it was intended to let the contracts at once. A section between Balsam Lake and Lake Simcoe was already under contract. He hoped and believed that before three years had expired that there would be uninterrupted navigation in operation between Healy's Falls and Lake Couchiching. He was confident that in two years navigation would be open between Peterborough and Lakefield, and between Balsam Lake and Lake Simcoe. If the government remained in power long enough the grand work would be finished by the completion of the two other portions connecting the Bay of Quinte with Georgian Bay. The Conservative government, he contended, had never made a promise before an election without the intention of fulfilling it. He knew the people of this section had set their hearts on having the Trent Valley Canal built and he believed himself that the work would be for the benefit of the people and that it could be done without incurring any unnecessary expenditure.

OF THE PROPOSED ROUTE

The finest minerals and the best water power in Canada was to be found up back of Victoria county, and by establishing reservoirs the water could be distributed equally throughout the various portions of the year and would thus be to navigation. He had received the recommendation of the engineer in charge to this effect. He hoped to see the day when the products of the great Northwest would pass through Peterborough on their way from Georgian Bay, to the Bay of Quinte and thence to the seaboard.

While the building of the canal might not be to the benefit of all Canada, yet as the people of this section had contributed to the erection of lighthouses, the deepening of the harbor at Halifax, and similar works which did not affect them, these other portions of Canada would now have to shoulder part of the expenditure for the building of the Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. Haggart closed his address by expressing the hope that Messrs. John Burnham and James Stevenson would be returned at the next election by even larger majorities than heretofore.

A vote of thanks was moved to the members of the Ministerial party, by Warden Pearse and Mr. W. A. Moore, after which the meeting was closed by cheers for the chairman, the present members, Sir Mackenzie Bowell and the Queen.

The tasteful decorations of the Opera House, to which all the speakers referred in most complimentary terms, was the work of the firm of J. J. Turner & Son.

COUNTESS WALDERSEE.

PERSONALITY OF THE WIFE OF GERMANY'S NEXT CHANCELLOR.

Waldersee's Star Rises—His Succession to Hohenlohe Practically Assured—Largely Due to the Co-operation With Him in Politics of His Remarkable Wife.

That General Waldersee is to be the next Chancellor of Germany is settled. Hohenzollern is but a stop-gap; the Emperor called him to the post merely in order to mask the return of the old regime. To have Waldersee step into Caprivi's shoes directly would have revived all the long-forgotten animosities between the two men, would have signified Bismarck's triumph in a rather too outspoken fashion.

It is as a reward for the faithful work performed that the Kaiser is now about to confer upon Waldersee the greatest office within his gift. There can be no doubt that Waldersee will accept, and that with the assistance of his wise, honest, and diplomatic wife, he will make a brilliant record for himself. The choice will probably meet with little or no opposition, judging from present comments, for it has the full approval of Prince Bismarck.

The Countess Waldersee is a woman of regal figure and carriage; her complexion is still fresh and her silver hair is profuse. She dresses simply, but with wonderful taste. She is a devout Christian, and the great effort of her life is to propagate respect for the Christian Sabbath in her adopted country. The Count heartily indorses her religious views and, in spite of the comments of society, devotes his Sundays to rest and prayer. He will neither make nor receive visits on the first day of the week. As an instance of his devotion to religion it may be noted that when taking the oath of allegiance in the Bundesrath he added the words: "I swear it in the name of Jesus Christ, in view of my eternal safety, Amen."

Waldersee has common sense, some strategic talents and shrewd notions as to the limits of his own capabilities. Since he married the Fuerstin Noer, nee Mary Lee, of New York, in 1866, shortly after the Prussian-Austrian war, he has made only one mistake, and this at a time when his wife was absent from Berlin.

The Lees are of Connecticut stock, the first of the family having settled at Litchfield 100 years before the revolution. David Lee, the Countess' father, went to New York in 1810 and engaged in the grocery business. He had a store and afterward an office in Front street, and settled with his wife first in College place, then in a more pretentious house in Union square.

Mary Esther, present Countess Waldersee, born in 1838 or '40—it has never been settled which of the two dates is correct—was the second daughter and a bright and pretty child. To complete her (girls') education, and likewise to take advantage of "cheap living," Mrs. Lee moved, in 1855, to Stuttgart, where her eldest daughter soon attracted attention by her beauty. Mrs. Lee married, in the course of a year or so, Baron von Waechter, a diplomat, who afterward became Wurtemberg Ambassador at the Court of Paris, which at the time was swarming with political refugees. Among them was Prince Frederick, of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Augustenburg, a very rich man and father of a daughter, Louise, who at Baron von Waechter's Hotel, made the acquaintance of Miss Mary Lee.

The two girls soon became friends, the old Prince took a fatherly interest in his daughter's companion, and one fine morning acquainted Louise with the fact that he had just become engaged to the young American, and that he would marry her, after renouncing his royal rights, as soon as the Emperor of Austria had conferred upon him a new title, which should be shared by his bride. The couple were married in September, 1864, and started on their wedding trip to the Holy Land. Before they had reached Cairo the new Princess had gained such influence over her husband that, upon their arrival at the Egyptian capital, the latter made a will leaving to the former, Miss Lee, his entire fortune. Six months afterward he died somewhere in Syria, and his widow removed to Wiesbaden, where she set up a fine establishment.

Count Waldersee soon outstripped all other candidates for the rich widow's hand and married the Princess of Noer. The pair moved to Berlin, and Waldersee quickly advanced in rank, but his name did not become popularly known until after the year 1881, when Prince William of Prussia married his wife's grandniece, the daughter of Duke Frederick of Schleswig.

Here are some of the events accredited to the indirect influence of the Count and Countess:

The building and endowment of several churches; the passage of the appropriation bill for the grand new Berlin Cathedral; the abolishing of Sunday work in stores and shops, and, finally, the reconciliation between Kaiser and Bismarck.

CHEAPLY-MADE STEAMER.

Suitable for Cooking Feed and Roots for Cattle or Swine.

A cheaply-made steamer for cooking feed, roots, etc., for cattle or swine can be made by any farmer possessing a little mechanical genius. For such as shown in the cut, first secure a piece of heavy sheet iron 3x10 feet for the bottom. A box is then made a trifle larger than the length and width of the fireplace and a foot high with a tight-fitting lid. In the centre of the lid bore a two inch hole for a two inch pipe, A, which is also inserted in the feed above.

The feed box has two bottoms, the second two inches above the first. It is perforated with one-half inch holes, through which the steam, BB, enters the feed. The feed box may be made of any size to suit the maker. Next dig a trench, which should be walled with brick or stone; on this set the cooker. Build an arch in front and a chimney place in the rear. A tube for filling the boiler may be made at C. If the barn already has a chimney, a brick and iron fireplace may be built against it and the boiler and cooker set on top. The length and breadth of the whole outfit may be made to fit any conditions, either long or short, narrow or broad. The entire outfit can be made for $10 to $20.—W. A. Sharp, in Farm and Home.

One Way to Bake Apples.

Core and quarter tart apples, but do not remove the skin. Fill a pudding dish; sprinkle over with sugar to sweeten them as with boiled apple sauce; add a little water; put in the oven and bake. Press them down into the juice when removed from the oven. Eaten cold with a little sweet cream.

The only way to cure catarrh is to purify the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and tones up the whole system.

B. B. B.

Purifies, renovates and regulates the entire system, thus curing dyspepsia, constipation, sickheadache, biliousness, rheumatism, dropsy and all diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It also removes all the impurities from the system from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore.

EYES TO SEE AND SEE NOT.

That is the case with many people. They need spectacles, and the strange part of it is that some folks never know how bad their eyes are until they have them tested. Have been going through life without seeing as much as they ought to see—perhaps suffering from headaches and tired eyes.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Military Men of the Indian Service Wait Upon the Governor-General.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—An order-in-Council has been passed appointing Messrs. Duquesnite McDonald, barristers, deputy judge in Admiralty for the district of New Brunswick. Justice Tuck is senior judge of this court.

Senor De Ovies, the physiologist, who has been giving exhibitions here for the past two weeks, gave some highly interesting replies to written questions put to him. In reply to a question as to whether there would be a session of the Dominion Parliament before an election, the senor stated that unless an important vacancy occurred in the Government, there would be a session before an election. The whole matter, the senor says, will be settled within ten days.

Judge Mosgrove has set aside the election of A. Lavoie as Separate School trustee of Victoria Ward and ordered that a new election be held. In giving judgment in this most interesting case, the judge held that it was unnecessary that John Hudson, the party making the complaint, should be proved as a qualified elector, as contended by Mr. Belcourt, counsel for Mr. Lavoie. He also held that the mode of conducting the election was not as required in the statutes, inasmuch as Mr. Geo. Maran, who had been sworn in as deputy returning officer, had only presided at the nomination and then declining to act, had appointed a Mr. Dionne to be deputy returning officer in his place on polling day. The Act was plain and explicit that no one else than the deputy returning officer named by the trustee of the Separate School Board had by power to preside at the poll.

Surgeon Major Perry, of the Madras British Military service, India, and Captain Houghton of the First Bombay Grenadiers, arrived at the Windsor from Vancouver. They are here to discuss Canadian military matters with his Excellency the Governor-General. They travelled by way of Japan and crossed by the C.P.R. steamer to Vancouver thence to Ottawa. In the afternoon they had an interview with his Excellency. The report is being circulated that Capt. Houghton is here in connection with the vacancy which may occur if Major General Herbert's resignation is accepted.

SAYS HIS BROTHER'S INNOCENT.

Israel Brusseau Blames Mrs. Pope for Her Husband's Death.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 7.—Israel Brusseau, a brother of murderer Brusseau, says he feels positive his brother never did the killing of Dr. Pope and appears anxious to lay the whole blame at Mrs. Pope's door. He says for some time the whole family has been trying to get William away from Mrs. Pope as none of them liked her. About a month and a half ago he called at the Pope residence with the intention of urging his brother to come away. Mrs. Pope appeared and ordered him to clear out and not show up there again or she would throw him out and also have him arrested as she understood he had been talking about her. Israel says the old people are sick from the shock received at hearing the terrible news. Peter Brusseau, the father, is 70 years old and the mother is 65.

THE COLD SNAP.

All Over the Dominion Severe Weather is Reported.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—The cold snap is being felt with severe rigor in this city. The coldest weather in 38 years was reported from the Observatory, the mercury yesterday registering 21 degrees at six o'clock in the morning.

The cold weather is not confined to Toronto for in no place from Cape Breton to the Rocky Mountains is the thermometer less than 10 below zero. The coldest place in Canada is on Lake Superior, where it is 60 degrees below. This is very cold, when it is remembered that the coldest temperature in which man ever lived was 82 degrees below. In Calgary the temperature is 38; Parry Sound, 38; Quebec, 30; Stratford, 27; Owen Sound, 36; Sarnia, 30; London, 24; Guelph, 24; Peterborough, 31; Minden, 41; Port Elgin, 36.

Household Hints.

Mustard plasters mixed with sweet oil will not blister.

Peppermints eaten after dinner promote digestion. So does popcorn.

In hand sewing, if the work is stiff and hard, rubbing soap on one's needle and fingers will be found very helpful.

An easy way for an overworked housewife to keep a stove well blacked is to black it thoroughly once a week. Then rub it each morning with a cloth, first placing over the hand one of the small paper sacks that grocers use.

A twine bag is another very necessary article. One can easily be crocheted out of silk.

An oilcloth cover or spread for the kitchen table is very neat and easily kept clean.

Old People in England.

Forty-two centenarians, thirty women and twelve men, were discovered in Great Britain last year by the "St. James Gazette." Among them were the Dowager Viscountess Sidmouth, 100, forty-four years a wife and thirty years a widow; Evan Baines, in Wales, at 106, whose birth is entered in the parish register for 1788; Mrs. Sarah Thomas, who on her 106th birthday received 106 shillings from the Prince of Wales, and who is an inveterate smoker, and Ellen Roche, who died in County Cork at the reputed age of 115, and was an ardent smoker and snuff taker.

Poor Digestion

Leads to nervousness, fretfulness, peevishness, chronic Dyspepsia and great misery. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy. It tones the stomach, creates an appetite, and gives a relish to food. Words of Weight and Wisdom

Canada's Well-known Railroad Contractor, Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, Ill.

Treated by Several Doctors and Tried Nearly Every Proprietary Medicine—Got Very Little Benefit—Was Influenced to Use South American Nervine—Found Immediate Relief—"The Nervousness Has Entirely Left My System"—"I Will Never Be Without It in My Home."

MR. J. W. DINWOODIE, CAMPBELLFORD, ONT.

Men of affairs usually weigh their words. They are not of that class of people who carry their hearts upon their sleeve. One of the best known men of affairs in Canada is Mr. J. W. Dinwoodie, the large railroad contractor, evidence of whose work is to be found in all parts of the Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to chain one section of our vast Dominion with another and bring its people into easy touch with each other through the medium of the iron horse, as Mr. Dinwoodie has in a short lifetime done, is a work of which any man may be proud. Hard and brainy labor, however, is necessary to success of this character, and the strongest constitutions are in danger of breaking down under the strain. It has been so with Mr. Dinwoodie. The great thought that he has had to give to his work, and the care and responsibility that it has carried with it finally told on his constitution, and he became a victim of nervous troubles, his liver and kidneys becoming seriously disordered.

Naturally he consulted a medical man. Comparatively no relief was obtained. He changed his doctor, and did not stop with one, two or three physicians, but he got no better. Various proprietary medicines were recommended, and, as he says himself, "Tried them all, but got very little benefit. Last fall I was camping out, and I was feeling very ill. I happened to pick up a paper with the advertisement for South American Nervine. I determined to give it a trial, and procured a bottle from the local druggist. After having taken but a few doses I found very great relief. The severe pain that I had been suffering in the small of my back left me and the nervousness that had rendered me, in a large measure, unfit for work, has as a result of the continued use of Nervine, become banished from my system. I am now able to enjoy refreshing sleep the night through. I keep South American Nervine always in the house, and I do not hesitate to say that it is the very best medicine I have ever taken, and most confidently recommend it to anyone troubled with nervousness of whatever form and the attendant diseases of the liver and stomach that follow this weakness."

The important fact can not be too often emphasized that South American Nervine cures at the nerve centers, from which emanate all diseases. This being an undoubted scientific truth, fully and perfectly demonstrated by science, it is never an experiment to use Nervine, but in this remedy is always found a certain cure.

Barn Horses Cremated.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—There was a big fire over the Don yesterday. The dwelling, stable and ice house of Messrs Davis, of Elliott street, near Broadview avenue, were completely destroyed. Four valuable horses were cremated. The total damage done is estimated at $2,000. The insurance is unknown.

What the Powers Will Do.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Times correspondent in Paris says: "Some Russian Embassies have received instructions as to the attitude which Russia, England and France and very likely through Russian intervention, America, intend to take toward the questions raised by the war in the east. The powers will wait until China admits herself vanquished and sincerely negotiates for peace. They then will inform Japan that they cannot allow her to annex an inch of Chinese mainland. Other proposed annexations will be open to discussion.

Big Loss by Fire.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 7.—Munson Bros.' foundry, devoted to the manufacture of mill machinery and supplies, was burned yesterday morning. Nearly $30,000 worth of patterns alone were destroyed. The manufactory of the Eureka Mower Company was destroyed. The company's loss is $25,000. Total loss is estimated at $115,000 and the insurance at $55,000.

Poisoned Candy in Their Coffee.

PERRINGTON, Mich., Feb. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. James Hyatt, four children and an uncle, John Hyatt, who was living with the family, are all lying at the point of death from the effects of drinking coffee in which was found a stick of green candy. It is thought the children will survive but little hopes are entertained for the parents. An analysis of the coffee will be made.

Guatemala Giving Way.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 7.—Public affairs are comparatively tranquil and the truculence of a few days ago has almost ceased. Morning newspapers say confidently that Guatemala was giving way even on the question of indemnity although it is believed that Mexico will abate her claims mainly on the ground of Guatemala's poverty and President Barrio's difficulties at home.

Anticipated.

It was verging toward midnight, but the feeble flame of the watered oil produced a good imitation of gloaming.

It was under such circumstances as these that a tall, slender girl sat and wondered when the man in the easy chair would say something interesting.

The fact that she was 32 years old made the silence still more oppressive.

In the uncertain light she saw his lips move and bent forward eagerly.

"Are we"——

His voice was as music in her ears.

——"quite alone?"

"Oh, Alfred, this is so sudden."

With a wild exultation in her heart she tottered across the room, etc.—Detroit Tribune.

A Hot Dish of Cabbage.

Wash very carefully a nice, firm and very fresh cabbage and remove the outer leaves and any thick stems. Now slice it thinly across, rinse these slices well in salted water, dry them thoroughly on a clean cloth and fry in butter for five minutes, stirring them constantly; then pour onto them two spoonfuls of vinegar, a good half pint of stock, with seasoning to taste, and let them stew steadily in a covered pan till the cabbage is done and quite tender, then drain well and serve piled on a hot dish.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 7, 1895.

On the street here 150 bushels of wheat sold at 63 1-2 to 64c for white and 60c for goose; 600 of barley at 47 to 48c; 500 of oats at 34 1-2 to 35c. West and north red and white wheat are quoted at about 57 and 58c respectively and Manitoba west at 79c.

At East Buffalo two cars Canada lambs sold at $5.50 to $5.60; quality of Canada offerings below average. The Canadian territory pretty well culled over for export lambs and those arriving for sale to local butchers are heavier and coarser than for some time back. Fancy Canada sheep (export wethers), $4.50 to $5. Closed strong and further advance expected.

There was some inquiry for barley in Buffalo, but prices are considerably below Canada sellers' views, while local holders of western are firm at a fraction above bids. No. 1 Canada is held at 65c, with 63c bid for best samples; No. 2 choice, 63c asked, 61c bid.

In Chicago wheat was indebted to corn for an advance of 1-4 to 3-8c. On reports of cold weather light offerings and higher cables corn scored a big gain. Oats followed with an advance of 1-2 to 3-4c.

On Wall street, after two days of trivial operations on the market, a movement of real significance set in. After the first two hours they were relegated to a minor place. Stocks with an international market led in the subsequent recovery, notably Louisville. One noteworthy incident in the markets, which doubtless played its part in creating better feeling, was the continued strength of wheat and corn. The recovery in these commodities since the middle of last week has been nearly 1 1-2c per bushel.

The London markets were irregular and consols and other gilt-edged stocks were firmer on the idea that the negotiations for the American loan were suspended. Americans after the dullness closed better.

People who suffer from loss of appetite, indigestion, sour stomach, and flatulence, find prompt relief in the use of Ayer's Pills. As an after-dinner pill, they are unequaled, causing the digestive and excretory organs to perform their functions as nature requires.

Prepare for spring by using Burdock Blood Bitters to cleanse the system and tone the body to vigorous health. Its tonic purifying regulating work makes B. B. B. the greatest remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

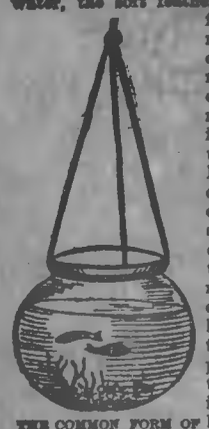
ABOUT AQUARIUMS.

ROUND FORMS ARE CHEAPEST, BUT THE OBLONG ARE BEST.

The Aquarium Is Useful, as Well as Ornamental—Best Plants For Aerating the Water—Removing Sediment by Means of a Syphon.

There is no prettier ornament for the sitting room or parlor than a well kept aquarium. The bright hues of the gold fish as they dart through the crystal water, the soft feathery green of the floating water moss give a touch of picturesqueness to the most commonplace room. But beauty is not the aquarium's only merit. By the moisture constantly evaporated from its surface the stuffy dry air of the sitting room is so much ameliorated that pianos keep in better tune, window plants grow thriftier and the air is made easier for human lungs to breathe. When we remember that gold fish are the easiest cared for of any household pet, it seems strange that we do not more often see them, but probably the cost of the aquarium itself is the true explanation.



THE COMMON FORM OF AQUARIUM.

The most useful form of aquariums are the glass globes that cost from $2 to $5 each. This shape is, however, easily broken. Vick, in his Illustrated Monthly, advises instead an octagonal or oblong tank, and tells how an ingenious person can make one at home when it is not practicable to buy this kind, which costs from $3 to $25. The sides of course should be of glass set in a wooden or tin framework, and the bottom should be lined with zinc or tin. The tin should be painted to prevent rust, and every crack needs to be puttied to prevent the water from leaking through. If only one or two fish are kept, a large candy jar is a convenient thing to keep them in. It is best to allow at least half a gallon of water to each fish if one would avoid having to change the water each day.

Though taking it in small quantities, fish require oxygen the same as ourselves. Where several fish are confined in one aquarium the supply of oxygen in the water is soon exhausted unless the supply is kept up or renewed in some way. This is usually accomplished by growing water plants in the same aquarium with the fish.

The most useful plants are probably the water milfoils, of which the well known water moss is one species and the much advertised water parrot another. A 2 inch pot will hold soil enough for a tank full of these plants.

The green slime that is apt to collect on the sides of the glass is due to minute water weeds. It affords food to the fish and helps to supply oxygen to the water, but presents so unsightly an appearance that it should never be allowed to remain where it is at all noticeable. Where there is a proper balance between fish and plant life the water will not need changing for a long time, but the sediment and particles of dirt will need to be taken out twice a week by the use of the siphon or the water will become clouded and dirty looking.

It is a simple matter to remove this sediment. One only needs three or four feet of rubber half inch tubing, costing 4 or 5 cents a foot. Drop one end of the siphon or tubing in the aquarium and allow the other end to reach to a bucket standing somewhat lower than the aquarium; exhaust the air in the tube by applying the lips to the lower end of the siphon. The water will follow with a rush, and as long as that end is kept the lowest the water will flow uninterruptedly from the tank above. The end of the tubing in the aquarium can be guided directly over the spot where the filth is collected together, when the suction will cause every speck and particle to be drawn up in the tube and discharged at the other end. It will take but a moment to do this, and the water will be left limpid and pure.

DESIRABLE FORM OF AQUARIUM.

Polishes For Linen.

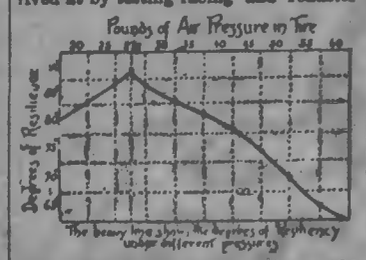
The following are good polishes for linen: Pour a pint of boiling water onto 2 ounces of gum arabic, cover it up until the next day, then strain it carefully to get rid of the dregs and keep it in a clean stoppered bottle. A teaspoonful of this stirred into a pint of starch will make shirt fronts look like new. Another (which, however, I have not tried myself) is made by melting together 3 ounces white wax, 2 drams of spermaceti, one-half pound of borax and 1¼ ounces of gum tragacanth. Add a piece of this the size of a walnut to a quart of ordinary starch.

Hard pan prices at the Peterborough Music Store for 30 days or more. Pianos, organs, small instruments, musical supplies, song books and sheet music, including "Only a Tangle of Golden Curls" and "I don't want to play in your back yard."

Resilience of Pneumatic Tyres.

The question of the resilience of pneumatic tires under various degrees of pressure is one of considerable interest to the majority of present-day cyclists, says a writer in the Bicycle News.

The figures given below have been arrived at by testing racing and roadster



The heavy line shows the degrees of resiliency under different pressures tires of all the best known makes. Of course, the natural resiliency of some tires is considerably more than others, but that does not affect the figure beyond lifting the average at all pressures. In every test the result was the same, viz, that the highest point of resilience was obtained by an air pressure of 27 to 28 pounds.

These tests have been the means of discovering a peculiar coincidence, viz., that the resilience of the majority of air tires is the same at twenty pounds as at forty pounds; this being so, my advice is to keep the pressure as low as is consistent with the weight to be carried.

To pump too hard means to sacrifice comfort, and from my own experience there is less liability to puncture a properly inflated tire than one blown very hard; indeed, I believe that hundreds of tires have been ruined by too much attention with the inflator.

A 20 pound pressure shows a resilience of about 84 per cent, which steadily rises, until with a 25-pound pressure 85 per cent of resiliency is obtained. At 27½ pound pressure, 91 per cent is reached. This is the acme of resilience, and from this point a steady decline sets in. At 30 pounds, 87 per cent is reached; at 40 pounds, 85 per cent; at 45 pounds, 82 per cent; at 50 pounds the drop is rapid to 77 per cent; at 54 pounds, 74 per cent and at 60 pounds pressure only 67 per cent of resiliency is obtained.

The Vow of Four Brothers.

An interesting custom has been faithfully observed this season at Hochst-on-the-Main. Four brothers named Schafer ascended the tower of the old castle on Christmas night and played upon instruments at midnight the melody of the "Hymn of Praise" ("Ehre sei Gott in der Hohe"), etc. The four brothers joined in the Franco-German war of 1870-1871, and then made a solemn promise that if they should be fortunate enough to return to their native place they would play every Christmas in the towers this "Hymn of Praise." They returned, happily, to their homes and every year the brothers meet in the tower and keep their vow.—London Daily News.

DIRT!

Your watch needs cleaning and oiling, once every eighteen months if you would preserve its time-keeping qualities. Consider: In that time the balance wheel turns on its delicate axes 23,328,000, 000 times. It does not "rest" at night like ordinary machines, but keeps at its work unceasingly. You oil an engine, or a sewing machine, or any other mechanical contrivance, daily or weekly; but that delicate instrument of precision—your watch—is allowed to go unoiled for until it is clogged with dirt, and stops. The best of oil becomes thick and dirty in time; in this condition it wears the pivots and destroys that exactness of their fit in the jewel-holes which is necessary to a correct performance.

Let me look at your watch—I will give you a conscientious opinion as to whether it needs attention.

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

CLEVELAND'S PLANS REJECTED

The Fate of the Administration Financial Scheme For Reform.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8—The House yesterday, by a vote of 134 to 161, rejected the Administration bill to authorize an issue of $500,000,000 5 per cent. 50-year gold bonds. This result was reached after three days of spirited, and at times heated, debate.

Mr. Springer moved to reconsider the vote by which the third reading was refused, but this motion was laid on the table, 135 to 123, and the bill was killed. An analysis shows that 42 Republicans and 92 Democrats voted for the bill, and that 56 Republicans, 98 Democrats and 7 Populists voted against it.

The consensus of opinion after the result of the vote on the Springer bill, is that the Treasury proposals for subscription to $100,000,000 four per cent. bonds running thirty years, will be immediately forthcoming, and, notwithstanding official reticence on the subject, it appears manifest that the details of the bond issue have been practically settled.

STORM AT QUEBEC.

Almost Dangerous to Venture Out There.

QUEBEC, Feb. 8.—A north-east gale struck the city early this morning, and the velocity of the wind gradually increased, and at noon to-day it is almost impossible, and is in fact dangerous, to venture out of doors. Communication between Levis and Quebec is at a stand still since yesterday afternoon, and the mails for the Grand Trunk, Quebec Central and the Intercolonial Railway are still detained at the Quebec Post Office.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 8—Ottawa was visited to-day with the greatest snow storm of the season. It is an "old-timer." Trains are all running late. A strong wind is blowing, which makes it bitter cold.

HAWKESBURY, Ont., Feb. 8—The severe snow fall continues, about nine inches of snow have fallen, roads blocked.

SMITHS' FALLS, Ont., Feb. 8—This is the worst storm of the season. About eight or nine inches of snow have fallen. It is still snowing heavily and drifting very badly. The roads are impassible and all trains are many hours late.

A FATHER'S CRIME.

Alleged to Have Killed His Son Arrested for Murder.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH., Feb. 8.—A series of sensational developments in the case of George Arnold, who disappeared from home December 16 and whose body was found in the river last Friday, culminated late last night, when his father Adam O. Arnold, a pioneer of this city and worth about $1000,000, was arrested for his murder.

It is said the father and son had had frequent quarrels, and on the night the son disappeared they had a personal encounter. The prisoner declines to talk.

The Appeal of the Minority to be forwarded to Ottawa by Feb. 15.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 7—The petition of the Winnipeg Roman Catholics for remedial legislation in the matter of the suppression of their school will be mailed so as to reach Ottawa by Feb. 15. Attorney-General Sifton is quoted as saying of the approaching session of the Manitoba Legislature—'We have not the slightest intention of introducing any legislation for the purpose of modifying the principles of the School act. The act shall never be changed as long as this government is at the helm. By it we will stand or fall.'

AWFUL RESULTS OF THE STORM.

Two Terrible Casualties on the Grand Trunk Railway.

Passengers and Employees Killed and Injured.

WESTON AND AGINCOURT THE SCENES OF THE TWO AWFUL FATALITIES.

A Passenger Train Crashes into the one Ahead of it, which had Got Stalled in a Snow Drift at Weston—At Agincourt an Express Runs Down a Snow Plough, and the Driver and Fireman are Missing.

A frightful disaster occurred on the Grand Trunk yesterday afternoon between Malton and Weston.

Two passenger trains were proceeding towards Toronto ween the first got stuck in the snow.

A brakeman was sent back to signal the next train, but although he used flags and fog signals, the engineer of the second train failed to see him on account of the storm.

The result was that the second train telescoped the first and two passengers in the rear coach of the latter were killed.

LATER

A pitch-in on the Grand Trunk Railway, near Weston ten miles west of Toronto, occurred at 2.30 yesterday afternoon, instantly killing four and injuring some 16 or 17 of the passengers, some fatally.

No. 4 express train from Detroit became stalled in the snow, when No. 6 mail and express crashed into her, telescoping the Pullman car, which immediately caught on fire, consuming it and train No. 4's express, baggage and second-class cars. The passengers were buried under the debris, some scalding and burning and others freezing in the intense cold.

FURTHER PARTICULARS

While the Grand Trunk train from Stratford was on the way to Toronto, this afternoon, a train following behind crashed into the rear car, a Pullman, which was occupied by a party of gentlemen who had been connected with the South Perth election trial at Stratford, when the train was about a mile west of Weston. The passengers of the car included Judge Burton, the court reporter, Mr. Monaghan, and the registrar, Mr. Joseph of the Legislative buildings, and Mr. J. E. Atkinson, of the Globe.. Judge Burton received serious injuries, Mr. Monaghan had a leg broken and received other injuries, and Mr. Atkinson had two ribs broken. Mr. Joseph is missing.

After the wreck the car caught fire and with another was completely burned.

TWO G. T. R. MEN MISSING.

Another casualty occured at Agincourt this morning, when No. 1, G.T.R. Express, running west, and with which the 8.30 morning Express from here connects at Port Hope, ran into the rear of a stalled snow plough which had stuck fast in a drift of enormous magnitude.

The passengers by a miraculous intervention of Providence escaped injury, but the driver and fireman of the locomotive connected with the snow plough are missing, and it is estimated that they were hurled into the deep snow at the time of the collision and being rendered unconscious by the shock, have been unable to indicate their whereabouts and have perished.

TEAMS PASSING ON THE ROADS.

At this season of the year when the deep snow makes it exceedingly difficult to pass upon the highways, and when, as often is the case, a whole hog is met, who will neither move from the track nor stop to help another through, it is well that the law upon the matter should be fully understood by those who are frequently imposed upon. The man with a heavy load may think he has the right of way, and for fear of having a cutter destroyed the traveller from the opposite direction is put to great annoyance, but decency should obtain in this as in other things. The law is as follows:—

Chap. 195, Sec. 1.—In case a person travelling or being on a public highway in charge of a vehicle drawn by one or more horses, or one or more animals, meets another vehicle drawn as aforesaid he shall turn out to the right from the centre of the road, allowing to the vehicle so met one-half of the road.

Sec. 2.—In case a person travelling or being on a public highway in charge of a vehicle as aforesaid, or on horseback, is overtaken by any vehicle or horseman travelling at greater speed, the person so overtaken shall quietly turn out to the right and allow the said vehicle to pass.

Sec. 3.—In the case of one vehicle being met or overtaken by another, if by reason of the extreme weight of the load or either of the vehicles so meeting, or on the vehicle so overtaken, the driver finds it impractible to turn out as aforesaid, he shall immediately stop and if necessary for the safety of the other vehicle, and if required so to do he shall assist the person in charge thereof to pass without damage.

Cause and Effect.

Neglected colds cause coughs, throat troubles, bronchitis, and consumption. These troubles can only be cured by the prompt use of Norway Pine Syrup, the best throat and lung remedy in the world.

DATE OF THE ELECTIONS.

Montrealers Believe it Has Been Fixed—Mr. Laurier at the Metropolis.

MONTREAL, Feb. 8.—The statement is being freely made in Liberal circles that the date of the elections had been fixed; and they would come off in April. This, it was stated, had been heard from reliable authority. Nominations, it is said, will be held on April 12, and the election on the 19th.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier returned from Toronto, accompanied by Mr. Charles S. Hyman. He is in excellent health and expressed himself delighted with his meeting in the Queen City. He spent the day receiving friends and will go home to Arthabaska to-day. Mr. Laurier is enthusiastic over the prospects of his party.

Dr. M. P. Guay, M.P. for Levis, the Liberal whip for Quebec province, was in the city and met Mr. Laurier in conjunction with Messrs. Tarte, Brodeuer and other politicians. Sir A. P. Caron has been asked to oppose Dr. Guay in Levis, giving up his present seat in Rimouski.

Injured Workmen Sue for Damages.

HAMILTON, Feb. 8.—Robert O'Reilly and Peter Rogers, workmen who were injured by the collapse of the partially constructed bridge over Binkley's Hollow, on the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo railway, have instructed their solicitors, Messrs. Nesbitt & Gould, to issue writs against the Donnelly Contracting Company, of Buffalo, N.Y., for damages for injuries sustained. O'Reilly was injured internally and Rogers' legs were so badly crushed that they had to be amputated. It is alleged the accident occurred by reason of the negligence of the defendants and the faulty construction of the bridge. The damages in each case are placed at $5,000.

Heavy Gales in Cape Breton.

PORT MORIEN, C. B., Feb. 8.—A heavy easterly gale has prevailed here. The breakwater is literally cut in two, the water flooding warehouses, etc., near the shore. Such a heavy sea has not been known here since the great August gale. The waves were almost mountain high, and reaching even to the doors of houses. No shipping is in port. Some scows belonging to Capt. James Gordon, of North Sydney, were broken loose. The steamship Coban harbored safety in Glace bay.

Woodville Hotel Burned.

WOODVILLE, Feb. 8.—The Eldon house with all contents was burned to the ground yesterday. The occupants barely escaped with their lives. The loss placed at $6,000; insurance $2,000.

An Austrian Ex-Consul on Trial.

VIENNA, Feb. 8.—The trial of Dr. Anton von Palitschek will begin here to-day. He is accused of embezzling part of a bequest entrusted to him when he was Austrian consul in New York.

A Royal Myrtle Bush.

Near the principal entrance at Osborne there is a flower garden in which an immense myrtle bush is to be seen. This has been grown from a sprig which was taken out of the wedding bouquet of the Empress Frederick in 1858. It has been a rule at court that at every royal marriage in which either bride or bridegroom was a descendant of the Queen some pieces of this myrtle have been placed in the bride's wedding bouquet. The practice commenced when Princess Alice married Prince Louis of Hesse at Osborne in 1862, and it has been continued until to-day, when their daughter was married to the Emperor of Russia, and she carried a bouquet of white flowers, in which there was several sprigs from the Osborne myrtle, which had been sent by the Queen to St. Petersburg expressly for this purpose. —Westminster Gazette.

Motherly Solicitude.

The cannibal family gathered around the bountiful board.

"I understand," the father casually observed, "that this is the cadaver of a millionaire."

The mother started in sudden apprehension.

"Now, children," she exclaimed, "don't forget what I told you about overloading your stomachs with rich food."

Gardens in the Air.

Ancient Babylon may perhaps be called the most wonderful city of the world. No less remarkable were the hanging gardens referred to in the Old Testament and described by some of the early profane writers. The city itself was fifty miles in circumference, its walls being 350 feet high and 87 feet thick. The city was built in the centre of a vast plain. The wife of the King came from a mountainous region, and did not like this barrenness. Hence the famous hanging gardens. They were suspended over 400 feet in the air and planted with trees, fruits and flowers. No less than 200,000 slaves were employed in their construction. All this to please his wife. She must have been pleased.

Too Cruel.

"Men are not to be trusted," she remarked to her younger and more successful friend.

"Oh, my dear," said her friend sweetly, "has it taken all these years to teach you that?"

The silence that followed couldn't be broken with a sledge hammer.—Detroit Free Press.

THE MINISTERIAL CAMPAIGN.

Throughout Ontario and Quebec the Dominion Cabinet Ministers are busily engaged rallying the faithful and arousing all possible enthusiasm for the approaching elections. From different platforms the several ministers are reaching the doctrine of protection, and asking the electors to approve of a policy that is each succeeding year bringing the country and the people of the several provinces towards bankruptcy. The policy that was to give abundant work to the unemployed, plenty to the desire of the workingman, and increased prices to the farmer, has been in active operation since the defeat of the Mackenzie Government in 1878, and it remains for the great body of the electors—the farmers and the workingmen—to say by their votes at the approaching election whether they are satisfied with the condition of affairs as they exist at present. The workingmen are fully aware, and there is no denying the fact, that the N. P. has proved a failure in promoting prosperity in Ontario. It has, it is true, benefitted a few individuals at the expense of the many. As a matter of fact there are more idle men now, relatively speaking, than ever before. There has been under the mistaken trade policy, an exodus of our citizens. Our population, according to the census returns, has dwindled annually. Building operations, always a sign of progress and development, have almost entirely ceased. Our ship yards, once hives of industry, are almost silent and the workingmen are looking in vain for that prosperity which was to smile upon them. The farmers of Canada know that the ministerial pretense of giving them protection is unmitigated humbug. If we look back to 1877 the average price of spring wheat in Liverpool was $1.57. In 1878 it was $1.55½. On February 2nd of this year in the same market the price 75 cents. In Montreal in 1877 it was $1.51, and in Toronto $1.35, while on Saturday last the price was 64 cents. In the early part of 1877 the price of barley was 75½c., on Saturday last 48½c.; peas were then 75c., now they are 61c.; oats then 46½, now 35½c.; rye then 68c., now 45c. Even latterly the hog market has gone off and the price been reduced. Horses can hardly be disposed of at any price, yet we are assured that all are happy and prospering under the benig influences of the N.P. While all the commodities of the farmer have reduced in price and the workingman is looking without hope for employment, we find during the month of December that $6,305 worth of rice was imported on which the duty was $4,189, or over 78 per cent.; 887,145 tons of coal with duty of $142,583, or 24 per cent; $13,077 cotton clothing with a duty of $4,220, or 30 per cent.; $755,037 cutlery, hardware, tools and implements, with a duty of $22,480, or almost 30 per cent.; $16,173 boots and shoes, with a duty of $4,053, or 25 per cent.; $53,043 coal oil, with a duty of $48,822, or over 92 per cent.; $6,885 of soap, with a duty of $3,111, or over 34 per cent.; $18,125 of woollen clothing, with a duty of $6,123, or 33 per cent.; $119,553 of dress goods with a duty of $35,736, or almost 30 per cent. These figures show the condition of affairs as they exist, while the prices for the farm have gone down and work is unavailable for the artisan, the commodities they consume are protected to such an extent as to become a burden that they are gradually becoming unable to bear. If the electors will only look at matters as they exist there can be no two opinions as to the result of the approaching contest. The rich are becoming richer and the poor are becoming poorer. Just as certain as day follows day. Notwithstanding all this the public debt in 1878 was over $174,675,834, but in 1894 it has grown until it is now $308,348,023. It will require considerable more eloquence than has yet been ventilated to make the people believe that they have realised what was anticipated when the N. P. was adopted.

BUYING ELECTORS WITH THEIR OWN MONEY.

At a public meeting held in Bowmanville on Wednesday night, which was attended by two of the ministers, Daly and Montague, the chairman, Lieut.-Col. John Hughes, told the audience that a new custom house and post office would be built in Bowmanville if the Conservative candidate was elected, and Messrs. Daly and Montague corroborated this pledge.

In Peterborough on Thursday evening Hon. John Haggart stated that if the Government were returned to power the work on the Trent Valley Canal would be completed, and Messrs. Daly and Montague, Burnham and Stevenson, smiled, while the audience applauded the open bribe for support.

Conservatives have resorted to this form of bribery for so many years that it has now become a matter of course with them. The great Sir John once said that he bought the people with their own money, and latterly the custom is being approved publicly by cabinet ministers. Mr. Ouimet, addressing the electors of Guysboro, in October, said:—"As regards the principle upon which these appropriations are made, I would answer than the Government follows the same rule that determines the action of individuals. If any of you had a legacy left you to divide among the people, you would most naturally begin with your friends." It is hardly necessary to point out the dishonesty of the principles herein laid down by a member of the Cabinet, they are self evident to every man not morally benumbed and intellectually benighted.

THE appeal against the return of Mr. John McNeil, the Patron M.P.P. for South Perth, the defeated Hon. Thomas Ballantyne, Reformer, on Thursday in the failure of the case for the petitioner and the consequent confirmation in his seat of Mr. McNeil. Referring to the trial the Globe says:—"But although the winner of the trial, Mr. McNeil is in an unhappy position. During the election campaign he denied on every platform, raising his hands solemnly towards heaven, that he was ever a member of the P.P.A. He made his denial one of the issues, and his friends were indignant that he should be charged with such an association. Then in his examination for discovery prior to the election trial he denied upon oath point blank and most unequivocally that he was ever a member of the P. P. A. or C. P. A. What then was the dismay and disgust of his friends and the Patron Order when last week his counsel, Mr. Aylesworth, in the face of discovery, rose in court and admitted that his client had committed perjury, and that he had been a member of the order and chaplain of his council. The feeling against him is intense, and the Patrons would have been glad, except for the costs, to have got rid of their new member by the court unseating him. To-night, discredited and denounced by his friends, he is probably the least jubilant Member of Parliament who ever emerged exculpated from an election trial. He did not show himself in court at all to-day."

THE correspondent of the Toronto Globe sizes up the Conservative gathering on Thursday evening in the following words: "In enthusiasm it was somewhat deficient and only when Mr. Haggart declared that the Conservative Government was pledged to the construction of the Trent Valley Canal did the audience as a whole display an ardent sympathy with the speeches. It was to obtain definite information regarding the construction of this work in which they are so immediately interested that the great majority were present. They wanted this information too, from the lips of a Minister of the Crown, and from that Minister who in charge of the department which has the work directly under its control. As a strictly political meeting where great issues are discussed before a gathering vitally interested in them, it was a decided failure." Those who were present admit that outside the interest manifested in the T.V.C., the great audience was unmoved.

SOMETIMES a dead lion is more reputable, if not useful, than a living jackal. It was surely a strange effrontery which branded the Liberal party of to-day with dishonest designs on the National chest because grand old "Mackenzie" admitted that he guarded it with ceaseless vigilance against both friend and foe twenty years ago. We would like to have been able to read John Haggart's amused thoughts just at that moment. Surely, the Curran bridge and the Quebec Harbour scandals, to say nothing of such ancient history as the C. P. R. contracts must be all a dream. Great is the power of complaisant assurance.

CABINET ministers may be made of different flesh and blood to ordinary average, not to say farming humanity, still it scarcely looks well for Honourable Mr. Montague to attempt to brow-beat an honest elector, and with pointed finger endeavour to make him an object of ridicule simply because he has a very natural thirst for information in regard to pork prices.

FIFTY-EIGHT years ago the United States was free from debt and the annual expenditure was $37,000,000. To-day Canada, with one-third the population then contained in the Republic, also has an expenditure of $37,000,000 and an indebtedness of $300,000,000 in addition.

EVERYBODY admired Mr. Montague's eloquent defence of the Government, but several people are asking to-day why he quoted the young Laurier of 20 years ago in the Quebec Legislature, rather than the mature and admired statesman who spoke last week in Montreal and this week in Toronto.

THE floral offerings of the Government to Sir John Thompson's funeral are said to have cost $12,000. The Queen's floral crown cost about $80.

THE WORST CASES OF RHEUMATISM ARE CURED BY PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

A MARVELLOUS CURE IN THOROLD, ONT.

F. McMANN.

Thousands of men and women in all ranks and classes of society, owe their present comfort, ease, health and strength to the life-giving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound.

Paine's Celery Compound has conquered more hard and desperate cases of rheumatism, and conferred greater blessings on men and women, than all the combined efforts of other medicines.

Paine's Celery Compound from the start begins the good work; every drop is charged with curing power, and the grand results always astonish the sufferer.

The case of Mr. F. McMann, of Thorold, Ont., was a remarkable one and astonished hundreds. Few men ever suffered more; his condition was a desperate one, but Paine's Celery Compound was all-powerful and prevailed over his disease. Mrs. McMann, writing for her husband, says:—

"I think it my duty to let you know what Paine's Celery Compound has done for my husband. For two years he suffered very much with rheumatism in the back, and became so bad that he could not bend, stoop or sit in a chair at a table, and I was obliged to take his meals to him while he lay in bed. He was treated by various physicians, but received no benefit until he used Paine's Celery Compound. The first bottle gave him relief, and after he had used six bottles he was quite free from the rheumatism. He was troubled with piles for fourteen years, and found great relief from the Compound. He says he feels like a new man just now. We think there is no medicine like Paine's Celery Compound."

Sunflower Pincushion.

This pincushion is made of felting and velvet. Eight petal shaped pieces of olive felting, three inches long, are sewed on a circle of the same color two and a half inches in diameter; over these are fastened eight similar petals of yellow felting a size smaller, so arranged that the yellow and olive points alternate; a second row of still smaller yellow petals is placed over the first, with the two lower corners of each petal folded over to give a quilled appearance. The middle is covered by a small, round black or brown velvet cushion with soft stuffing, which is marked near the edge by two bands of fine yellow embroidery chenille, tacked on with sewing silk. The sunflower is suspended by a narrow loop of yellow felting, pinked on the edges. The same idea may be carried out in white felting, cut in narrower petals, with a yellow cushion, to represent a daisy. These flowers are convenient to hang beside a man's dressing case, where a more elaborate pincushion would be in the way.

KATE CHASE.

They do not Despair.

An utter loss of hope is not characteristic of Consumptives, though no other form of disease is so fatal, unless its progress is arrested by use of Scott's Emulsion, which is Cod Liver Oil made as palatable as cream.

Relief in Six Hours.

Distressing Kidney and Bladder disease relieved in six hours by the "GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN KIDNEY CURE." FRANCE'S PRESIDENT.

PERSONALITY OF THE SIXTH PRESIDENT OF THE THIRD REPUBLIC.

M. Faure is a Veteran in Public Life—Has Had Long Experience in Office and is a Straight Republican—A Pet of Casimir-Perier.

Felix Francois Faure, just elected as the sixth President of the Third French Republic, was fifty-three years old on the 31st January, 1894. His election is for a term of seven years.

Though born in Paris, he was long a ship owner and merchant in Havre, while he was one of the most active members of the Chamber of Commerce, of which body he became the President.

During the Franco-Prussian war he was a chief of battalion of the Garde Mobile, and led from Havre to Paris a body of volunteers who assisted materially in putting down the Commune. In recognition of his efficient military services at that critical time he was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor May 31, 1871.

He entered political life fourteen years ago, being then elected a Deputy to represent the Third District of Havre, in April, 1881. He was the Republican candidate, and defeated his Monarchist opponent (Le Vaillant du Douet) by a majority of 201, in a total vote of 11,551. Since that time he has been continuously a member of the Chamber of Deputies, and, what is more, has been a steadfast Republican.

In the autumn of 1881 he was appointed Under Secretary in the then new Ministry of Colonies and Commerce, Gambetta being Premier. He held the same post in the Ministries of Ferry, Brisson and Tirard. In the Deputy Cabinet, organized in May, 1884, he was Minister of Marine, succeeding Admiral Lefevre. He held that portfolio when M. Casimir-Perier became Premier, and kept it when M. Dupuy resumed the Premiership, being a member of the Cabinet when the present political crisis began.

M. FAURE, PRESIDENT OF FRANCE.

M. Faure has achieved a high reputation at home as an authority on economic, marine and railway questions. He was one of the chiefs of the political group known as Republican Union, and frequently spoke in the Chamber on those topics. His work on the "Budgets of Finance and the Principal Countries of Europe since 1869" received the commendation of the French Academy, and is recognised in Europe as a standard publication.

M. Faure is a favorite of M. Casimir-Perier, who wanted to run him for the Presidency of the Chamber against M. Brisson at the last election.

He is a typical Norman. In stature he is small. He has a small round head, which is well set on his shoulders. His figure is lithe and elegant, despite his fifty-three years. His eyes are handsome, he has a charming smile, and his manners are easy. He is a good listener, and is obliging.

He was three times Colonial Under Secretary, once Vice-President of the Chamber and Minister of Marine.

Thus, after a spoiled child of fortune, cables Emily Crawford, a man of thought, business experience, and great all-round capacity has been lifted to the Presidency.

On reaching Paris, M. Faure's first visit was paid to M. Casimir-Perier, who threw his arms around his neck and wept, and thanked God for Brisson's defeat.

Bourgeois Called On.

President Faure has asked ex-Minister Bourgeois to undertake the formation of a cabinet. It was this M. Bourgeois who, while Minister of Justice in the Ribot

M. BOURGEOIS.

Cabinet of 1892, asked of the French Parliament permission to prosecute ten Senators and Deputies who were implicated in the Panama scandals.

When he was attacked during the trials he resigned his office in order to be free to defend himself. After he had fully vindicated himself before the courts and in the Parliament, too, he again accepted the portfolio of Justice at the request of the Ministry.

He tried to construct a Cabinet for President Carnot last May, but failed.

He is forty four years old. His political creed was declared in a circular issued to the people of his district two years ago in which he pronounced in favor of "civil and political liberty, freedom of worship, social equality and safety."

The entering wedge of a fatal complaint is often a slight cold, which a dose two of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral might have cured at the commencement. Therefore, it is advisable to have this prompt and sure remedy always at hand to meet emergency.

Hagyard's Liniment cures Diphtheria.

The Student Penwiper.

With the approaching holiday season, suggestions concerning homemade presents are in order. The New York Tribune suggests that a student penwiper for the library writing table makes a pretty present. Take the china head of a doll, one with black hair being preferable. Make a student's cap with a bit of black silk, glueing the black silk covered square of cardboard on to the cap, and fastening a little tassel in the center.

FOR THE WRITING TABLE.

A stiff white collar and tie for the neck and half a dozen thicknesses of black cloth complete the costume and form the penwiper.

A Pretty Face

Is the result of a healthy physical condition. "Beauty is but skin deep" yet it greatly depends on a clear complexion free from wrinkles and hollow cheeks.

Health always brings wealth of beauty. A healthy state of the system comes with Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a medicine prepared for woman's ailments—it cures those derangements and weaknesses which make woman's life miserable.

A woman who neglects to take proper exercise is particularly prone to excessive congestion, debility and a sluggish circulation. This is the time we advise the "Prescription." In all derangements and displacements of the special organs which result in "signs of inflammation," in catarrhal discharges from the lining membranes, and in distressing irregularities—this medicine is guaranteed to cure, or the money will be returned.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees.
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease).
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,

They gave us every one, a kiss,
And Ma said, 'be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home,
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

Are You Prepared.

The dry and fancy goods stores around town are being besieged lately by large crowds of people, and the proprietors are at a loss to understand what Peterborough's people are going to do with such large supplies of fancy goods. They need not wonder when they are informed that the majority of our citizens are preparing for the Grand Carnival which the Sons of Canada are holding on Friday, Feb. 22nd. The prizes in Gough Bros. window are attracting exceptional attention.

Yet More to Come.

In his forecast of the weather, Mr. Walter H. Smith, of Montreal, has the following to say of February: This month will give us more "weather"—if that be possible—than its predecessor. Its mild spells will be productive of abundant snows and rains conducing to floods. Its cold terms will yield some wild storms. Contrary to its usual "dry cold" character, February will prove an essentaly stormy month. A round dozen "general storm periods," are likely to traverse the lake region and the St. Lawrence Valley within its twenty-eight days, or say a fresh storm about every third day. Of fifteen major aspects occurring within the twenty-eight days, twelve are storm producers.

The Queen of Elocution.

The "Queen of Elocution," Sara Lord Bailey, of Boston, assisted by the refined humourous vocalist, Fred. J. Perrin, of Toronto, will give a delightful programme of entertainment in Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday evening next, Feb. 14th. Tickets are placed at the low price of 25 and 35c. in order to give everyone an opportunity of hearing these exceptionally fine artists. The Ottawa Citizen of Oct. 18th says: "When one notices Miss Sara Lord Bailey designated 'Queen of Elocution' on a programme, one is apt to think the title has been assumed rather than deserved. But once she is heard, her claim to even this distinguishing appellation must be admitted. Last night in St. John's Hall she gave such an exposition of the art of elocution as has seldom been heard in Ottawa. This talented lady has so powerful and cultured a voice as well as so handsome and commanding a presence as to actually enthrall her audience." 1d

THE MUTUAL RESERVE FUND.

The report of the business of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association during the past year, which appears elsewhere in the account of the company's annual meeting, proves that dull times have no adverse effect upon life insurance. During 1894 the policies in force have been increased by $13,251, and now number very close to $100,000. In every department of the company's finances, in reserve, in business in force, and gross assets, there has been a steady increase, and in no country or State to which the company's operations extend has there been a steadier increase than in Ontario, the business in which is under the care of Mr. O. McMurtry, manager, Toronto, Mr. W. J. Murray, the Inspector for Eastern Ontario, is one of the most successful insurance men in the province, and is placing a large amount of insurance in his territory.

EVERYONE is waiting for the announcement of the date of the general elections. Nobody any longer bothers speculating on a session or dissolution. The writs for the vacant seats in the Commons, Quebec West, Vercheres and Antigonish would ere this have been issued were general dissolution not impending. Premier Bowell's refusal to discuss politics in his speech at the Toronto meeting is regarded on both sides as extraordinary. The bad effect on business of the prevailing uncertainty in the political world is noticed in Dun's weekly report, which notes it as one of the causes from which business interests have suffered in Ontario. The date of the elections will probably be between April 2 and 6.

UNWISE DELAYS.

Frequently Cause Many Diseases and Much Suffering—Don't Neglect the First Warning.

Peterborough, Feb. 9. — Procrastination is not only the thief of time but the cause of many serious illnesses and much severe suffering. It is particularly the cause of many forms of kidney disease. A slight pain in the back, frequent headaches, burning hands and feet, impaired eyesight, ravenous appetite, and constant nervousness or weakness may be the precursors of a dangerous kidney complaint, although thought little of by the sufferer. In all diseases of these organs it is most desirable to take advantage of the first warning. Once any symptom is noticed, the patient should begin taking Dodd's Kidney Pills, which never fail to cure kidney disease.

Now Is the Time.

The benefit to be derived from a good medicine in early spring is undoubted, but many people neglect taking any until the approach of warmer weather, when they wilt like a tender flower in a hot sun. Something must be done to purify the blood, overcome that tired feeling and give necessary strength. Vacation is earnestly longed for, but many weeks, perhaps months, must elapse before rest can be indulged in. To impart strength, and to give a feeling of health and vigor throughout the system, there is nothing equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration caused by change of season, climate or life, and while it tones and sustains the system it purifies and renovates the blood.

ANOTHER STORM IS NOW RAGING.

SCHEDULES ABANDONED ON THE RAILWAYS.

Passenger Trains Cancelled — Snowploughs Using All Available Locomotives — L'Orignal Branch Snowed in Again—A Bitter Storm.

The cold west wind which blew yesterday made it bitter indeed for the unfortunate pedestrians who ventured forth and even more bitter for those who journeyed in cutters.

The snow drifted badly during the night and this morning the different thoroughfares leading into Peterborough were so blocked that not more than half a dozen sleighs were on the market and the quadrangle which is usually so crowded on Saturday mornings looked desolate indeed, but the farmer was wise who stayed at home, as few indeed of the citizens materialised at the market and there was little or

NO SALE FOR PRODUCE.

It was one of those old-fashioned storms which were quite the thing some years ago, and of which "the oldest inhabitant" can speak so freely, but which of late years have become more and more scarce and far apart. This of course was a fortunate thing for the railways, both steam and electric, but to-day's storm brought back recollections of the past to the people connected with these concerns. It was one of the worst for some years and will be fairly entitled to take a place in the ranks near the head of the storm procession. Although not as much snow fell as did during the recent blockade, yet the cold was much more severe and the water service is cut off in hundreds of houses by the pipes being frozen up.

The C. P. R. is demoralised, and the 11.25 a.m. mail train from Toronto

WAS ACTUALLY CANCELLED.

Snow ploughs, each driven by two locomotives, are running over the various divisions and endeavouring to clear the huge drifts from the tracks. No freights are running at all, and the few locals which proceed slowly from station to station report progress to be difficult in the extreme.

On the G.T.R. the Lakefield branch has been abandoned and Nos. 1 and 2 Expresses from the east and west have been cancelled. The snow ploughs are out and it is hoped that the line will be cleared this evening. The Belleville train was only a couple of hours late and left on time this afternoon for the return trip. The two frightful casualties on this line reported in another column, have taken all the available men to Weston and Agincourt to clear away the wrecks.

ON THE COAST.

The steamer Alpha is three days overdue at Halifax from Bermuda, a most unusual thing for this boat. She should have been on the coast on Monday, but probably met the strong north-west gales of the past three days. Possibly the Alpha may have something to report of the over-due La Gascogne. The steamer Baracoa from New York is also overdue.

THE STORM ABROAD.

The storms which have been so severely impeding traffic recently throughout Great Britain are becoming more severe. The Highlands of Scotland are comely isolated, and all the railways are blocked with snow. An unknown vessel has foundered off Port Patrick, Scotland, with the loss of seven lives, and a two-masted steamer, having white smoke stacks, with a black band around them, is ashore on the Isle of Man. The River Thames is frozen over at Chelsea, and the Scheldt at Antwerp is covered with ice. At Antwerp the thermometer registered 15 degrees below zero, centigrade, the lowest point recorded for 20 years. In Wales thousands of people are out of work on account of severe weather.

A FAREWELL SUPPER.

The Employes of Miss Delaney Gather at Her Table—A Pleasant Evening.

Miss E. Delaney, who is retiring from business, invited her employes on Thursday evening last to participate in a farewell tea at her residence on Brock street.

There were about twenty young people present in all, and after partaking of a most recherche repast, the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, singing and other enjoyments. In sitting at the table, all took their places as they were graded at the store.

Before leaving, little Archie, the errand boy, read the following address:

Dear Miss Delaney:

It gives me great pleasure to be here to-night but I deeply regret you are retiring from business for you were always very kind to me, and I hope if you get married, you will get a good and kind husband and that you will be happy and prosperous the remainder of your life.

A number of others present also spoke a few words regarding the uniform courtesy with which they had always been treated by Miss Delaney.

The most enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

The Modern Invalid

Has tastes medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. A remedy must be pleasantly acceptable in form, purely wholesome in composition, truly beneficial in effect and entirely free from every objectionable quality. If really ill he consults a physician; if constipated he uses the gentle family laxative, Syrup of Figs.

It will pay you to visit Grafton & Co's just now.

Sold Out.

Mr. Alf. Dawson, grocer, No. 355 George street, has sold out his stock of first-class groceries and provisions to Mr. W. J. Hall, dealer in bankrupt stocks. The entire stock has been removed to Mr. John Cameron's grocery store, where it will be slaughtered in the usual manner, regardless of original values. Housekeepers will get extraordinary "snaps" in staple groceries and provisions as long as this sacrificing sale lasts. d28tf.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during this month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any further notice. dw

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

A Former Peterboroughnian Honoured in Lethbridge.

The Lethbridge News, of Alberta, N.W.T., contains the following notice of a presentation to Mr. Geo. H. Johnston, formerly of Peterborough, and a brother of Mr. A. J. Johnston:—"On Sunday evening last, in Knox church, after the services, Mr. Geo. H. Johnston, who, for the past four years has been closely connected with that congregation, and who left on Tuesday morning's train for Medicine Hat, was made the recipient of the following address, accompanied by a purse of $60:—

To Geo. H. Johnston, Esq., Lethbridge:

DEAR MR. JOHNSTON,—From the beginning of the human race, life seems to have been made up of meetings and partings. Like pilgrims seeking another locality, we have, in reality, here no continuing city.

"Poor wanderers of a stormy day
From wave to wave were driven,"

But as Christian pilgrims we are persuaded that the city at which all of us hope to arrive, is one which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God.

It is now but four years since you and your beloved wife came amongst us, and few indeed but have been encouraged and stimulated by your noble examples. In the many trials and struggles incident to our little congregation here, you have borne a most important part, and the Session, Sabbath school, Choir and Endeavour Society, will not only miss you as active workers and wise counsellors, but as true and faithful friends.

We cannot allow you to leave us without expressing to you the pleasure it has been to have had you with us thus long, and we ask you to accept this gift as but a small token of our esteem and affectionate remembrance.

We pray that God may abundantly bless and keep you and your family, and make you as great a blessing to those in the place to which you are called as you have been to those who now in saying good-bye also extend to you their best wishes for your present and eternal welfare.

Signed on behalf of the Congregation of Knox Church, Lethbridge, Alberta,

CHAS. MCKILLOP, Pastor,
JOHN D. HIGINBOTHAM, Supt. S. S.
E. N. HIGINBOTHAM, Pres. Y.P.S.C.E.
EMMA HIPPERSON, Ladies' Bible Class.

Mr. Johnston has recently been appointed manager of the Calgary Hardware Co.

A MIRACLE IN TEXAS.

BED-RIDDEN AND WITHOUT HOPE OF RELIEF.

The Case Investigated by the Texas Christian Advocate, and Vouched for by a Well-Known Physician.

From the Texas Christian Advocate.

Our representative has made a careful investigation of the H.E. Spaulding case at Longview, which is here published for the first time, and which will be read with great interest by medical men everywhere. In reply to the Christian Advocate's questions Mr. Spaulding said: About eight years ago while running a locomotive I contracted sciatic rheumatism in my left side from my hip down. It came on slow but sure and in a few months I lost control entirely of that member, it was just the same as if it was paralyzed. I was totally unable to move out of my room for a year and a half, six months of which I was bed-ridden. I tried every remedy suggested and had regular physicians in constant attendance on me. I was bundled up and sent to the Hot Springs where I spent three months under the treatment of the most eminent specialists, all of which did me no good, and I came back in a worse condition than when I went. I came home and laid flat on my back and suffered the most excruciating agonies, screaming in pain every time anybody walked across the room, the only ease I obtained being from the constant use of opiates. After three months of this agony—during which time my entire left leg perished away to the very bone, my attention was called to a new remedy called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, by by Mr. Allison, who is now train despatcher at Texarkana, and who was relieved of locomotor ataxia of twenty years' duration. At his urgent and repeated solicitation I consented to give them a trial, after taking a few doses I began to improve. I continued taking the Pills and kept right on improving until I was finally cured. My leg is just the same size now as the other one, and I am sure that Pink Pills not only cured me, but saved my life.

The reporter next visited Dr. C. H. Stansbury, a graduate of one of the medical schools of Kentucky, and a man who enjoys the confidence of everybody in Longview. He said:—"I know that Mr. Spaulding had a terribly severe attack of sciatic rheumatism, of which I had tried to cure him; used everything known to my profession in vain, and finally recommended him to go to Hot Springs. He came back from the springs worse than when he went, and I thought it was only a matter of time until his heart would be affected and he would die. I also know that his cure is the direct result of the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

"This is rather an unusual statement for a regular physician to make, doctor."

"I know it is, but a fact is a fact, and there are hundreds of people right here in Longview who know what I say is the truth. I also know Mr. Allison, and know that he was relieved of a genuine and severe case of locomotor ataxia of twenty years standing."

Advance in Canned Goods.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—The Canadian Packers' Association concluded their annual meeting last night. It was decided that the prices of staple lines of corn, peas and tomatoes be advanced two and a half cents per dozen tins.

Gen. Booth's Proposal.

TORONTO, Feb. 8.—Gen. Booth yesterday waited upon Sir Mackenzie Bowell and asked the government to support a scheme for settling Salvation Army immigrants on a tract of land either in the Edmonton or Prince Albert district. Sir Mackenzie said if this scheme were put in writing, it would receive every consideration.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

MADIMINE.

Assessment System. CERTIFICATE OF OFFICIAL EXAMINATION BY FOUR STATES' INSURANCE DEPARTMENTS. Mutual Principle.

MUTUAL RESERVE FUND LIFE ASSOCIATION

OF NEW YORK CITY.

E. B. HARPER, President.

COMMISSIONER'S CERTIFICATE.

NEW YORK CITY, January 24, 1895.

WE, the Insurance Commissioners and Superintendents of the States of Illinois, Ohio, Texas and South Dakota, do hereby certify that we have been for the last two months engaged in an exhaustive and thorough examination of the books and accounts of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association and of all receipts and disbursements during the period extending from the 1st day of January, 1894, to the 13th day of November, 1894. We further certify that we have carefully checked and proved all items; that the loans on bond and mortgage have been checked and verified; that stocks and bonds have been accounted for through receipts held for deposits; that cash on hand has been counted, and that cash deposited with sundry banks has been proved by the books of said banks or by proper certificates therefrom; that the real estat has been valued upon the basis of net rentals and from information derived from reliable sources, and that the operations of the Association have been subjected to a thorough examination, in which every facility has been afforded us by the officers and managers, every book, record and source of information having been laid open to us without reservation.

We further certify that we find the Association possessed of admitted invested and non-invested assets on the said Nov. 13, 1894, to the amount of $4,228,120,93, and of contingent mortuary assets to the amount of $1,340,490,31, making gross assets as of said date to the amount of $5,568,611,24; that against said assets we have charged actual liabilities to the amount of $675,767,84 (including bonds, but not bond statements) and contingent mortuary liabilities to the amount of $1,175,041,32, making the surplus of the Association on basis of gross invested and non-invested assets $3,552,353,09, and on basis of gross assets (contingent mortuary assets and liabilities being included) $3,717,802,08.

We further certify that we have verified by a competent expert the value of the Association's interest in the building known as the Mutual Reserve Building, and that we are satisfied that its value is largely in excess of the amount at which it stands upon the Association's books. We further certify that we have made a careful examination of the death claims paid by the Association during the period covered by this examination, and that we are of the opinion that the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association pays its death claims honorably and promptly, and that it does not in any case wilfully attempt to resist payment of any honest death claim that is made upon it; and that the work of the death claim department is handled with all possible despatch and in such a way that the most critical can have no just cause or reasonable ground of complaint. While under the operation of the fundamental principle of the Association which calls for the collection after death of the sum required to pay a claim there may be some seeming delay, payment is just as sure as with any other Company or Association, which fact is fully established by our examination. We further certify that we have made a personal examination of the methods of the Medical Department, and feel warranted in saying that the utmost care is exercised in the selection of risks, and that in this respect the Association will compare favorably with any other life insurauce company or association.

The financial statement furnishes abundant proof of the healthy and prosperous condition of the Association, and the gradually increasing assets show prudence and economy. The management, the public and the members are to be congratulated upon the solidity and security of the Association.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we have hereunto subscribed our respective names, in the city of New York, the day and year above written.

NAPOLEON PINNER TELLS BILL NYE ABOUT HIS GRANDFATHERS.

They Live Together Like Little Children, and Sometimes It Is Hard to Manage Them—A Scene at the Circus—Mortimer Gets His Back Up.

[Copyright, 1895, by Edgar W. Nye.]

"There is a good deal of difference between people in the matter of getting along with old folks," said my neighbor Napoleon Pinner the other day to me, as we were waiting for the board of equalization to cut down the valuation on our property.

"Some people can go through the ward and never weaken, but they are no good at managing old people. I think that if we keep in mind that we will need somebody some day to be patient with us we will soon learn to be patient with others."

WITH MR. PINNER.

"Yes, that's true. Did you ever think what a trial Methuselah must have been to his family?"

"Yes, but Methuselah retained all of his faculties up to his eight hundredth year. He could read fine print, you remember, up to 786 years of age, and then he began to imagine that smoking was hurting his eyesight, so he quit for 90 years, but it did not help any and he went back to it, they say—only worse, to make up for lost time.

"But the last 60 or 90 years of Methuselah's life he got so that he used to repeat himself a good deal. Even Enoch was tried with him, and when one of Methuselah's grandchildren—some of them 200 years old—used to wake up with the cronp in the night, the old man, forgetting that he used to have it when he was their age, would mumble to himself and gnash his teeth for hours, after which he would put them back in the bureau and go to sleep again.

"But what started me off on the subject of old people was my wife's grandfather. He lives with us. He is 90 years old today, and we are going to give him a birthday cake. I have just bought eight dozen wax candles to put on it.

"My grandfather lives with us also. He is 87 years old in November. Both of the old gentlemen live with us, having no other relatives they can get along with. My grandfather came to live with me when my wife and I went keeping house, and two years after that my wife's grandmother died and the old man came to our house.

"It has been a rather ticklish business to manage the two, for my grandfather has an ungovernable temper, and for a moment or two sometimes you'd think he might assassinate some one, but once or twice a year is as often as he has an outbreak like that.

"My grandfather's name is Peradventure Pinner, an old Bible name selected from the begat column of the good book I reckon. My wife's grandfather's name is Mortimer Dowd. They call each other Peradventure and Mortimer when they are calm, but if anything goes wrong they call each other Pinner and Dowd.

"I was afraid that my grandfather might get one of his little spells of temper and drive my wife's grandfather into the earth with a club, for Dowd is the gamest man you ever saw. So one day I told Mortimer that Peradventure was the kind of a man that had to be sat down on the moment he showed any signs of temper, and if he had the nerve to shut him up once for all he would have no trouble, but I was afraid he did not have the necessary courage. However, I told him that he was so much older than Peradventure he must take a firm hand with him at the start.

"I used to have them do the chores to keep them out of mischief. Mortimer had to milk and feed the chickens, and Peradventure cut the kindling and carried in the wood.

"One day they had been down town together, and Mortimer had bought a songbook with the money I gave him. It had the words of an old song set to the tune of 'Wellington's Farewell.' Peradventure had bought horehound candy with his money and had hidden a part of it in the woodshed, where I found it and took it away because I was afraid he would be sick eating candy along with the root beer he had been drinking.

"He discovered that it was gone at about dusk while he and Mortimer were in the woodshed together. Mortimer is as lovely a character as ever lived. He has fine, soft, silky white hair and a skin like an undressed kid. When the two are asleep at night together and I go in at 11 o'clock to see if they are covered up all right, I can't help comparing them, for Peradventure has eyebrows, you know, that he can toss back like a mane when he wants to, and he has a big red beak on him like a penguin, and as you approach him at night you can hear it purr. He also sleeps on his back, and his mouth comes unclasped at times.

"But Mortimer has a soft voice and a noiseless slumber that endears him to every one. He says very little, and if he can't hear very well he lets it go, while Peradventure yells out 'Which?' in a voice that curdles the milk down at the springhouse.

"My wife's grandfather is a Baptist and an Abolitionist, while Peradventure is a Mohammedan and kicks because we have to pay the Revolutionary pensioners, though he hasn't paid a cent of tax in 15 years. They have had a good many discussions over politics and religion, but never had any real serious fights. Mortimer could always prove all his statements by the Bible and so could Peradventure.

"Sometimes they would go a little too far, and Mortimer would pout all the evening, and Peradventure would flounce off to bed and slam his boots one at a time on the floor when he undressed and try to scare us. But in the morning they would wake up all pleasant, and Mortimer would tackle a little black coffee he has, while Peradventure would go into the buttery and take a large comprehensive swallow out of a bottle that has a lonesome old cherry at the bottom of it. At first he took this only in the spring, but now he has gradually added more and more spring months till the robins seem to be nesting most all the time with him.

"I take them to the circus with me every year and sometimes twice, and they remember and talk about it for years afterward. Mortimer is a great admirer of the elephant, and I have all I can do to drag him away from the large beast with the country seat to his pants.

"But Peradventure loves rare animals, such as the jackass bird of Australia and the sacred new milk cow of Farther India. He claims that he has seen most everything now that Noah had and some that he couldn't get, like the Polled Angus or mooly cow, and other things that Noah advertised for far and wide, but couldn't obtain in those days.

"One day they got into a sort of quarrel over the female acrobat that hangs from the top of the tent by a bunion and holds, suspended in air, by her teeth and a wide suspender an uncle and two other relatives on her father's side. Mortimer claimed to have selected her first, but Peradventure said: 'You better take some one of your own age. Take the child wonder in the sideshow; she's about as tottering as you be.'

"And so they quarreled that way, till finally I thought I would have to take them out, but pretty soon the lion cage was wheeled into the ring, and the curly headed lion tamer, with Hair Bloom on his tresses, performed all sorts of feats with the king of beasts, winding up by gagging the king of the forest with his dank dome of thought. Then people applauded the man, forgetting that the lion would have to go and eat a cat or Angora goat to take the taste out of his mouth.

"We have great fun, of course, though in a quiet way, my wife and I comparing notes regarding Mortimer and Peradventure, for they do lots of amusing things. Sometimes it is not so pleasant when they eat too much preserves or drink milk when they have been eating green corn and watermelons.

"But nothing is more beautiful than in the winter evenings by the big open fire to watch Mortimer and Peradventure playing checkers and whistling 'Floyd's Retreat' while they knock a couple of checker men together and crow like a pair of infants.

"I didn't finish telling you, though, how Peradventure hopped on Mortimer and accused him of taking the horehound candy that he had put up on the joist of the woodhouse. Well, Mort denied it, though he didn't of course know that I had done it myself for Peradventure's good, and he said my grandfather ought to know what he was talking about before he tackled folks.

"At that my grandfather said that he had been graveled and galled about long enough by an old fungus like my wife's grandfather, and he might about as well settle him and put him out of his misery now as any time. So he started at him with a wild light in his eyes, but Mortimer had in his mind what I'd told him about being prompt or his life would pay the penalty, so he grabbed the ax that was sticking in the chopping block and made a rush for Peradventure that scared him almost to death.

"'Blank your old pelt!' says Mortimer. 'If you are in this woodshed in another minute, I'll split you open from the brisket to the watch pocket and open you up like a beughten codfish! Now git!'

"NOW GIT!"

"And Peradventure got. He came and told me that my wife's grandfather had a temper that would bring him to a felon's doom before he lived out half his days. It was quite awhile before he dared sleep with Mortimer, but he was so restless by himself of nights and nervous, and wanted a drink of water every eight minutes just to have society, that I got him to go back and sleep with Mortimer again.

"But I must be getting along now, for Mortimer gave me 20 cents to buy a couple of packs of firecrackers for Peradventure, and some punk."

With that Mr. Pinner went off down the street, and I couldn't help hoping he would have as good a grandson when he was 90 as Peradventure had.

LONG ENGAGEMENTS.

THE COUNTESS NORRAIKOW'S ADVICE TO YOUNG WOMEN.

Most Deplorable of All Matrimonial Conclusions—Result of the Rule of Women in the Household—Hasty Engagements. Increase of "Bachelor Girls."

SO MANY unhappy marriages have resulted from short engagements that a few words, carrying with them the wisdom of experience, may not come amiss. The most deplorable of all matrimonial conclusions is the marriage of a miss in her teens. She is, in all respects, little more than a child—with all a child's conceit in the extent of her powers. Such marriages must of necessity be the result of short engagements. How much wiser it would be if the youth and maiden would consent to a prolongation of the engagement beyond the first feverish heat of love! A young couple becoming engaged on three weeks' or a month's acquaintance should, if the parents be wise, continue so at least a year.

Sober common sense should govern every action of our lives, particularly the linking together of two young hearts. Haste under any condition is a serious factor, and it is especially so in forming the relationship above named. The youth of 21 or 22 years and the maiden of 17 or 18 cannot possibly have formed habits which will characterize their after lives. Youth is the season of change, and the gawky lad just merging into manhood stands ready to be made or marred.

The same rule holds good in the young girl's case. The union of two tender lives not yet expanded may mean in the near future a pulling apart. It were well if girls would consent to remain single until they had passed at least their twentieth birthday; while the average young man, by the time he had reached 26 or 27, would find that his ideas of life had greatly enlarged from the callow period. In such cases engagements not extending beyond one year are desirable, for by a few meetings each can tell whether he or she is suited to the other.

Where the law of primogeniture obtains, as in England, the younger sons are oftimes relegated to such a position that they are not permitted to display much force of character. As a rule, young men of this latter stamp make fairly good husbands, from the fact that the wife becomes the presiding genius of the household. Permit a woman to rule, and peace will reign. It is when two rulers hold sway in one domain that the times become out of joint.

A sensible mother will early instill into her daughter's mind the necessity of making a wise choice of a mate with whom to walk through life. Girls brought up under such jurisdiction seldom marry before they have reached an age at which they may be said to know their own minds. With them the marriage agreement is not hastily entered into, and the heart is only yielded up after mature deliberation and the promise of an engagement extending over such a period as to permit both parties to become thoroughly acquainted.

Life is not entirely like the summer sea—composed of roseate hues. It is more often like the surface of old ocean, on which storms and sunshine follow in quick succession. The test of love lies in its endurance, and only well balanced minds come out unscarred from life's battle. In the heyday of life its twilight is obscured, and it is the ability to meet both which cements the marriage tie. In these rapidly progressive times, when people rush headlong through life, too little attention is paid to this most holy of rites. It would seem that even the necessity for its existence were in a measure passing away. Men and women, instead of forming conjugal unions, are arrayed against each other in individual efforts to secure a living. And so the battle surges on.

The spirit of the times creates a compulsory independence, and woman in all things considers herself the equal of man. This, in many respects, is not to be doubted, and indeed in certain fields she is his superior. The man, nevertheless, yet stands king, for in this busy world might still makes right and the battle is to the strong. Thus in certain walks of life it is only occasionally that woman rises to man's dignity. It is these exceptional cases that are held up as laudable and worthy of emulation. Where man, the king, can be counted as tens of thousands strong, the greatest woman appears as but a beacon light to the members of her sex.

What we want in this busy workyday life of ours is that we stand side by side with man—not seeking favors on the score of womanhood, but determined to rise or fall on our merits alone. Special training is required to fit us for such a task, and the young woman who while still almost a child enters the matrimonial state finds that the ties of home and family bind her more closely than the tire of the wagon's wheel encircles the spokes. Properly to prepare a woman for a life's work as a breadwinner, however, requires years of study on her part. This possibly accounts for the late marriages among this class.

It sometimes happens also that long engagements become a matter of necessity rather than of choice, for while the affinity may be strong the pockets often are weak. Occasionally such agreements continue for so many years that death carries off one of the parties, and the remaining member plods his or her weary way alone.

Life is at best but a dream, and a feverish one at that. It is composed of hills and valleys with intermittent sunshine. The lives of the rich can be made no criterion for the poor. The lovemaking of the one is totally different from that of the other. Wealth gains privileges and concessions which the lack of it debars. The rich girl, when she meets what she supposes to be her alter ego, does not stop to probe beneath the surface and bring to light the man's innate characteristics. This with her ceases to become a necessity and she looks only to the dashing manners and gay repartee of her polished suitor. Marriages among this class, therefore, are often hastily entered into and repented of at leisure.

The young girl of poor but no less respectable parents is forced to view the matter in a different light. Having little or no money of her own, she must perforce look into the character of the man into whose keeping she contemplates committing herself. In such instances engagements extending over one, two or even three years are to be commended, from the fact that each should be made a character study by the other. Time alone can enable them to arrive at genuine results.

One condition which leads to hasty engagements is the so called "love at first sight." This rarely happens outside the experiences of very young people and is usually anything but a tribute to their wisdom or powers of discrimination. A pleasant word, a bow, a smile—and the heart is lost. Perhaps after a very short acquaintance the couple will become engaged, and this is quickly followed by marriage. To one of experience all this seems very absurd and is the acme of man's and woman's foolishness. One hears men so often say; "What a charming girl my wife was when I first met her; but, alas, how changed she is now!" And what is the reason for this metamorphosis? Simply that the glamour of infatuation has worn off, and the natural attributes of the life are laid bare. This is generally more apparent in the woman's case, for the man's outside calling tends to hide many of his disagreeable proclivities. Woman's sphere is the home, and if she shines not there it is useless to look beyond.

I am sorry to say that in most cases the wife's path is one of retrogression, while the husband steadily wends his footsteps forward to progress. The woman is not to blame for this, for man has made the condition for her, and oftimes he steadily enforces it until the spirit that would otherwise soar is at length subdued and made a willing subject. It is possible that if the young couple had taken time to study each other's character this sad conclusion might not have been reached. It is not denied that sensible people may form a mutual liking at first sight, but that is something very different from love.

The women of America, as a rule, are noted for their practical common sense, and they take pride in doing what most conduces to their personal welfare. The hasty engagement and marriage are practiced only by the younger members of society, while to the matured mind deliberation in such matters is considered absolutely necessary. It would seem that, from the rapid rate at which "bachelor girls" are coming to the fore, the young men will ere long have to look to their laurels. With this new contingent in the field, the average man will be left but little choice in his amatory aspirations. In all probability the coming man will find himself solitary and alone, while she whom fate had destined to be his mate usurps, pro bono publico, the once dominant place he held.

AS A LAWYER.

RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN S. D. THOMPSON, K.C.M.G., P.C., Q.C., M.P.

The Late Premier as Viewed from a Professional Standpoint—The Cases Which Brought Him Into Prominence—An Able and Fair Review of His Career.

Sir John Thompson's life has many lessons for the young lawyers of Canada. He was a self-made man; by hard work and steady application he won his way upward. In every position which he occupied he did his work faithfully. It is the object of this sketch to show why and how he succeeded. He was born in Halifax on the 10th of Nov., 1844. His parents were not wealthy, and so he did not receive a finished education. He attended the common school and free Church Academy, and at the age of 17 he entered on the study of law in the office of Henry Prior, in Halifax. The Hon. Robert Sedgewick, of the supreme court (who was a student then), remembered Thompson at that time attending the Law Students' Literary and Debating Club, and says he remembers him as a slight, delicate youth, very bashful and diffident, and but seldom taking part in the debates or programmes, and but little noticed by the other students. In July, 1865, Johnnie Thompson, as he was then known, was called to the Bar, and began the practice of law, but he failed to draw clients around him, and, having learned shorthand writing when a student, turned his attention to reporting for the Legislature. He was thus employed during the following four years.

In 1869, Mr. Joseph Coombes, then a celebrated lawyer of Halifax, took Thompson in as a junior partner. This gave Johnnie

SIR JOHN S. D. THOMPSON.

Thompson his great opening. He seized it, and from that time he worked incessantly until the time of his tragic death. While he was with Coombes he did the office work and prepared the briefs—working late and early, filling his mind with legal knowledge, until it became a vast store-house, from which he was afterwards able to draw on with such telling effect.

When he first started taking council work, he did so in the Equity Court, but was practised in all the courts, taking a great deal of jury work. In 1874 we find him for the first time, in the case of Wylde et al. vs. The Union Marine Insurance Co., appearing in the Supreme Court of that province. He acted as junior counsel to Mr. Weatherbe, now Judge of that court. Mr. Righy, Q.C., acted for the plaintiffs. A few months after that he acted as counsel in the case of Parker vs. Fairbanks, in the same court, with Mr. Rigby, Q.C., against him; evidently he had taken his own measure in the previous case, for we now find him acting alone, and though he lost the case, Judge Wilkins, who delivered the judgment, complimented him in the following words: "I cannot but help admiring the manner in which Mr. Thompson marshalled the evidence to have it appear that the weight of evidence did not show that the defendant interfered with the flow of the stream." Shortly after this he was retained as counsel with McDonald, Q.C., in the case of Woodworth vs. Troop et al. This was the most celebrated case of its time. The action was begun in 1874, and passed through the various courts until it was finally argued in the Supreme Court of that province in 1876. Party feeling ran high over it, and the whole province took sides. In this case Thompson first displayed that wonderful knowledge of the rights, duties and prerogatives of Parliament which afterwards in the House of Commons was the admiration of his friends and the wonder of his opponents. Thompson's argument won this case and settled the power of the Provincial Legislature to punish for contempt. His argument was a surprise to his best friends, and he leaped into public favor at once. After this, he was in the majority of cases of importance in the Supreme Court, and his success was unbroken until he retired from practice to adorn the Bench before whom he had so often triumphed.

Another celebrated case that was of great importance to the province, and in which constitutional issues were involved, was the Windsor and Annapolis Railway Co. vs. the Western Counties Railway Co. The questions here were:

(1) Did the British Parliament have power to pass and did it pass, by the British North America Act, to Canada, a perfect and exclusive title in this railway?

(2) Had it the power to pass and did it pass full legislative power over this railway?

By this time he was one of the recognised leaders of the Nova Scotia bar; if not the leader, certainly the leader of the Conservative lawyers. When the Fisheries Commission sat at Halifax under the Washington treaty, it was but natural that the United States Government should retain him as one of their counsel, as two or three of the leading Liberal counsel of Halifax had been retained by the Canadian Government. There can be no doubt that in the close study necessarily given to the whole fishery question at that time, and the inner knowledge he must have obtained of the United States position was of great value to him, and through him, to Canada on more than one occasion since; notably when representing the Government of Canada at Washington in conjunction with Sir Charles Tupper in 1888, and when representing Great Britain and Canada at Paris on the Behring Sea award in 1893.

It has been freely stated that when associated with the world's greatest jurists at Paris, he not only commanded their respect but won their admiration, and we can now understand how the work done and knowledge obtained in 1876 must have made him easily the peer of any judge on the Behring Sea award. It was stated in our newspapers at the time that Sir John was noticed taking a nap a couple of times during the long weary arguments of counsel for the United States. We can well understand that listening to the same old arguments which he himself had tried to work off seventeen years before against Canada made him weary enough to take a nap. He must have smiled often to himself as he noticed the serious way his associates listened to the sophistical arguments of Mr. Carter. He could have slept half the time and then know more about the case than any of his associates.

He was urged upon to enter the legislature, and, much against his will, consented, and was elected for Antigonish in a by-election in December, 1877. On the Government being returned in the following October, 1878, he was appointed Attorney-General, and discharged the duties of his office with conspicuous ability and satisfaction. At the same time he carried on his practice at the head of the largest law firm in the province, and neglected no briefs. In his dual capacity as Attorney-General and working head of a large practice, he first displayed that tireless energy and wonderful capacity for work that never ceased until he literally consumed himself. He assumed the Premiership of Nova Scotia in 1882, but was defeated a few months afterwards, and retired to the Supreme Court, which was more congenial to him than politics. No judge in his province ever possessed in the same marked degree the gift of orderly, easy, and accurate expression of his views. He always endeavored to get at the truth, at the very heart of a case, and he was not willing even to deceive himself; he was always great enough to find the truth, and strong enough to pronounce judgment even against his own desires. He had no whims, no fancies. He had a clear, logical mind, and in its presence the obscure became luminous, and the most complex and intricate legal proposition became simple. He knew that even great ideas should be expressed in the simplest manner possible—hence his judgments were models.

When he entered the Federal Arena, the great race and religious storm swept this country, and yet he stood unmoved, patient, just, and candid amid it all, and within six months he probably won the greatest personal triumph of his life in the debate on the execution of Louis Riel. The Hon. Edward Blake, on that memorable occasion, arraigned the Government as it had never been arraigned before, and it was felt that no man on the Government side could reply to the greatest forensic orator Canada ever produced, and one who, in the opinion of the writer, may to-day be fairly ranked among the world's greatest forensic orators. Few, if any, in that House believed that the Hon. John Thompson could make an effective, let alone a crushing reply. The supporters of the Government scanned Mr. Thompson as he stood up, but there was nothing in the air or manner of the quiet little gentleman from down by the sea, to give them hope or confidence, and a look of doubt and fear passed over their countenances. On the other side, the Opposition, as they surveyed the quiet, unassuming Minister of Justice, felt that they had nothing to dread from him. But the indefatigable work for years as lawyer, Attorney-General, and Judge, and months spent on Woodworth vs. Troop, when he had mastered the rights, duties, and prerogatives of the British Parliament for centuries, were now to stand him in good stead. And as he proceeded in his argument and exposed or brushed aside, one after another, the sophistries of Mr. Blake, and drew from his great store-house of accumulated knowledge, fact after fact and argument after argument, he must have felt that his years of toil and midnight oil had not been spent in vain. All Canada knows the result of that debate. His party went wild over him, and he woke up the next morning to find himself famous. It is honorable to the Ontario Bar to know that one of the most sincere admirers Mr. Thompson had when he closed his speech, was the Hon. Edward Blake. This feeling was reciprocated by Sir John Thompson, who, in conversation with the writer a couple of years ago, said that Mr. Blake possessed the greatest legal mind he ever met, and expressed the opinion that Mr. Blake was very much misunderstood. The writer gathered the impression that there was a kindred feeling between the two men.

He had the faculty in an eminent degree of clothing in clear and concise language the most difficult and involved propositions of law; he could make questions so clear that they no longer appeared to have ever been difficult. This wonderful faculty was not for many years appreciated by his legal opponents. Case after case he won, and year after year he continued to be successful before the Courts. Yet to his opponents he did not appear to win by his ability—they put his success down to luck in always holding a brief on the easy side of the case. There never appeared to be any room to doubt the result; his side of the question was so right and simple it won on its merits, as it appeared to opposing counsel. He had a clear, logical mind, and so expressed everything in the simplest manner. He could influence others without effort, and consequently they never felt his personality, and never felt they were being influenced by him. He was an orator simple, sincere and lucid. There is all the difference in the world between an orator and an elocutionist. An orator convinces people, and an elocutionist entertains and wins personal admiration. An orator places the idea above form. Undoubtedly Thompson's oratory was not calculated to win the cheap applause of a campaign crowd, who are convinced only for the moment. Before a deliberate body he had no peer.

Sir John Thompson was not of a class, he had no predecessors, and will have no successors.

I cannot close this sketch without giving a short chronological account of his wonderful career.

No record in Canadian history equals this, not even that of Sir John Macdonald.

And the memory of Sir John Thompson's tragic death at Windsor Castle on the 12th of December last, will be the strongest, tenderest tie in binding all British hearts together and holding all parts of the Empire beneath the Union Jack.—Richard Armstrong, in the Barrister.

N. N. WARNER & CO.,
Toronto, Ont.

Read what some noted people say about Warner's Safe Cure, acknowledged to be the best remedy in the world for all diseases of the Kidneys, Liver or Urinary organs.

DR. WILLIAM EDWARD ROBINSON, of the Royal Navy, of England, wrote to a London newspaper called the Family Doctor as follows: "Having had more than seventeen years experience in my profession, I can conscientiously and emphatically state that I have been able to give more relief and effect more cures by the use of Warner's Safe Cure than by all other medicines ascertainable to the profession."

R. A. GUNN, M. D., Dean of the U. S. Medical College, New York.

"Belonging, as I do, to a branch of the profession who believe that no one school of medicine knows all the truth regarding Disease, and being independent enough to use any remedy that will relieve my patients without reference to the source from which it comes, I am willing to acknowledge and commend frankly the value of Warner's Safe Cure."

DR. ANDREW WILSON, F. R. S., editor of Health, in replying through his paper to a correspondent who had who had written to him regarding Warner's Safe Cure, said: "Warner's Safe Cure is perfectly safe and perfectly reliable."

MRS. ANNIE JENNESS MILLER, the famous leader of dress reform.

"It gives me pleasure to express my faith in the virtues of Safe Cure, which is the only medicine I ever take or recommend."

REV. J. B. RANKIN, D. D., LL.D., Pres. Howard University, Washington, D. C.

"I have known of several persons who regard themselves as greatly benefitted, and some of them as permanently cured of diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs by the use of Warner's Safe Cure."

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

DIRT!

Your watch needs cleaning and oiling, once every eighteen months if you would preserve its time-keeping qualities. Consider: In that time the balance wheel turns on its delicate axes 13,996,800,000 times. It does not "rest" at night like ordinary machines, but keeps at its work unceasingly. You oil an engine, or a sewing machine, or any other mechanical contrivance, daily or weekly; but that delicate instrument of precision—your watch—is allowed to go uncared for until it is clogged with dirt, and stops. The best of oil becomes thick and dirty in time; in this condition it wears the pivots and destroys that exactness of their fit in the jewel-holes which is necessary to a correct performance. Let me look at your watch—I will give you a conscientious opinion as to whether it needs attention.

Rhyneland Comes Into Port With No Word of La Gascogne.

TWO OTHER LINERS COME IN

But the Fate of the Belated French Vessel is Still a Matter of Conjecture—Arrival of the Umbria With Survivors of the Elbe Disaster.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Three Atlantic liners arrived in port yesterday but none of them brought any news of the overdue steamer LaGascogne, which should have reached here one week ago. The first to arrive was the Manitoba, from London, which passed Sandy Hook at 2.05 a. m. She is properly a freight steamer, but on this trip, as usual, brought a few passengers. She cleared from London on January 26, and had moderate weather until Feb. 4, when she encountered a hurricane off Sable Island. From that time until 6 a. m. she experienced rough weather and extreme cold.

The Rhineland, which left Antwerp January 26 with nine cabin and 116 steerage passengers, arrived at the Bar at seven o'clock in the morning. She also encountered the hurricane off Sable Island on February 4, and on the 5th and 6th was obliged to heave to for 24 hours. After the arrival of the Teutonic on Friday night with no news of the La Gascogne, the hopes of those interested in the French liner were transferred to the Rhineland, and they experienced another disappointment, when the latter reported here with no tidings of the belated vessel.

The next to arrive was the Cunarder, Umbria, from Liverpool, February 2, and Queenstown February 3, which passed Sandy Hook at 10.50 a.m. She also came without any news of the La Gascogne. The Umbria brought 80 saloon, 80 second cabin and 139 steerage passengers. Among her passengers were John Vevera, Charles Hoffmann and Eugene Schlegel, survivors of the Elbe disaster.

When interviewed at Quarantine, Mr. Vevera said: "At the time of the collision I was dosing in the smoking room, as my cabin was too cold for comfort. With me was Mr. Wix, of New York. It was a very sudden shock and none of us had the least warning of trouble. I rushed out on deck and made an attempt to find my niece, who was below in charge of the stewardess. I found I could not get down to the second cabin and I made my way to the promenade deck on the port side. I saw some sailors trying to clear away a boat on the port side and I approached them. After some little difficulty, owing to the boat's gripes being stuck with the paint, she was lowered and we got into her. The woman was picked up as we left the side. The boat was not a large one and the twenty people in her made her so deep in the water that it was impossible to get any more passengers in her without sinking her.

Mr. Hoffman said that he proposed to spend his earnings of twelve years, if necessary, to prosecute the company for murder. He said that he had not told all, but if the company did not do the right thing he would tell everything. He insists that first engineer Neussel took his boy out of the boat and then stepped in himself and he also reiterates that he pulled Miss Boecker into the boat against the protest of the steamer's men. In refutation of this statement Mr. Winters, passenger agent of the North German Lloyds company, exhibited a cable just received from the home office of the company as follows: "Hoffman's declaration that Neussel was taken in the boat instead of his son, is untrue. Four persons went into the boat after Neussel and then Miss Boecker was taken in."

The Umbria has brought in the crew of the French bark Jean Baptiste, consisting of fourteen men, whom she picked up last Tuesday. The bark which ran between Halifax and Cork was sinking and the men were in a pitiable condition.

Another Steamer Sighted.

At 12.30 o'clock this morning the marine observer at Sandy Hook reported another steamer coming in. He thought she looked like a French liner, and endeavored for half an hour to get signals from her. At 1.43 a.m. he reported that she was still anchored outside the bar. He said she was probably La Normandie, which is due to-day.

WRECK ON THE MIDLAND

The Port Hope Express Crashed Into a Snow Plough Special.

ENGINEER RIGG WAS KILLED

Four Trainmen and a Passenger Injured—The Body of the Unfortunate Driver Taken From the Debris of the Wreck in a Badly Mutilated Condition.

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—Another fatal railway collision occurred on the Grand Trunk railway a Friday evening. This time the accident occurred on the Midland division, a mile and a half east of Agincourt.

A special train with a snow plough attached had got stuck in a snow drift. The Port Hope express from the east came along and plunged into the rear of the special. The scraper and van were behind the engine and both were completely wrecked. The crew of the snow plough consisted of Engineer Rigg and Fireman Cullen, of Toronto; George W. Riley, conductor; Chas. Moore and Frank Burton, brakesman, and E. J. Davis, of Stouffville, a section man.

Engineer Rigg was buried beneath the ruins and it was not until Saturday afternoon that his body was recovered. The body was terribly mutilated, almost beyond recognition.

Conductor Riley received several serious injuries. He was taken to the General Hospital here.

Brakesman Cullen was only slightly injured.

Brakesman Moore received several bad cuts on the head. He was taken to the General Hospital.

E. J. Davis, the section man, was hurt about the face and back.

Besides these injured were Conductor Boundy, of the Port Hope train, who received a slight scalp wound, and Alfred Kennedy, an Agincourt young man, who had his shoulder dislocated.

There were about twenty-five passengers on the Port Hope train, but, saving one person who had his brow scratched, all escaped with a slight shaking up.

The accident occurred on what was formerly the old Nipissing railway. It was then narrow gauge and perhaps the crookedest railway in Canada. Whenever cuts occur, and the deepest of them are just where the accident happened, they are narrower than on the ordinary railway. The result is that notwithstanding the effort to keep the line open by means of storm gates and other appliances, there is sure to be trouble whenever there is a heavy fall of snow or a high wind in winter.

The unfortunate train that figured in Friday night's disaster makes up at Port Hope, and runs to Toronto by way to Peterborough and Lindsay, arriving in Toronto at 12.15.

Two mail trains run daily on the division.

STILL ANOTHER WRECK.

A Serious Accident Reported to Have Occurred Near Belleville.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 11—It is reported here that a serious accident occurred on Saturday night on the Grand Trunk at Murray Hill, a short distance west of Belleville, by which the engine driver and fireman of the down passenger train, due to pass here at 3.50 p. m., were badly injured and the engine wrecked.

The Driver Was Injured.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 11.—The east-bound train on which were Sir Mackenzie Bowell and his colleagues, was side-tracked for about twelve hours on Saturday night owing to an accident east of Trenton. It appears the snow plough special sent westward from Belleville in charge of Driver Ormond went off the track near Murray Hill, having encountered a very heavy snow bank. Ormond had his collar bone broken and was badly hurt internally, the engine was completely stripped and the line blocked. A wrecking train was sent out from Belleville as soon as news of the accident was received, but the track was not cleared until 4 p.m. yesterday. The train from Montreal due in Toronto Sunday morning was fifteen hours late on account of the accident and the extraordinary depth of snow in the cuttings.

THE WESTON VICTIMS.

Joseph's Body Found in the Ruins—The Injured Trainmen.

TORONTO, Feb. 11.—The body of F. J. Joseph, who was missing after the wreck near Weston, was found on Saturday morning after a long search among the ruins. The charred remains were found under the marble slabs which were all that was left of the lavatory of the Pullman car. All that was left of the unfortunate man could have been placed in a small basket. The remains were taken to Weston.

Charles Mannering, the driver on the mail train, was not taken home to Stratford as at first reported, as his condition was found to be too serious. He was brought down to Toronto at 12 o'clock and taken to the General Hospital. He is terribly injured about the head and body, and it is extremely doubtful if he will ever recover, as he is over 60 years old.

Fireman Hem was brought to the city at the same time, but his injuries were not so serious and he was taken home to Stratford.

Frightfully Mangled by a Train.

BUFFALO, Feb. 11.—The frightfully mangled body of a man was discovered in the pilot of a light Michigan Central engine on Saturday. The body was first seen by a flagman, who signalled the engineer to stop. The head and trunk had been caught in the pilot. All the clothing was stripped from the mutilated trunk and the limbs were missing. Other portions of the body were found at several places for three miles back. There is nothing to lead to identification.

EXILED FROM HAWAII.

Three of the Rebels Arrive at Victoria—Trial of the Ex-Queen.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 11.—The steamer Warrimo arrived here late from Honolulu bringing news of happenings there up to February 3. On board the Warrimo are three men who have been exiled by the Hawaiian government for participation in the revolution. They are: J. Cranson, A. Muller and J. B. Johnston.

None of the rebels sentenced to death have been executed. The general belief in Honolulu was that no capital punishment would be meted out to the rebels, the first feeling of resentment against the disturbers having passed away and given place to one of mercy and moderation. The trial of the ex-Queen has probably already occurred. The charges and specifications were served upon her on the 31st of January and the trial was set for the following week. Her own diary found at Washington Palace will be put in as important evidence against her. The impression is general that she will plead guilty.

HOW POPE WAS MURDERED.

Brasseau Breaks Down and Tells the Whole Story.

DETROIT, Feb. 11.—William Brusseau, who has since last Saturday told two stories of the murder of Dr. Pope in his home here, has made a clean breast of the whole affair to the police. According to Brusseau's latest story, the murder was a carefully planned affair in which Mrs. Pope, the doctor's wife, was the moving spirit and $14,000 the object. For two weeks before the fatal day the two planned the crime in every particular. Saturday night Mrs. Pope made her husband sleep in a chair at her bedside. Towards morning she quietly called Brusseau and the latter secured the hatchet and struck the doctor on the head. Then, in obedience to the woman's command, he rained half a dozen more blows on the victim's skull. Mrs. Pope's eight-year-old daughter, who slept at her side during the murder, was then awakened and the three carefully rehearsed the story they were to tell the police.

RUSSIA MASSES HER TROOPS.

A Movement on the Turkish Frontier That Looks Warlike.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The Daily Graphic has this despatch from Constantinople: "The Queen's speech, with its allusions to Armenia and Lord Rosebery's references to the same subject, have made a deep impression at the Palace. The local papers have been forbidden to allude to the matter and only part of the Queen's speech has been printed here.

The Daily News correspondent in Constantinople says: An order has been issued calling out a considerable number of the reserves. Various rumors as to this step are in circulation. One is that Russia has massed troops on the frontier. Influential Turks express anxiety as to the effect of this partial mobilization.

GIVEN UP BY THE SEA.

The Body of One of the Hungarian Embezzlers Brought to Lowestoft.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—A fishing smack brought to Lowestoft the dead bodies of Paul Szuchy and Merl Babos, who were steerage passengers on the Elbe. The body on which were found documents designating it as that of Edward Muscovits, a second cabin passenger on the Elbe has been identified by the true Edward Muscovits as that of Daniel Guttmann, one of three brothers who had embezzled nearly two hundred thousand florins in Hungary and were fleeing to America. Guttmann married Muscovits's sister and booked under his name to avoid detection.

Damage to Crops in Florida.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 11.—It is impossible to make any accurate estimate of the damage done in Florida by the blizzard. All the early vegetable crops are killed and the worst is feared of the orange trees. The strawberry plants are reported uninjured. Of course if the old orange are killed the loss will run into millions, but it is too early yet to make an estimate. The freeze was general throughout the state. Even on the east coast as far south as Lake Worth the mercury fell below the freezing point. The St. John's river was frozen to a distance of 25 feet from the bank.

Killed by an Elevator.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 11.—Christopher Bissinger, employed in the Chamber of Commerce building was instantly killed by being struck on the head by an elevator. His neck was broken, his skull crushed and his jaw fractured in two places. At the time the accident occurred, Bissinger was standing at the elevator looking down the shaft, evidently watching to see if the cage was coming up. Instead of that it was coming down very rapidly and was upon him before he had time to withdraw his head. The platform struck him squarely in the back of the head.

Sailors Timely Rescued.

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Feb. 11.—The schooner reported ashore at Point of Woods life saving station proved to be the Louis V. Place, Capt. Squires, from Baltimore for New York. The life-saving crew succeeded in reaching the vessel and rescued two of the crew which consisted of eight men. The two men were badly frozen and had been in the rigging two days and a night. The other six men had been washed overboard and drowned or frozen to death in the rigging.

Slavery as a Punishment.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., Feb. 11.—The sale by public auction of two colored women, Sarah Jackson and Bettie Fishback, took place here. They were convicted of vagrancy and ordered to be sold into slavery for the period of six months. The sale took place in front of the court house and attracted a large crowd. The women were bought by two colored men, Henry Jackson and Richard Coleman, and brought $1.05 and $3 respectively.

MODERATE DRINKING.

Said by a Prominent Doctor to Cause Many Kidney Diseases Now Prevalent.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 11.—A prominent physician here gives it as his opinion that many of the kidney diseases now so prevalent, are due to the use of liquor, not necessarily in excess but even when taken in moderation. Excessive drinking often causes Bright's disease and diabetes, and it is most probable that less serious but very painful kidney disorders are due to the use of stimulants. The approach of a kidney disease may be easily detected and should at once be checked by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the only cure for all and any kidney disease.

SPRINGVILLE.

(From our Own Correspondent.)

The Royal Templars of Lindsay paid our village water drinkers a visit last Friday evening. A lengthy programme, consisting of speeches and vocal and instrumental music was rendered by the visiting brethren. Select Councillor T. R. Wilson acted as chairman and made a happy speech, touching on many points pertaining to the cause of temperance. The ladies of Springville served supper in the dining room of the hall in their usual perfect style. The visitors left for home about eleven o'clock, all expressing the pleasure the visit afforded them.

Bad roads and cold weather is the general complaint of the people in this district.

The Springville and Bethany Presbyterian congregations are still undecided as to who their new clergyman shall be. Almost every Sabbath a stranger occupies the pulpit. A few of them are clever as speakers and in the composition of their sermons, but many of them are away behind the times as preachers, reading their sermons from manuscript, which makes it unpleasant for the occupants of the pews (especially when the church is warm) many going to the land of nod before he is through. About the only conclusion that the Springville Presbyterians can arrive at from their experience is that men may be born but not preachers. It is to be hoped that some suitable theologian may soon put in an appearance that possesses the required ability to preach in those churches, that will be accepted and is born a preacher, and makes a vow that he will never read his sermons from the pulpit.

Tax Collector Brown has about finished his work for the year 1894. The council appeared to be well satisfied with Mr. Brown as an officer, and he is likely to be appointed again.

A young gentleman of our village who has not seen too many summers, has recently, like the majority of young men in their lives, began calling on the young ladies. He being possessed of rather a loquacious temperament and quite innocent, apparently, of cupid's heavy burdens, relates to his most intimate friends the pleasantries that transpires on occasions of his visits to the homes of the fair sex. One particular young lady's actions have aroused his curiosity to a search for information. He states that she is not a Venus in beauty nor a Brummel in dress, but she has a pleasant home, a splendid musician and possesses a rich soprano voice, and charms him with her organ recitals and excellent vocal selections, but in every occasion she ends her musical programme by singing the old familiar sacred song entitled "Take me just as I am." The young man is entirely at sea as to the meaning of the action of the young lady in closing with this special song on every occasion of his visit. He states that she always (on his departure) smiles and invites him to call again, as his "confidente" lacks experience in such a case and feels unqualified to correctly advise the young man of the true meaning that the young lady wishes to convey. He will have to ask her mother or some person that has walked over a similar bridge before him for the desired information.

Bro. H. Nesbitt, D.D.H.C.R., installed the officers of Court Springville, No. 274, C.O.F., on Monday evening last:—

After the installation an oyster supper was enjoyed by all present. Speeches by Bro. Nesbitt, Sanderson, Wilson, Hunter, Laing and Baptie brought a pleasant evening to a close.

LITHOGRAPH STONE FROM MARMORA.

Campbellford Herald.

In fulfilment of his promise made in the Herald a few weeks ago, our old and valued friend, Mr. J. L. Aunger, of Blairton, deputy-reeve of Belmont township, on Saturday last brought to this office as fine a piece of lithograph stone as the geologist could wish to feast his eyes upon. We expected Mr. Aunger would bring a piece a few inches square, but instead, the sample which is now in this office for public inspection, is 2½ feet long, 2 feet wide and 3½ inches thick, and is a little more difficult to handle than an ordinary brick.

The mine from which this piece of stone was quarried is located on the south shore of Crow Lake, in Marmora township. The mine, which is now being worked, is considered to be the most profitable investment ever undertaken in mining in the Dominion.

Mr. Aunger seems quite confident that the same kind of stone can be found in this locality, as the formation of rock is identical with that where the Marmora mine is located. He says if it could be discovered here, Campbellford would become a place of great importance.

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.
Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.
Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will set off cheap.

Encouraged by this result, I persevered, until in a month or so the sore under my chin began to heal. In three months my lip began to heal, and, after using the Sarsaparilla for six months, the last trace of the cancer disappeared."

IMPROVED BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Merchants Generally Are Hopeful of Good Spring Business.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Bradstreet's reports: Severe weather in the province of Ontario has interlared with the volume of trade, yet merchants at Toronto and elsewhere in the province regard the outlook for spring business hopefully. Similar features are reported from the province of Quebec where mercantile collections have improved when compared with the corresponding period last year. Halifax writes that general trade in Nova Scotia is fair but commercial payments are slow. Weather conditions however favor the lumber industry.

Advices from Newfoundland continue the tale of uncertainty and gloom in business circles which has characterized reports from that colony for several weeks past.

Bank clearings at Winnipeg, Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Halifax this week aggregate $19,378,000 against $18,013,000 last week and as compared with $17,544,000 in the like week last year. There are 51 business failures reported from Canada this week against 56 last week and 56 in the week one year ago.

Found Dead on a Toronto Street.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Two Grand Trunk Railway employes found a woman lying insensible on Wellington street, opposite Parliament buildings. They had her removed to Dr. Riordan's surgery, King and Peter streets, and as the doctor was out Dr. Pepler was called. He pronounced her dead, and in a hurried examination was of opinion that heart disease, superinduced by exposure, had caused death. The woman was about thirty-five years of age and apparently worked for a living. In her pocket was found a purse on which was printed Anna Cable, and the police were informed that she lived at 69 John street. An inquest will be held on Monday night.

Charged With Killing His Son.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Feb. 9.—A series of sensational developments in the case of George Arnold, who disappeared from home on December 16, and whose body was found in the river last Friday, culminated when his father, Adam C. Arnold, a pioneer of this city and worth about $100,000, was arrested for his murder. It is said the father and son had had frequent quarrels, and on the night the son disappeared they had a personal encounter. The prisoner declines to talk.

A Young Girl's Sad Death.

BUFFALO, Feb. 9.—Miss Nellie A. Cutter, the beautiful 20 year old daughter of Mr. Charles Cutter, of East Aurora, left her bed while demented from the grip, and attired only in her night gown, with a shawl over her shoulders, walked to the mill stream near the village and plunged through a hole made by ice cutters. The body was found yesterday.

Shaping Imperial Federation.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The Imperial Federation people are at last taking steps to give the Federation legislative shape in the Commons. Mr. Burnie, M. P., has obtained leave to introduce a bill to establish national assemblies and an Imperial Federation. This is Hon. Cecil Rhodes' idea of the probable outcome of the home rule and other bills.

Age of Training School Boys.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Home Secretary Asquith has promised to consider favorably the request of a deputation that the qualifying age of training school boys who are sent to Canada to be rescued. The main argument of the deputation was that younger boys could be adopted more readily often to the conditions of the colonial life.

TO REFORM THE ROADS

Practical Movement in this Direction by the Association.

THE BENEFITS TO BE DERIVED

A Great Saving Can be Effected by Having Improved Highways—County Associations Urged—Officers Elected by the Association for the Year.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—At yesterday's session of the Good Roads convention Mr. J. B. Campbell, of Middlesex county, spoke of the contention of many that the movement for good roads was entirely on the part of wheelmen, as far as attendance at the meetings was concerned. He combatted the idea. He also referred to laxness on the part of the pathmasters in looking after the repairing of the roads. He urged that next winter the association send out good men to speak on the subject of good roads, not only farmers, but also engineers and others.

President Pattullo also added a word of repudiation of the statement that wheelmen were the only agitators for good roads. He did not think they should build roads for the benefit of the wheelmen alone. The time was coming, however, when every young farmer would be riding on a bicycle, and the question of good roads would be especially interesting to them.

The directors were requested to send out circulars to municipal corporations, boards of trade, and other representative bodies in the province to gain information as to public opinion on the question of improving the highways and ask for suggestions as to securing improvements in the making and maintaining of streets in towns and the rural highways; also to ask opinions as to the abolition of statute labor, and allowing municipalities to maintain roads through taxation as for other corporate expenditures.

The report of the committee on resolutions recommended the reduction of the number of pathmasters and the increase of their jurisdiction; also that they be appointed in consideration of merit and knowledge of road making and repairing. The committee suggested that the Legislative Committee consider these proposals and report at the next meeting. This was adopted.

Mr. Mitchell, of West Northumberland, advised care in seeking legislation for division of control of the roads.

Mayor Kennedy, of Owen Sound, deprecated the statute labor system. He could not understand how farmers could afford to go out and work on the roads for fifty cents a day. He advocated the appointment of a permanent officer to look after the work, who would be a good solid man, elected by the township.

President Pattullo said there was an object lesson of the necessity for road improvement in Oxford county. Within forty rods on each side of that road there was plenty of field stone which could be purchased from the farmers for macadamizing.

Mr. R. L. Richardson of Strathroy, stated that in the manufacturing of a million pounds of cheese, which cost $11,500, if the roads had been good, $5,500 could have been saved. The cost for drawing the milk was two cents a pound. Statute labor he considered a humbug.

Mr. A. H. Pettitt, secretary of the Central Farmers' Institute, commended the movement for good roads. Mr. Murray Pettitt, president of the Fruit Growers' Association, referred to the interest of fruit growers in good roads.

It was moved and adopted that those present should use their influence towards the formation of local good roads associations in their own localities.

Another resolution adopted was that the Ontario Government be asked for a grant to aid the association. A. F. Wood, ex-M.P.P., and President Pattullo, will ask for the grant.

The association closed its session after moving votes of thanks to those who had assisted, among them being the president.

The following officers were elected; President, A. Pattullo, Woodstock; 1st vice, J. F. Bean, Black Creek; 2nd vice, A. W. Campbell, St. Thomas; secretary-treasurer, K. W. McKay, St. Thomas; executive, P. Mahon, J. Sheppard, J. Beattie, Allan Macdougall, J. C. Judd, M. Kennedy, W. S. Campbell, J. H. Wooley, Robt. Jelly, E. Kidd, N. Gover.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 9, 1895.

One load of white wheat sold on the street here at 64 1-2c; one load of oats at 48c, one of rye at 50c, and 100 bushels of barley at 48c. No transactions were reported from outside railway points. Wheat west is wanted at 57c and north at 58c.

In Buffalo barley held strong. Maltsters still 1 to 2c below holders' prices and say they cannot operate at present prices and will close down if values do not weaken or the price of malt advances. There is no change in Canada.

The news in Chicago favored an advance in the grain markets, but the sentiment was the other way and large offerings led to a decline of 1-8c in wheat and 1-4c in corn. Oats were unchanged.

At East Buffalo the sheep and lambs closed firm with about all sold. Three decks of Canada lambs on sale. Fair to choice at $5.50 to $6.

Pending the announcement of the new government loan the New York stock market was stupid and neglected. When the official announcement finally came business improved, but the activity was at the expense of values. It is not too much to say that the street was disappointed both as to the amount of the issue and the high rate of interest that the government will have to pay.

The Americans opened dull in London on the defeat of the Springer bill. The market closed dull with a further severe slump in Grand Trunks, which were almost unsaleable.

Priests May Ride Bikes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Dr. Rooker, private secretary to Mgr. Satolli, says: "I do not think the Holy See has intended to take any action against the use of bicycles by priests. The matter was brought up in a Hungarian diocese and taken to Rome for decision. It was decided that the subject was local. But it was thought that it would be best for the priests concerned to refrain from riding any more than was absolutely necessary." The reason for this, Dr. Rooker said, was the peculiar costume which priests in Europe wear. "So long as bicycles are used within the proper limits," he said, "they will not be frowned down upon. If a priest is unwise in this matter it is the province of any local church officials to see that he corrects his deportment."

Princess Maud is Not to Marry.

ROME, Feb. 9.—A correspondent inquired at the Foreign Office as to the truth of the Giornale's statement that the Prince of Wales was coming here to arrange for the marriage of one of his daughters and the Prince of Naples. The Princess Maud of Wales was supposed to be the young woman in question. Nobody at the Foreign Office knew of the slightest ground for the Giornale's announcement and members of the court circle are equally ignorant on the subject. The story is generally discredited. It is supposed to have been made to fit the London despatch saying that the Prince of Wales was coming to Italy.

Railway Station Burned.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 9.—Lake Erie and Detroit River railroad station at Merlin has been burned. The cause of the fire is unknown. Two freight cars, one loaded with salt, were caught by the flames and destroyed. The building was insured.

Twenty Horses Cremated.

FISKILL LANDING, N. Y., Feb. 9.—Fire here destroyed Beattie Brothers' livery stable and carriage repository. Twenty horses perished in the flames. A block of buildings adjoining the stable with their contents were also burned. Loss $100,000.

Look Out

for breakers ahead when pimples, boils, carbuncles and like manifestations of impure blood appear. They wouldn't appear if your blood were pure and your system in the right condition. They show you need—a good blood-purifier; that's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It carries health with it. All Blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. It invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouses every organ into healthful action. In the most stubborn forms of Skin Diseases, such as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, and with Scrofula in every shape, and all blood-taints, if it fails to cure, you have your money back. And that makes it the CHEAPEST blood-purifier sold.

The Tornado.

A good attendance greeted Lincoln J. Carter's company at the opera house Saturday night when that well known drama, "The Tornado", was presented. The company was first class in every respect, and unlike other companies, kept the audience interested while the scenes were being changed. The latest songs were rendered in which some local hits were made, and met with loud applause from the audience. The scenic effects cannot be beaten. The destruction of the old house was magnificent and was loudly applauded. The collision was also very fine. One of the most beautiful scenes of the evening was the sailors furling the sails. The company is certainly one of the best that has come to Peterborough. It is in a play of this kind that the necessity of a larger stage is noticed.

ROYAL TEMPLARS OF TEMPERANCE.

REV. J. J. RAE ADDRESSED THEM LAST EVENING.

A Powerful Sermon on the Results of Indulgence in Strong Drink—The Moderate Drinker Scored—He is More of a Curse Than the Common Drunkard.

The members of the local lodge of the Royal Templars of Temperance attended worship in the Charlotte street Methodist church last evening when Rev. J. J. Rae, the pastor, preached to them a most interesting sermon.

Mr. Rae took as his text the words: "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak." —Romans XIV ch., 21st ver., and

AS AN ILLUSTRATION

adverted to the fact that in olden times it was the common belief that as light emanated from the sun, so darkness was also thrown upon the world from a like common centre. As time progressed this had been explained away as regards the veil, which falls upon the world when the sun sets, but, he added, there existed no doubt as to the origin of the moral darkness which had fallen upon the world. It emanated from a common centre and nearly all sin could be traced to the same source, a source which was responsible for the staggering walk, the flushed face, tearing eye of the man, who, as the shades of night fell, went reeling to his home, where through the baleful influence of liquor the marital ties were lowered to a revelry of lust.

AND WEAKENED INTELLECT

"Go to the hospitals, the pauper refuges, the prisons, the asylums and the houses of shame," continued he, "and the results of the hellish traffic will be made apparent, for there lie the victims, and the results are that broken hearts and dishonoured graves strew the path trod by the indniger in strong drink, who with flushed face and an intellect had, regardless of consequences, thrown aside advice and counsel and recklessly pursued his course.

Many passages from the scriptures were quoted by Mr. Rae in support of his contention that the influence of the moderate drinker was indirectly even a greater curse than that of the common drunkard. His litany was an oath, his worship, profanity, and his future the wailing echo of a curse. The moderate drinker was one who drank and could say "Look at me, I know when to stop."

YOUNG MEN OBSERVED HIM

whose wills were not as strong and thinking they could follow his example without danger, stepped out boldly and took their first glass, which invariably led to another and another, until their degredation was accomplished.

One could point to a drunkard as an example of what drinking led to but this advantage was almost overruled by the presence of the moderate drinker. The path of the latter was strewn with the wrecks of the former and they should be held responsible.

In concluding his address Mr. Rae enlarged upon the fact that liquor was a poison. He claimed not to be an analyst, but appealed to his hearers to observe the effect when he was sure that they would agree with him in his argument.

SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

Items of Interest to Local Sportsmen. —Curling and Hockey.

HOCKEY.

The Kingston papers states that the Intermediate team of that place is prepared to win and hold the championship honours in the Intermediate series of the O. H. A., against all comers, Peterborough preferred. The game which takes place therefore on Saturday evening next will be one fraught with deep interest for all lovers of hockey. The Peterborough's, hitherto invincibles, will have to play one of the hardest and best games it has ever done to hold the coveted championship. Scores of enthusiaste from here will accompany the boys to Kingston to cheer them on to victory. A special car will leave the G.T.R. at 1.40 p.m. on that date and will return at 8.20 Monday morning. The members of the team are in splendid trim and are training hard for the contest. Early hours and morning runs is the rule.

CURLIANA.

An interesting match was played on Saturday afternoon when Skip Drope defeated Skip Irwin by a score of 14—10. The rinks were composed as follows:—

The pedagogues of the Collegiate Institute were unable to play the masters of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute on Saturday owing to the storm which prevented the undertaking of the trip. Lindsay will be accomodated at some future date.

The last match in the third draw in the the Kendry Cup series was played Saturday evening, between Skip Boucher and Skip McNeil, the former winning by one shot. The game was a very close and exciting one, the two rinks being a tie at the fifteenth end. Skip Boucher won the shot on the sixteenth. The rinks were composed as follows:

W H Hill,	T E Boddy,
E H D Hall,	C Rutherford,
G G Matthews,	Jno stanger,
R P Boucher, skip...16	A McNeil, skip.....15

Toronto Club curlers will have a busy time next week, playing as follows:—Monday—Caledonians, two rinks, at Victoria in afternoon, two in evening at Mutual street rink. Tuesday—Parkdale, two rinks on each ice. Wednesday—Afternoon, six rinks at Peterborough; evening at Lindsay. Thursday—Six Lindsay rinks on Victoria ice.

Two rinks of Lindsay curlers visited Toronto on Saturday, and played a friendly match with the Granites, which they won by two points. Score:

That Tired Feeling, Constipation and Pain in the Back

Appetite and Health Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mr. Chas. Steele
St. Catherine's, Ont.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"For a number of years I have been troubled with a general tired feeling, shortness of breath, pain in the back, and constipation. I could get only little rest at night on account of the pain and had no appetite whatever. I was that tired in my limbs that I gave out before half the day was gone. I tried a great number of medicines but did not get any permanent relief from any

RESULTS OF THE STORM.

The Railroad Tracks Again Cleared and Traffic Resumed.

The storms has apparently subsided for the present and the railroads are again running trains on scheudule time.

The C. P. R. is now completely opened up East and West, although the morning train was delayed a couple of hours on account of an accident which occurred about two miles east of here and cumbered the track for several hours. The breakage was occasioned by a truck giving away. The damage was slight but the wreck difficult to handle. The 11.25 a.m. mail train from Toronto was an hour and a half late, but unless the storm breaks out afresh the trains will be again running on time by this evening.

On the Grand Trunk the snow ploughs, which were in operation all day Saturday and Sunday, have cleared the line of drifts. The Belleville branch was the last to be put into operation and Conductor Staunton's train came in at noon preceeded by a snow plow and being about four hours late. The Port Hope train due here at 9 o'clock Friday evening was unable to run through until 7.50 o'clock yesterday morning and No. 4 Express arrriving here last night at half past eight was the first train to run in from Toronto over the Midland Division. The Lakefield branch is again reopened for traffic and a train was run in from the village this morning and returned this afternoon.

The street cars, which were abandoned on Saturday, are again running to-day, the big snow plough and the sweeper having cleared the tracks yesterday.

BOBCAYGEON.

The Bobcaygeon Independent says:—S. W. Crabtree, Esq., J.P., held court on Monday. On Thursday it appears that Mr. Thos. Bick and Mr. W. Davidson met in front of Mr. Davey's store, and had some difference of opinion regarding a matter of insurance. In the heat of the discussion Mr. Bick sort of insinuated that Mr. Davidson was not invariably strictly truthful, in fact, according to Mr. Davidson's evidence, Mr. Bick lunged his head forward, presumably something after the manner adopted by roosters, and deliberately called him "a notorious liar." On the impulse of the moment Mr. Davidson struck out and gave Mr. Bick a regular sneezer in the eye. Then they clinched but before they had time to muss their clothes or make much of a show, Mr. Wilfred Davey came out and separated the belligerents. The appearance before the magistrate was made on the invitation of Constable Nicholls, and they were requested to show cause for breaking the peace of the village. It may be noted and impressed upon the world that the Peace of this village is sacred. It is our one all absorbing characteristic. Whether in business or at pleasure, this village maintains a solemn calmness, equalled only by the restful repose of that finally peaceful and popular resort on the hill, where everyone lies—but in immutable silence. Mr. Bick endeavoured to convince the magistrate that his share in the disturbance of the peace was not voluntary, but His Worship considered that under the Bylaw, the penalty would have to be borne by both parties alike, and he accordingly imposed a fine of $3 each and costs. Mr. Davidson was then charged by Mr. Bick with assault, and on this count, a fine of $1 and costs was imposed.

AN ILLICIT STILL IN OPERATION IN VICTORIA.

A Cow Obtains Access to the Spirits and Goes on a Spree.

For a long time past a private still has been in operation in the township of Stanhope, Victoria County, and some of the men of the neighbourhood imbibed too freely and frequently of the product, the women were naturally anxious to have it discovered and suppressed. With that end in view a detective was set to work, and hunted and spied in vain; but what he couldn't do was done two days ago by a cow, who accidentally obtained access to a quantity of high wines or whisky and drank so much that she became literally dead drunk. Our informant did not ascertain to whom she belonged, but whoever owned her skinned her, cut her up and sold her to the foreman or cook of Howry & Son's lumbering shanty, a few miles away in the adjoining township of Sherborne. Whether the beef produced an exhilarating effect on the men who ate it, and whether the illicit distillery has been found or destroyed or is yet in operation, are interesting points upon which the villager from whom the above information was obtained could not say.

A HORSE THIEF IS AT LARGE.

HE HIRED A HORSE A WEEK AGO FRIDAY.

Mr. G. W. Reid, of Warsaw, the Victim—The Thief has Already Traded Animals Several Times—Officers on his Track.

Horse-stealing is a crime which has been comparatively unknown in this section of late years. A case, however, occurred on Friday, February 1st, which may be characterized as one of the coolest cases of horse lifting on record. The victim of the theft is Mr. G. W. Reid, of Warsaw, and although he has since recovered his horse, he is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of his cutter and robes which were connected with it when last in his possession.

Perhaps the story is best told as coming from the lips of Mr. Reid himself. He says:

"On Friday, Feb. 1st, 1895, a young man giving his name as James McCauley, came to me and hired my horse and cutter for the purpose of going out in the neighbourhood taking orders for the ENLARGEMENT OF PICTURES.

He was to be back the evening of said day but has not as yet put in his appearance. Since that day I received a telephone message on Saturday morning stating he would be back same night or following Sunday morning, but he did not come.

On Monday, Feb. 4th, I started out to look after him and went as far as Hastings, and while at Hastings I found out that he had traded my horse with Jno. Dougharty, hotelkeeper, Westwood. I followed him to Warkworth and found that he had traded Dougharty's horse to Peter Colbourne, of Warkworth. He also stayed while there at the Leonard house and left early Sunday morning before breakfast.

I was told that he had possibly a place of his former abode. So I drove to Wooler, but could find no trace of McCauley and I find still further that he got boot at every trade of said horses. I came back and got my horse from Jno. Dougharty, Westwood, and Dougharty got his animal from Colbourne, but I am still out the cutter, harness, two robes and an overcoat. Dougharty loses $10, and Colbourne $3 and his horse.

McCauley is supposed to have driven to some of the frontier places, say Belleville, Colborne, Trenton or Brighton. He is about 28 years or thereabouts, light moustache, about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches, weight about 145 lbs., is a married man, but is not living with his wife. He was married at Wooler, and is wearing a dark suit, swallow tail coat. The overcoat of mine he took is a dark grey walking overcoat. Black soft felt hat (Fedora). The cutter, piano box, is painted black. The robes are black calf skin with white spots, and pointed trimming, red white and blue. The harness is an ordinary set. The back robe is a large grey goat skin lined with red robe lining. The bells went around horse. On the bottom of the cutter was a piece of tea chest covering and on top of that was a small rug of calf skin striped black and white.

LINED WITH GREY FLANNEL

Mr. George Cochrane, high county constable, has the matter in hand and is making every effort to locate the fugitive.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

"What think ye of Christ?" was the topic for a short talk by Mr. Miller at the Saturday night song service. The attendance, 32.

An evangelistic Bible class for young men who do not attend Sunday school, made a start yesterday afternoon with six men. The class will study Old Testament characters. Noah was the subject yesterday. Abraham will be the subect next Sunday.

Over 40 men listened to a "purity talk" at yesterday's meeting. The opening fifteen minutes of praise seemed to be appreciated. Something better than usual may be expected next Sunday.

Be sure to turn up at the rooms tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. A literary society will be organized. The development you can receive from this source will be well worth your time.

And still they come! Three more young men who will become sustaining members at $6 a year! It speaks well for their interest in the work when young men, who do not make their three or four thousand a year, are willing to give $3, $5 and $10 a year toward current expenses.

It will pay you to visit Grafton & Co's just now.

Sold Out.

Mr. Alf. Dawson, grocer, No. 235 George street, has sold out his stock of first-class groceries and provisions to Mr. W. J. Hall, dealer in bankrupt stocks. The entire stock has been removed to Mr. John Cameron's grocery store, where it will be slaughtered in the usual manner, regardless of original values. Housekeepers will get extraordinary "snaps" in staple groceries and provisions as long as this sacrificing sale lasts. d284f.

Selling off.

A positive clearing sale is now going on at Miss Delaney's Millinery establishment. The entire stock must be sold off during the month of February, as Miss Delaney is retiring from business, and will give up her store on the 1st of March. This leaves only one month to clear out her stock, and in consequence, bargains may be expected. Miss Delaney's stock has always ranked as first-class, and at present contains many new novelties, such as new veilings, new violets, flowers, ornaments and fancy silks, besides fashionable mantles, hats, laces, trimmings, etc. Ladies will no doubt govern themselves accordingly and be prompt to attend this sale. All accounts due Miss Delaney must be settled during this month, and it is hoped that those interested will not require any further notice. dw

PARTY ALL AT SEA.

The Dominion Cabinet are at sixes and sevens about dissolving parliament as well as everything else. The trip of Sir Mackenzie Bowell to Toronto was to finally decide the question. Mr. Ouimet is for session, Mr. Foster for dissolution. All the printing for a general election has been done, so that there is likely to be an election at once. The political outlook in the West does not make the government so very anxious for dissolution as when they started on a stumping expedition, but on the grounds that matters are daily getting worse, they will consent to an election before a session.

In Peterborough everything is not peace and harmony among the local Conservatives. Quite a number express themselves very strongly that Mr. Stevenson should not entertain the thought of receiving the nomination of the party. There are those who think that as Mr. Winch filled a gap for them in the local campaign, that he is now entitled to recognition.

Mr. Kendry is looked upon by some as the most likely man to take Mr. Stevenson's place, but either Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Dennistoun or Mr. W. H. Moore can hold their own on the platform, which lessens Mr. Kendry's strength as a campaigner, and these two latter gentlemen have friends who insist that they shall not be overlooked.

Notwithstanding the mutterings of discontent on all sides, Mr. Stevenson insists upon being re-nominated, and it is not unlikely that these other gentlemen will be compelled to make way for the sitting member.

EVERYONE is waiting for the announcement of the date of the general elections. Nobody any longer bothers speculating on the session or dissolution.

On Saturday Justice Osler granted an order withdrawing the petition against the return of Hon. Richard Harcourt, the Provincial Treasurer. The petition was said to have been originally entered by the Patrons of Industry in the constituency.

THE Chatham council favour application to the Local Legislature for an act to create Chatham into a city, which it is now termed only through courtesy. It is believed it would give not only greater municipal authority, but advanced reputation and increased revenue.

OTTAWA Free Press. It would seem that Sir Hector Langevin has expressed his opinion of the successors to himself and Mr. Chapleau in the government. "A mighty poor crowd," is Sir Hector's opinion. He ought to know. What the Hon. Mr. Angers thinks and says is well enough known.

MR. Joly de Lotbiniere has put on his sword. He is, it is understood, to run for Megantic, a county which will, no doubt, welcome him with great heartiness. He declines to be put forward in his own county of Lotbiniere, where he is universally beloved, as that seat is now held by a friend whom he refuses to displace.

THE members of the Ontario Fees Commission, who recently visited some of the Western States, have returned, and the full commission met Thursday at Osgoods Hall to consider and prepare their report. It is not likely to recommend the change of selecting public officials from the appointive to the elective system, but rather propose a reform in the manner of remunerating them. If paid by fees it is expected but a limited amount will go to the the occupants of office.

LAST year Canada exported 1,187,673 barrels of apples, 2,044,235 bushels of barley, 594,604 bushels of buckwheat, 2,535,322 bushels of oats, 3,255,812 bushels of peas and 13,006,039 bushels of wheat. In every one of these articles of farm produce the Canadian price was regulated by the price obtainable abroad, and in many cases it did not matter one red cent to the Canadian seller whether his produce was consumed in Canada or in Europe. The Review keeps on endeavouring to prove that the farmers are prosperous. The farmers will be glad to hear this, no doubt; but they would prefer some more tangible evidence of it than a Review article—say for instance the possession of a bank account.

THE condition of the Dominion finances is becoming worse and worse as each monthly statement appears in the 'Official Gazette.' The revenue up to Jan. 31 was $19,254,832, as compared with $21,414,552 for the same period last year, a decrease of $2,159,720 for 1895, the expenditure for the same period is $788,310 in excess of what it was last year, leaving a shortage at both ends and a total deficit for the seven months of nearly $3,000,000. This will mean a deficit for the current fiscal year of $5,000,000. The expenditure for January exceeded the expenditure for January, 1894, by half a million dollars. The startling announcement is made that the public debt increased during the month by $3,473,000, so that the debt is now in round figures $260,000,000.

THE Windsor special correspondent to the Globe says: Had not Hon. John Costigan, the new Minister of Marine and Fisheries, found it convenient to return to Ottawa before the travelling combination reached the County of Essex, he would have had a good many explanations to make to the angry fishermen of the district. Mr. Costigan took a weighty load upon his shoulders when he assumed the responsibilities of his new office and placed himself in the position of having to answer for the sins of his predecessor. Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper's administration of the affairs of the department has brought disaster to the inland and Pacific coast fishermen, and nowhere has it produced such a distressing effect as among those who ply their avocation on the shores of Lake Erie, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit and St. Clair rivers. Not only are the fishermen incensed at the Government because of its ill-considered policy regarding the fishery industry, but business men and farmers who profit by the prosperity of the fishermen, are clamoring for a mitigation of the harassing restrictions which threaten to transfer the industry to the United States shores of the lakes and rivers. So grave has the position of the fishermen become, notwithstanding the repeated appeals made in in their behalf on the floor of Parliament by Mr. Jas. Lister, M. P., Mr. William McGregor, M. P., and others, that the County Council of Essex, representing all classes of the community, has decided to take action to the extent of its powers. A petition has been adopted by that body setting forth the grievances of the fishermen, and when the opportunity arrives it will be presented to Parliament.

CHURCH CHIMES.

There will be divine service at Hare's school house on Wednesday evening next at 7.30 p.m.

An appeal for cast-off clothing was made by the rector of St. Luke's yesterday morning. All parcels may be sent to the Rectory, Mrs. Warde's or to Miss Calcutt's.

St. Luke's branch of the Women's Auxiliary will send representatives to the semi-annual meeting at Lindsay on Tuesday, when the rector will give an address on Indian Missions.

The rector of St. Luke's and Mrs. Symonds have issued an invitation to all members and attendants of St. Luke's church to a social gathering to be held in the school house on Wednesday, Feb. 20th.

Mr. W. D. Parker conducted service and delivered a sermon in St. John's church yesterday morning in the absence of the rector and curate who were unable to return from Woodstock on account of the storm. Rev. H. Symonds took the evening service.

A memorial service was held yesterday afternoon in the George street Methodist sunday school in connection with the recent deaths of Miss Ettie Armstrong and Miss Violet Dixon, who were both esteemed and much loved teachers in the school. Mrs. Kendry, in speaking, paid a loving tribute to the memory of the two young ladies, who had both graduated from her class. Her remarks concerning them were most touching and brought tears to the eyes of many of their friends who were present. Rev. Mr. Young, the pastor, also addressed the Sunday school on the same subject and paid reverent eulogium to the two teachers whose death had so suddenly called away. The orchestra which was present played Chopin's arrangement of the Dead March in a perfect manner.

CAPTURED A HORNED OWL.

It Flew Away with a Trap but was Finally Captured.

On Saturday, January 12th, Mr. Thomas Junkin, of Verulam, found the remains of a hen, which some predatory bird or beast had killed and partly eaten during the night, and as it was suspected that an owl had done the deed, one of the boys nailed the hen and a steel trap close together on the roof of the barn. Next morning the bait was there but the trap was gone and no one expected to see it again; but on Sunday, the 26th, Mr. Junkin went over to visit his relative Mr. Lancelot Patterson, whose farm is about a mile from his own, and who soon after he got there, asked him whether he had lost a trap. Mr. Junkin said that he had; and Mr. Patterson, taking him to the cellar and opening the door, showed him a horned owl with the trap and chain hanging from one of its toes, and told him that he had found the bird in his barn, looking longingly at a turkey, the previous Friday night. Mr. Junkin released the owl from the trap, took him home, and offered him the remains of the hen, which he greedily ate, and on Saturday last when we heard of his capture, he was apparently in good health and spirits, and not at all lame from lugging around his heavy load of iron for a full fortnight.

THE REBUILDING OF ROSA'S BRIDGE.

A South Monaghan Deputation Waits on the Town Council.

A meeting of the council was called Saturday afternoon, and with Mr. Best in the chair the members went into a committee of the whole and received ex-Reeve Morrison and Mr. John Riddell, of South Monaghan, who wished to call the attention of the council to the necessity of erecting a new bridge across the river, connecting South Monaghan and Otonabee at a point near the spot where Rosa's bridge was destroyed by fire some time ago.

After some discussion the committee passed a resolution recognising the importance of the matter and recommending the town council to assist South Monaghan in pressing the question of the rebuilding of the bridge upon the attention of both the Dominion and Local Governments and also recommending that, if necessary, the town extend pecuniary aid to the township to assist in the erection of a new bridge.

SOMETHING ABOUT ADVERTISING

The dealer who tells his local newspaper that he does not believe in advertising can usually be found advertising somewhere. Look carefully over the blotting paper in the hotel register and you will find him. Hold a dust covered copy of the city directory and you will see his ad. there. The man who is publishing a history of the police department always hunts him out, and the men with programmes and novelties flock about him.

The man who advertises largely in newspapers indicates that he has learned how to advertise profitably. The better that fact is known the less that man is bothered with schemers.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

What John Wanamaker, the Most Heavily Insured man in America, Says:

(INTERVIEW WITH JOHN WANAMAKER.)

It is very generally known that Ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, carries the largest amount of Life Insurance of any man in the United States. A representative of the press recently interviewed this gentleman while he was travelling with the Presidential party, and this interview will be found, we believe, of general interest:—

"You are said to be the most heavily insured man in the country, Mr. Wanamaker," remarked the press representative.

"How did you come to think of that?" he said with a smile. "You are not looking for any disaster under such excellent management as our friend Boyd is giving this train and party?"

"No," I replied. "A newspaper friend in San Francisco, who had heard the report, wanted me to ask you it it was true, and if so, what your business reasons are for it?"

"Well," he modestly answered, "I have heard it stated that I am the most heavily insured man in the country. I don't know about that. The amount of my policies is $1,550,000, and the value, with the accumulations since the policies were taken out, is about two millions of dollars."

"In what class of companies are your policies?"

"They are all in stock and mutual companies, and none of them in what are known as assessment or instalment companies."

"Are they full life term policies or on what is termed the 'tontine' plan?"

"I have generally taken ten and fifteen payment policies and very few life policies. With about all good companies a contract can now be made whereby there is no risk of losing a policy after two years' premiums have been paid. If the party insured chooses to withdraw he can get a paid-up policy. Indeed, I understand that some companies have forms whereby the insurer can after one year, if desired, withdraw and receive a paid-up policy. There is practically little risk, any more, in insuring in the old companies."

"Perhaps you would be willing to tell me how you came to insure so heavily?"

"I thought the matter out, and convinced myself that it was a good business venture. Besides, it seemed to me that I might, perhaps, give away more money in lifetime if there was a fixed certainty of putting it back into my estate by Life Insurance. I conceive that the best way for a man to carry on benevolence is not to leave it to be done through his will, but to do it in his lifetime, and I felt that Life Insurance would give me more freedom in carrying out some plans I have, and which I would be glad to see completed before I leave this world. If you want to ascertain what the circumstances were in placing the Life Insurance, I must go further in my answers and say that I should not have gone so far in my Life Insurance but for the skill of the agent who tackled me to insure to a greater extent than I would otherwise have done. He was an old friend who had been in mercantile business and who knew how to present Life Insurance without boring me. I feel to-day sincerely grateful to the man who followed me so discreetly with information about companies, and who kept the subject before me until I settled the question."

"When did you begin taking Life Insurance policies?"

"My first policy was taken when I was twenty-one."

"Do you consider it a good thing for a man of small means?"

"I certainly do. Most young men spend more for cigars during the year than the annual cost of a $2,500 policy in a good company. If they must have the cigars they might divide between cigars and Life Insurance and carry at least a $1,000 policy. I think every young man, before he is married, ought to try to get at least a $1,000 policy."

"Among how many companies are your policies divided, and where are they located?"

"About forty companies. Most of them are located in the East. A few are in the West and a few in Canada."

"Do you recommend Life Insurance to others, especially those in whom you feel a personal interest?"

"I can perhaps answer that best by saying that I presented a few years ago a $1,000 policy, paid up for one year, to every insurable head of family in my employ. Many of the prudent men who received them not only kept them but added to them, and I have the satisfaction of knowing that in not a few cases those policies have been the means of saving worthy families from want."

It will doubtless be of interest to our readers to know that John Wanamaker carries a large policy in the Canada Life Insurance Company, thus evincing his confidence in the soundness of Canada's oldest and largest Company. During the last few years quite a number of American capitalists have been convinced of the SUPERIOR MERITS OF THE CANADA LIFE, and have accordingly placed their insurance therein, in preference to any other company.

The Canada Life is now being recognized in the States of Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio as the Company that gives the best results for the least premium.

TRACK OF THE STORM.

Several Points, East and West, Feel Its Force.

QUEBEC, Feb. 9.—The terrible storm which prevailed here yesterday was one of the most serious tempests since years ago. Chimney pots, signs and bricks blew about; only few venturesome pedestrians were seen about the streets. The water rose eight feet above the mean spring-tide level. Several stores were inundated. Messrs. Kirouac, J. B. Renaud, Wm. Carrier, Leclerc and Letellier, Wm. Webster, F. T. Thomas, A. E. Vallerand and others suffered damages which are valued at about $20,000. The flood extended to Hedleyville, where several houses were flooded and lots of goods damaged in shops.

News from Lexis is also very bad. Several stores were inundated and timber and boards lying on winter quarters were carried off with ice floes, the high tide reaching the middle of the main road. The keeper of the Custom House at Quebec had to run for his life, the water rose four feet in the basement where he lived within half an hour.

NIAGARA, Ont., Feb. 9.—The storm that has been to general all over the country struck here on Tuesday and is the worst ever known here. The Niagara river at this point is blocked with ice, forming a bridge between this and the American shore. The mail stage between here and St. Catharines was unable to get through on account of the snow. The Michigan Central train, which left here in the morning, had to return, being unable to get through the drifts on the Queenston mountain.

NIAGARA FALLS, Feb. 9.—A regular northwest blizzard struck this place yesterday. The thermometer fell to 8 below zero and with a furious northwest gale made things howl around the frontier all day, completely demoralizing railway traffic on the lines.

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—The biggest snow storm of the season struck Ottawa and hit it pretty hard. The trains were late on all the lines of railway. All the available forces of snow shovellers and all the snow plows were out along the lines. The Toronto train on the C. P. R., due here at 6 o'clock in the morning, did not arrive until 12.30 at night. At 11.55 the Prescott train, due here at 9.30 had only reached Osgoode station. It arrived in Ottawa at 1 p.m. The Winnipeg train is many hours late. The C. P. R. and C. A. R. trains from Montreal were several hours late.

GRENVILLE, Que., Feb. 9.—Twelve inches fall of snow here. Roads all blocked up. Mercury rising since morning.

CARLETON PLACE, Ont., Feb. 9.—The snow fall is about ten inches, drifted into roads. All the trains more or less late.

MORRISBURG, Ont., Feb. 9.—About two feet of snow fell here, terribly drifted. Roads almost impassable. Trains blocked and all very late.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW.

Proceedings of the Second Day of the Annual Convention.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 9.—At the convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew yesterday, the Lord Bishop of Huron, in a most eloquent address, welcomed the convention to his diocese. Mayor Cole, on behalf of the municipal corporation, and Rev. J. C. Farthing, on behalf of the clergy of the town, welcomed the delegates. The president was elected permanent chairman and Messrs. J. A. Catto, Toronto, and A. McMorine, Kingston, secretaries. Greetings from North Sydney C. B., Truro, N. S., Chatham, Ont. and Chicago were received.

In the afternoon a number of subjects were taken up for consideration and a general discussion closed the conference.

In the evening an open meeting was held, Judge Senkler, Perth, presiding. The subject of the addresses were "The Brotherhood Idea." The speakers of the evening were the Lord Bishop of Niagara, W. Aikman, Detroit; and Rev. W. J. Mucklestin, Perth.

The severe storm which has been raging since yesterday has almost completely tied up all railroads. Numerous delegates are snowbound on the way, including the American party, General Secretary Wood, New York; and Rev. A. S. Lloyd, Norfolk, Va.

A FAMILY'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Nearly Meet Death in Their Burning Dwelling—A Fireman Hurt.

COBOURG, Feb. 9.—Fire last evening completely destroyed the frame dwelling occupied by Pat Cashion, of this town. With the high wind which was blowing it was impossible to save any of the contents. The occupants were unaware of the house being on fire until the roof fell in and they barely escaped with their lives. Loss about $2,000; partly insured.

In going to the fire Driver John Rose, of No. 1 truck, fell off, and the truck passed over him, seriously hurting him internally.

Dyspepsia seldom causes death, but permits its victims to live on in misery. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

Signs of worms are variable appetite, itching at the nose, etc. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup is the best worm expeller.

TEUTONIC IS SIGHTED

The White Star Steamer Anchored Off Sandy Hook Lightship.

NO WORD OF THE LA GASCOGNE

The Teutonic Was Delayed by Heavy Weather—She Reports Seeing Nothing of the French Liner—Agents of the Company Still Confident.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—When it was learned yesterday that a steamer supposed to be the Teutonic had passed in at Fire Island at 4.30 o'clock, Sandy Hook was looked to as the point from which something definite would be received in a few hours. Up to 10.30 o'clock, however, no information was obtainable from that point beyond the fact that the lights of a steamer which was anchored half a mile north-west of the lightship had been visible twice. In vain did the marine observer flash the lantern in the hope of receiving signals from the steamer, but no answer was vouchsafed, and a thick haze settling in excluded all objects from his view, preventing him from securing the desired intelligence which hundreds of anxious ones are eager to obtain. Had it been the Teutonic or any large vessel signals would probably have gone up from her. The Teutonic is now nearly three days overdue.

No news of the French liner Gascogne was received yesterday. The agents of both express confidence in the ability of their ships to reach port.

As yet there is no alarm over the late arrival of the Teutonic. The severity of the weather alone is sufficient to account for her delay, and the theory that she is standing by the Gascogne is quite generally credited. There is now little doubt that the Gascogne has met with an accident of some kind. Whether it is disabled machinery, causing slow progress, or something even more serious, is but conjecture. The relatives and friends of passengers, who make daily enquiries at the office of the French line, are now much alarmed, and news from the missing ship is anxiously awaited.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Teutonic has been sighted off the lightship.

The tug R. J. Moran has just arrived at Quarantine and reports that the overdue White Star steamer Teutonic is anchored off Sandy Hook lightship. The Teutonic way delayed by the heavy weather. She saw nothing of the French liner La Gascogne during her voyage.

HAVRE, Feb. 9.—Up to a late hour no news of the overdue steamer La Gascogne has been received.

Affairs in Newfoundland.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 9.—The Whiteway Cabinet was gazetted yesterday. The appointment of Eli Dawe as chairman of the Board of Works is held over temporarily pending the adjustment of a dispute concerning the distribution of patronage. The Legislature met in the afternoon, but beyond hearing the formal announcement of the ministry no business was done. An adjournment was taken until April 2. In the interval it is likely the bye-elections will be held. It is likely that the delegation to Canada will go on its mission during the recess.

A Fire in Mount Joy.

MARKHAM, Feb. 9.—A fire broke out in the tailor shop of J. R. Hoover, Mount Joy, a suburb of Markham, consuming the building, stock and furniture and $98 in cash. Mr. and Mrs. Hoover just escaped with their lives, the fire originating in the kitchen below their sleeping apartments. The loss is about $1,500 on contents and shop. Covered by insurance.

Called to the Ontario Bar.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, who is already a member of the Nova Scotia bar, visited Osgoode Hall yesterday and was called to the Ontario Bar in the Common Pleas Court. Chief Justice Meredith, Justices MacMahon and Rose were on the bench. Christopher Robinson, Q.C., and Frank McKelcan, Q.C., presented Sir Charles to the court.

Four Killed by a Train.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 9.—A belated passenger train from the west crashed into a gang of men engaged in clearing the tracks of snow in the yard here, killing four of them.

The only blood-purifier admitted on exhibition at the Chicago World's Fair was Ayer's Sarsaparilla, all others being excluded as secret preparations and patent medicines. With doctors and pharmacists, it has always been considered a standard remedy.

COLLISION ON THE G.T.R.

The Chicago Express and a Local Come Together Near Weston.

TORONTO PASSENGER MISSING

Lawyer Joseph Buried Beneath the Wreck—Judge Burton Injured—The Engineer and Fireman Badly Hurt—The Accident Caused by the Storm.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—A bad rear end collision occurred on the Grand Trunk yesterday afternoon between Malton and Weston, about ten miles from the city.

Two passenger trains were proceeding towards Toronto when the first got stuck in the snow. A brakeman was sent back to signal the next train, but although he used flags and fog signals, the engineer of the second train failed to see him on account of the storm. The result was that the second train telescoped the first.

The train which was run into was the one due in Toronto at 8.15 in the morning from Sarnia, and the other was the express due here at 12.20 from Stratford.

A construction train went out to the wreck from the Union station as soon after the news reached Toronto as it was possible to get one together.

The Chicago train left Brampton just before the London train. It consisted of three sleepers, one day coach and a baggage car. The London train, which ran into the Pullman of No. 4, was made up of a baggage, smoker and two day coaches.

In the rear Pullman was a party of Toronto gentlemen returning from Stratford, where they had been engaged in connection with the hearing of the South Perth election petition the previous day. The party consisted of Mr. Justice Burton, Mr. Justice Osler, judges in the case; B. B. Osler, Q.C., A. B. Aylesworth, Q.C., counsel in the case; Official Court Reporter Monoghan; Registrar J. J. Joseph and J. E. Atkinson, of the Globe newspaper. The only other occupant of the car was Mr. Mr. C. A. E. Carr, of the Toronto Railway Company.

Judge Osler and his brother, B. B. Osler, had left the car while it lay snow-bound and gone forward to the front to see what the prospect of going on was. All the gentlemen except Mr. Joseph at the moment of the shock rushed towards the centre of the car. Mr. Joseph when last seen was near the front of the car. The passengers were dashed violently about the car and received more or less injuries. Judge Burton was cut about the head and bled profusely. Court Reporter Monoghan had both legs broken. Reporter Atkinson escaped with a broken rib and the other passengers escaped serious injuries, save Mr. Joseph.

Fire broke out at both ends of the hind car and the passengers had to be pulled out through the windows. It was taken for granted that all were out and it was not until some time later that Mr. Joseph was found not to be among the party. The two Pullmans were then burning fiercely and there was no possible way of rescuing the unfortunate man who is now supposed to have met his death there. Some of the spectators, subsequently in reference to the matter, stated that they believed they had detected the odor of burning flesh. No word had been heard of Joseph late at night and his friends had given him up.

The engineer of the local train was Charles Maunering, of Stratford. He was very severely injured by being squeezed between the timbers. He was subsequently badly scalded, and with the terrible shock to his system added, his recovery is doubtful.

Fireman Hesson of the local, also a Stratford man, was also badly hurt.

After being attended by a physician they were taken to Malton to be transferred to Stratford.

Lawyer Frank Joseph, the missing man, was the editor of the Law Digest. He was a bachelor and about fifty years of age. He did not practice, but was assistant clerk of the private bills at the Parliament buildings. He was a member of the firm of Harrison & Joseph.

HOUSES SWEPT AWAY.

A Fishing Settlement in Nova Scotia Carried Off by the Waves.

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 9.—The following particulars reached here last evening concerning a calamity at South Ingonish, whereby 29 houses were swept away. The accident was caused by exceptionally high tides and a heavy sea, the result of tremendous gales. The place where the casualty occurred is a small fishing settlement, built on a narrow peninsula of rocks called "The Beach," which divides the sea from the harbor. The beach is very narrow and low and exposed to the sea. The heavy sea washed completely over it, sweeping away everything. The nearest telegraph office is at French river and as the roads are badly blocked and the wires down the probabilities are no further news will be forthcoming for some time. So far no loss of life is reported.

An Eminent Archæologist Dead.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Prof. Reginald Poole died in Kensington yesterday. Prof. Poole was born in London in 1832. He was educated privately in Egypt and interested himself in archæology, and in 1880 was appointed professor of that science at University College, London. He published many works on ancient history and old coins. He was vice-president of the Egyptian exploration fund.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair!
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,
They gave us every one, a kiss,
An' said, 'be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home.
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

A BOON TO ALL SICK ONES

Cures When Other Medicines and Doctors Have Failed

RESTORES THE SICK TO HEALTH.

"I Can Attribute My Restoration to Health Solely to South American Nervine." Says C. J. Curtis, of Windsor.

C. J. CURTIS, WINDSOR, ONT.

When one has climbed a high mountain it is not difficult to mount the ordinary hill. A medicine that will cure when the case is a desperate one, may be safely taken as a good all round medicine in ordinary cases, and it is not alone the very sick who need medicine.

The statement is borne out by a multitude of facts, thousands of testimonials from reputable citizens, that South American Nervine cures, after what are considered the best medicines in the country have failed, and where the skill of the ablest physicians has come to naught.

The acknowledged scientific principle of disease is weakness and disorganization at the nerve centers. These nerve centers are the main spring of the whole system. When the stomach is out of order the certain remedy is to set the nerve centers in right condition again, so with every other trouble. Thus it is that it may be liver complaint, nervousness, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, impoverished blood, consumption of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, sick or nervous headache, sleeplessness, pains in the kidneys, or other ailments from which a person is suffering South American Nervine will cure, and cure quickly, and best of all cure effectively and lastingly in every such case.

Much as we were disposed to laugh at La Grippe as a trifling complaint when it first made itself known in this country, later developments have proved that it is a serious malady. The after effects are such that very thorough measures need to be taken to ensure perfect restoration to health. South American Nervine has proven wonderfully efficacious in giving back health to the victims of La Grippe. Mr. C. J. Curtis, a wealthy and well known farmer near Windsor, Ont., suffered from a severe attack of this malady, leaving him exceedingly weak and with no appetite. No medicine seemed to do him any good until he was influenced to try South American Nervine and his testimony is this: "After taking one bottle I found very great benefit from it, my appetite improved wonderfully, and I felt my strength returning very fast." Mr. Curtis then purchased five bottles, but after taking only three out of the five, to use his own words: "I am feeling as nearly well to-day as I ever did, and I can attribute my restoration to health and strength solely to South American Nervine."

PARNELLITES IN OPPOSITION.

A Division on an Amendment to the Address in the Imperial House.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Arthur Jeffreys, Conservative for the North Division of Hants, moved an amendment to the address in the Commons on Thursday concerning the depression of agriculture and industry. Arthur Balfour, Unionist leader, inclosing the debate on the amendment yesterday, gave details of the industrial distress in Lancashire.

The Parnellites supported Mr. Jaffrey's amendment and left the Government with a majority of only 13. The amendment was lost by a vote of 272 to 261. The Opposition contend that the ministry's defeat would have been certain but for Sir William Harcourt's announcement that the government would appoint a committee to enquire into the condition of the unemployed.

Joseph Chamberlain, leader of the Liberal Unionists will move the official or opposition amendment to the address. The substance of it will be: "That it is contrary to the public interest that the time of parliament be occupied with the discussion of measures which according to the Minister's own statements there is no prospect of passing while proposals involving great constitutional changes have been announced—proposals on which the judgment of Parliament should be taken without delay.

CRATHIE'S MEN AT ABERDEEN.

Examined Before a Commission—Miss Boecker to Visit the Queen.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The crew of the steamer Crathie which sunk the steamer Elbe are now at Aberdeen where they are being examined by a commission of the Board of Trade. Those examined stated that after the collision the lights of the Elbe were seen nearly three quarters of a mile away and at that time it was believed on board the Crathie that her engines were still working. Distress rockets were seen but no explosion was heard during the two hours occupied by the Crathie's crew in clearing away the wreckage on their own vessel.

After the wreckage had been cleared away the Crathie steered back for Rotterdam.

Empress Frederick has invited Anna Boecker, the only woman saved from the Elbe, to visit Osborne to meet the Queen and herself.

The Ging Murder Trial.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 9.—The interesting feature of yesterday's session in the Hayward trial was the statement by Mr. Erwin that Harry Hayward would go on to the stand and admit purchasing the liquor which Blixt claims or thinks was drugged. The testimony of Detective Morrissey at the afternoon session was of interest, for its bearing on the behavior of Hayward in the presence of officers, the night of the murder. Miss Ireland, Miss Ging's niece, told of the intimacy between Miss Ging and Hayward, but said the conduct of Hayward and her aunt was always proper. The witness said that Miss Ging told her that Harry did not want their relations to be known by the witness. Miss Ireland had sent several telegrams for her aunt to Chicago and will identify them later. She had not noticed her aunt having any extra money shortly before the murder.

A Scapegoat in Jail.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Feb. 9.—J. Matthew Aubrey, of Chicago, the scapegoat son-in-law of Chief Justice Fuller, who eloped six years ago from Chicago with Pauline Fuller and married her in Milwaukee, is in jail here for defrauding a hotel-keeper. When he was arrested he declared that he was a brother of the son-in law of Fuller. The police have received a letter from Chicago which told his real identity. When questioned he admitted the truth to the officers. His father is General Western Agent for the Merchant's Fast Freight line at Chicago, and is expected here to help him out of the scrape.

American Trade Report.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: For a whole week the confident expectation of the sale of bonds has kept back exports of gold. How to arrest the gold outgoing is a problem which an issue of bonds may possibly solve. In other respects the domestic money market is decidedly encouraging. The condition of industries if not definitely better, at least presents some points of encouragement. Failures for the past week have been 281 in the United States against 365 last year.

A Triple Tragedy.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 9.—At Hillsboro station H. E. Dent, a veteran of the civil war, 50 years old, shot Mrs. John Mueller and her daughter, Mrs. Manning, and then killed himself. He had paid the cost of divorce proceedings for Mrs. Manning in consideration of her promise to marry him. She refused, and in a quarrel in which Mrs. Mueller took her daughter's part he committed the deed. Both women will recover.

Three Drowned in Lake Michigan.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 9.—Three men from the Intake crib perished in Lake Michigan on Thursday night. They had just returned to the crib from shore with a load of provisions, and while they were landing the boat was washed away with one of the men. Two of his companions tore doors from the crib and were also swept away on these in a heroic effort to save their companion.

Japs Marching on Chee Foo.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—The European edition of the New York Herald publishes a despatch dated at Chee Foo yesterday. Its correspondent says that the Chinese Admiral Ting is holding out at Wei-Hai-Wei with what is left of his squadron and that the majority of the Japanese troops are advancing upon Chee Foo.

Much of life's misery is due to indigestion; for who can be happy with a pain in his stomach? As a corrective and strengthener of the alimentary organs, Ayer's Pills are invaluable, their use being always attended with marked benefit.

Prepare for spring by using Burdock Blood Bitters to cleanse the system and tone the body to vigorous health. Its tonic purifying regulating work makes B. B. B. the greatest remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

IN IMPERIAL CIRCLES

Position of the Ministry in Impending Issues a Precarious One.

AMENDMENTS TO THE ADDRESS

Redmond and Labouchere Each Have Motions Which May Prove Embarrassing—Mr. Creamer Talks of the Prospects of International Arbitration.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—The precarious position in which the Government is placed was strikingly illustrated in the House of Commons on Thursday night, when the whips warned the leaders on each side that if a division were then taken the Government would certainly be defeated. The Conservatives could rely upon a majority of two against all the votes that could be mustered on the Ministerial side, but no vote was taken. The vacillation of the Unionist leaders has since been explained by themselves as having been based upon the unwillingness to seize an ungenerous advantage of their adversaries. This inaction enabled the Liberal whips to put the screws on so effectually as to present the feeble majority upon which the Government continues to exist, but the presence of even this majority cannot, of course, be relied upon.

The amendment to the address in reply to the Queen's speech, demanding an immediate dissolution of Parliament which Mr. Redmond has announced that he will introduce to-day, certainly cannot make the situation of the Liberals any worse than it is, nor can it very well increase the strain which falls largely upon the Liberal whips, who are obliged to keep constantly on the alert to prevent a surprise and defeat of the Government.

The amendment which Mr. Chamberlain has announced his intention of submitting, setting forth that it is contrary to public interest that the time of Parliament should be occupied by the discussion of measures, which, according to the ministers' own statements, there is no prospect of passing, while proposals involving great constitutional changes have been announced, upon which the judgment of Parliament should be taken without delay, will also be very likely to prove a bombshell in the political camp.

Mr. Labouchere, too, has given notice that he will introduce a motion to deprive the House of Lords of power to vote upon a bill that has twice been passed by the House of Commons, but this motion will not be debated until it gets a place through a ballot for the consideration of motions of private members.

Lord Randolph's Successor.

Mr. Fardell, Conservative, was elected to the House of Commons for Paddington to fill the seat made vacant by the death of Lord Randolph Churchill. He was not opposed.

Prospects of Arbitration.

Mr. Wm. R. Creamer, M.P., secretary to the International Arbitration League, who has just returned from the United States, said in an interview: "I am confident that an arbitration treaty will speedily be ratified. I found no seditious opposition to it in Washington and the best men in Congress are hearty supporters of it. In England it is probable that Parliament will not be consulted in the matter. The power of the crown to make treaties without the consent of Parliament is not without dangers, but in this instance it would be put to a purpose which would be truly beneficial. Still, if a general election supervene, and Lord Salisbury is returned to power, the treaty might fall to the ground. Lord Salisbury is so little in sympathy with the matter that when the original resolution was passed by the American Congress it was not even presented to Parliament. If Lord Rosebery continued in power the treaty is safe. Of course, if the final form of the treaty continues any vote of public money it must be referred to Parliament."

Smalley on the Situation.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Mr. G. W. Smalley cables from London to the Tribune.

Twelve majority. That is the figure by which the ministry Friday night escaped defeat in the House of Commons. When Mr. Gladstone took office his majority was 35. How long it will be a majority at all is the question which occupies all political minds.

The session opened ominously. The Queen's speech is perhaps the most laconic on record; a speech of reserves, of extreme caution; a deliberate effort to say as little as possible and to commit the ministry to nothing at all beyond good intents. It is a bundle of compromises, the offsprings of a cabinet divided against itself and on some vital questions split hopelessly and irreconcilably into two nearly equal sections.

Lord Salisbury remarked in the House of Lords that Queen's speeches usually promised efficiency and economy in the estimates but this speech promises neither. "I can only construe that curious omission by supposing that the party for economy and the party of efficiency were equally balanced in the Cabinet and that after a lengthened conflict they determined to say nothing about either efficiency or economy."

On Monday or Tuesday will come Mr. Chamberlain's resolution that the House ought to have an opportunity of voting on the ministerial House of Lords' programme without delay. It may not be carried. But party disintegration proceeds apace. The two sections of the McCarthyites are more hostile than ever. The Dillonites and Healyites are at open war. How long will they act or vote together? Note that another Liberal member of Parliament, Mr. Clement Higgins, a well-known Q. C., has severed his connection with the party. He is a good Liberal and even Radical, but he writes that he cannot support the Government in its "agressive policy against the House of Lords" and that no more party whips need be sent to him. This reduces their majority in the House of Commons to 13 almost, which again may be reduced at a critical moment by the abstention of such independent Liberals as Messrs. McKwan and Wallace and perhaps others.

Will Settle it With Swords.

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Gen. Billot, to whom was left the decision of the controversy between Marcel Canrobert, son of the late Marshal, and Deputy Hubbard, has decided that M. Canrobert will be justified in fighting a duel with swords with M. Hubbard as soon as the latter recovers from his present sickness. The trouble arose from Hubbard's criticisms in the Chamber of Deputies of Marshal Canrobert during the debate on the proposed grant for a state funeral and Hubbard's seconds decided to leave the question as to whether Hubbard had exceeded his rights as a member of the Chamber to the arbitration of Gen. Billot.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW.

Officers for the Ensuing Year—Close of the Convention.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 11.—The convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew opened on Saturday with corporate communion, at which the Lord Bishop of Huron was the celebrant. Afterwards the members assembled at the town hall for business, when questions of importance to the brotherhood were taken up and discussed.

At the final business session, R. V. R. Rogers, Q.C., Kingston, chairman of the Committee of Resolutions, presented the committee's report. Among the resolutions passed was one recommending the holding of the next annual convention at Montreal in the fall of 1896, and also recommending provincial conventions for the coming autumn. W. P. Robinson, Woodstock, presented the report of the Committee on Representation, showing that 153 delegates representing 58 chapters had been present.

T. R. Clougher, chairman of the Nominating Committee, presented the report recommending the following for the council: N. Ferrar Davidson, C. B. Watts, T. R. Clough, R. Montgomery, Spencer Waugh, R. B. Street, J. C. Catto and L. H. Baldwin, Toronto; A. B. Wiswell, Halifax; H. C. Tilley, St. John, N.B.; W. Wells, Montreal; John F. Orde, Ottawa; R. Vashon Rogers, Q.C., Kingston; W. P. Sweatman, Winnipeg; C. F. Yates, Vancouver; Wm. Baker, Niagara Falls; and W. P. Robinson, Woodstock, and they were accordingly elected at the meeting of the new council held subsequently. N. Ferrar Davidson was elected president; R. Vashon Rogers, Q.C., 1st vice-president; A. R. Wiswell, 2nd vice-president; Spencer Waugh, secretary; and R. O. Montgomery, treasurer.

Yesterday the annual sermon was preached by Bishop Baldwin. He took as his text from Romans: "A Servant of Christ Jesus." In the afternoon fully one thousand men assembled in the Opera House at the mass meeting for men. At the final service, Rev. G. G. McKenzie, Brantford and Rev. J. C. Davidson delivered the closing sermons. The farewell service was conducted by the rector, Rev. J. C. Farthing, and was most solemn and impressive. Farewell addresses were given, at the close of which the delegates departed.

The convention, besides being more largely attended than any other previous, was also marked by greater enthusiasm and spirituality among delegates. As traffic is almost suspended here the delegates will not be able to get home for some days.

An Outlaw's Tragic Death.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Feb. 11.—The body of Jim French, the outlaw, has been lying in the porch of the United States jail. The body lies in a cheap coffin and in the bloody clothing in which the man was killed. Tom French, a brother of the dead man, declares he will kill the man who killed Jim, whoever he is and whenever he sees him. As yet there is doubt as to the identity of the man who did the job.

An Engineer Killed.

LEROY, N. Y., Feb. 11.—Two engines on the Lehigh Valley, drawing a private car containing Supt. Beach and train master Van Allan of Buffalo struck a snow drift near this station Saturday evening. Both engines were derailed; the leader toppled over on its side and crushed to death engineer Edward Duryea of Buffalo.

Planta Admits His Offence.

NANAIMO, B.C., Feb. 9.—Ex-Police Magistrate Joseph P. Planta is now an inmate of the provincial jail and awaiting trial, charged with the misappropriation of $1,200, funds belonging to the estate of the late Fred Humkey, of which he was official administrator. Planta admits his offence. Several other charges of a similar nature, involving large amounts, will be proceeded with later.

Caught in a Driving Wheel.

COBOURG, Ont., Feb. 9.—A serious accident occurred here last evening. Richard Lund, blacksmith, employed at the Crossen Car Works was caught in the shafting of the main drive wheel and had his left foot nearly severed from the leg and amputation was necessary. The right foot is badly crushed, several ribs broken and he is otherwise seriously injured.

Dr. von Palitschek Acquitted.

VIENNA, Feb. 9.—Dr. Anton von Palitschek was tried yesterday on the charge of having embezzled money entrusted to him when he was Austrian consul in New York. To the great satisfaction of his many friends here, he was found innocent and was acquitted.

The Mexican-Guatemalan Trouble.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 9.—A special to the Chronicle from the city of Mexico says: First Lieut. Porfilo Diaz, son of President Diaz, has been promoted to the position of second captain in the Mexican army. Five thousand more Guatemalan troops have just arrived on the frontier.

All Night in the Blizzard.

QUEBEC, Feb. 11.—During Friday's blizzard an old man named Bussiere, a milkman, from Little River, was found almost frozen to death under his horse, near Loretta, six miles from this city. The old man is 70 years of age. His horse was blinded by the blizzard, and unable to proceed on its way. The animal broke away from the sleigh, but had only proceeded a short distance when it became stuck hard and fast in a snow bank. Bussier reached the horse and sheltered himself under it. When found the unfortunate old man was in an almost dying condition. He will probably die.

North Grey Conservatives.

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 11.—The adjourned Conservative convention of north riding of Grey met here Saturday to select a candidate for the next election to the House of Commons. Mr. James Masson was declared the choice of the convention over Mr. W. A. McLean. On motion of the latter the nomination was made unanimous.

Went Down With All Hands.

HALIFAX, Feb. 11.—A despatch received from Liverpool states that an American schooner, supposed to be the Clara T. Friend, was totally wrecked near there and her entire crew drowned. Already seven bodies have been washed ashore. No more particulars are available.

Doctors recommend Norway Pine Syrup because it is the best cure for coughs and colds. Price 25c. at druggists.

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.
We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning
We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

CHARLTON' SIDE OF IT

He Replies to the Charges That He Lacks Patriotism.

PATERSON ATTACKS THE N. P.

Mr. Charlton's Constituents Addressed by these Gentlemen—The Policy of the Administration Criticised and Dr. Montague's Recent Remarks Replied to.

TILSONBURG, Ont., Feb. 12.—A magnificent reception was given to Messrs. Charlton and Paterson on the occasion of their visit to Tilsonburg last evening. The hall was packed, a large number of the audience being ladies. The platform was beautifully decorated, and conspicuous among the mottoes were those hung over the Union Jack, "The old flag, but a new policy," "Britain leads the world," and "Liberals follow not the Britain of 1837, but the enlightened Britain of to-day."

Mr. Charlton was the first speaker and confined himself chiefly to an answer to the charges made against his loyalty to Canadian interests in the matter of securing the admission of free lumber to the United States. These charges were made by Dr. Montague in a recent visit to Tilsonburg. Mr. Charlton, in a lucid manner, detailed the whole circumstance and in trenchant style made it clear to his audience that he had been actuated solely by the best interests of Canada, and pointed out that the Government had been glad to avail itself of the advantage secured. The manner in which the speech was received clearly indicated that Mr. Charlton stands firm in the affections of his constituents as an able and honest Canadian patriot. In a few pointed sentences he showed how the public burdens had been increased by such expenditures as that of the Tay canal.

Mr. Paterson, by his happy introduction, at once secured the attention of the audience, a large number of whom were Conservatives. In elegant terms he pictured the greatness and magnificent possibilities of the Dominion and proceeded to ask why with all this magnificent heritage the population of the country had not advanced, when the Government had spent millions to hire people to come and live in the country. He maintained that all that such a country needs to increase its population and wealth is fair dealing between man and man, and freedom from all taxation beyond the actual needs of the Government. With fine humor he pointed out that if the production of the sugar industry had been the cause of the reduction in price, by the same method of reasoning it could be shown that to protection was also due the fall in wheat from $1.00 to 60 cents per bushel. He contrasted the policies of the two parties and spoke of Dr. Montague's claim that the Conservatives followed the example of Great Britain in her trade policy, and made a ringing appeal to follow, not the England of the dark ages, but the England of to day. Dealing with the assertion that the N. P. had made him rich and increased his business he asked his audience if it had made them rich, if it had increased the value of farms, and stated that a law that makes one man rich and impoverishes another should be wiped from the statutes of the country.

Passing to the question of loyalty Mr. Paterson said we had reason to doubt the man who is prating of his loyalty and honesty and said that the true loyalist is the man who most fully emulates the spirit that has made the name of Britain honored in the world to-day. In eloquent words he asked if a hostile tariff against Britain is loyal and if such measures as the gerrymander and franchise acts, by which the hands of opponents are tied behind their backs, are in accord with the principles of British fair play. Things had been done in this regard, he said, by the party in power which no decent Englishman would have done.

Mr. Charlton in answer to a question stated the position of the Liberal party and himself on the question of prohibition. A resolution moved by Mr. W. Elliott, a prominent farmer of Dearham, and seconded by G. W. Hare, police magistrate, expressing confidence in Wilfrid Laurier and Messrs. Charlton and Paterson, was carried with applause. The meeting was closed by the playing of God Save the Queen by the band and by hearty cheers for the speakers of the evening.

Brooklyn Strikers Eat Crow.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 12.—Master Workman Connelly, of D. A. 75, K. of L., said yesterday the trolley strikers desire to return to work and will do so if President Lewis of the Brooklyn Heights Railway Company, will take them back in a body. The men are willing to waive all demands previously made. President Lewis declares he will not discharge competent non-union men to make place for the strikers, but he is willing to take back former employes to fill vacant places.

LA GASCOGNE IS SAFE

The Arrival of the Boat Which Has Caused So Great Anxiety.

DELAYED BY A BROKEN PISTON

The News of Her Safe Arrival Causes Great Rejoicing in the French Colony of New York—She Arrives at New York Eight Days Overdue.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—La Gascogne is safe. The big French liner, eight days overdue, dropped anchor at the bar just before midnight, all well on board, and a sigh of relief goes up from two continents. The delay was due to a broken piston rod and to the terrific gales which have swept the North Atlantic for the past week or more and brought disaster to many a staunch craft. Capt. Baudelon and the officers and crew of La Gascogne brought the ship and passengers through the gales and made port without help.

The news that La Gascogne had been sighted was received amid the greatest excitement at the office of the French line in Bowling Green. The office was crowded with anxious inquirers who have relatives and friends on board the steamship. They had been standing around with pale faces expecting at any moment to hear the worst. When the word came that the ship was safe, for a moment a stillness reigned which was almost painful in its intensity. Agent Forget for a moment was rendered speechless. Then he became wildly hilarious. He shouted, ran here and there grasping the hands of this one and that one and fairly jumped up and down in the excitement of the moment. Then he put on his coat and started for the French line pier at the foot of Morton street, where a tug had been in readiness for days to take him to meet La Gascogne.

La Gascogne left Havre on the morning of January 26, under command of a French naval officer, Capt. Baudeton, and with 20 passengers in the first cabin, 14 in the second and 118 in the steerage. If she had made her ordinary time, she would have reached New York a week ago last Saturday evening or on Sunday at the latest, but on account of the prevailing storm at sea she was not really expected until Monday.

On Wednesday considerable alarm was expressed and Agent Forget, who had before that time held that the staunch ocean greyhound had simply been delayed by head winds, said some part of her machinery might have given way.

At no place in New York was the news of the Gascognes arrival hailed with as much joy as at the Hotel Martin, corner University place and Ninth street. For days all the prominent Frenchmen of New York, had been gathering at this popular French resort for news. The Cafe was crowded late when the United Press bulletin stating that the vessel was safe was flashed over the wire. Proprietor Martin rushed in, his face aglow with excitement: "La Gascogne est arrive."

"Mon Dieu elle est arrive enfin" came in chorus from the assembled party.

Such a scene of uncontrolled delight as ensued has seldom been seen in New York. Men who had relatives or near friends aboard cried for joy. Only Frenchmen could have expressed extreme happiness as they did. With tears in their eyes and faces fairly beaming with joy they hugged each other passionately.

Three times before La Gascogne has figured in newspaper articles on account of exciting circumstances. On Sunday morning, May 25, 1890, while bound for Havre with 444 souls aboard, she was proceeding at reduced speed because of a fog which had for three days prevented any reckoning. Capt. Santelli, who was in command then, knew only that he was somewhere in the vicinity of the Sicily Islands. He was himself upon the bridge, where he had been for hours, peering anxiously into the fog and keeping a sharp eye on the lookouts in the bow. Suddenly the captain sprang to the electric dial which communicates instructions to the engineer and with almost incredible quickness gave the order to reverse the engines. At the same time he threw the ship's helm hard aport. Right in front of the steamer and within a stone's throw of her towering prow was a small black rock, the polished surface of which was but a few feet above the sea.

Small as it was in comparison with the ship's mighty bulk it, or a companion rock in the ledge it helped to form, had been the means of sending the steamer Schiller to the bottom several years before, drowning hundreds of her passengers. La Gascogue did not escape the almost hidden foe without injury. Her port side scraped the rock and a rent was made below the water line through which the sea poured in. The cargo was shifted to starboard sufficiently to admit of repairing the leak. The hole fortunately was not large and the ship, after a few hours delay, was able to proceed slowly to Havre. Had the fog not lifted momentarily at the instant it did the rock could not have been seen in time. The ledge is known as Bishop's Island.

What agitated Capt. Santelli more at the time than the narrowness of the escape was the woeful miscalculation in his reckoning. La Gascogne should have been miles further south than she was and the captain subsequently declared that as an extra precaution in the fog he had laid the vessel's course two points further away from Bishop's Island than usual: "I can only account for the extraordinary deviation by assuming that she was borne north by some unknown currents," he said.

On October 26th, 1891, La Gascogne came into New York harbor salt-incrusted to the top of her funnels. She had been in the teeth of a hurricane for four days, and one steerage passenger, Pionto Hacaggi, died of fright.

On May 4, 1893, La Gascogne grounded on a shoal below the South West Pit, but got off without assistance and without injury.

SWEPT BY A HURRICANE

Immense Damage to the Fishing Settlements in Cape Breton.

WORST STORM EVER KNOWN

Waves, Mountains High, Carry Wharves and Buildings Into the Sea—Some of the Companies Ruined—The Beach at Ingonish Swept Clean.

INGONISH, C. B., Feb. 12.—The easterly gale commenced here Monday night, the 4th inst., increasing to a hurricane from seven Tuesday morning until 4 p. m. with blinding snow squalls, causing one of the worst storms ever known by our oldest citizens. The sea ran mountains high and the light drift ice or lolly in some cases did the most destruction, whilst in other cases it formed a wall of protection and thus saved considerable property.

At New Haven, McLeod Bros.' establishment was nearly all swept away, including their fish stores, six hundred quintals codfish, lobster factory and gear, and large fish flakes and extensive new wharves built last spring. Their total loss is estimated at $10,000. At Middlehead, McDonald's, Doyle's, Burke's, Donovan's and Hine's wharves and buildings are gone clean.

At South Bay there is a total loss of all property, goods and fish; every wharf, every establishment with contents, and every boat were washed off the beach into the harbor. There were four fishing establishments on this beach, three of which are owned at Halifax and were in use by tenants. One only, Henry Cann's, was owned here. He lost with his property 120 quintals codfish. The other firms were Burke & McPherson, J. D. Campbell and Mr. Meagher. The former lost $900 worth of stock, chiefly staples, and 180 quintals codfish; Campbell lost 150 quintals codfish; Meagher lost over 600 quintals codfish and at least $3,000 worth of stock besides the property. McKay & Co., lumbermen, lost one thousand logs valued at over $2,000. The loss and damage to boats is also considerable.

Only two families live on this beach, Miss Curtis and Mr. Guthro. They were rescued with difficulty early on Tuesday forenoon, but not before the sea had broken their houses, which were afterwards demolished. They saved nothing, but what they stood in. They lose their winter's provisions, household furniture and effects.

The beach presents a sad and dilapidated appearance. About a mile of telegraph wire and poles are among the wreckage. No communication west since Monday until to-day.

Burke & McPherson is a new firm who started late in June last and did well throughout the season, and had bright prospects for the coming summer, but are now left penniless in a twinkling, with not even sufficient provisions for themselves for the remainder of the winter.

At Green Cove there is a great loss of boats and fish houses. Donald Smith's wharf and houses are also gone.

Devastation and ruin is the dismal result and how any of the fish firms escaped is a miracle. Never has there been such damage on this coast. The roads are blocked and no mail from the west has been received since the 2nd inst.

VICTIMS OF THE WRECK.

The Condition of Monahan and Conductor Mannering Considered Critical.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—J. S. Monahan, who was so badly injured in the Grand Trunk wreck at Weston, is now dying at St. Michael's Hospital. The best surgeons in Toronto have been attending him, but despite all their efforts it is hardly likely that Monahan will live through the night.

Charles Mannering, engineer on the mail train, is still in a critical condition at the General Hospital. His constitution is strong, however, and he may pull through.

Conductor George Riley, who was in the smash on the Midland, has his arm in splints at the General Hospital and is very severely bruised about the head and body. His condition, however, is not dangerous.

Charles Moore, the Midland railway brakesman, is in a critical state. He is suffering from concussion of the brain, and is also badly scalded. It is doubtful if he will recover.

A Crash at Tilsonburg.

TILSONBURG, Ont., Feb. 12.—On Saturday morning the B. and T. train, in charge of Conductor Miller and Engineer Pitt, got stuck in a snow drift while backing to the Junction. The engineer on the air line express unhooked and came down to assist. Thinking the snow was deeper than it really was, the engineer put on too much steam and ran into Pitt's train. The collision telescoped the rear coach and damaged the engine, so that both trains were delayed until noon. The only person who was in any way hurt was the roadmaster, who was thrown off by the shock and sustained some slight injuries.

Counterfeiters Arrested in Ingersoll.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Feb. 12.—Two men, John Palmer and Adam Ross, both of Ingersoll, have been arrested here for making counterfeit money. The practice has been going for some time and several of the coins have been passed. Palmer's house was searched after the arrest and the moulds and material from which the bogus coin were made were found. They were arraigned before the police magistrate yesterday morning and pleaded "not guilty." They were remanded until next Friday. More arrests will likely be made.

PROMISE AND FULFILMENT.

"The leaders of the Conservative party did not hesitate to declare to the country in 1878 that a man was unworthy the name of a statesman who could not secure to the nation prosperity during periods of commercial distress. Sir Charles Tupper declared that no credit was due to a public man for prosperity in his own country when other States were prosperous. The public man who could not secure prosperity to the people of his own country in a period of depression was as helpless as a fly on a wheel; and these gentlemen said: "Give us the reins of government and we will show you that this can be done." This country has the folly to trust them, and in 1880, when there was a general revival of trade, in which Canada shared, these gentlemen boasted that they were the authors of that revival. I deny it; they had as little to do with it as they had with the trade winds, or with the amount of rainfall for the year. These men, who boasted of superior wisdom, by which they could remove commercial depression as if by magic, have been unable to prevent its return. These men, who boasted that it was their legislation that added 50 cents a bushel to the price of wheat, and half of this sum to the price of barley, have not been able to prevent them falling off 50 per cent. below the prices paid at the time they took office. According to their own contention, they alone are responsible for all the evils which the Canadian people at this moment are called upon to endure."—Hon. David Mills, at Bothwell.

CAVANVILLE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Sabbath School Convention — Lecture by Rev. Mr. Kilgour.

The past week was an eventful one in our usually quiet village, as we have had a convention and also a lecture, to both of which large gatherings assembled. On Tuesday the 5th inst. the Sabbath school convention for the township of Cavan was held in the Methodist church here, and notwithstanding the intense cold, the church was well filled at both afternoon and evening sessions. The gentlemen whose names were on the programme were all present, and well prepared with the subjects assigned them. The retiring president, Mr. H. Staples, called for reports from the schools which were nearly all responded to and were very encouraging. The newly elected president, Mr. Latmer, of Centreville, then took the chair. An excellent paper was read by Mr. McLean, of Mount Pleasant, on "How may we improve Sunday school work in our township." An eloquent address was delivered by Rev. A. L. Brown, of South Cavan, on the subject, "How to win our scholars to Christ," which was followed by a blackboard exercise by Mr. R. W. Clarke, of Millbrook, which was interesting and instructive. Animated discussions followed the reading of the papers in which Rev. Messrs. Kilgour and McKee. Dr. Mark and others participated at the evening session. Excellent addresses were given by Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Millbrook, and Rev. T. S. McKee, of Fraserville. A good paper was also read by W. S. Given, of the Millbrook Reporter, on the subject "The Teacher's Influence." That so many came out to attend this convention from all parts of the township in spite of the cold and the pitchholes, and the enthusiasm shown throughout the proceedings of the convention, is a significant fact, and is a strong proof of the growing interest taken in Sunday School work.

On Thursday evening, the 7th inst, a large intelligent and attentive audience assembled in the church to hear the lecture by the pastor, Rev. J. Kilgour, on "The Strange and Wonderful in and Around Human Nature." After devotional exercises the chair was taken by Samuel Staples, Esq. The choir gave a fine selection which was well received, after which the lecturer of the evening came forward and held the attention of the audience for over two hours, while he discoursed on the various phenomena embraced in his subject, giving numerous incidents and illustrations. Some of the incidents related were wonderful indeed. Questions were sent in by the audience and answers given as far as time would permit. At the close of the lecture a very hearty vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer for his instructive and entertaining lecture, which was listened to with attention throughout. The proceeds amounted to twenty dollars clear.

GOOD EVIDENCE.

That a Sure Cure has Been Found for Rheumatism—Glad News for All.

COLLINGWOOD, Feb. 13.—Rheumatism has proved one of the greatest banes of humanity, and doctors have been unable to find any means of curing the disease although many of them have devoted years of patient study to the subject. They have decided that rheumatism is due to excess of uric acid in the blood, and this excess is due to imperfect working of the kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been proved a perfect cure for rheumatism. The case of Valentine Fisher, who was a cripple from the disease for years, and who was cured by these pills, is good evidence of this.

OUR YOUNG GIRLS

OVER-STUDY AND TOO RAPID GROWTH OFTEN PROMOTE DISEASE.

We See Sallow and Bloodless Faces and Attenuated and Lank Bodies.

Mothers Not Sufficiently on the Alert to Guide and Counsel Their Daughters.

Paine's Celery Compound the Great Brain Food and Flesh-Builder for all Young Girls.

Over-study in school and in the home, confinement for hours each day in badly ventilated buildings, and a too rapid growth of body, very often promote disease and suffering. Thousands of young girls are suffering to-day. They may be seen going to and coming from school. Their sallow, bloodless faces, their attenuated or lank forms indicate disease.

Mothers are to blame for the unhappy and dangerous condition of their girls. They strongly encourage their daughters in one direction—cramming the brain—but neglect to warn them of the rocks and quicksands on which many precious lives are wrecked. The results are often terrible. Headache, nervous prostration, debility, irregularities of the system, dyspepsia, liver troubles and other forms of disease, bring quite a number of young girls to the grave every year.

Wise and prudent mothers, when any symptoms of danger assail their girls, invariably use that great brain food and flesh-builder, Paine's Celery Compound. This wonderful medicine enriches the blood and gives it a free and healthy circulation; it braces the nerves, gives physical strength, promotes good digestion, and gives sweet natural sleep.

No other medicine in the world can give the satisfactory results that flow from the use of Paine's Celery Compound. It should be the chosen medicine for every young girl who is delicate, weak and sickly. Mrs. A. R. Stinchcombe, 19 William street, London, Ont., writes as follows:—

DEAR SIRS,—I think it is my duty to write you for the benefit of all who have delicate children, and to make known what Paine's Celery Compound has done for my girl. She has been delicate all her life. I have tried many medicines, and have had her under allopathic and homœopathic treatment, with but little benefit. Almost in despair, and as a last resort, I tried Paine's Celery Compound, and after using three bottles, she is now perfectly well and strong. I have also used your medicine myself for complications arising from overwork and loss of rest, and am greatly benefitted thereby. I would strongly urge all who are in any way afflicted to do as I have done. "try Paine's Celery Compound," and be convinced of its wonderful curing power.

Crops in Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 12.—The Michigan crop report for February shows that in reply to the question: "Has wheat during January suffered injury from any cause?" 294 correspondents answer yes and 567 answer no. Farmers marketed 1,061,838 bushels of wheat in January and 7,296,941 bushels from August 1 to January 30, which is 1,932,971 bushels less than reported marketed in the same months last year. The condition of the live stock averages from 98 to 97.

Snow Blockade in Ireland.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 12.—The steamer Servia, which sailed from Liverpool for New York, on Saturday, is detained here in consequence of the non-arrival of the mail. The mail train is snowed at Charleville, twenty-two miles south of Limerick, and a large force of men is endeavoring to clear the tracks to enable it to proceed. A number of steamers are taking refuge from the storms here.

Feared to Face Prosecution.

Fayetteville, Ark. Feb. 12.—J. L. Dickson, formerly cashier of the Merroy Banking Company of this city, committed suicide by taking poison. Dickson had recently been discharged from the bank and an investigation of his accounts showed that he was a defaulter to the extent of $21,000. Fear of prosecution drove him to suicide.

NEW GOODS
NEW LEAF
1895
On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.
Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.
Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will let off cheap.

Almost a Hopeless Case.

A Terrible Cough. No Rest Night nor Day. Given up by Doctors.

A LIFE SAVED

BY TAKING

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Several years ago, I caught a severe cold, attended with a terrible cough that allowed me no rest, either day or night. The doctors, after working over me to the best of their ability, pronounced my case hopeless, and said they could do no more for me. A friend, learning of my trouble, sent me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which I began to take, and very soon I was greatly relieved. By the time I had used the whole bottle, I was completely cured. I have never had much of a cough since that time, and I firmly believe that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life."—W. H. TAX RIOTS IN ITALY.

The Trouble Suppressed by Troops—Disastrous Earthquake Shocks.

ROME, Feb. 12.—Several shocks of earthquake were felt in the province of Reggio de Calabria and Sicily yesterday. The people of the town of Palimi fled to the fields and several houses collapsed in the villages of Santanna.

A serious riot occurred in the village of Acerra growing out of the resistance of the people to the grain tax. The populace set fire to the tax offices which were destroyed and endeavored to throw from the track the Naples express as it passed through the town. The troops were called out and in their collision with the rioters a number were wounded on both sides.

Shipwrecked Seamen Rescued.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—The Wilson line steamer Francisco, Capt. Janking, which arrived from Hull, had on board nine shipwrecked seamen. On Sunday a four-masted schooner was sighted showing signals of distress. The sea was making a clean beach over the vessel washing her fore and aft. The steam pumps were working but apparently failed to free the vessel as she became more water-logged every moment. After standing by for some time, a good position was secured to windward of the wreck and the starboard life boat was successfully launched in charge of the chief officer with seven sailors as a crew. The captain and crew of the schooner jumped from the stern of the vessel and were quickly hauled into the boat. The vessel proved to be the four-master schooner George A. McFadden of Bath, Me.

Miners Knights of Labor in Session.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 12.—The miners' Knights of Labor convention began yesterday in Wirthwain's hall with 40 delegates in attendance. Dr. McBride occupied all the forenoon in making the report for the excluded delegates and denounced Sovereign and Hayes in savage terms. The much-talked-of seceders' conference, at which it was expected a new organization in opposition to Sovereign and Hayes would be launched, has proved a fizzle. Only five delegates outside of the miners are here. The miners' delegates are giving no encouragement, and their scheme to start a new organization with Powderly at the head will fall flat. The miners say they have had enough of dual organization.

A Notorious Yankee Bunco Man.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—"Doc" Minchin who was arrested here yesterday for a "green-goods" swindle is wanted in Utica, N. Y. for helping Tom O'Brien, the "king of Bunco steerers" to escape from the United States. Minchin says O'Brain is in Buenos Ayres. The Utica police department advised the local authorities yesterday of the charge against the prisoner. On his way to prison at Albany to serve a ten year sentence for bunco steering, O'Brien escaped and the police were convinced that Minchin had a hand in the affair. He accompanied the fugitive to Havre where O'Brien was arrested and made a second escape. Minchin says he returned to the United States from Argentine a month ago.

Picked Up a Shipwrecked Crew.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Pilot Thomas Jackson, who brought the steamship Witzekind into port, brought news about the rescue of the crew of a shipwrecked schooner off Nantucket. The rescue was made by Pilot boat No. 1, the America, which was cruising off the Rhode Island coast, 200 miles from this port. The America picked up the crew of ten men from the shipwrecked schooner while they were adrift in an open boat. The rescued men were in a terrible condition, being nearly frozen.

FIRE AT PORT HOPE.

Trinity College School Burned to the Ground—Fully Insured.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 11.—Fire broke out in Trinity College school at 11.30 on Saturday night. The fire originated in the room of Prof. Watson by a coal falling from a stove. Mr. Watson had left his apartment only 15 minutes when he was alarmed by the smell of smoke and rushing back he found his room in a blaze. It is thought that the lamp in the room exploded as soon as the blaze reached it and increased the volume of the flames. The fire had gained such headway that the efforts of the masters could not check the progress of the flames. The occupants, including one hundred and fifty boys and twenty-five masters and attendants were soon aroused, and escaped with very little clothing. Most of their trunks were carried out, but the loss to personal property is considerable. Mr. Watson lost his personal effects on which there was no insurance. The boys were taken to the hotels and to the residences of citizens. The school was insured for $45,000. The insurance was divided between the following companies: Royal, England, Liverpool and London and Globe and Caledonian. There was an insurance of $16,000 on contents of building and chapel. The total loss is estimated at over $60,000. The work of the school will be continued without interruption, the St. Lawrence hall having been secured for this purpose, and the school building will be immediately rebuilt. Thanks to the efforts of firemen and citizens Dr. Bethune's handsome residence on the school grounds was saved from the flames.

NEWFOUNDLAND AFFAIRS.

Awaiting the Return of the Mission to Negotiate Terms of Union.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Feb. 11.—A lull in political matters is expected now in consequence of the adjournment of the legislature. The bye-elections will occur about March 20. There will probably be no contest except in the Harbor Grace district.

On the reassembling of the Legislature resolutions respecting confederation are likely to be introduced authorising a delegation to be sent to Canada to discuss terms of union. On the return of the delegation, provided its mission has been successful, the resolutions will be submitted to a plebiscite, and on the result of which vote future action will be taken. If favorable, a confederation union will be brought about as speedily as possible, but if against it then a crown colony is the only apparent alternative.

The Falcon relief fund, amounting to $430 in cash, besides considerable clothing, all contributed in the United States, has been distributed among the relatives of the Falcon's crew of 15. The families receive from $30 to $40 each, according to their circumstances, besides large packages of clothing.

A Famous Highland Chief Dead.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Norman MacLeod, Chief of the Clan MacLeod, and indeed one of the last of the great highland chieftains, died last week in Paris. He was the twenty-second chief of that name and for no less than sixty years he administered, through every variety of fortune, one of the few great highland properties which still remain in the possession of the ancient highland families. He lived in early life in Dunvegan Castle, Isle of Skye, and no man in Scotland was more beloved among the followers, who delighted to do him honor in the ancient Scotch fashion.

Sir Adolphe Shows Activity.

QUEBEC, Feb. 11.—It is stated on good authority that Sir A. P. Caron will return to Quebec in a few days, orders having been given to get ready his private apartments in the militia office opposite the Court House. The militia office is Sir A. P. Caron's headquarters in election time It is said that he will be a candidate in the county of Levis at the next elections against Dr. Guay, the present member.

A Whole Family Cremated.

ARDMORE, Feb. 1k., 11.—About 18 miles south of here a house occupied by a farmer named Tucker caught fire and owing to the blizzard which prevailed it burned so quickly that Tucker, his wife and children were cremated in the burning building. Later it was learned that suspicion of foul play existed. It was thought perhaps the family was murdered and then robbed.

The Menial's Retort.

The Eskimo housewife was shouting up the back stairs.

"Mary," she cried, "it's time you were getting breakfast."

The hired girl snorted petulantly.

"You make me weary," she exclaimed, "calling me before February every morning."

Such is life in 66 degrees 33 minutes north latitude.

Woman's Advance in Japan.

Twenty years ago the persons of the Emperor and Empress of Japan were sacred; they were seen by no one save high court officials, and even to these the Empress' face must be veiled. The Empress now visits the free hospital of Tokio and talks or gives presents to the patients as freely as in any western land.

Convincing Mothers

That Lactated Food is the Baby's Best Nourishment.

When mothers take the trouble to test Lactated Food they are soon convinced that it is far ahead of all other prepared foods as a nourisher and life giver for the baby.

The manufacturers of Lactated Food are anxious that every mother in Canada should give their food a trial; and, in order to have this done, they offer to send free of charge, by mail a full-sized tin. It is earnestly hoped that all mothers who have babies and who have not given Lactated Food a test, will send in their names and addresses to the Wells & Richardson Co., Mountain St., Montreal.

This Lactated Food is a source of life, health and strength for weak and sickly babies, and the free tin offered to mothers may be the means of saving some little life.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 11, 1895.

The grain market is fairly active and prices show little change. Wheat is quoted at 61 to 62c. white, 61 to 62c. red and 58 1-2 to 59 1-2c. goose. Barley is steady at 46 to 47c. for No. 1 and 42c. for No. 2, and oats at 34 to 34 1-2c.; peas 55 to 56c.

Wheat was dull in Chicago and prices declined from sheer inactivity. Corn was rather stiff at the start. The continuation of low temperature throughout the country and light receipts were encouraging, but under free selling it developed that there was a lack of confidence in the crowd. Oats were affected by the wheat and corn pits. Near the close offerings were made to weaken the market.

At East Buffalo in sheep and lambs, owing to the blockade, there was little or no business, everybody awaiting a change in the weather. At the close of business there were dealers awaiting the raising of the blockade. 95 cars of hogs and 60 cars of sheep and lambs besides those here on sale.

The New York stock market opened irregular, but soon developed weakness. The bears were active in the general list and they were inclined to think that the good effect of the bond issue had been discounted. The market closed weak. Total sales: Listed 52,900; unlisted 13,860 including 13,000 Northwest.

Look Out

for breakers ahead when pimples, boils, carbuncles and like manifestations of impure blood appear. They wouldn't appear if your blood were pure and your system in the right condition. They show you need—a good blood-purifier; that's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It carries health with it. All Blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. It invigorates the liver, purifies and enriches the blood, and rouse every organ into healthful action. In the most stubborn forms of Skin Diseases, such as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, and with Scrofula in every shape, and all blood-taints, if it fails to cure, you have your money back. And that makes it the CHEAPEST blood-purifier sold.

ITCHING AND PIN WORMS. PILES

No More Misery.

ITCHING PILES is an exceedingly painful and annoying affliction, found alike in the rich and poor, male and female. The principal symptoms are a severe itching, which is worst at night when the surface becomes warm in bed. So terrible is the itching that frequently it is impossible to procure sleep. Often the sufferer unconsciously scratches the parts until they are sore—bleeding and tumors form. Excessive moisture is exuded. Females are peculiarly afflicted with this disease, causing unbearable irritation and anguish. These are only a few symptoms of Itching Piles or irritation in any part of the body are immediately allayed and quickly cured by Chase's Ointment. It will instantly stop itching, heal the sores and ulcers, dry up the moisture.

Gives Instant Relief.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

PIN WORMS is an ailment entirely different as to cause from Itching Piles, but the effects and symptoms are exactly the same. The same intolerable itching; the same crawling, creeping sensation, disagreeable look sluggish. Chase's Ointment acts like magic. It will at once afford relief from this torment.

This flour has been awarded the highest honours for strength, flavour and colour at the World's Fair at Chicago. It costs a little more than common flour, but has no equal. Try our fresh breakfast cereals, they are unsurpassed. MASON & Co.

Not Many Such.

The Fenelon Falls Gazette notes the cutting of a huge stick of square timber containing 308 feet at Grant's camp, near Hollow Lake Sherbourne township, Haliburton county. Owing to the long continued lumbering operations in the north country there cannot remain many forest monarchs similar to the above.

Ratepayers' Association.

A meeting of the executive of the Ratepayers' Association met last evening. Several matters of importance to the town are under consideration. The regular meeting of the Association announced for this Tuesday will be adjourned until Monday evening, 18th inst, to allow the executive farther time to gather some information required.

Deer and Duck Shooting.

At a recent meeting of the Ontario Fish and Game Commission it was decided to make the deer season the same as it was in 1893—from the 1st to the 15th of November, thus cutting out the last 10 days of October. It is proposed also to prohibit duck-shooting till have an hour after sunrise and after half an hour after sunset, so as not to molest the birds during roosting. It was decided to offer a bounty of 50c a head for foxes owing to the damage they inflict on farmers' poultry.

About Our Accounts.

January, 30th, 1895.

All persons having accounts or claims against A. Mercer & Co. will confer a favour by sending them in for settlement before the 15th February to enable us to close our books for the past year.

Likewise, we respectfully request all persons indebted to us, either by current account or past due account, to call and settle their bills promptly before 15th February. It is absolutely necessary that these claims be paid on or before that date.

We hope that this request will be sufficient.

Dedicating St. Mary's.

The Lindsay Post says: By an oversight last week we omitted to mention the recent visit to Lindsay of the Right Rev. R. A. O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough, for the purpose of officially dedicating the extensions of St. Mary's church to divine worship. His Lordship arrived on Saturday, Jan. 26th, and at high mass on Sunday he delivered an eloquent sermon on the Holy Family. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock, in the presence of an immense congregation, he placed in position on the walls of the church a new set of Stations of the Cross, or pictorial representations of the fourteen principal events of the Passion of Christ. In the morning His Lordship complimented the congregation on the beautiful church edifice they now possess, and spoke in high commendation of the labours of the worthy pastor, Vicar-Gen. Laurent, who by careful management of the finances, coupled with a practical knowledge of building and excellent taste, has accomplished so much without imposing any additional burdens upon the parishioners.

Barnum & Bailey's Circus Coming.

Mr. H. G. Hedger and Mr. Peckham, advance agents for the Barnum & Bailey circus, were both in town yesterday, making arrangements for billing the big show here for a date in June next. The two agents report having a hard time getting farmers to sign contracts for billboard space on their barns, as the farmers have been taken in so often that they are now very chary indeed about putting their names to anything which looks the least bit suspicious.

"Up to Date Women."

The members of the Young Women's Christian Association have made arrangements whereby Miss Wright, of Ottawa, the travelling secretary of the Association, will address a public meeting in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, on Tuesday, February 19th. The subject of the lecture will be "Up to date Woman," and it is expected that a large audience will be present to hear the arguments advanced. A most cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the meeting for which special music is being prepared. A collection will be taken up in aid of the work.

The Snow.

We can welcome the snow, which we now have in plenty. The great depth of snow will be of of immense benefit in the agricultural districts. It covers the winter wheat, which it will protect from winter kill. Snow is the best fertiliser. It refreshes the soil more than rain. It brings down the dust particles, the gases and the other fructifying elements in the air and holds them close to the earth until they cling or are absorbed. After a rain the wet evaporates and the volatile elements which it brought to the surface exhale or are dissipated. Despite the snow and the steady winter weather, the season thus far has been more severe than usual, and we can be glad the middle has been passed.

The Rev. Mr. MacWilliams has gone to Port Hope to the Presbyterial meeting of the W.F.M.S. to deliver an address. He was appointed to do so by the Presbytery at its last meeting. Mrs. Alexander Stewart and Miss Forsyth from St. Andrew's, also read papers.

COUNTY ORANGEMEN.

The Orangemen Congratulate Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

The following expression of confidence has been forwarded to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, from the West Peterborough County Lodge:

To Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Premier of Canada, from his Orange Brethren in West Peterborough:

DEAR MR. BOWELL,—At the meeting of West Peterborough County L.O.L., held at the Town of Peterborough on the 8th instant, the undersigned were appointed a committee to tender to you the warm and hearty congratulations of your brethren of this district, on the honours recently bestowed upon you by Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria and by the Canadian people.

Be assured that your brethren have every confidence that you will in the future, as in the past, maintain, not only the true and noble principles of their order, but uphold the honour and dignity of your exalted position in the Councils of Canada, and of the Empire. And in accordance with the aims and principles of the Orange Association, do justice to all classes and creeds in our fair Dominion.

THE HORSETHIEF TRACED TO SPRINGBROOK.

High County Constable Cochrane Recovers Nearly Everything Which was Stolen.

High County Constable Cochrane returned this morning from Warkworth where he was successful in recovering the cutter, harness, bells, whip and one robe belonging to Mr. G. W. Reid, of Warsaw, and which were stolen together with a horse on Friday last. Mr. Reid recovered the horse yesterday after considerable trouble, as the thief made several trades. Mr. Cochrane traced the "horse-thief" as far as Springbrook where the man is ascertained to have boarded the C.P.R. The different horses which came into the possession of the thief during his travels have all been restored to their owners, though as the majority of them gave "boot" when trading, they are just out the amount of the sum given in this manner. Mr. Reid has recovered everything now with the exception of one robe and an overcoat.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

The Annual Meeting Will be Held To-Morrow Afternoon.

The Children's Aid Society will hold its annual meeting to-morrow afternoon in the town council chamber, and all those interested in the work, and wishing to join the Society, are invited to be present.

Article II of the constitution of a Children's Aid Society, is as follows:

"Its object shall be to protect children from cruelty, to care for and protect neglected, abandoned or orphaned children; to provide such children as may be lawfully committed or entrusted to the Society with suitable homes in private families, and to watch over and guard their interests, and promote their happiness and well-being; to secure the enforcement of laws relating to neglected and dependent children, or juvenile offenders; and to take the part of a friend towards any child accused of offences against the laws of the Province or the Dominion; to provide free summer excursions, temporary residence in the country, or other means for benefitting poor children; and generally to advocate the claims of neglected or orphaned children upon the sympathy and support of the public."

A MIDNIGHT BLAZE.

A Cottage on College Street Damaged Beyond Repair.

Last night at about twelve o'clock a small roughcast house on College street, belonging to Mrs. (Dr.) Ormond, suddenly broke out into a blaze. The alarm was given and the members of the brigade were soon the ground. The house was, however, damaged beyond repair before the flames were gotten under control.

As the cottage has been unoccupied for some time, the cause of the fire is attributed to incendiarism. The loss is estimated at about $300. The firemen were successful in confining the fire to the cottage in which it originated, although there were several others in close proximity.

It will pay you to visit Grafton & Co's just now.

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

Sangerville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the soreness had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sangerville, Maine.

YOUNG WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

Bible study this evening at 8 o'clock, Teacher Miss Code. A welcome to all young women.

Some reasons why I should join the Young Women's Christian Association:—

Because every young women should join an Association pre-eminently known and thus support it by her influence and example.

Because if you yourself do not need the advantages of our Association, remember our many sisters who do, therefore enrol yourself as a member and encourage everyone, with whom you come in contact, to do the same.

Because if you desire to work for God, here is a delightful sphere for all the time and talent you have to spare. Your help is needed.

Because by giving yourself and influencing others to join, you may be the means of bringing many in, who will bye and bye, say: "Praise the Lord for the Young Women's Association."

A NEW CANDIDATE.

Mr. Henry Denne Named Freely in This Connection.

In connection with our comments on the situation in West Peterborough as regards a candidate, it may be mentioned that the rumour is quite current that Mr. Henry Denne will be a candidate for the Dominion representation on the Independent platform. Mr. Denne's many friends claim that he will be a strong candidate. Between the Liberal and the Conservative candidate he would stand a good chance of being elected.

Future School Requirements.

According to an exchange, new pupils in the schools of the future will have to submit to this examination:

Teacher: "Johnie, have you a certificate of vaccination for smallpox?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you been inoculated for croup?"

"Yes, sir."

"Been treated with diphtheria serum?"

"Yes, sir."

"Had your arm scratched with cholera bacilli?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you a written guarantee that you are proof against whooping-cough, measles, mumps, scarlet fever and old age?"

"Yes, sir."

"Have you your own private drinking cup?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you promise not to exchange sponges with the boy next to you, and never use any but your own pencil?"

"Yes sir."

"Will you agree to have your books fumigated with sulphur, and sprinkle your clothes with chloride of lime once a week?"

"Yes, sir."

"Johnie, you have met the first requirements of the modern sanitarians and may now climb over yonder rail, occupy an isolated aluminum seat and begin making P's and Q's as your first lesson."

Benefits of a Meat Diet.

In old countries the lower orders, as a rule, have but a low vitality. It may be truer to say that the vital volition is weak. Let the learned settle the definition. The fact is easily accounted for. During generations upon generations the majority of European populations lived upon vegetable food, like the majority of Eastern Asiatics, and with the same result. Hard labor produces hard muscles, but vegetable food yields a low vital tension, so to say. Soldiers know it well enough. The pale-faced city clerk who eats meat twice a day will outfight and outlast and outstarve the burly laborer whose big thews and sinews are mostly composed of potatoes, corn and water.—Marion Crawford, in The Century.

Has Declined in Value.

The Prix de Rome, once the object of the ambition of every art student in Paris, has declined so much in value that it is proposed to abolish it. It carries with it a traveling scholarship in Italy, and the plea of those who attack it is that a student possessing it wastes his talent in slavish imitation of the Italian masters, rather than developing it by the interpretation of nature. The sculptor, Rodin, the leader of the antagonists, maintains that this prize has only retarded the progress of the great men who have obtained it in the past.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

MR. PATERSON AND THE N. P.

Mr. Paterson, in his speech at Toronto, commented on the claim made by the touring Ministers and the Conservative press, that he had been made wealthy by the National Policy, which he derides. His remarks were pointed and sensible enough to call for their reproduction. He said:

Take it for granted that Dr. Montague believes what he says, that the National Policy has made a rich man of me—mind, no energy or any ability that I may have is to be taken into account, or the skill of my co-workers in the factory, the artizans, the heads of the departments, the representatives on the road coming into contact with the public, pushing their part of the business. All this seems to have no weight with him. The National Policy, he says, has made me wealthy, has trebled my business at Brantford, built me another factory at Belleville, and so on. Take it that way. The point I want you to take home is this: Believe the Doctor that I have been made rich by an act of Parliament which his Government passed, and which is on the statute book. Has it made you rich? I hope it has. I hope it has made every man here present rich, but if it has not, and if you chance to know some one who, instead of being as well off now as he was when it was introduced, is not so well off what I want you to consider when you go home is, whether the law passed by the Tory Government and placed on the statute book that made Paterson rich has made you not rich or some of you even poorer than you were before; whether this is a just law or not, and one that should be continued. I am glad that the doctor has singled me out, because it enabled me to put the question in that way, dealing with myself personally without being offensive towards anyone else. Think that question over when you go home. If there happen to be any farmers in the room you perhaps will ask yourselves the question whether it is a just law that put up another factory for Paterson in Belleville, which, by the way, it did not do. We have a business in Brantford and Belleville, and I had them both before the National Policy came in, but, believing that what the doctor said was true, and that it has put up another factory in Brantford and another in Belleville, has it put up any barn for you, bought another farm for you or raised the price of your land, and if not, why not? Have I rights in this country to be conserved and advanced by the Government? Has not every man the same right? We stand on an equal footing in this country, and the Government has to do equal justice to all. Should they be there when they passed a law that has made me rich and made others rich, while it has failed to enrich the community? It is an unjust law, and it ought to be repealed.

A HUMBUG EXPOSED.

Don't Send any Cancelled Stamps to Miss Edna Brown of Kanesville, Ill.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—A few days ago I received a letter asking for cancelled stamps, and the request to forward three copies of it to friends and one copy to Miss Edna Brown enclosing ten cancelled stamps, as a certain Medical Institute had consented to receive a crippled girl on receipt of a million stamps. I was also asked "not to break the chain, as it would cause great financial loss." However, I broke the chain, as I felt convinced that it was a fake of some kind. It seems, then, that the fake has struck Canada, and it would be an enlightenment to many if you would kindly publish the following item clipped from an Ohio paper.

Yours sincerely,
ANTI-HUMBUG.

CANCELLED STAMP SCHEMES.

Many Ohio people have received letters from friends requesting them to send cancelled stamps to a Kanesville, Ill., girl, besides forwarding three letters to friends to do the same. Requests like the above have been granted by numerous people here, who will be interested in reading the following from Aurora, Ill., in the Chicago Inter-Ocean:

"The newspapers are asked to discourage the sending of cancelled stamps to Miss Edna Brown, in the little village of Kanesville. Some time ago a chain of letters was started on the plan of geometrical progression. It started with three letters, each recipient being asked ten stamps to Edna Brown and write three others and so on. Now they do not know how to stop the flood. From 15,000 to 20,000 letters a day, containing stamps, besides numerous packages, both by mail and express, are received. The postmaster and mail carrier are both waxing indignant, seventeen large sacks of mail matter daily preventing the carrying of passengers or freight in the stage."

The Kansas City Star, which has investigated the matter, discovered that Edna Brown lived in Kanesville, but that she was not a cripple, but that she had a sister-in-law who was, and that the medical institute was a myth. She had received between ten and fifteen million stamps and considerable money during the last three months, and is still receiving from 10,000 to 15,000 letters a day, many of them containing money orders.

Computing modestly, Edna has received nearly $2,000 worth of cancelled stamps at the current price for such, and if she received money orders of the average value of 10 cents each, she has received considerably over $1,000 a day for at least two days from that source.

Y.P.S.C.E. NOTES.

Last evening St. Andrews's Endeavourers—Junior and Senior—held a united meeting, commencing at 7.30 p. m. The Rev. A. MacWilliams was in the chair. After devotional exercises, the business was in a few moments disposed of. The topics were then taken by Master Johnny Lang of the Juniors and Miss Millie Rae of the Seniors. Both papers were very thoughtful and showed complete preparation. Many texts were read appropriate to the subject, many hymns were sung and many earnest prayers were offered up, while the pastor sang the hymn entitled, "Only Remembered by What we Have Done." The attendance was large, there being over 150 present. The meeting was spirited and earnest, and must prove helpful to both Junior and Senior Societies.

The Modern Invalid

Has taken medicinally, in keeping with other luxuries. A remedy must be pleasantly acceptable in form, purely wholesome in composition, truly beneficial in effect and entirely free from every objectionable quality. If really ill he consults a physician; if constipated he uses the gentle family laxative, Syrup of Figs.

Sold Out.

Mr. Alf. Dawson, grocer, No. 375 George street, has sold out his stock of first-class groceries and provisions to Mr. W. J. Hall, dealer in bankrupt stocks. The entire stock has been removed to Mr. John Cameron's grocery store, where it will be continued in the usual manner, regardless of original values. Housekeepers will get extraordinary "snaps" in staple groceries and provisions as long as this sacrificing sale lasts. d284f.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL!

Never in the history of responsible government has any enterprise, ostensibly a great public work, been so industriously and so disgracefully "worked" as the Trent Valley Canal scheme. For the past half century this canal has been talked of and dabbled at in a fragmentary perfunctory way. For the past fifteen years it has been used as a donkey engine for hoisting Conservative candidates into place. The electors, with a faith that is astonishing, in view of the facts, have believed the repeated promises that have been repeatedly broken, and they are still asked to have confidence in pledges of the government, which have so often been violated. In the past, we have had the most solemn assurances of bona fide work having been begun and now we are treated to a fresh boom on the eve of the general elections. With a commendable enterprise the citizens of Peterborough have stirred up the government by deputation and otherwise, and as a result we are told that the Lake Simcoe and Balsam Lake section has been put under contract with the notorious Andrew Onderdonk, but the Lakefield-Peterborough section still hangs fire, and a policy of shiftiness and indecision has been followed and delay caused through the excuse for making new surveys that have been made long ago. The public were beginning to grow restless and suspicious of the good faith of the Government, and Hon. John Haggart, Minister of Railways and Canals, was specially imported to Peterborough to give his personal assurance of the Government meaning business, and so show in what deadly earnest the Government was in pushing on this work of so great importance to the carrying trade of the country, and to Peterborough in particular. But the result showed what a fake the whole thing was. Mr. Stevenson in his few remarks at the opening of the great mass meeting on Thursday night—and it was a splendid gathering as far as numbers were concerned—excused himself, amidst uproarious laughter, from telling all he had done to push on the Trent Valley Canal, but he left Hon. Mr. Haggart to deal at large with that question. What was the result? Mr. Haggart had only a few minutes to speak, and his time was nearly expired, and still not a word of canal, and it is not at all probable that he would have referred to the subject at all, had not an elector sent up a note to Mr. Stevenson to switch Mr. Haggart off on to the canal. The most important subject of the evening staved off and ignored and only by accident referred to at all, and then at the fag end of the meeting will only a few minutes before train time to deal with the most important subject of the meeting. This, however, was quite consistent with the attitude of the government in regard to the T.V.C.—the farce generally follows the chief play. Does this look like business? Does this indicate good faith in regard to prosecuting work. It is simply shameless trifling with a work of the greatest importance to Peterborough and the country at large. The canal is simply being used as a bait to catch gudgeons. Will the electors continue to take the bait as they have done in the past? After the shameless exhibition made in the opera house Thursday night, can the people still have faith in the Government proceeding with the work except in a manner to create political capital? If Mr. Haggart as Minister of Railways and Canals had a bona fide intention of going on with the canal, would he, when imported specially to deal with the subject, have needed to be prodded with notes from the audience to remind him of what he came to talk about? Shameful is the only word to characterize his conduct in this connection. It is, however, creditable to Mr. Haggart that he felt so ashamed of his position that it was only when bulldozed that he could be persuaded to conquer his reluctance to make more promises and pledges which, judging by the past, would be broken. But he did make a promise to the effect that in exchange for the votes of the electors to return Government candidates, the Government would go on with the work. Language is weak to express a proper degree of contempt of the subterfuges and refuges of lies that have been employed in connection with the political digging of the Trent Valley Canal. Anyone with half an eye, not blinded with party prejudice, can see that the course of the Ministers at the Opera House meeting is indicative of indifferent trifling with the subject of the actual construction of the Trent Valley Canal. In this connection, it may be well to quote an independent newspaper's opinion on this subject. The Toronto News, independent Conservative, says: "The Trent Valley Canal is a fake, and the men who asked to have it constructed are after the pickings that could be got out of the contracts, and after the sinecure offices that would have to be created to operate the ditch. Of course Hon. John Haggart endorses the scheme, for it would be a queer sort of a canal that he would oppose after getting the mill race, known as the Tay canal, obstructed by the Government for his own individual benefit." This was the opinion of a Conservative paper some months ago, and the situation has not been changed—except for the worse.

CURLIANA.

Mr. Dickson Davidson this morning received a telegram from Mr. T. W. R. McRae, of the Belleville Colts, stating that is impossible for the rinks from that place to come to Peterborough until Thursday. On Thursday it is expected that another telegram will come asking for a still further postponement. Belleville has not treated Peterborough exactly "square" in regard to this contest, as the first game which was played by them should have been given to Peterborough and not to Campbellford.

On Thursday evening there will be a big bonspiel on the rink between the local rinks inaugurating the contest for the Innes Medal.

There were several scratch matches at the rink last night, resulting as follows:—

RINK NO. 1.

G Gough,		St C Gurd,
Peter Henry,		Charles LeGros,
J T Tucker,		W H Meredith,
G Edmison, skip	16	Judge Weller, skip	9

RINK NO. 2.

C Rutherford,		C N Brown,
J H Counal,		J P Peetland,
R S Davidson,		H M Allen,
S Ray, skip	13	Jno McClelland, sk	15

At a meeting of the curlers last night the following schedule was drawn up of rinks which will play for the Innes Medal:

R M Dennistoun	vs	C McGill
G W Hatton	"	S Ray
E B Edwards	"	R H Kells
J H Counal	"	J McClelland
Geo Edmison	"	W G Ferguson
D W Dumble	"	R S Davidson
Judge Weller	"	T Rutherford
T P Attrill	"	Adam Hall
R P Boucher	"	Jno McKee
A St A Smith	"	A McNeil

The Kendry Cup will be held as a trophy by the Thistle division this year, and the third draw to settle which rink shall hold it has been arranged as follows:

R H Kells	vs	S Ray
A Hall	"	A McNeil
T Rutherford	"	R S Davidson
W G Ferguson	"	Jno McClelland
C McGill	"	Jno McKee

Messrs. C. McGill, W. G. Ferguson and T. Rutherford were selected last night to skip the Thistle rinks which will participate in the big bonspiel against the Torontos here on Wednesday afternoon.

Last night Secretary Russell, Toronto, had not heard from Group 4, but the winners in all the other groups for the Ontario Tankard were reported, making this fine list:

1. Oshawa	9	Toronto Granite.
2. Peterborough	10	St Thomas.
3. Lindsay	11	Buffalo.
4. ———	12	Chatham.
5. Collingwood	13	Stratford.
6. Hamilton Thistles	14	Kincardine.
7. Brantford	15	Guelph Union.
8. Prospect Park	16	Chesley.

Clubs in Group 4 are Sault Ste Marie, Sudbury and North Bay.

The final matches will begin in Toronto Wednesday or Thursday of next week. Lord Aberdeen, Patron of the O.C.A., is expected to be present at the wind-up. The clubs in this list present a very strong aggregation of curling talent, and some very fine play is anticipated. Clubs located beyond the boundary of the Province are represented in the finals for the first time in the history of the Tankard, which has now been played for a quarter of a century. The Burns Club of Ogdensburgh, N.Y., and the Detroit Club have been in the Provinces, but the Buffalo men are the first from the other side of the border to get as far as the finals.

HOCKEY.

A telephone message from the O. H. A. official headquarters in Toronto was received in town this afternoon stating that Kingston would be advised to play the game in question upon the arrival of the Peterborough team, even if the hour was a trifle late.

The Kingston papers announce that the Peterboroughs are anxious to play the championship game with the team of that place at ten o'clock Saturday evening, the train not arriving until that hour. The Kingstons refuse to entertain the idea of beginning a game so late in the evening.

An interesting game of hockey was played in the rink last night, when the Collegiate Institute team won from the "Greenies" by a score of 6 goals to 1. The two teams lined up as follows:

Greenies.		Collegiate.
G Frost	goal	Hamilton
G Hay	point	F Lewis
W Dumble	cover point	Ponsette
J W Hall	forwards	Bellegham
R Bradburn	forwards	Crossley

VALENTINE'S DAY.

Thursday next, February 14th, is St. Valentine's day. The custom of sending valentines is not as generally observed as it once was, but it still keeps the post office employes busy. It is pretty hard to tell who was the real St. Valentine, as there are no less than three claimants to the honour. Or rather, there are three St. Valentines, all good and worthy men in their time. But by common consent the saint in whose honour Valentine's day is kept, is Valentinus, the presbytr and martyr. This godly man was arrested by the cruel Roman Emperor Claudius and thrown into prison. Calphurnia, the empress, attempted to win him back to idolatory and employed one Asterius to help her. But Valentinus healed the blind daughter of Asterius, who believed and was baptized, with all his house. Finally the good saint was beheaded by the heathen majesties. But his virtues endure, and the day devoted to his memory is especially appropriate to the dissemination of love and friendship. But it is carrying things a little too far, in short, almost desecrating the day, when it is used for distributing the abominable "comic" valentines. Shakespeare repeatedly alludes to Valentine's day, and in "Hamlet" has the unfortunate Ophelia sing:

To-morrow is St. Valentine's day,
All in the morning betime,
And I, a maid, at your window
To be your valentine.

Praed in his dainty verse prettily puts it thus:

Apollo has peeped through the shutter,
And awakened the witty and fair;
The boarding school belle's in a flutter,
The two-penny post's in despair;
The breath of the morning is flinging
A magic on blossom and spray,
And cockneys and sparrows are singing,
In chorus on Valentine's day.

A Cobourg Woman Deserts Her Little One on a Bitter Night.

The Cobourg Post chronicles the following sad case of child desertion in that town:

"About midnight on Wednesday, some heartless woman deposited a female child about four months old on the doorstep of a well known residence on King street east. The little one was taken in and the Chief of Police notified, who at once took charge of the infant and placed it in care of a party who will give the child the best of attention. The child is rather pretty, has bright blue eyes, and was neatly and comfortably clad in white woollen, and was wrapped in a white woollen shawl, and wore a white hood of the same material, but nothing by which the identity of the child's parents could be discovered. From indications it is thought the child was brought from out of town, and by whom is at present unknown. The woman that committed the heartless act wore a number five rubber, and was plainly traced from the house to the street, after which the footprints were lost. The night was bitter cold, and if the door bell had not been promptly answered, it is likely that the little waif would have been frozen to death. The child is a fine healthy one, quite cheerful and apparently does not miss its parents."

It is to meet just such emergencies that constitutes the duties of the Children's Aid Society. An active organization of this kind would have in all probability prevented the abandonment of the child.

What John Wanamaker, the Most Heavily Insured man in America, Says:

(INTERVIEW WITH JOHN WANAMAKER.)

It is very generally known that Ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, carries the largest amount of Life Insurance of any man in the United States. A representative of the press recently interviewed this gentleman while he was travelling with the Presidential party, and this interview will be found, we believe, of general interest:—

"You are said to be the most heavily insured man in the country, Mr. Wanamaker," remarked the press representative.

"How did you come to think of that?" he said with a smile. "You are not looking for any disaster under such excellent management as our friend Boyd is giving this train and party?"

"No," I replied. "A newspaper friend in San Francisco, who had heard the report, wanted me to ask you it it was true, and if so, what your business reasons are for it?"

"Well," he modestly answered, "I have heard it stated that I am the most heavily insured man in the country. I don't know about that. The amount of my policies is $1,550,000, and the value, with the accumulations since the policies were taken out, is about two millions of dollars."

"In what class of companies are your policies?"

"They are all in stock and mutual companies, and none of them in what are known as assessment or instalment companies."

"Are they full life term policies or on what is termed the 'tontine' plan?"

"I have generally taken ten and fifteen payment policies and very few life policies. With about all good companies a contract can now be made whereby there is no risk of losing a policy after two years' premiums have been paid. If the party insured chooses to withdraw he can get a paid-up policy. Indeed, I understand that some companies have forms whereby the insurer can after one year, if desired, withdraw and receive a paid-up policy. There is practically little risk, any more, in insuring in the old companies."

"Perhaps you would be willing to tell me how you came to insure so heavily?"

"I thought the matter out, and convinced myself that it was a good business venture. Besides, it seemed to me that I might, perhaps, give away more money in lifetime if there was a fixed certainty of putting it back into my estate by Life Insurance. I conceive that the best way for a man to carry on benevolence is not to leave it to be done through his will, but to do it in his lifetime, and I felt that Life Insurance would give me more freedom in carrying out some plans I have, and which I would be glad to see completed before I leave this world. If you want to ascertain what the circumstances were in placing the Life Insurance, I must go further in my answers and say that I should not have gone so far in my Life Insurance but for the skill of the agent who tackled me to insure to a greater extent than I would otherwise have done. He was an old friend who had been in mercantile business and who knew how to present Life Insurance without boring me. I feel to-day sincerely grateful to the man who followed me so discreetly with information about companies, and who kept the subject before me until I settled the question."

"When did you begin taking Life Insurance policies?"

"My first policy was taken when I was twenty-one."

"Do you consider it a good thing for a man of small means?"

"I certainly do. Most young men spend more for cigars during the year than the annual cost of a $2,500 policy in a good company. If they must have the cigars they might divide between cigars and Life Insurance and carry at least a $1,000 policy. I think every young man, before he is married, ought to try to get at least a $1,000 policy."

"Among how many companies are your policies divided, and where are they located?"

"About forty companies. Most of them are located in the East. A few are in the West and a few in Canada."

"Do you recommend Life Insurance to others, especially those in whom you feel a personal interest?"

"I can perhaps answer that best by saying that I presented a few years ago a $1,000 policy, paid up for one year, to every insurable head of family in my employ. Many of the prudent men who received them not only kept them but added to them, and I have the satisfaction of knowing that in not a few cases those policies have been the means of saving worthy families from want."

It will doubtless be of interest to our readers to know that John Wanamaker carries a large policy in the Canada Life Insurance Company, thus evincing his confidence in the soundness of Canada's oldest and largest Company. During the last few years quite a number of American capitalists have been convinced of the SUPERIOR MERITS OF THE CANADA LIFE, and have accordingly placed their insurance therein, in preference to any other company.

The Canada Life is now being recognized in the states of Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio as the Company that gives the best results for the least premium.

OCEAN SHIPWRECKS.

A GHOSTLY COMPANY WHICH THE ELBE HAS GONE TO JOIN.

Half a Century's Deadly Record—Ships Which Have Vanished Without Leaving a Trace—The Danger That is Always Present Now-a-Days on the Ocean.

The loss of the Elbe, with more than 300 souls, has just struck terror into the hearts of the people, as only a great ocean disaster can. No other calamity to which citizens of this country are ordinarily liable is so cruel and so wholesale in its destruction of human life as the sinking of an Atlantic liner.

A list has been compiled of the great shipwrecks of the past half century. The disasters of men-of-war and to river and lake craft are not included, for they would swell the list beyond handling. Most of the accidents recorded occurred on the Atlantic.

Since the foundering of the President, fifty-four years ago, about a hundred large passenger ships have been lost in the Atlantic. In the Amazon, burned in the Bay of Biscay in 1852, 104 lives were lost; in the Anglo-Saxon, wrecked off Cape Race in 1863, 237 lives; in the Atlantic, wrecked near Meagher's Island, Nova Scotia, in 1873, 481 lives; in the Arctic, 323 lives; in the Austria, burned in mid-Atlantic in 1858, 470 lives; in the City of Boston, lost at sea, 191 lives; in the Borussia, 200 lives; in the Cimbria bound from Hamburg for New York, sunk by the Sultan in 1883, 454 lives; in the Central America, lost on the way from Havana to New York in 1847, 400 lives; in the Evening Star, foundered between New York and New Orleans in 1865, 254 lives; in the George Canning, bound for New York, wrecked off the Elbe in 1866, 96 lives; in the City of Glasgow, foundered in the Atlantic in 1854, 480 lives; in the Hungarian, wrecked off the coast of Nova Scotia in 1860, 205 lives; in the Metropolis, from Philadelphia, for Para, Brazil, wrecked in 1878, 200 lives; in the Naronic, lost in the Atlantic in 1893, 70 lives; in the Pacific, Collins liner, bound from Liverpool for New York in 1856, 186 lives; in the Pomerania, of the Hamburg line, sunk off Dover in 1878, 88 lives; in the Schiller, bound for New York, lost off the Scilly Islands in 1875, 300 lives; in the Geiser, run down by the Thingvalla in 1888 off Sable Island, 105 lives; in the Sud-Amerika, sunk in collision off the Canary Islands in 1888, 105 lives; in the Ville du Havre, sunk in collision between Havre and New York in 1873, 226 lives.

It is comforting to notice that the losses in the earlier days of steam navigation are much heavier than they have been in recent years, but the latter disasters are still numerous. The foregoing summary, which is incomplete, shows the Cimbria, the Naronic, the Geiser and the Sud-Amerika have all been lost within twelve years. Accidents of the most alarming character have happened without loss of life. The sinking of the Oregon off Fire Island in 1886, without a fatality, seems a miracle. The accident to the City of Paris, which placed her for days at the mercy of the least rough weather that might come up, is not less wonderful. Better equipment, discipline and life-saving appliances must reasonably be supposed to have something to do with the fortunate ending of these accidents.

The Naronic, of the White Star line, which left Liverpool for New York on Feb. 11, 1893, and has never been heard from, is the most recent ship to share a fate which has overtaken a number of Atlantic liners. Eight great steamships have left port never to be seen again. In most cases no trace has been left of their fate. It is, of course, reasonably certain that they have gone to the bottom, but whether they have been destroyed by collision, by storm, by a breakdown of machinery, by hidden rocks or by some other peril of the sea is a mystery.

Old Bibles.

The first Bible printed in America was in 1663. It was translated by John Eliot into the Algonkin language, for the Indians. The following facts relating to the present value of this and other old Bibles will prove interesting. At the sale of the Brinley library in New York, March, 1879, an Eliot New Testament of 1661 brought $700. At the same sale a Bible of 1663 sold for $1,000. At an auction in 1884 a Bible of 1685 brought $950. The Bement copy of the Eliot Testament of 1661 sold in London in 1890 for less than a dollar. The same copy at a sale in New York in 1890 brought $610. The total number of Indian Testaments and Bibles of this period now known to exist is 125. The first Bible printed in America in a European tongue is "The Saur Bible." It was printed in German, by Christian Saur, who came to this country in 1724.

"AS SLOW AS A SNAIL."

Nevertheless the Snail Supplies Himself With Everything He Needs.

There are some slow little walkers that move round and round our gardens. You have often seen and wondered and exclaimed over them. They are said to be deaf and dumb and blind, but, after all these drawbacks, and their slowness, too, they manage to walk a good deal by keeping at it, and to get their living after a fashion of their own.

These snails—for no doubt you know the familiar little creatures—live upon the tenderest leaves and the most perfect fruits of the garden. So the snails cannot be such very stupid creatures, for at least they know enough to select the best of all they find for their dinner. The snail hunts his dinner by night, like many other animals, and he has a pleasantly persistent way of going straight ahead and directly over everything which comes in his way.

Snails have many peculiarities. Of course you know they carry their houses upon their backs. Their house is made of a prettily marked shell. While a snail walks along he comes out of the house, but still takes it along with him. Naturalists tell us that when a snail wants to breathe he must draw himself into his shell to expel the air from his lungs, and come out when he draws air into his lungs again. This seems to be a very elaborate and troublesome way of breathing, and it is to be hoped the snail doesn't have to do it very rapidly.

It is a curious fact that the spiral pattern of the snail's house nearly always turns from right to left. But occasionally a snail is found with his snail pattern turning in the opposite direction. A snail, then, of this unique variety is regarded as a great curiosity, and if you ever find one keep it safely as one of the ornaments of your collection. The shell is a heavy one, marked with brown stripes, and the snail's body is gray. He enjoys his dinners and his slow perambulations all summer. On the approach of winter he selects a snug corner, and there he makes a close cover for himself out of leaves and dirt, fastening them together with a sticky fluid which nature has provided him to do the work.

Evening Dress for Men.

Once more is an attempt to be made to reform and regenerate the sombre garments worn by gentlemen as evening dress. This time the innovators are the Healthy and Artistic Dress Union, who in their organ, Aglaia, give a sketch of a man as he ought to appear arrayed for the important function called dinner.

The dress consists of coat and knee-breeches of velveteen, waistcoat, silk stockings and buckled shoes. The color is left to the wearer's choice, but quiet shades, such as brown, purple, bronze, russet, bottle-green or black are recommended to begin with, and ultimately more pronounced tints may be used as public taste is educated to an appreciation of velveteen symphonies. The waistcoat should be of stout creamy-white silk, corded, brocaded, watered or otherwise. It is strongly urged that the shirt should be of white Corah, thinner and softer than the waistcoat, and, preferably, whiter. This should be ornamented with a turned-down collar, and with frilled cuffs hanging down low upon the hand, the coat-sleeve being cut rather short in order to display them fully. The tie is of thin white silk, or, if dispensed with, a feature must be made of the studs. Harmony should be preserved between the velveteen and the silk stockings, but the latter need not necessarily be of the same color as the upper garments. To add to the effect of this dress, the hair, according to the illustrations, should when possible be worn long.

The Care of the Ears.

A prominent physician says that more than half of the ear troubles from which people suffer during the cold weather can be traced to the habit of picking at the ears with the finger nails or hair pins or some other hard substance, which irritates the delicate inside of the ear. Instead of this injurious "picking," the ears should be washed out with warm water and a little good soap, and thoroughly dried after the operation. If the ears are sensative a little cotton may be put in before going into the open air, though this is apt to make them even more sensitive. In extremely cold weather before venturing out, a good way to clean the ears is to wrap the corner of a towel around the finger, and with a little cold cream carefully wipe out the auricle. It will remove every particle of dust and will really protect the ears from the cold, but it can scarcely be recommended for regular use.

The only blood-purifier admitted on exhibition at the Chicago World's Fair was Ayer's Sarsaparilla, all others being excluded as secret preparations and patent medicines. With doctors and pharmacists, it has always been considered a standard remedy.

They do not Despair.

An utter loss of hope is not characteristic of Consumptives, though no other form of disease is so fatal, unless its progress is arrested by use of Scott's Emulsion, which is Cod Liver Oil made as palatable as cream.

OUR KNIVES AND FORKS.

THEY RANK IN THE LIST OF COMPARATIVELY RECENT INVENTIONS.

What the Aborigines of Europe and America Used—The Customs of the English, French and Chinese in Respect to Eating.

So familiar are we at the present day with the use of knives and forks, and other implements of the household, to assist us in the cutting up and eating of our food, says Housefurnishing Review, that it may instruct not a few of our readers to learn that both these useful table and kitchen necessities are of comparatively modern invention—so recent, indeed, that it is curious to think what must have been the condition of society before they came to be in common use. Discoveries have proved that the earlier inhabitants of Europe and the aborigines of America used splinters of stone or hardwood for cutting purposes, and it is a matter of wonder to discover what work they were enabled to perform with such primitive implements. The Greeks used copper hardened by tin, and various kinds of brass and bronze, as blades for the weapons and knives for domestic purposes. The Romans are supposed to have been the first to make edge tools of iron for carving meat and for warlike purposes.

England has always been pre-eminent in the manufacture of knives, even from the time of Queen Elizabeth. Case or sheath knives are the most ancient kind of cutlery; they originally had the blade stuck in the handle, and when not in use were covered by a case or sheath. Coast knives, called "Whittles," were manufactured at Sheffield in 1576, and were sold at the price of one penny a good round sum in those days. In 1650 clasp knives were first recorded; they were made to fold over and shut into handles of iron or tortoise shell, but they were very clumsy implements compared with the elegant pearl and ivory-handled six and eight-bladed affairs of the present day. Sheath knives were used mostly for kitchen use and to cut up meat, and even now one can see a butcher or a cook wield a knife, which, when not in use, is enclosed by a leather sheath. But nowadays the knives used for culinary purposes are innumerable, and to describe them all would be to far overrun these pages.

Forks are of much later invention than knives. Probably the first pronged instrument was used by the Italians late in the 15th century. They appear to have been unknown to the ancients, no trace of them ever having been discovered among the ruins of Herculaneum and Pompeii. The Chinese had the nearest idea to the fork in "chopsticks," which required a great deal of expertness to use with grace or effect. Chopsticks are used by the Chinese for eating purposes up to date. Before forks were invented fingers were made to perform the service of picking up the meat, both for cooking and eating. Even after forks were introduced they were looked upon as unnecessary luxuries, and were even forbidden to be used in certain monastic establishments and convents. Forks were at first made with only two prongs of iron, in fact they were more like double skewers; then three prongs were considered necessary, and these prongs were considered more useful when bent. The French manufactured a spoon fork, with four or five prongs, but these were considered more ornamental than useful, and were always made in silver for presents. Four prongs are now considered the proper number for a well-made fork, although most of the steel forks have only three. The first absolute necessity for a fork was in all probability felt by a carver, who required something to hold the meat steady while operating. The oldest carving fork known originally belonged to Henry IV. of France, about the year 1600. It is said to be seen at the castle of Pau, on the Basses Pyrenees, where Henry was born. It is made of steel and with two prongs of great length, being long enough and strong enough to secure "baron" of beef. The earliest mention of forks in Italy was in 1611. In England, 230 years ago, it was quite a common sight at a banquet for each guest to put his fingers into the dish and help himself. At the present time such customs are only to be found at "free lunches." In ordinary life, however, the man who would put his fingers into the dish would be turned out, as a savage, and he who puts his knife in his mouth is considered anything but a gentleman. The fork is now as necessary a part of the culinary appointments as the knife is.

Statistics as to Language.

Almost one-third of all humanity, or about 400,000,000 people, speak the Chinese language. The Hindoo language and its various dialects are spoken by, perhaps, 128,000,000, the third place being accorded the English language, which is now used by not less than 112,000,000 people. The Russian language comes fourth, 82,000,000 persons daily using it to the exclusion of all others. The German language is the audible expression of 57,000,000 human beings, and the Spanish of about 48,000,000. Among European languages French now takes fifth place, and when the languages of the world are considered it is the seventh in the category.

A Curious Wager.

A curious wager was that made by a member of parliament, who bet a gentleman well known on the British turf that a man could go from London to Edinburgh in any mode he chose while another made a million dots with pen and ink upon writing paper.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,

They gave us every one, a kiss,
And said,' be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home,
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

A BOON TO ALL SICK ONES

Cures When Other Medicines and Doctors Have Failed

RESTORES THE SICK TO HEALTH.

"I Can Attribute My Restoration to Health Solely to South American Nervine." Says C. J. Curtis, of Windsor.

C. J. CURTIS, WINDSOR, ONT.

When one has climbed a high mountain it is not difficult to mount the ordinary hill. A medicine that will cure when the case is a desperate one, may be safely taken as a good all round medicine in ordinary cases, and it is not alone the very sick who need medicine.

The statement is borne out by a multitude of facts, thousands of testimonials from reputable citizens, that South American Nervine cures, after what are considered the best medicines in the country have failed, and where the skill of the ablest physicians has come to naught.

The acknowledged scientific principle of disease is weakness and disorganization at the nerve centers. These nerve centers are the main spring of the whole system. When the stomach is out of order the certain remedy is to set the nerve centers in right condition again, so with every other trouble. Thus it is that it may be liver complaint, nervousness, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, impoverished blood, consumption of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, sick or nervous headache, sleeplessness, pains in the kidneys, or other ailments from which a person is suffering South American Nervine will cure, and cure quickly, and best of all cure effectively and lastingly in every such case.

Much as we were disposed to laugh at La Grippe as a trifling complaint when it first made itself known in this country, later developments have proved that it is a serious malady. The after effects are such that very thorough measures need to be taken to ensure perfect restoration to health. South American Nervine has proven wonderfully efficacious in giving back health to the victims of La Grippe. Mr. C. J. Curtis, a wealthy and well known farmer near Windsor, Ont., suffered from a severe attack of this malady, leaving him exceedingly weak and with no appetite. No medicine seemed to do him any good until he was influenced to try South American Nervine and his testimony is this: "After taking one bottle I found very great benefit from it, my appetite improved wonderfully, and I felt my strength returning very fast." Mr. Curtis then purchased five bottles, but after taking only three out of the five, to use his own words: "I am feeling as nearly well to-day as I ever did, and I can attribute my restoration to health and strength solely to South American Nervine."

IN THE NEXT CENTURY

A LONDON CLERGYMAN TELLS OF THE NEAR-AT-HAND UTOPIA.

An Optimistic View into the Future—A Century of Silent but Historic Revolutions and Developments—Every Taint of Professionalism to Be Swept Away.

Dr. Joseph Parker, of the London Temple, recently stated his views regarding the possibilities of the Twentieth Century, says The New York Sun. In his opinion it will be a century of silent but profound and historic revolutions and developments. Preachers there will be, and possibly great preachers, but, taken broadly, there will be no pulpit in the Twentieth Century. He distinguishes broadly between preachers and teachers. The latter, he says, we shall always need. Of well-equipped teachers we can hardly have too many. The coming century will be impatient with incompetent teachers, but the very degree of its impatience on the one hand will be the degree of its appreciation on the other. As to churches, a wonderful change will take place. Little Bethels and Zions, "born to blush unseen," will be swept off the face of the earth. Small tests of faith, sectarian standards of orthodoxy, pedantries, whims and theological crazes will all disappear and men will gather in adoring love around the Christ of God. The church of the triumphant Savior will in very deed be established, for she shall have granite for her foundations and salvation for her walls. Men will set their faces as flint against the crime of violating, even in vain attempt, the solemn and rhythmic order of God. In the twentieth century the Christian conception of thought and service will be cleansed of every taint of professionalism, because taint is indeed foul and mischevious. Many of the old heresies will pass out of the mind of the world, because men will not be professionally engaged in keeping them green and blooming by constant watering. Now men take long journeys to the cemeteries of the open Christian centuries, exhuming putrescent heretics, making their ghastly jaws repeat their foetid commonplaces, then argumentatively slapping their faces and putting them back into their antiquated shrouds. A hideous way of making a living. But the twentieth century will want to know the present truth and not to hear the lies men used to tell 2,000 years ago.

In Great Britain Dr. Parker prophesies great political changes at the close of the twentieth century. The ecclesiastical commissioners will all be paid off and their millions will have gone to the reduction of the national debt. Lease holds will have become freeholds. The land will no longer be the monopoly of men who never paid for it. The house of commons will consist of five-and-twenty members and the house of lords of six referees. Vestry locusts and county council vampires will have died of starvation and have been buried "unwept, unhonored and unsung." The tax gatherer will no longer be a shadow on the doorstep, but the welcome presence of an honest messenger sent by honest neighbors. It will be a century of tea and water drinking. The public-house, having been built by the devil, Dr. Parker believes it will go to the devil. The twentieth century will also see the passing away of this chief tragedy of perdition. Science will be no longer hostile to religion, nor religion hostile to science. For he says there never should have been any controversy between them. Religion may have to change her forms and her way of putting things, but not her reverence for God or her glad obedience to His will. So long as the sky is above the earth man will need religious expressions of word and service for his highest nature and noblest impulses. Little dogma must give way to immeasurable truth; stunted creed must make room for majestic and increasing faith; and shrunken self must yield to divine claims of man. In the coming century, Dr. Parker says, in literature authors will be paid and publishers well rewarded.

The position of woman in the twentieth century will be in happy contrast to that which she now occupies. They will know mathematics and natural philosophy enough to build a second Brooklyn bridge, and yet will laugh, and dance, and joke, and even take a hand in the kitchen. Dr. Joseph Parker congratulates the babies of the year 1895 who will live far into the new century, and finds in the circumstance of his present life a regret that he will not see much of the twentieth century.

A Cat's Nerves.

The whiskers of a cat are supposed by some naturalists to be provided with nerves down to the tip, while others believe that the base of the hair is better fitted out with nerves than most others parts of the skin.

AMERICAN PACIFIC CABLE.

A Company Formed Which is to Operate the Line.

Washington, Feb. 12.—C. W. Stone (Rep., Penn.), offered in the House a bill to incorporate the International Pacific Cable Company for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating a cable from San Francisco to the Hawaiian Islands and thence to Japan and to such islands in the Pacific Ocean and such other points on the mainland of Asia and Australia as may be determined upon. The capital stock of the company is fixed at $5,000,000 with the right to increase it to two hundred thousand shares at $100 per share. The company is empowered to issue bonds amounting to $20,000,000, bearing interest at 5 per cent. and secured by a first mortgage lien on all the property and rights of the company.

The amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, appropriating $100,000 towards the construction of a cable to the Hawaiian Islands, will be antagonized in conference. Mr. McCreary (Dem., Kentucky), who is the chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, will be one of the conferees. In the closing hours of the fifty-first Congress he fought a proposition for a government subsidy to be paid to the promoters of the Hawaiian Cable Company and defeated it, and he is understood to have said that the pending proposition is even more objectionable, in that it commits the government to the policy of constructing telegraph lines. It is believed that one, if not both, of the senatorial conferees will also oppose the amendment.

ON A MAJORITY OF TEN.

Redmond's Motion Defeated in the Imperial House.

London, Feb. 12.—In the House of Commons Mr. James Bryce, president of the Board of Trade, said in reply to a question that the Government had no intention of placing a lightship or buoy on the spot where the Elbe went down. The wreck, he said, was nearer to Holland than England, and if the spot was to be marked the work should be done by the Netherlands.

Sir Edward Gray, Parliamentary Secretary for Foreign Affairs, announced that the Porte had maintained its decision not to allow representatives of the press to go into Asia Minor during the sitting of the Bitlis commission of inquiry.

Mr. Herbert Gladstone, First Commissioner of Works, announced that the estimates would include a provision for the expenses of the erection of a statue of Oliver Cromwell in Westminster.

John Redmond, leader of the Parnellites, brought forward in the Commons yesterday his motion to amend the address by demanding that the Government appeal at once to the country inasmuch as they failed to carry out their Home Rule programme. The motion was defeated by a vote of 256 to 236.

Re-Opening the Embargo Question.

London, Feb. 11.—The ship-owners and the farmers in the north of Scotland have decided to again approach the Right Hon. Herbert Gardner, President of the Board of Agriculture, for the removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle. There have been no recent cases of suspicion in the Canadian cattle detected here, but the fact that Belgium has scheduled Canada, is insisted upon by the supporters of the embargo as a reason to deny the request of the Scotchmen.

Miss Boecker Visits the Queen.

London, Feb. 12.—Queen Victoria and Empress Frederick gave an audience yesterday to Miss Boecker. After an interview with the Empress Frederick, Miss Boecker was introduced to the Queen and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. All listened with deep interest to the narrative of the Elbe. At the Queen's request she wrote her name in her Majesty's autograph book. After leaving Osborne she received a souvenir from the Empress Frederick.

A Battle at Wei-Hai-Wei.

London, Feb. 12.—The Times correspondent in Wei-Hai-Wei telegraphs under the date of February 8: "A severe engagement began at 7 o'clock this morning. Several Japanese warships entered the bay from the eastward and three Chinese torpedo boats attempted to escape by the western entrance. The Japanese boats sank them. Four Chinese forts on the south-east island maintain an incessant fire."

Wiped Out a Whole Tribe.

Sydney, N. S. W., Feb. 12.—A despatch from Perth, West Australia, says that seven men have been arrested in Coolgardie for massacring an entire native tribe including women and children. The men had gone out gold seeking and were encamped near the village of the tribe which they are accused of exterminating. They say that they acted in self defence as the natives menaced their lives.

Vevera's Arrival at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Feb. 12.—John Vevera, one of the survivors of the Elbe, arrived at his home yesterday over the Nickel Plate. A large crowd assembled at the Broadway depot to meet him and he was given a warm reception. Mr. Vevera's lawyer has advised him to sue the steamship company for damages.

TO RELEASE HOOPER.

A Petition Circulated at the Capital in His Behalf.

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—Circulars have been distributed around town asking for "justice" for John R. Hooper. The circulars are addressed "To the justice-loving people and the press of Canada," and bear a large black headline, "An appeal for British justice." A long review of the case is given. It winds up thus: "Every word of yours can help right a wrong and soften the pathway of the aged father and mother of J. R. Hooper, now fast approaching life's weary journey, their faltering footsteps cruelly hastened by a wrong."

The much-discussed question of dissolution is expected to be settled to-day at the latest, now that all the Ministers have returned to the city.

N. A. Belcourt, Q.C., has gone to Eureka, Kas., to look after the interests of some Ottawa and St. Scholastic people, who have fallen heir to an estate valued at $20,000. Oliver Beauchamp, formerly of this district, went to Kansas some years ago and went into the ranching business, with the result that he amassed the above amount. Recently he died, and, being a bachelor, left his estate to brothers and friends, seven in all.

Loss of the Clara Friend.

Liverpool, N.S., Feb. 12.—Two more American schooners have just arrived, one of them leaking badly. One of them spoke to the Clara Friend on Saturday afternoon about ten miles off, and the captain said he intended going into Liverpool then. There was not a dollar of insurance on the Clara Friend and only three spars and a little other stuff was saved. The seven bodies recovered from the Friend will be buried by the county at Brooklyn to-day.

Eloper Brown Goes West.

Montreal, Feb. 12.—John Brown, the middle-aged English actor, who eloped on the steamer Mongolian with his 18-year-old pupil, Gertrude Bentley, daughter of a wealthy English country gentleman, passed through here yesterday on his way to Chicago, where he intends to reside. The girl has been sent back to England.

Charged With Seduction.

Georgetown, Feb. 12.—Edward Lake, of Glenwilliams, was arrested yesterday by Constable Graham on a warrant charging him with having seduced Fannie Norton, of the same place, a girl under sixteen years of age. Magistrate Kennedy remanded Lake to Milton jail for eight days.

Detective Flynn Dying.

Montreal, Feb. 12.—Ex-G. T. R. Detective Eugene P. Flynn took a bad turn early on Monday morning and is not expected to live.

Diphtheria Raging in Ridgeway.

Ridgeway, Ont., Feb. 12.—The public school of this village has been closed on account of the prevalence of a virulent form of diphtheria. Miss Maggie Sager, one of the victims of the disease, has died. Typhoid fever is also rampant and a number of residents have been stricken down. Several deaths have occurred.

A Big Grocery Destroyed.

Indianapolis, Feb. 12.—The wholesale grocery of George W. Stout was destroyed by fire with a loss of $115,000. Several firemen had a narrow escape from injury by falling walls.

Sympathetic Strike in Lynn, Mass.

Lynn, Mass., Feb. 12.—The stitchers and turn workmen in Faunce & Spinney's shoe factory joined the other operatives in a sympathetic strike and now every department of the factory is idle.

Belgian Anarchists Sentenced.

Liege, Feb. 11.—The trial of the sixteen anarchists who were charged with blowing up the house of the burgomaster of this city on April 29 and with attempting to blow up the church of St. Jacques was ended on Saturday. Eight of the accused persons were sentenced to terms of imprisonment varying from penal servitude for life to three years imprisonment. The others were acquitted.

Attempt to Hold Up a Train.

Paris, Tex., Feb. 12.—An attempt was made to hold up a Santa Fe train near Overbrook, I.T., but the engineer thought all was not right and ran past a water tank at which trains usually stop. About twenty shots were fired into the sleeper but no one was injured.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

Toronto, Feb. 12, 1895.

The local street market comprised just one load of barley, it brought 48 cents. Stagnation continues in local grain circles. There is nothing doing and fluctuations in prices, which are few, are caused from without. Wheat prices are unchanged with a limited demand. Wheat is quoted 57 to 58c west, and white at the same price.

Wheat was quiet in Chicago and closed at a decline of 1-8c. The moderate weather and enlarged receipts induced selling of corn which closed 1-8 to 1-4c lower for May and 1-2 to 3-4c for cash. Oats followed corn with an exactly equal decline.

The visible supply of barley is 1,738,000 bushels, and while this is about 60,000 bushels less than was shown last week, it exceeds the supply at this time last year by 260,000 bushels.

At the Buffalo barley market 5,000 bushels No. 2 Canada sold at 62 1-2c. Maltsters supplies short.

At East Buffalo the total offerings of sheep and lambs were 119 cars; closed firm; good many unsold. Prime Canada sheep for export $4.25 to $5; railway blockade being raised.

The temper of speculation at the New York Stock Exchange was bearish almost from start to finish. There was several rallies, but these only served to stimulate sales from short account. The advance in sterling exchange and the absence of foreign buyers orders contributed to the decline. Outside of the Grangers Chicago Gas and Sugar, however, trading was comparatively light.

The markets were quiet in London but disorganized by the American situation and the uncertainty whether Congress at the eleventh hour will authorize a gold loan. Business in American stocks was neglected but the market is keenly watched.

Doctors recommend Norway Pine Syrup because it is the best cure for coughs and colds. Price 25c. at druggists.

Brockville Bigamy Case.

Brockville, Feb. 12.—W. A. Williamson, the Gananoque marble dealer, accused of conspiracy with Mrs. Dowsley to commit bigamy, was brought before Police Magistrate Deacon yesterday. He waived the preliminary examination and consented to be committed for trial. Mrs. Dowsley, who is in jail awaiting sentence for bigamy, will be the principal witness for the prosecution.

Prominent G. T. R. Official Dead.

London, Feb. 12.—Mr. G. B. Renton, secretary of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, died here after a lingering illness caused by an affection of the lungs. The deceased gentleman was well-known to the officials in Canada which he visited several times during his twenty years' incumbency of the office. It is not known who his successor will be.

Three Women Drowned.

Pittsburg, Feb. 12.—Mrs. William Siebert and her two daughters were drowned at Cerapolis yesterday. The accident occurred while they were crossing the Ohio river on the ice.

Far Reaching in its Benefit.

The last day of January ends our year's business—a successful one in every respect, in spite of the hard times. We are getting closer to the people every year, and we are gratified that the people appreciate our efforts so unmistakably. Growth is proof, continuous growth is proof positive. Our business proceeds on SOLID IDEAS PERSISTENTLY FOLLOWED, and not upon spasmodic excitements.

We have sold more goods, counted more dollars, and entertained bigger crowds than ever before. Our best expectations have been more than realized and we enter upon a new year with our stores standing solidly on our past records, more than ever determined to beat that record, if possible.

Starting Saturday Morning

We commence our annual STOCK-TAKING CLEARANCE SALE. The recollection of last year's and previous season's mammoth sales will be ample to incite enough people to crowd our stores from end to end. Unbounded attractions will prevail in every department, and another triumph will be added to our long list of irresistible bargain sales.

DIRT!

Your watch needs cleaning and oiling, once every eighteen months if you would preserve its time-keeping qualities. Consider: In that time the balance wheel turns on its delicate axes 19,656,000 times. It does not "rest" at night like ordinary machines, but keeps at its work unceasingly. You oil an engine, or a sewing machine, or any other mechanical contrivance, daily or weekly; but that delicate instrument of precision—your watch—is allowed to go uncared for until it is clogged with dirt, and stops. The best of oil becomes thick and dirty in time; in this condition it wears the pivots and destroys that exactness of their fit in the jewel-holes which is necessary to a correct performance

Let me look at your watch—I will give you a conscientious opinion as to whether it needs attention

SENTENCED TO DEATH

Six of Hawaii's Revolutionists to Meet This Fate.

REACTION AMONG ROYALISTS

The Ill-Advised Revolt With Which They Had No Sympathy Leads Them to Take the Oath of Allegiance —Sympathy for the Unfortunates.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Mr. Thurston, the Hawaiian Minister, has received an official communication from his Government stating that up to Jan. 30 the court martial which is trying the insurrectionists at Honolulu, had rendered decisions in 22 cases. Sentences of capital punishment have been delivered in the case of R. W. Wilcox, Samuel Nowlein, H.F.Bertleman, C. F. Gulick, W. H. Rickard and W. T. Seward. The others were sentenced to various terms of imprisonment as follows: T. B. Walker, life imprisonment; W. H. Grieg and Louis Marshall 20 years; Thomas Poole, Robert Palau, Bipikane and Joseph Clark, 10 years; Kauai and Kiakahi, 8 years; Abraham, 7 years; and W. C. Lane, J. C. Lane, Lot Lane, Kalions and W. Widdifield, 5 years. Fines in addition to the imprisonment were imposed in a number of these cases. All of the sentences are subject to the approval or disapproval of President Dole.

Minister Thurston has received confirmation of the report that it was the H. C. Walberg which cleared from San Francisco Nov. 26 that imported to Hawaii the arms used by the insurrectionists. The contract with Captain Davis was that he should land 1,000 stand of arms. Of these the Government has captured little more than 300. On the basis of his official advices Mr. Thurston made the following statement to a representative of the United Press:

"There has been a great reaction among the more prominent royalists who were not concerned and did not approve of the late insurrection, and a number of them have taken the oath of allegiance to the Republic. Now that the Queen has abdicated and further action on the part of the United States looking to restoration is hopeless, they propose to accept the situation and work for annexation, which many of them say them say they have all along considered the best course for all concerned, but have been prevented from advocating it by what they considered their duty to the Queen.

"I have received no official information as to whether the President will approve the sentences of capital punishment and do not care to say anything more on that subject than I have already said. There is a very strong sentiment among many of the most responsible citizens of Honolulu in favor of making a severe example of several of the leaders and strong pressure is being brought to bear on the Government to that end, but it is my belief that a more lenient policy will in the end prevail.

No further information of an official character has been received by Mr. Thurston. A number of persons, however, residing in Washington, who have friends in Honolulu, have received letters on the political situation in the islands by the mail delivered yesterday. Some of these indicated that considerable feeling prevails against Minister Willis on the part of the American sympathizers with the Government in Honolulu for his action with reference to the sentences imposed by the court martial.

Unfortunate Colonel Seward.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Sun publishes the following: "Col. William T. Seward, condemned to death at Hawaii, formerly lived at Orient, Long Island. It first became known yesterday that the unfortunate Col. Seward at Hawaii is the same William T. Seward who for many years had charge of the extensive Long Beach fish works. He served in the Union army. A letter was received yesterday by the secretary of the Green Point Masonic Lodge from Mrs. Seward, asking that the lodge take some steps in behalf of her unfortunate husband. This interested many of his friends on eastern Long Island and a letter has been sent to James W. Covert and David B. Hill urging them to interest themselves in the matter."

Forced to Postpone Debs' Case.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—The Debs jury was discharged yesterday and the case was set for a new trial on the first Monday in May. The physician attending James C. Cox, the juror whose illness caused the hitch in the proceedings, declared that the sick man would not be able to resume his duties as a juror for at least thirty days. The Debs' habeas corpus proceedings will occupy the greater part of March.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT

This, the Big Question in Colonial Politics To-Day.

INJURIES TO BRITISH AUTHORS

Colonial Questions Will Occupy the Most Time of the Imperial House—Marking of Cheese—The Anonymous Remarks of a Political Unionist.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The London Chamber of Commerce has intervened in the copyright question. At any rate, it is the medium through which a memorandum on the subject has been forwarded to the press. It commences with the statement that copyright is now uniform throughout the whole of the British dominions, including Canada, and that it is based on the following principles:

1. That a work shall be first or simultaneously published therein.

2. That copyright shall be independent of the place of printing, and of every other condition as to place and manner of manufacture.

3. That the use of it as property shall, while it is copyright, be within the author's control.

Of course, the fact is overlooked that although Canada is a party to the Berne convention, there is no legislation in operation for carrying out its requirements in the Dominion. The memorandum goes on to state that Canada is asking the British Government to sanction arrangements to take away copyright in Canada from all British authors but Canadian. How anyone who knows anything of the question can make such a statement it is difficult to believe. Then, seventeen reasons are given to show some of the "injuries" which it is alleged the proposed Canadian legislation would inflict on British authors, but it is not pointed out that British authors could avoid all the "injuries" by taking out copyright themselves in the terms of the contemplated Act. Neither does it mention that under the existing state of things publishing in Canada has become an industry of the past.

One of the "injuries" the Canadian legislation would inflict on the poor British author is amusing. "It would almost certainly destroy," the circular states, "our present means of securing copyright in the United States of America." It is not added that the legislation, if carried into effect, would stop the importation of cheap American reprints of English works into Canada. Until British authors and publishers, and those who are acting for them, are able to look at the matter from a somewhat broader standpoint than at present, there seems little hope of a settlement being arrived at which will satisfy them and at the same time be agreeable to the Canadian interests concerned.

Colonial Questions Will Crop Up.

In the present session of the Imperial Parliament, if it lasts for any time, colonial questions are likely to occupy considerable attention. There is the report in the proceedings of the Ottawa conference, which is sure to come up for discussion, and the Government will be urged to define their policy in regard to the recommendations of Lord Jersey, both on trade questions (involving the modification or abrogation of the Belgian and German treaties, and the extention of the Act of 1873, to enable Australasia to make commercial agreements with other portions of the Empire); the steamship communication between Australasia and Canada via Great Britain, and cable communication between Canada and Australasia. Then there are the affairs of Newfoundland. Something must be done to improve the position of that unfortunate colony; and the difficulties with France about the west shore are also likely to come up again for settlement. There are many African questions to be disposed of; and it is to be hoped that the present parliament may be asked to consider some scheme, agreed to by the colonies themselves, for the federation of Australasia. That subject however, has been discussed so often at the antipodes, and local jealousies have so frequently stood in the way, that no one likes to prophesy that federation will be accomplished in the near future.

The Judgment in the Schools Case.

The judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, so very important from a Canadian point of view, has attracted little or no attention here. The decision was printed in the Times at some length, but in most of the other papers it was dismissed in a few lines, if noticed at all, and there have been no comments on the subject. In fact, the question is not understood here, and has little interest for anyone, outside perhaps, a few magnates of the Catholic Church who have been agitating the question in the sectarian press. When the judgment was delivered there were no people present in the court except the lawyers engaged in the case and two or three reporters. The public was not represented at all. Mr. Blake made a strong appeal to get costs allowed for the appellants, but their Lordships declined to express any opinion upon that point, seeming to hold that it was not one in which costs should be asked for or granted.

The Marking of Cheese.

The dealers interested in the cheese trade here, who are urging that the date of manufacture should be stamped on Canadian cheese, are not having it all their own way. It is contended, from another point of view, that the adoption of this suggestion would lead to the boycotting by English buyers of May and July makes of cheese. This, it is urged, has been the experience of traders in past years, when each month's make was marked on the product. For several years both May and July makes have been exceptionally good, and it is believed that the trade on both sides of the Atlantic would be losers by the proposed experiment. It is a question also whether English buyers have not been to blame themselves when selling their cold storage cheese in not being perfectly candid in explaining the character of the goods they were offering. The general opinion appears to be that there is nothing to check the enormous growth of the Canadian cheese trade in Great Britain, providing the Canadian factorymen and shippers realise the position of affairs on this side of the water, and do not for the sake of a little temporary gain bolster up the prices to such a point as to interfere with the consumption of the article. These are the opinions of an expert who is acquainted with the trade both in Canada and in this country.

As Seen by a Pessimist.

In a recent number of Mr. Wilson's magazine appears the second part of a letter from a correspondent on Canadian affairs, which is said to emanate from Toronto. The latter is rather doleful and is inclined to run down everything. The proposed steamship service comes in for criticism, and the Canadian Pacific Railway is a "disappointment." The "carnival of railway bonusing" is attacked, and the canals are unsatisfactory. Corruption, both in the legislature and in the municipalities, is discussed, and the only bright things in the picture are the conditions of the Canadian banks and loan companies' the large amount of British money invested in those institutions "being on the whole exceedingly well managed." The following is so very familiar that it will probably enable Canadian readers to identify Mr. Wilson's anonymous correspondent:—

"Canada may become independent for a space. To say nothing of other obstacles the presence of two semi-hostile races under one roof stands in the way of her having a future as a separate nation. The ultimate destiny of Canada, as many if not most Canadians perceive, is political union with the United States, and her bonds and securities will not suffer from that consummation. Who would not be a partner of Rothschild? Canada will then be fighting with nature, instead of against nature, and the British investor cannot fail to profit by the improvement in her fortunes. Englishmen thought the empire as good as ruined when the American colonies threw off their allegiance. Like Canada these colonies contributed nothing to the British treasury, while like hers, their development had been retarded by the connection. Englishmen now allow that they gained rather than lost by the war of independence. The writer ventures to believe that the union of Canada with the United States—a parting of peace and friendship with England—will in like manner redound to the advantage of all concerned. England would be better off, would have more strength to bear the load of the too vast orb of her fate, if freed from the risk of quarrelling with the United States through her obligation to take the part of her colony in its numerous controversies with the Government at Washington. And it is as certain as anything can be that Canada would then begin to prosper in earnest and that the United States would not only benefit prodigiously, but be more disposed, should England ever want a friend, to act upon the principle that blood is thicker than water."

DIED IN A GRAIN SCHUTE.

A Peculiarly Fatal Accident to a Young Man in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Feb. 13.—Henry Humphrey, employed in a malt house, was drawn into a schute from which malt was passing from an upper to a lower bin. The 12-inch spout caught the man fairly and he began a great battle for his life in the maelstrom of grain passing down the schute. Two companions working with him were unable to afford him any assistance and inch by inch Humphrey went to his death. In a few minutes the doomed man was in the malt up to his neck and it seemed as though it would only be a moment before it would close over his head.

"My God, I'm going, I'm going," screamed the man, and he gave a series of agonizing shrieks and the malt closed over his head. Down he went out of sight. In a few moment the spout was closed. When he was dug out twenty minutes later it was found that he had clutched the malt and had gripped it so tightly that he had squeezed the grain into his fingers and into the palms of his hands. He was four feet deep in the grain, and it was more than two feet above his hands, which were stretched straight over his head.

When the spout had been stopped a dozen of his fellow employes hurried to the upper bin to drag him out, but it is certain that he was deep before the spout was stopped. His feet had reached the floor of the bin right at the sides of the spout, but his body was too large to pass through.

TROLLEY STRIKE ENDED.

The Answer of the Brooklyn Heights Company Will Decide It.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 13.—The trolley strike in this city is now practically over. President Lewis, of the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company, will decide to-day whether it shall be carried on any longer or not, when he gives his answer to a proposition that was submitted to him by Judge James Tighe and ex-Assemblyman J. F. Graham. The men appeared for D. A. 75, and offered a proposition to the effect that the men now on strike should be taken back to work. They were closeted with Mr. Lewis and the directors of the company for about two hours. In the proposition the men ask for nothing more than that they be given a chance to go back to work and they waive all of the demands they made when they went on strike. They ask, however, that when a non-union man leaves the company the position will be given to the oldest man in the company's employ. Presidents Lewis promised Mr. Tighe and Mr. Graham that he would answer their proposition to-day.

TWO STATEMENTS.

Apparently votes for Mr. Harty were to be secured at any price. They "came high," but he must have them. Here and there prominent Liberals were caught red-handed in the very act of bribery. MANY AN HONEST MAN, TEMPORARILY DEMORALISED BY THE HARD TIMES, AND THINKING OF HIS BUSINESS HOME AND THE WOLF AT THE DOOR, SUCCUMBED TO THE TEMPTATION TO SELL HIS VOTE AS DEARLY AS HE COULD. —Kingston News, Jan. 30th.

At the great Conservative meeting in Galt on Monday night the Ministers were presented with an address from the working men of that town. Galt is a manufacturing town, such as Peterborough — but, of course not its peer— and the workingmen employed in its industries acknowledged their gratification at the presence of the Dominion Ministers and welcomed them, to use their own words "as the upholders of a policy that has given us workingmen fair play in the contest with workingmen of other countries, and we trust that you may be long spared to defend our present position from all attacks."—Peterborough Review, Jan. 30.

We not only wish to call the attention of the workingmen to the discrepancy in the above statements, but also to the humiliating confession that after giving the N. P. sixteen years opportunity to prove the beneficial effects claimed for it, the Kingston News, a stalwart Conservative paper, accounts for Hon. Mr. Harty's great majority by the fact that Conservative working men were glad to sell their votes to get money to keep their families from starving.

Your fierce protectionist does not care how much he insults the workingman or how much he may beguile him, if he can only gain a political advantage. It was well known to the leaders of the Tory party in 1878, when by misrepresentations to the people, that they could increase the price of everything, that they were making promises that they could not carry out. The people accepted those promises, gave them control of the Government, and drove from power the Mackenzie Government, men who were patriots, statesmen and honest men—men who, rather than act a lie, preferred to lose office.

Men of Northumberland, remember this, and when next you have to vote see that you cast your votes for the Liberal candidate and honest government. — Cobourg World.

AN ODIOUS COMPARISON.

The Conservative organs as well as the ministers are awfully anxious to convince the farmers that they are enjoying a rampant degree of prosperity and that the N. P. has done it all. Our evening contemporary invites of comparisons of prices of farm produce in ante-N.P. times, 1878, with N.P. times, 1896, and submits the following delectable table to prove its contention. Our innocent confrere, the Review, says :—

"And if prices of wheat have gone down, prices of other articles of agricultural production have gone up. Taking the returns of the custom houses, it is found that the average price of the following articles sent abroad has increased as follows :—

	1878	1895.
Sheep, per head	$ 2 90	$ 3 45
Horses, per head	89 98	110 50
Cattle, per head	36 50	72 50
Swine, per head	7 35	9 87
Butter, per pound	18	18½
Cheese, per pound	10½	16
Bacon, per pound	8	10½
Pork, per pound	6½	9
Barley, per bushel	80	40
Oats, per bushel	41	35
Peas, per bushel	82	75
Wheat, per bushel	1 22	1 25
Beans, per bushel	1 05	1 25
Hay, per ton	9 50	9 50
Potatoes, per bushel	34	38
Eggs, per doz.	13½	12½

An examination of these figures will convince the most skeptical that the income of the farmers has not decreased since 1878, upon the whole output of the farm, and it will also inculcate the lesson that in mixed farming the largest profits are to be reaped."

If the farming were as much mixed as the figures quoted it ought to bring very great profits. Such figures call for no comment. Any farmer studying them a moment can be trusted to express an opinion which would not look so well in type as a Sunday school hymn.

The Beater Beaten.

"Since Christmas I've begun to have my doubts about Santa Claus," ruefully exclaimed the boy who smokes cigarettes. "I tried to get an extra share by fooling the old fellow, so I got up in the night and put a big hole in the toe of my stocking, with my fishing net under it, so he wouldn't hear the things drop out." "Wot was de net result?" inquired the boy who couldn't help being funny. "I found the hole darned just like those in my other stockings—and mother gave me a terrible licking for nothing that morning."

A Servant of Milesian Extraction.

At the session of the school for noncommissioned officers of one of the companies stationed at Fort Wayne, the following question was asked of Sergeant —: "What is strategy? Give me an instance of it." After studying for a moment or two, the sergeant gave the reply: "When in battle, and you are out of ammunition and don't know it, it is good strategy to keep right on firing."—San Francisco Argonaut.

The choir of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough drove up here on Tuesday night of last week, and spent a very pleasant evening.

Messrs. (Dr.) J. A. Burgess, R. Waram, W. Northcott, G. Hill, Colman Boyce, W. Preston, S. Jewell and Wm. Graham were representatives of the Lakefield Orange Lodges at the county meeting last Tuesday.

The train has again changed its service, commencing last Thursday and giving us two trains each way daily. The trains will arrive as formerly, at 9.35 a.m., and 2.35 p.m., leaving at 9.50 a.m. and 3.20 p.m. This is much better, as by this service we can get our Toronto mail and papers the same day on which they are printed.

On Friday evening last a Christian Endeavour Rally of the different societies of the village was held in the Presbyterian church. It was a very stormy evening, and there was not a large number present, but those who were there enjoyed it very much. The following is the programme

Song service, 7.45 to 8 o'clock.
Doxology and Hymn No. 40.
Responsive Scripture Reading, Psalm 103.
Prayer, Rev. A. C. Reeves, B.A.
Hymn 240.
Address, "How to Use the Word in Bringing Souls to Christ," Rev. A. C. Reeves.

Hymn 93.
Address, "Reproducing the Christ-life"—objective view, Rev. W. Limbert.
Prayer.
Hymn 53.
Address, "The Spiritual Life of Endeavourers,"—subjective view, Rev. A. R. McDonald.
Prayer.
Hymn 44.
Expressions on "What has the Service of Christ Done for me?" by members.
Prayer, Rev. A. R. McDonald, B. A.
Collection.
Closing prayer and benediction by Rev. W. Limbert.

On Friday and Saturday we have had very heavy snowstorms, with a raw wind drifting up the roads, the trains were unable to arrive until Monday forenoon. The roads through the country are badly blocked. The churches had very few people in from the country on Sunday.

On Friday evening of this week a Missionary C. E. service will be held in the Presbyterian church at a quarter to eight the subject being Japan. Very interesting papers will be read and a good programme provided. A collection will be taken up in aid of missions. All are invited.

A vagrant occupied a cell in hotel Doidge on Sunday night of last week.

The Christian Endeavour society of the Presbyterian Church will hold a social at the house of Mr. Hugh M. Davidson, Smith, on Monday evening, Feby. 25th. At which a very pleasant time may be expected.

On Thursday evening, February 14th a second Carnival will be held. The first one was a grand success but this is expected to eclipse the first one. Good prizes will be offered for several events.

Miss Sara Lord Bailey, the popular elocutionist, gave a recital here on Monday night of this week under the auspices of the Methodist church, to a large and appreciative audience in the town hall. The following was the programme: —

Organ instrumental ..... Miss Graham
"The Boston Vendor's Call" ..... Miss Bailey
"How the Ladies Usually Fish" ..... Miss Bailey
Solo—"Marguerite" ..... Miss Hendren
"The Chariot Race," from Ben Hur ..... Miss Bailey
Song—"O Sing to me the Auld Scotch Songs" ..... Mr R G. Graham
"Prompt Obedience" ..... Miss Bailey
Solo—"I Will Sing You a Song" ..... Miss Hendren
"The Engineer's Signal" ..... Miss Bailey
"Little Nellie's Gift" ..... Miss Bailey
Solo—"Oh! Nightingale" ..... Miss Hendren
"Experience of a Genius" ..... Miss Bailey
God Save the Queen.

Miss Bailey was frequently encored and she responded twice by favouring the audience with "Mammy's Little Boy" and "A Girl with Thirty-nine Lovers." It was quite a treat to listen to her and should she appear again, she will likely have a large house.

NEW YEAR NEW GOODS NEW LEAF 1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Cloths and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we will do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will set off cheap.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Several years ago, I caught a severe cold, attended with a terrible cough that allowed me no rest, either day or night. The doctors, after working over me to the best of their ability, pronounced my case hopeless, and said they could do no more for me. A friend, learning of my trouble, sent me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which I began to take, and very soon I was greatly relieved. By the time I had used the whole bottle, I was completely cured. I have never had much of a cough since that time, and I firmly believe that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life."—W. H. SIR RICHARD NOMINATED.

South Oxford Liberals Again Select Him as Their Candidate.

NORWICH, Ont., Feb. 13.—The Reform convention for the south riding of Oxford was held here yesterday. About 200 delegates were present. Some warm words were indulged in by the opposing faction, some being in favor of S. H. Janes and others favoring Sir R. J. Cartwright, the two leading candidates for the nomination of the convention. The following were nominated: Cartwright, Janes, Cox, Pattullo, Schill, Jackson, Buchanan, McKay, and others.

The meeting seemed equally divided for Cartwright and Janes and great excitement prevailed when the ballot was announced. It resulted in the selection of Sir R. J. Cartwright by a ballot of 117 to 98 for Janes and the choice of the convention was made unanimous.

Brockville Liberals.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Feb. 13.—Despite the heavy roads rendered by the late snow storms the Liberal convention held here yesterday to select a candidate to contest the riding in the Liberal interest in the coming Dominion election was largely attended by representatives from every portion of the riding. Over a dozen were nominated but all retired in favor of Mr. James Cumming of Lyn, who was made the unanimous choice.

West Elgin Reformers.

BISMARCK, Ont., Feb. 13.—A large and very enthusiastic convention was held in Bismarck to nominate a candidate in the Reform interest for West Elgin. Mr. Geo. E. Casey, the present member, who has represented the county for the past twenty-two years, was chosen as the standard-bearer.

A Pilot Boat Missing.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—No tidings of the pilot boat James Stafford which was blown out to sea last Thursday night have been received. She had eight men aboard.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 13, 1895.

The grain market remained inactive. Dealers are doing nothing, and the prospects are that they will continue to have considerable leisure. Wheat prices are unchanged with a limited demand. Wheat is quoted at 57 to 58c west and white at the same price. Barley market is slow. No. 1 is quoted at 45c and No. 2 43 to 44c. Oats are quoted, west, white 29c and mixed 28c.

There were no grain markets in Chicago on account of Lincoln's birthday.

Barley in Buffalo was quiet. No. 1 Canada 65c; No. 2, to arrive, 62 to 63c; No. 3 extra, 60 to 61c.

At East Buffalo in sheep and lambs the total offerings were 117 cars, about twelve cars being fresh receipts, including one car of Canadas. Owing to a shortage of cars it is impossible to get stock out and the market is glutted. At the close there were 75 cars held unsold, including the car of Canadas; prime Canada lambs held at $6.

Affairs at the New York stock exchange were characterised by quiet again and the movements in the leading shares were erratic, yet on the whole a firmer feeling prevailed and in a majority of instances the net changes for the day show gains of 1-8 to 5-8 per cent. The market continued firm until advices were received from Washington that the Senate Finance Committee had voted in favor of unlimited silver coinage. On this the bears raided the list and most of the early improvement was lost. The market closed steady in tone.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

Watters' Case Will be Postponed—Mr. Foster Leaves for His Home.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—H. B. Spencer, assistant superintendent of the eastern division of the C. P. R., in a conversation with a reporter said that the fight which the company experienced in keeping the roads cleared during the last snow storm was almost unprecedented in the history of the line. All day Saturday, Sunday and Monday there were two engines attached to all passenger trains and in some cases there were three engines behind the snow ploughs. At some points the ploughs had to grapple with snow banks 18 and 20 feet high. It was a hard struggle, but the roads were kept open all over the division during the great snow storm that there were no serious delays.

It was stated at the Department of Justice that the prosecution in the Watters' case will consent to an adjournment when the case comes up to-morrow morning to Tuesday, the 19th, on account of Mr. B. B. Osler, counsel for the accused, being indisposed through the recent railway accident he passed through.

Hon. George Foster left for New Brunswick. He goes to attend the convention of Conservatives for King's county, his own constituency. Mr. Foster does not intend to run for this constituency again. The Minister of Finance may run for York county in place of Mr. Temple, who will get one of the eleven vacancies now in the Senate.

A Chesley Woman Suicides.

CHESLEY, Ont., Feb. 13.—Mrs. William Cruickshanks, committed suicide while laboring under mental depression. She was found suspended by the neck with a scarf tied to a bedpost in her bedroom. When found life was extinct. She leaves a husband and a large family of children to mourn her rash act.

A Seat on the Bench for Curran.

MONTREAL, Feb. 13.—It is generally stated in Conservative circles here, and accepted as well-founded, that Hon. J. J. Curran, Solicitor-General, is about to be raised to the Superior Court bench to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sir Francis Johnson.

A BIG BUFFALO FIRE.

Caused by an Explosion in an Envelope Factory.

Buffalo, Feb. 13.—The four storey brick building, Nos. 10 to 16 Louk street, extending from the terrace to Erie street, was gutted by fire yesterday. It was occupied by the Buffalo Spring Bed Company, Burdick Envelope and Bookbinder's Supply Company, Rogers & Blackhall, manufacturers of binders' supplies, August Fiene, ornamental iron works; H. L. Hart, manufacturer of printers' rollers and paste. Total loss will reach $100,000. The blaze was caused by an explosion in the Burdick envelope factory which shook the neighboring buildings and cracked the ice in the canal on which the Gilbert building abuts. A number of canal boats occupied by families are wintering in the canal back of the building. One of them was the Flower City, which was occupied by a boatman named Brooks and his wife. A few minutes before the explosion Brooks' dog, a large mastiff, began whining and growling and his master got out of his bunk, gave the dog a good kick and sent him out of the cabin.

The animal howled all the louder and barked with such vengeance that Brooks got up again to eject the poor beast from the boat. In return for three or four sharp cuffs he licked his master's hand and continued to howl piteously. Brooks dragged the dog to the deck, intending to put him off the boat, when he discovered the fire. Hastily returning he aroused his wife and with no little difficulty they escaped only a few seconds before the explosion which blew out the rear of the third and fourth stories and riddled the deck of the canal boat. A shower of bricks, pieces of iron and heavy timbers fell on the boat and crushed the whole boat as if it was made of thin ice.

The dog, after saving his master and mistress, was caught in the falling debris and killed.

OCCULT POWERS OF JEWELS.

Strange and Supernatural Influences Formerly Ascribed to Different Gems.

While everyone admires the various jewels from an ornamental view-point, it may not be generally known that in times past nearly all of the more important precious stones were supposed to possess occult powers over disease, and in other supernatural directions.

A writer in Chamber's Journal recently compiled an article descriptive of the supposed powers thus possessed, from which we gather that the diamond, though considered to be of itself deadly poison, had, till recently, from remote ages, been credited with the power of protecting its wearer from the evil effects of other poisons—which may have been the foundation of its popularity. Pliny described it as having the power to avert insanity—and amber was credited with the same quality. The ruby was supposed to exert a healthful influence upon the liver, and to be valuable for disordered eyes; the latter quality being also ascribed to the sapphire and emerald—the emerald, when seen by a serpent, being further supposed to blind the reptile and render him harmless. The turquois was supposed to act as a sort of health indicator, the intensity of its color being in ratio to the physical well-being of its wearer. It was also reputed to be the safeguard against harm in case the wearer should fall from any height. The opal was looked upon as a thunderstone, possessing the virtues of many others in combination, but the onyx was regarded as rendering one peculiarly susceptible to annoyance from nightmares and demons, which seriously affected its popularity. The amethyst was supposed to prevent intoxication, the coral to protect against the evil eye, and the topaz to deprive boiling water of its heat.

Look Out

for breakers ahead when pimples, boils, carbuncles and like manifestations of impure blood appear. They wouldn't appear if your blood were pure and your system in the right condition. They show you need—a good blood-purifier; that's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It carries health with it. All Blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. It invigorates the liver purifies and enriches the blood, and rouse every organ into healthful action. In the most stubborn forms of Skin Diseases, such as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, and with Scrofula in every shape, and all blood-taints, if it fails to cure, you have your money back. And that makes it the CHEAPEST blood-purifier sold.

EYES TO SEE AND SEE NOT.

That is the case with many people. They need spectacles, and the strange part of it is that some folks never know how bad their eyes are until they have them tested. Have been going through life without seeing as much as they ought to see—perhaps suffering from headaches and tired eyes.

If you will call at Sanderson's Jewelry Store, George street, your eyes will be examined free of charge. If you need Glasses they will be supplied at a reasonable price. Do not neglect this matter and so be like those who have EARS TO HEAR AND HEAR NOT.

Illegal Sales of Rennet.

Complaints having been made to the Inland Revenue Department of the sale of rennet by wine measure instead of by Imperial measure, as required by the Weights and Measures Act, the Commissioner of Inland Revenue has issued instructions to the Inspectors of Weights and Measures, requiring them to enforce the provisions of the Act which prohibits the sale of or making contracts for the delivery of any liquid except by the standard measure. As most of the rennet used in this district comes from the United States, cheese factories ordering it should insist on its being put up by the manufacturers in the United States in accordance with the requirements of the Canadian statute.

Mr. Andrews was detained in England at the last moment by the illness of his mother, which prevented his arrival as expected last month. He is in Deacon's Orders at present, but will shortly proceed to the Priesthood. He expresses the greatest pleasure in anticipation of his work in the parish of Peterborough, which the Bishop of Toronto has been pleased to describe to him in terms of high appreciation.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. John Lillico.

It is with sadness that we record the death of Mrs. Lillico, relict of the late John Lillico. Mrs. Lillico has been in very poor health for some time, therefore her death was not unexpected. She passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. Colin, North Monaghan, on Monday morning. There are three sons and three daughters left to mourn the loss of a loving mother, Messrs. James and Richard of Peterborough, and Thomas, North Monaghan. The three daughters are Mrs. Thos. Fry, Mrs. R. Colin and Mrs. John Patten, all of Monaghan. The family have the deepest sympathy of a large circle of friends in their time of sorrow.

LIBERAL CONVENTION.

By advertisement in another column it will be seen that a convention of the Liberals of East Peterborough will be held in the Town Hall, Norwood, on Tuesday, Feb. 26th, at one o'clock p.m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate to contest the representation of East Peterborough in the Liberal interests at the forthcoming Dominion elections. All Liberals who have the interest of good government at heart will readily recognize the importance of a large and representative gathering from all parts of the riding. The conventions held by the Liberal party admit of all interested in the selection of a candidate being present and having a voice in the necessary discussion incidental to the occasion. At the present juncture it is not only a privilege but a positive duty of every loyal and patriotic Canadian to not only take part actively in selecting a candidate, but also an active part in securing the election of such a candidate, and it is only by earnest and practically unanimous co-operation that the redemption of the East Riding can be accomplished, as it will be accomplished if there is prompt, vigorous and united work put forth. Never before were the people at large so ripe for some change in a system of government administration that will give the country honest, economical and wise government, and it is the duty of every Liberal to help to give effect to such sentiments.

At three o'clock the Peterborough's were still holding their own.

The survivors in the primary competitions for the Ontario Tankard have now been declared, and it is gratifying to know that not one of the 16 groups is unrepresented. The list is—Oshawa, Peterborough, Lindsay, North Bay, Collingwood, Hamilton Thistles, Brantford, Prospect Park, Toronto Granites, St. Thomas, Buffalo Caledonian, Chatham, Chesley. During all the contests which have taken place, and in which more than 80 clubs have been reduced to 16, there has been no dispute, and no protest, and the finest feeling prevails throughout the whole association, and it may be confidently expected that every one of the 16 winners will be on the ice next week, prepared for the greatest contest in which they ever engaged. There may also be looked for as fine an exhibition not only of curling as the world can furnish, but of manly vigor aroused to its utmost endeavour, and maintained during hour after hour of alternating defeat and triumph, in the 12 ends which constitute a game. The clubs surviving are all of high class as regards skill and endurance, and he would be a rash man who would venture to select the ultimate winner or presume to name any who are likely to fall out in the early stages of the conflict.

THE TABLES TURNED.

May I have the pleasure of the next waltz with you? he said to the tall and stately blonde at the masquerade.

Certainly, I will be delighted.

So they waltzed and promenaded the whole evening. He gazed into the deep blue eyes and began to pine for the time when the mask would be removed so that he might gaze upon her lovely face.

At last the clock struck 12, the masks were taken off, and he saw the avenging face and form of his angry wife, whom he had left safely at home.

Are you satisfied? he asked coolly. I have made love to you the whole evening, so that no other fellow has dared to come near you. If I had not discovered your scheme, I would not have been here to-night.

And she believed him.

It will pay you to visit Grafton & Co's just now.

Scrofula in the Neck—Bunches All Gone Now.

Sangerville, Maine.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot say enough in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. For five years I have been troubled with scrofula in my neck and throat. Several kinds of medicines which I tried did not do me any good, and when I commenced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there were large bunches on my neck so sore that I could not bear the slightest touch. When I had taken one bottle of this medicine, the soreness had gone, and before I had finished the second the bunches had entirely disappeared." BLANCHE ATWOOD, Sangerville, Maine.

NORWOOD NEWS NOTES.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. F. H. Pearce, who is attending Trinity Medical College, is seriously ill.

Miss Garratt, of the High School staff, was ill this week.

Mr. W. A. F. Campbell has recovered from an attack of la grippe.

Another masquerade carnival will be held in the rink Friday, Feb. 22nd.

There are now about twenty-five attending the night school, which was opened a few weeks ago. Sessions are held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday in the High School building.

Owing to the bad roads the races, which were to have been held on the pond on Tuesday and Wednesday, have been postponed for two weeks.

A meeting of the School Board was held Tuesday evening of last week. Beyond the receiving of the Inspector's report no business of importance was transacted. The matter of hiring a fifth teacher for the high school was brought up, but was left over till the March meeting when the question will be fully discussed.

At the last meeting of Norwood Lodge A..F. & A.M., the following officers were elected:

W Bro John Powell	P M
" E Gear	W M
" Wm Hutchinson	S W
" Matthew White	J W
" Robt Scott	Sec
" W E Roxburgh	Treas
Bro W H Minaker	S D
" Thos Rork	Chap

At the close of the meeting the members adjourned to the Brennan House where an excellent supper had been provided. The officers were installed Tuesday evening.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The following is a synopsis of the report of Inspector Seath on his visit to the High School here:—

I Accommodation — Water supply, II; school grounds, II; school buildings, II; class rooms, II; halls, I; cap rooms II; teachers private rooms, II; desks, II; blackboards, I; lighting, I; heating, I; ventilation, I.

II Equipment—Library, present value, $327.58; apparatus, present value, $221.80; maps, globes, present value, $15.00. The supply of physical is not complete. The board make the necessary additions as soon as possible.

III. Organization — 1. Subjects on programme not taught, optional subjects.

2. Provision made for teaching — (a) writing, time provided is about that required by the regulations; (b) reading, sufficient; (c) drill, calisthenics and gymnasium, none in winter; (d) other subjects, owing to the inadequacy of the staff the provision is in most cases insufficient.

3. Division of duties among teachers, very satisfactory.

3. Ratio of pupils to teachers. There should not be more than thirty pupils for each teacher in a high school in which the work in all the forms is taken up. If the work of Form IV. were taken up in all departments two more masters would be needed. As matters stand a fifth teacher is imperative.

IV. Character of Teaching—English, I-II; Mathematics, I; Science, I-II; Classics, I; French and German, I-II; Drawing, I; Reading, II. Commercial not inspected.

V. Miscellaneous—
1. Staff legally qualified.
2. Discipline excellent.
3. Text books—all authorized.
4. Registers—daily and general satisfactory.
5. Supplementary reading in English Literature satisfactory provision.
6. Writing—Last class of entrants, some good, most fair, a few poor.
7. Primary examination, 1895, in commercial work—Amount and standard satisfactory.

XVI. GENERAL REMARKS.—The extraordinary success and general efficiency of this school have evidently led to the present excessive attendance. There are now 177 pupils on the roll, 62 from the municipality, 85 from the county, and 30 from other counties. Another class room and teacher are indispensable. The class room may be provided by running a partition down the centre of the large room. Even with another teacher the attendance will be very large. I need hardly add that the present abnormal attendance is very largely due to the well-known zeal and ability of the Principal.

In addition it may be said that Mr. Seath, during his visit to Norwood, stated to several that no more thorough and excellent work has been done by any High School or Collegiate Institute in the province. As a proof of the popularity of the school we can point to its phenomenal growth. Ten years ago it had an enrollment of only 40, with two masters. Now it has an enrollment of nearly 180, or an increase of 35 per cent., and that too in a village that has grown but very little in population.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The council met at the Town Hall, on Monday, Feby. 11th, at one o'clock. There were present Jos. Forster, Esq., Reeve and councillors Johnston, Hunter and McIntosh. The minutes of the meeting of January 22nd were read and confirmed. Communications were received from Cox & Davis, enclosing renewal receipt for insurance policy on the Town Hall—Received. From the Rev. A. McWilliams recommending charity to be given to the Brownlee family—Received. From Mrs. Close asking for charity.—Received. From W. Karr asking to have the road shoveled near the Lock's Bridge—Received. The following accounts were presented: J. H. Forster, fixing culvert and material therefor $2.00; John Johnston, for planking bridge on ½ line $2.00; Peterborough Hardware Company, nails, etc. $1.65; A. McDonald, material per Clysdale and Johnston $9.98; Cox & Davis, insurance premium $5.95. Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. McIntosh, that the payment of the account of the Peterborough Hardware Company be deferred until properly certified to.—Carried. On motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. McIntosh, the remaining accounts were passed and orders issued therefor. Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Hunter, that Mrs. Close be given 100 lbs. of flour and a load of wood as charity.—Carried. Moved by Mr. McIntosh, seconded by Mr. Hunter, that whereas there are applications to this council for charity for several poor persons residing within this corporation, and whereas on account of the recent snow storm the public highways are blocked to a very great extent, be it therefore resolved that employment shovelling snow to make the roads passable be given to the deserving poor of this municipality at the wage of 75c. per day. And be it further resolved that this council be a charity committee, any two members of which to be a quorum, having authority to investigate any applications for charity and dispense the same in the manner deemed most expedient in accordance with the preamble of this resolution, said committee to report in detail to this council when in session from time to time.—Carried.

The auditors report of 1894 was received and finally audited by the council, showing detailed statement of receipts and expenditure from Jan. 1, 1894, to Dec. 31st, 1894, inclusive. Also abstract statement of same, and statement of assets and liabilities as follows:

Receipts	$6,610 51
Expenditure	5,962 44
Cash balance on hand	562 07

ASSETS.

Uncollected taxes on Dec. 31st, 1894	$1,376 79
Cash on hand	562 07
Property, etc	3,586 00
	$5,465 86

LIABILITIES.

County rate, 1894	$1,443 97

Moved by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Hunter, that the auditor's statement be received and adopted and that the clerk be instructed to have the same published according to law and that the auditors' salaries be paid.—Carried. Moved by Mr. McIntosh, seconded by Mr. Johnston, that as the application of Geo. Moncrief to a former meeting of this council for a refund of dog tax in 1893, has been certified to by the assessor for that year, an order be drawn upon the treasurer for the sum of $1, in payment of the same.—Carried. Moved by Mr. McIntosh, seconded by Mr. Johnston, that the taxes of Andrew Dobbin be remitted for the year 1894.—Carried. On motion of Mr. Hunter, seconded by Mr. Johnston, council adjourned until Monday, March 25th, at one o'clock, to meet to appoint pathmasters, poundkeeps, &c.

The storm of Friday and Saturday was pronounced by old residents of the township to have been the worst ever seen in this section of the country. All the roads were completely blockaded, but will be open for traffic in a day or two.

Several young men were seen crossing fields on foot Sunday afternoon, and judging by the direction taken by some it was not to church they were going either.

Snow shoes would have been in great demand in Monaghan on Sunday.

Your correspondent has learned that the Grangers intend asking for tenders for the erection of a hall to replace the one which so mysteriously went up in smoke last April. "Oh, let it be soon!"

The Royal Templars now hold their meetings in the school house much to the satisfaction of all concerned. Let there be a big rally Thursday night next, as business of importance is to be brought before the meeting.

HUSTLING MAYBLOCK.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A quiet wedding took place last Wednesday at the C. P. R. boarding house, when Miss Lizzie Jack, daughter of Mr. R. Jack, proprietor of the boarding house, and Mr. Wm. Taylor, of Meaford, were joined in the bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Dr. McClelland. The groomsman was Mr. R. Jack, brother of the bride, and the bridesmaid was Miss Taylor, the groom's sister. They left for Chicago on the afternoon train with the good wishes of friends and the congratulatory crack of fog signals.

Mr. Irwin Frederick, of Campbellford, paid us a visit last Wednesday.

Mr. J. R. Irish, L.D.S., of Trenton, commenced his dental duties last Monday and made a very fair start.

Mr. Thos. Fraser, Norwood, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. A. Anderson, Norwood, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. Geo. Whorle has moved into the the residence lately occupied by the Rev. Dr. McClelland.

The fife and drum band is progressing fast under the leadership of Mr. Dan Best.

The recent cold snap nearly spoiled the fun on our skating rink, but Tommy, our enterprising caretaker, put it in proper shape in short order.

Be sure and see Dan Simons, Canada's greatest clog and step dancer, at the grand concert in Drain's new hall, on Friday, Feb. 22nd.

The roads are in very bad condition at present, owing to the severe snow storm last week. No freight trains are running on the C.P.R. and passenger trains from two to five hours late.

About four o'clock Thursday morning Mr. Dan Young's house was discovered to be on fire. Mr. Young, who lives near Round Lake, has been a resident of Belmont for a number of years, and the occupants barely escaped with their lives. Everything was burned with the exception of some wearing apparel. Cause of fire unknown.

Mr Wm. Judson, barber, has moved from his old stand to Mr. Jos. Knox's new building, two doors west of the post office.

Another carnival is going to be held in the rink on Friday, Feb. 15th.

The weather has been very cold for the past week, it being from 29 to 36 degrees below zero.

A number of the boys visited Norwood last Wednesday night to see the hockey match between the village team and McGregor's Hotel.

Not many commercial travellers have landed in town last week, owing to the blockading of the passenger trains and cold weather.

If you want a stylish turn-out in the livery line, go and see T. Smith.

The Watson Bros.' butcher shop is well supplied, and much credit is due to the enterprising proprietors for the courteous way in which they do their business.

On Monday two loads of young people of the town drove out to Trent Bridge, to the residence of Mr. Boswell. It was a very pleasant night for driving, but the roads were in a very bad condition owing to the recent heavy fall of snow, and the progress was slow. They were most hospitably received by the host and hostess, and spent a most enjoyable evening. The party arrived home about five o'clock Tuesday morning.

The Royal Templars of Temperance gave a concert Tuesday evening in Drain's Hall. A fair number were present, and Mr. Joyce, the reeve, presided. Short speeches were given by Rev. Messrs. Coon, Williams and McClelland, also Mr. Ketch, of Campbellford. Below is the programme:

PROHIBITIONIST MANIFESTO.

A manifesto to the prohibitionists of Ontario has just been issued by Messrs. J. J. Maclaren and F. S. Spence, chairman and secretary of the Dominion Alliance, on behalf of the Alliance Executive Committee. The manifesto refers to the late Supreme Court decisions, and states that, in view of an assurance given by the Ontario Government that the appeal of the Privy Council would be pressed with the greatest amount of despatch, and the present uncertainty, it has been thought wise to defer the annual convention of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance until the decision of the Privy Council. There will then be issued immediately a call for a general convention, to which every temperance and prohibitory organization, every church and Young People's Christian Society, will be asked to send delegates, and at which the whole situation will be thoroughly considered. Regrets are expressed that neither political party has taken a decided stand upon the question of prohibition, the necessity of securing representatives to Parliament who can be depended on in this connection dwelt upon, and the co-operation of all interested in the work strongly urged.

DUE TO WET FEET.

Many Forms of Kidney Diseases Caused by Neglect to keep the Feet Dry.

OTTAWA, Feb. 13.—Wet feet as a cause of illness is a fruitful subject of warning by doctors. The fair sex are specially apt to expose themselves to serious illness by neglecting to keep their feet dry. Among other consequences of wet feet are Bright's disease, diabetes, and other kidney disorders, of course, prevention is better than cure, but when a man or woman finds himself or herself attacked by any kidney ailment due to a wetting, they should use the only sure cure which is Dodd's Kidney Pills. These pills have stood the test of years and have never yet failed to cure a case of kidney disease when used according to directions.

THE MASQUERADE CHARITY BALL.

THE OPERA HOUSE THE SCENE OF ANIMATED GAIETY.

Mr. J. H. Carlon Deserving of Great Credit for his Endeavours to Make the Great Charity Ball a Success—Some of the Costumes.

The opera house was a scene of animated gaiety, indeed, last evening, when the Charity Masquerade Ball was held. The floor was excellent and the music furnished by the 57th Battalion Band and Butcher's orchestra, perfect.

The costumes, though not numerous, were original and pretty and the effect was most harmonious and unique. Some of the combinations produced in the dance were humourous and

IN SOME CASES STARTLING.

Cinderella innocently tripped the fantastic with a French voyageur, while Winter gaily courted with Paddy from Ireland and Little Red Ridinghood, forgetting the lesson she learned or should have learned in her experience with the wolf, all unconsciously accepted the protection of a most ferocious looking Bengal Tiger. Sir Walter Raleigh, forgetting his dignity, whirled through the mazy waltz with a Kitchen Maid, while the Stars and Stripes seemed to have a remarkable attraction for a sombre looking Turk in rich apparel. A cavalry officer, resplendent in gold braid, actually to carry on a flirtation with Scheraszade, a dark eyed daughter of the Orient. Mephisto flitted hither and thither like an uneasy spirit. The Girl of the Period stole away from numerous admirers and took a quiet smoke in the cloak room, where her sweet smiles and blooming complexion were critically dilated upon by an admiring audience.

NEGLECTED HIS DUTY

It has been some years since Peterborough has had a masquerade ball, and there was a general desire to see the gay maskers, consequently there was a great rush of spectators, and the seating capacity was fully occupied. Although there were probably not more than forty or fifty couple on the floor, still, financially, the Charity Ball must have been a success, as there were present. At midnight the dancers removed their masks, and many surprises were in store, which were amusing to witness.

Miss Hay was awarded the prize for being the best dressed lady present. She personated an Hungarian peasant girl and was most appropriately and tastefully attired.

Mr. J. P. Hurley was successful in winning the prize as the best dressed gentleman in costume. He represented a Turkish Pasha, and his costume was an admirably selected one, being of the richest material.

Mr. Fred Logan as a tiger was indeed a splendid representation and fully deserved the prize, which was awarded him as the wearer of the best comic costume.

During the evening refreshments were served by Mr. Wm. Bowman, which reflected great credit on his skill as a caterer.

The decorations of the hall, which were so universally admired, were the work of the firm of J. J. Turner & Son.

The dancing bears proved one of the most amusing features of the evening. The various characters were admirably assumed as follows:—

Trainer	Capt Clair Calcutt
Organ Grinder	R T Hartley
Bears	W A Logan, A Mercier

Shortly after midnight a general invitation to the audience to participate in the dancing drew a great many additional couples to the floor.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

What John Wanamaker, the Most Heavily Insured man in America, Says:

(INTERVIEW WITH JOHN WANAMAKER.)

It is very generally known that Ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, carries the largest amount of Life Insurance of any man in the United States. A representative of the press recently interviewed this gentleman while he was travelling with the Presidential party, and this interview will be found, we believe, of general interest:—

"You are said to be the most heavily insured man in the country, Mr. Wanamaker," remarked the press representative.

"How did you come to think of that?" he said with a smile. "You are not looking for any disaster under such excellent management as our friend Boyd is giving this train and party?"

"No," I replied. "A newspaper friend in San Francisco, who had heard the report, wanted me to ask you it it was true, and if so, what your business reasons are for it?"

"Well," he modestly answered, "I have heard it stated that I am the most heavily insured man in the country. I don't know about that. The amount of my policies is $1,550,000, and the value, with the accumulations since the policies were taken out, is about two millions of dollars."

"In what class of companies are your policies?"

"They are all in stock and mutual companies, and none of them in what are known as assessment or instalment companies."

"Are they full life term policies or on what is termed the 'tontine' plan?"

"I have generally taken ten and fifteen payment policies and very few life policies. With about all good companies a contract can now be made whereby there is no risk of losing a policy after two years' premiums have been paid. If the party insured chooses to withdraw he can get a paid-up policy. Indeed, I understand that some companies have forms whereby the insurer can after one year, if desired, withdraw and receive a paid-up policy. There is practically little risk, any more, in insuring in the old companies."

"Perhaps you would be willing to tell me how you came to insure so heavily?"

"I thought the matter out, and convinced myself that it was a good business venture. Besides, it seemed to me that I might, perhaps, give away more money in lifetime if there was a fixed certainty of putting it back into my estate by Life Insurance. I conceive that the best way for a man to carry on benevolence is not to leave it to be done through his will, but to do it in his lifetime, and I felt that Life Insurance would give me more freedom in carrying out some plans I have, and which I would be glad to see completed before I leave this world. If you want to ascertain what the circumstances were in placing the Life Insurance, I must go further in my answers and say that I should not have gone so far in my Life Insurance but for the skill of the agent who tackled me to insure to a greater extent than I would otherwise have done. He was an old friend who had been in mercantile business and who knew how to present Life Insurance without boring me. I feel to-day sincerely grateful to the man who followed me so discreetly with information about companies, and who kept the subject before me until I settled the question."

"When did you begin taking Life Insurance policies?"

"My first policy was taken when I was twenty-one."

"Do you consider it a good thing for a man of small means?"

"I certainly do. Most young men spend more for cigars during the year than the annual cost of a $2,500 policy in a good company. If they must have the cigars they might divide between cigars and Life Insurance and carry at least a $1,000 policy. I think every young man, before he is married, ought to try to get at least a $1,000 policy."

"Among how many companies are your policies divided, and where are they located?"

"About forty companies. Most of them are located in the East. A few are in the West and a few in Canada."

"Do you recommend Life Insurance to others, especially those in whom you feel a personal interest?"

"I can perhaps answer that best by saying that I presented a few years ago a $1,000 policy, paid up for one year, to every insurable head of family in my employ. Many of the prudent men who received them not only kept them but added to them, and I have the satisfaction of knowing that in not a few cases those policies have been the means of saving worthy families from want."

It will doubtless be of interest to our readers to know that John Wanamaker carries a large policy in the Canada Life Insurance Company, thus evincing his confidence in the soundness of Canada's oldest and largest Company. During the last few years quite a number of American capitalists have been convinced of the SUPERIOR MERITS OF THE CANADA LIFE, and have accordingly placed their insurance therein, in preference to any other company.

The Canada Life is now being recognized in the states of Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio as the Company that gives the best results for the least premium.

NYE ON IMAGINATION.

HE TELLS OF A SPECIALLY FINE INSTANCE IN WASHINGTON.

The Police and the Dead Dog—A Hidden Crime and the Consequences—How a Fresh Air Crank Enjoyed Sound Sleep in a Pullman Car.

Last summer a mysterious crime occurred in K street, northwest, Washington, D.C., which was never given to the public. On a sultry midsummer day a man might have been seen glancing furtively about in that neighborhood as if to see if any one might be observing him, while under his arm and partly concealed he carried an inanimate, cold and pulseless body.

The servant who saw him from the window of an upper story near by thought it looked like the body of a deceased dog. While she watched him from behind a closed shutter he dexterously concealed his burden beneath the shrubbery in the adjoining grounds and fled on swift pinions, so to speak, being soon lost to view.

In a couple of days the neighboring servants began to complain of the odor and as the owner of the grounds whereupon the body had been deposited was away temporarily it was suggested that the boys who played on the adjoining grounds every day should get over the hedge and secure the remains, so that they might be entombed.

The boys crept up towards the shrubbery with patient clothespins on their noses, but could not approach nearer than twenty-five feet, though they could see the still, calm features of the little pet through the green leaves of the currant bushes. Evidently in life it had been a watch dog, and even in death it succeeded in keeping the boys away from the fruit. It was kind of touching to see the little dumb brute lie there so still in death, yet so eloquent withal that even his voiceless clay made people pay attention.

The boys came back to report that the dog seemed to crave that part of Washington mostly for himself, and that he was not only contented with his lot, but desired most of it for his own use.

By and by the neighbors got uneasy about their health. Washington gets pretty hot in summer, and even a moderate-sized dog under the genial rays of an August sun will attract more adverse criticism sometimes than the Administration.

This one did.

So a lady on the corner, whose house and grounds are next door to where the dog seemed to be taking place, sent word to the Police Department, asking that a cart and a good offhand memorial orator be sent up to K street.

Meantime the owner returned to his residence, and the lady who lives next door went over to speak to him about how his animal was violating a city ordinance on those grounds. Before she could get at the subject, however, the owner's son came along from the garden with a life-sized china dog.

"There," said the father, "I thought I had concealed that china dog in the currant bushes, where it wouldn't be found any more, but he's gone and discovered it."

"Is that the dog that has been there in the bushes the past two weeks?"

"Yes."

"Well, the police will be here after it in a few minutes."

"Why?"

"Well, we thought we could smell it a good deal lately, and people threatened to move away if the police didn't do something with it. Some of my friends said that the odor kept them awake nights. One family whose home is at Constable Hook, N.J., and who are used to the clover-scented air of Elizabeth and the Standard oil works, moved away yesterday on account of it."

And soon afterwards the police did come along to relieve the neighborhood of the poisonous and pestilential odor of a china dog. This is a true story told me by one of the victims.

Imagination is a great thing. I have seen a fresh-air crank, after hours of restlessness on a Pullman car at night, raise a window and sleep sweetly all night, forgetting that it was a double window.

Thirty years ago I wrote a composition upon "The Powers of Imagination," and I then said: "The powers of imagination are certainly many and wonderful." Pungent and radical as this statement seemed to me at the time, I can say now truly, even after the flight of years, that I see no reason for changing my mind.

WENT DOWN WITH HIS SHIPS.

The Officer Who Commanded the Ill-Fated Elbe for Three Years.

Kurt von Goessel, captain of the foundered North German Lloyd steamship Elbe, was born in Ratibor, Prussian Silesia, where his mother still lives.

The Von Goessels are connected with many of the most aristocratic families in Germany. Capt. von Goessel's only brother is a general in the German army, and under Emperor William I. was a member of the general staff.

Von Goessel ran away to sea when he was fifteen years old. He became an enthusiastic sailor, and eventually commanded a fine sailing ship. More than twenty years ago he passed the examinations required by the Lloyds, and entered their service as a fourth officer. He took command of the Elbe about three years ago. For three years previous to that time he was captain of one of the company's vessels that went from Bremen to Singapore, through the Suez Canal. Before that time he commanded a Lloyd boat that sailed from Bremen to Rio de Janeiro, and from that port to Baltimore.

Capt. von Goessel's family consists of his wife and three children—a girl, seventeen years old, and two sons, one twelve, the other three years old. They live in Bremerhaven. They formerly lived in Hanover, but moved north to be nearer the Captain when he was in port.

The Captain was forty-four years old, fine-looking and stood 6 feet 2 inches in his stocking feet. He was broad-shouldered, well-built. He had bright blue eyes, and wore a full flaxen beard.

Among the Lloyd's vessels Kurt von Goessel was second officer of the Mosel, which was blown to pieces by dynamite at its dock some years ago; was first officer of the Saale and commanded the Sachsen.

There was no more popular captain in the Lloyds' service. A march—the "Elbiata"—was dedicated to him less than two weeks ago, and he spent quite a little time when he was last at New York at the Liederkranz Society Club-House. He was an economic as well as a popular captain, and time and again received premiums from his company for the economical administration of the affairs of his boat.

Thoroughly jolly, good-natured man, he always had a pleasant word for everybody. In looks and bearing he was the best type of the Teuton.

Withal he was a solid, substantial man, with lots of nerve and plenty of good common sense. He was a man who never lost his head, one who could be depended upon in an emergency.

Could Say "Truly Rural."

This is a story about a congressman from Indiana, and, according to the Washington Post, it is perfectly true. One night, or to be exact, one morning, not long ago, the congressman came home in a condition that might have given rise to remark. He was not intoxicated—oh, dear no! And to prove it he said "truly rural" all the way up the stairs—a thing which, as everybody knows, is an infallible test of sobriety. The light was turned low in his room, but he dimly perceived a large gray cat perched on a chair. The Indiana congressman detests cats.

"Scat!" said he, sharply.

The cat didn't stir.

"Scat!" repeated the congressman.

The cat took it good-naturedly, and sat perfectly still. The congressman shook the chair. The cat only rocked to and fro and then settled against the chair's back.

"Well, that's the blamedest cat," remarked the congressman, as he pushed it off the chair.

And it was. It had no fur. The congressman heard a subdued snicker, and turning met his wife's eyes. It was a calico cat, and his ability to pronounce "truly rural" was of no avail.

THE LIMEKILN CLUB.

BRO. GARDNER DRESSES DOWN A MEMBER FOR SUPERSTITION.

What a Rabbit Foot Is Good For—An Enquiry into the Question: Does It Bring Good Luck and Keep the Ghosts Away?

"De reg'lar bizness ob dis meetin' of de Limekiln Club havin' bin concluded," said Bro. Gardner as he rose and adjusted his spectacles, "I shall hev a few words to say to Brudder Shindig Watkins. If he ar' in de hall, he will please step dis way."

Shindig had got behind the stove to scratch his chilblains, and he looked anxious and perturbed as he pulled on his brogans and scuffled up to the president's desk.

"Brudder Watkins," said the president, as he looked down at him over his spectacles, "I hev bin informed dat yo' am a powerful believer in de varchews ob de rabbit's fut. 'Deed, but sartin folks hev dun told me dat yo' keep no less dan six of 'em on hand de y'ar round. Am dat k'rect?"

"Yes, sah."

"Yo' carry two on yo'r pusson an' leave fo' at de house to purtect de family?"

"Yes, sah."

"Brudder Watkins will yo' splain to dis club what pertikler varchew dar am in a rabbit's fut?"

"Brings good luck an' keeps de ghosts away."

"Um! Yo' hev tried it an' feel shore 'bout it, I reckon?"

"Yes, sah."

"I reckoned yo' felt dat way an' so hev prepared a few questions to ask yo'. 'Bout five y'ars ago yo' happened to be in an alley at midnight. A ghost suddenly 'peared befo' yo. Yo' waved a rabbit's fut at him an' told him to shoo an' be gone. Did he shoo?"

"N-no, sah."

"On the contrary, he walked right up to yo' and 'rested yo' an' yo' was fined $15 fur hevin' seven chickens in a bag. I paid de fine, an' yo' owe me $7 of it yit. Some time ago yo' started out to lick a man who works in a woodyard. Yo' had yo'r wife rub yo' all ober wid dem six rabbit futs, an' yo' tied 'em up an' hung 'em around yo'r neck as yo' sot out. Yo' went to dat woodyard and sailed in. 'Member how yo' dun come out?"

"Yes, sah."

"So do I. Yo' got sich a wallopin' dat yo' couldn't git outer de house fur two weeks. Mebbe yo' reekolect de night I met yo' on de street wid a ham? Yo' had de ham in one hand an' de rabbit's fut in de odder, an' yo' was in sich a hurry yo' couldn't stop to talk. Did dat rabbit's fut prevent de butcher from obertakin' yo' befo' yo' got home, an' hain't yo' lame yit from de hardness of his kicks?"

Bro. Watkins began to wobble in the knees and look homesick, and the president continued:

"One night last summer, as I remember, yo' woke up an' diskivered a ghost in de room. Yo' shook all six rabbit futs at him, but he didn't skeer. He jess frowed yo' down stairs an' lamed y'r back so yo' couldn't walk fur a month. Mighty cur'us dat charm didn't work, wasn't it? An' about yo'r good luck. Yo' has bought $10 worf of lottery tickets in de last two y'ars and not hit a thing. Yo' bet on de 'leckshun an' lost $6. Yo'r ole woman broke her laig, an' yo'r chillen hev had measles, mumps and chicken-pox. Somebody dun stole yo'r soft soap an' pizened yo'r cat, an' somebody else dun carried of yo'r goat an' stole yo'r dawg. Brudder Watkins, please inform dis club whar' yo' an' de rabbit fut collides."

"Reckon it's gone back on me, sah," muttered the abashed brother.

"I jess want to say a few mo' words to yo' an' through yo' to sich other members of dis club as am danglin' a rabbits fut around deir necks. What's a rabbit'got to do wid ghosts or good luck any mo' dan de coon, 'possum or woodchuck? A rabbit pie takes de cake ober a beef bone, but when yo' cum right down to sunthing' to make a cull'd man happy yo's got to make it baked 'possum or fricasseed coon. When I go ober to see my grandchillen', an' want to make 'em feel good, I carry along a rabbit's fut to tickle deir noses wid. When I hev neuralgia in the jaw, de ole woman takes a rabbit's fut to stroke on de liniment. Dat's all de use I eber puts it to. A word about ghosts. Do yo' 'spect dat a great big fat ghost am gwine to be skeered away by sich a little thing as a rabbit's fut or de head of a black crow? No, sah. Dat ghost am dere on bizness, an' de only way is to sail right into him with a hoe handle and a pair of cowhide butes, an' knock him out befo' he kin holler. I licked six of 'em, an' den dey dun quit foolin' around my cabin. De talk about good luck am all nonsence.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees,
(So lingering was poor Pa's diseases),
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would pay and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William send our Annie,
Hoped we should never come to want.
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but step, I miss,

They gave us every one a kiss,
And said, 'be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa.'
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home,
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So life commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will pour life insure;
And then the Manufacturers' shall
Your best friend to winter befall.

A BOOK TO ALL SICK ONES

Cures When Other Medicines and Doctors Have Failed

RESTORES THE SICK TO HEALTH.

"I Can Attribute My Restoration to Health Solely to South American Nervine." Says C. J. Curtis, of Windsor.

C. J. CURTIS, WINDSOR, ONT.

When one has climbed a high mountain it is not difficult to mount the ordinary hill. A medicine that will cure when the case is a desperate one, may be safely taken as a good all round medicine in ordinary cases, and it is not alone the very sick who need medicine.

The statement is borne out by a multitude of facts, thousands of testimonials from reputable citizens, that South American Nervine cures, after what are considered the best medicines in the country have failed, and where the skill of the ablest physicians has come to naught.

The acknowledged scientific principle of disease is weakness and disorganization at the nerve centers. These nerve centers are the main spring of the whole system. When the stomach is out of order the certain remedy is to set the nerve centers in right condition again, so with every other trouble. Thus it is that it may be liver complaint, nervousness, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, impoverished blood, consumption of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, sick or nervous headache, sleeplessness, pain in the kidneys, or other ailments from which a person is suffering South American Nervine will cure, and cure quickly, and best of all cure effectively and lastingly in every such case.

Much as we were disposed to laugh at La Grippe as a trifling complaint when it first made itself known in this country, later developments have proved that it is a serious malady. The after effects are such that very thorough measures need to be taken to ensure perfect restoration to health. South American Nervine has proven wonderfully efficacious in giving back health to the victims of La Grippe. Mr. C. J. Curtis, a wealthy and well known farmer near Windsor, Ont., suffered from a severe attack of this malady, leaving him exceedingly weak and with no appetite. No medicine seemed to do him any good until he was influenced to try South American Nervine and his testimony is this: "After taking one bottle I found very great benefit from it, my appetite improved wonderfully, and I felt my strength returning very fast." Mr. Curtis then purchased five bottles, but after taking only three out of the five, to use his own words: "I am feeling as nearly well to-day as I ever did, and I can attribute my restoration to health and strength solely to South American Nervine."

De man who loafs around all summer has no right to complain about luck in de winter. Good luck means steady work and takin' keer of de wages. It means keep away from de saloon an' keepin' de whisky jug outer de house. Take all de feet of all de rabbits in de world, an' add to dem all de heads of all de black crows dat eber flew ober a graveyard, an' dey wouldn't put a ten-cent piece in any man's pocket. I hain't gwine to sot down on yo' too hard at dis time, but I'm dun gwine to observe dat de next member ob dis club dat cums yere wid a rabbit's fut in his pocket as a charm will have its varchews tested. He kin wave dat fur all around my head, an' even poke it into my left ear, an' yit if I don't frow him down de alley sta'rs I'll pay de next month's rent on his cabin. Yo' jess drap dem feet on de floah an' let de cat eat 'em up, an' if yo' am still skeered 'bout ghosts, cum to me, an' I will furnish yo' clubs which hev deen dipped in de blood of a pirate who was killed by lightnin', an' am warranted to lay a ghost at one crack."

THE SECRET OF LONG LIFE.

With Every Grand Old Man the Prescription Seems to Differ.

M. Barthelemy Saint Hilaire, the famous French scholar and politician, who recently entered on his ninetieth year full of physical and intellectual vigor, has been telling the inevitable interviewer how it is his days have been so long in the land. It is, we are told, the effect of the strict adherence to the old precept, "early to bed and early to rise," with steady work during waking hours.

Every grand old man seems to have a secret of his own. Mr. Gladstone, we believe, attributes his longevity to his habit of taking a daily walk in all weathers, and to his giving thirty-two bites to every morsel of food. Oliver Wendell Holmes pinned his faith on equability of temperature. The late Major Knox Holmes swore by the tricycle, which, in the end, was the cause of his death. Dr. P. H. Van der Weyde, an American octogenarian, not long ago offered himself "as an example of the benign influence of the study and practice of music."

Some aged persons give the credit of their long lives to abstinence from tobacco, alcohol, meat, or what not; others to their indulgence in all these things. One old lady of whom we read not long ago as having reached the age of 120 or thereabouts, maintained that single blessedness is the real elixir vitae, and she ascribed the death of a brother at the tender age of 90 to the fact that he had committed matrimony in early life. M. Ferdinand de Lesseps believed in horse riding. Mr. James Payn complains that in his boyhood he "got a little bored with too much horse."

The Grand Francais seems to think that one can hardly have "too much horse." In a letter recently published M. de Lesseps delivered himself on the subject as follows. "I shall always feel deeply grateful to Larive, my riding-master, who from my earliest years made me share his keen passion for horses, and I am still convinced that daily horse exercise has in a large measure been the means of enabling me to reach my eighty-fourth year in perfect health." Carlyle was also a great rider almost to the end of his long life, and he not only rode, but, we believe, groomed his horse himself. On the whole, it must be concluded that the real secret of longevity is a sound constitution prudently husbanded. The only general rules that can be laid down are those set forth by Adam in "As You Like It:"

Though I look old, yet I am strong and lusty;
For in my youth I never did apply
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood,
Nor did not with unbashful forehead woo
The means of weakness and debility;
Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
Frosty but kindly.

That is the whole secret of long life. Shakespeare knew it as well as any one, yet he died at fifty-two.

Bits of Fashion.

Pink is a fashionable color for evening wear, and it is shown this season in some exquisite shades.

Advices from Paris say that crushed collars, with ear loops, are fast coming to the end of their tether.

Gold and white is one of the coming combinations. Yokes, cuffs, and dress bands are imported in sets and promise to be very popular.

The modern girl is copying the picturesque Dutch peasant. She has borrowed her headdress and is wearing it to the theatre as a bonnet.

Artificial flowers form stock collars for wear with best dresses and show rosebuds, daisies, violets, roses, Flips of the valley, and buttercups. Artificial orchids are also used.

Very wide sashes of scarlet silk gauze with the fringe on the ends in white are worn with thin white dresses and ribbon edged with rows of seed pearls or crystal beads, and in all blue satin is used for trimming.

A new and very attractive black material will appear for spring wear under the name of creponette. It differs but slightly from the familiar crepon fabrics, yet it is more beautiful in coloring and more characteristic in design.

Much of life's misery is due to indigestion; for who can be happy with a pain in his stomach? As a corrective and strengthener of the alimentary organs, Ayer's Pills are invaluable, their use being always attended with marked benefit.

Prepare for spring by using Burdock Blood Bitters to cleanse the system and tone the body to vigorous health. Its tonic purifying regulating work makes B. B. B. the greatest remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

NOT PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

An Expert's Opinion of the Cattle—Imperial House Notes.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Professor Nocbard, the eminent French expert, has examined pieces of the lungs of a suspected Canadian animal, landed at Antwerp, and upon which the Belgian Government placed Canada upon the cattle schedule. The professor is unable to say that the disease is really pleuro-pneumonia. Indeed, he throws much doubt upon the assertion that it is.

This report, in connection with the absence of the disease among the recent arrivals of Canadian cattle here, should strengthen the Scottish demand which the farmers and shipmen are making for the removal of the British embargo. In the House of Commons yesterday Right Hon. Herbert Gardner, replying to Mr. John Ellis, M. P., said there were three cases of inspected Canadian cattle discovered at Antwerp, from the ships Hispania and the Scilla. He adds that one of these was a bad case. His authority for so saying was the fact that a large number of the most experienced experts were consulted and they appeared unanimous in the conclusion that the disease was contagious pleuro-pneumonia. Consequently, Mr. Gardner said, Belgium prohibited live cattle imports from Canada.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. William Birkmyre, M.P., Ayr district Liberal, desired the Government to promise to refuse to assent to the Canadian Copyright Act, and request Canada to insert a clause making the assent of an author a condition precedent to the appropriation of a copyright by a Canadian public here. Mr. Sydney Buxton, Parliamentary Secretary, replying, said the Secretary of State for the colonies was now considering the correspondence. He could make no statement at present.

Celebrating Lincoln's Anniversary.

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—The 86th anniversary of Lincoln's birthday was observed here yesterday with more ceremony than usual. The banks, Board of Trade, stock exchange and all the city and county offices, with the exception of the police and fire departments, were closed. The schools were open, but the sessions were devoted to patriotic songs and recitals.

Bill Cook Will Do No More Mischief.

Envy is a passion so full of cowardice and shame, that nobody ever had the cowardice to own it.—Rochester.

It is much safer to reconcile an enemy than to conquer him; victory may deprive him of his poison, but reconciliation of his will.—Feltham.

Whatsoever that be within us that feels, thinks, deserves, and animates, is something celestial, divine, and, consequently, imperishable.—Aristotle.

The Central American Difficulty.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 12.—Telegraphic news from the state of Guatemala is that Miles Rock, chief of the Guatemalan commission, was suddenly called from the border to the city of Guatemala in connection with an arrangement with Mexico. It is believed that Mr. Rock's opinion is required on several points in dispute. The news is of a peaceful tendency, but the El Universal of to-night warns its readers that it is still possible for serious difficulties to arise.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

The Hyams Brothers, of Toronto, Are Under Arrest.

SUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES

Over a Year Ago the Alleged Victim Was Found Dead—He Was the Brother-in-Law of One of the Arrested Parties and Was Heavily Insured.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—Dallas T. Hyams, aged 35, and Harry P. Hyams, aged 29, both brothers and both Americans, who have been residents in the city for nine years, coming here from New Orleans, were last night arrested on a charge of murder. The alleged victim was a young Englishman named William C. Wells, who on January 16, 1895, was found lying dead at the bottom of the elevator shaft of the warehouse on Colborne street of Hyams Bros., with whom he had been employed as a bookkeeper. Deceased was 29 years of age.

The explanation of the death at the time was that Wells was making some repairs at the foot of the hoist and it fell upon his head. A coroner investigated the case and concluded no inquest was necessary. Deceased was insured for $26,000, $21,000 being carried by the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York and the balance in the Mutual Accident Association.

The policies were payable to deceased's sister, Martha, who at the time was engaged to be married to Harry Hyams. The policies had been issued but a couple of months previous. The New York company investigated the case, but found no evidence of foul play, and the money was paid to Miss Wells, and in May last she was married to Harry Hyams, and they shortly afterwards removed to Montreal, returning to Toronto weeks ago and took up residence with Dallas Hyams, at 57 Gould street, where last night they were arrested.

The police refuse to disclose the nature of the evidence, but it is understood the following facts are counted against Harry Hyams: The premiums on the policy were paid by him, amounting to $684, and he was alone in the warehouse with deceased when the fatal accident occurred. Since then it has been learned that Hyams endeavored to get insurance policies on his wife, the Miss Wells that was, to the extent of $500,000 in different American and English companies, and this fact may have an important bearing on the arrest.

GOVERNOR O'BRIEN RESIGNS.

Because He Was Not in Harmony With the Whiteway Government.

ST. JOHN, Feb. 12.—Sydney Woods, John Dunphy, George Tessier and Thos. Jackman will resign their seats in the Assembly to permit Henry Woods, George Emerson, Edward Morris and Robert Bond to obtain seats. The elections will be held about March 20. No opposition is anticipated in any constituency.

It is reported that Gov. O'Brien has tendered his resignation to the Imperial authorities. The reason assigned for this step is that he feels that he is not in harmony with the Whiteway ministry.

The Big Fire at Harrow.

WINDSOR, Feb. 12.—The town of Harrow, located about thirty miles from Windsor, on the L. E. and H. R. R., suffered a severe conflagration yesterday morning. The fire started just before one o'clock in Weston's tailor shop, and the flames spread with great rapidity to the adjoining stores and dwellings. The list of stores and dwellings destroyed include Webster's tailor shop, Burrell & Wright's barber shop, Straith & Co.'s general store, Roseburg's harness shop and dwelling, and the bakery and dwelling of W. S. Wright. There were also a number of barns and sheds burned. The damage and insurance as nearly as obtainable is as follows: Ed. Webster, damage $600, no insurance; Straith & Co., $12,500, insurance $4,000; W. S. Wright, $2,000, insurance, $1,000; Roseburg, $3,000, insurance $1,600; Burrell & Wright, $1,500, insurance $800. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

An Old Miser's Death.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—In a little hut on Pape avenue Timothy Lynch was found dead. He is an old man who has lived there by himself for some years. In the summer he made a living by market gardening. In the rear of the house is an orchard, and last fall, it will be remembered, he shot a lad who was stealing his fruit. Lynch has led a miser's life for some time. The place in which he has been living is a miserable hovel with all the windows boarded up and the place desolate. The neighbors did not notice any smoke coming from the chimney and on investigation found the old man stark and cold. A savage watch dog, which he kept to frighten off intruders, had to be shot before the house could be entered.

A Provincial Conservative Convention.

TORONTO, Feb. 12.—There will be a Conservative convention in Toronto in about two weeks. The meeting will be conducted under the auspices of the club, but it will not be a meeting of the Young Conservatives of the province, but of all Conservatives. Every county organization, and in fact every Conservative organization will send delegates. At the same time Sir Mackenzie Bowell and some of the Cabinet Ministers will address a mass meeting in Massey hall.

Government Aid to Dairymen.

MONTREAL, Feb. 12.—Mr. Angers, Minister of Agriculture in the Dominion Cabinet, addressing a meeting of dairymen yesterday, said that the Government had decided to assist the butter-makers by accepting through the Department of Agriculture all winter butter at 20 cents a pound, which would be shipped to the English market. The announcement was received with much satisfaction.

Shot the Burglar.

OTTAWA, Feb. 12.—Wm. Mortimer, of Montreal, and A. Winslow, Toronto, two professional burglars, were engaged in trying to crack the safe in the postoffice at Hallowell Point, when Stilling the postmaster, fired on them, wounding Mortimer in the leg. Winslow got away. Mortimer is now in Kingston jail.

Suing for Damages From Spooks.

One of the most peculiar lawsuits ever filed in the United States is on the court docket at Crawfordsville, Ind. Three years ago a passenger train on the Monon route was wrecked near the home of John Elliott, north of this city. The train rolled down an embankment, and one coach was burned, five people killed and seventy injured. The injured were taken to the house of Elliott. Now he wants $1,000 damages from the railroad because, he alleges, the health of his family has been bad ever since the wreck, and this is caused by the sounds of the groans from the injured that vibrate through his house every night, and when they go outdoors at night the "spirits" of those killed in this wreck can be seen walking up and down the track in front of his house. He wants all these things stopped, and damages for the annoyance which has caused sickness in his family. He says he has dreamed about the wreck every night since it happened.—St. Louis Republic.

Growls of Mrs. Grundy.

That affectation of art makes neither critic nor connoisseurs.

That outward manifestation of grief is no longer the "correct thing."

That a female arbiter is something new and interesting in fashionable society.

That some women never lose their gloves until time to go to church.

That no expiring chicken struggles more than some people to "keep up appearances."

That prettiest women are said to be in the middle class promenade of life.

That a bald head is the only thing to make women look more ridiculous than big sleeves.

That the down-town quick lunch is crowding the city with dyspeptics.

That hundreds are forever miserable by trying to increase their happiness.

That fashionable friendships are never as strong as spirits of ammonia.

That it is difficult to name a "millionaire family" without its crosses.

That millions continue to believe in the efficacy of half-past 11 repentance.

That the missing screw in the social fabric is known as moral principle.

That the first year of married life is the test of mutual patience and forbearance.

That there should be schools established to teach people to mind their own affairs.

THE MONEY QUESTION

That is Agitating the Republic to the South.

THE BOSTON BANKERS SPEAK

Emphatically Demand the Issue of Gold Bonds—Talk in the House and Senate—Moving for Deep Waterways—A Grant Will be Made.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The House was practically occupied yesterday in considering business relating to the District of Columbia, but room was found for the discussion of the resolution by Mr. Van Vorhees (Rep., N.Y.), bearing on Government financial matters, the main tenor of which was to request a report from the committee on ways and means of the testimony, evidence and statements made by Secretary Carlisle at that committee yesterday regarding the recent bond contract. The New York representative was very anxious for this information, and Mr. Wilson, the chairman of the committee, assured him that he had a copy of the contract in his pocket and would at the proper time present it. This was done later in the shape of a report from the Ways and Means Committee on the President's message relating to the $62,000,000 bond contract, and which report contained a copy of the contract. It was soon evident that there was a disposition to know what the minority of the committee thought of the matter, and the House adopted a motion which will allow them to present their views on the subject to-day. The report was ordered printed and referred to the union calendar.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Mr. Wilson (W. Va.,) chairman of the Ways and Means committee, reported to the House the joint resolution agreed upon in committee this morning authorizing the issuance of a 30 year three per cent. interest bearing gold bond. The report accompanying the resolution includes a copy of the President's recent message to Congress bearing upon the subject and also a copy of the contract made by the treasury department with the European syndicate for the purchase of the new bonds.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—The following petition, signed by the leading banks of the city and the leading firms of the bankers was telegraphed to Washington yesterday afternoon:

To Hon. Thomas B. Reed and the Hon. Senators and Representatives in Congress:

The undersigned banks and bankers of Boston desire to express in the most emphatic language the necessity of passing in Congress a bill for the issue of gold bonds for the completion of the syndicate contract and respectfully urge the New England senators and representatives in Congress to immediately act in concert in sustaining our national credit.

The House committee on inter-state and foreign commerce ordered a favorable report on Senate joint resolution appropriating $10,000 for a preliminary survey for deep waterways between the Atlantic ocean and the great lakes.

An Old Miser's Death.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—In a little hut on Pape avenue Timothy Lynch was found dead. He is an old man who has lived there by himself for some years. In the summer he made a living by market gardening. In the rear of the house is an orchard, and last fall, it will be remembered, he shot a lad who was stealing his fruit. Lynch has led a miser's life for some time. The place in which he has been living is a miserable hovel with all the windows boarded up and the place desolate. The neighbors did not notice any smoke coming from the chimney and on investigation found the old man stark and cold. A savage watch dog, which he kept to frighten off intruders, had to be shot before the house could be entered.

An Insane Woman's Deed.

PASSAIC, N. J., Feb. 14.—Mrs. Michael Wasel killed her two months' old child while in an insane fit. She awoke her husband at midnight and told him that a man was in the room trying to kill her baby. Then she rushed around the room squeezing it to her breast and screaming. Wasel could not restrain her and called his brother. With great difficulty the two men took the baby away. It was dead from strangulation and there were marks of its mothers teeth and finger nails in its flesh. The woman will be sent to an asylum.

That Labor Law Again.

TOLEDO, Feb. 14.—F. W Adams, Toronto, Ont., agent of C. F. Adams & Co., fur makers, was arrested here to-day on charges of violation of the alien labor law. Adams, it is alleged, brought six aliens, four from Toronto and two from London, Ont. He was held in bail of $5,000.

JAPANESE AFTER PEKIN

China's Capital Must Fall Say Her Conquerors.

THAT'S THEIR PEACE TERMS

The Victors Want Their Full Pound of Flesh — Wei-Hai-Wei Has Been Finally Captured—Now the Cry is "On to Pekin"—China Weakens.

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—The Cologne Gazette learns from Japanese sources that overtures for peace will not be regarded by Japan until Pekin shall have been captured.

Then Japan will demand possession of Corea, the Long-Tung peninsula and Port Arthur, with indemnity.

Japan's only fear is that England and Russia may forestall the program by bringing about a peace in their own way.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—A report has been received from Wei-Hai-Wei, that the Chinese gun boats in the harbor under the protection of a flag of truce, conveyed to the Japanese fleet a proposal by Admiral Ting to surrender all of the Chinese ships, arms and forts, provided the lives of the crews, soldiers and foreigners were guaranteed. Under these conditions the terms of a formal surrender are being arranged.

In the fighting since Jan. 20 the Japanese have lost 83 killed, 219 wounded, and the Chinese 700 in killed alone.

A despatch to the Times from Shanghai says advices from Tien-Tsin assert that the Chinese warships Chen-Yuen, Ching-Yuen and Kwang-Ting, which were reported sunk, are still afloat. Their safety is ascribed to the torpedo netting of the Chen-Yuen, and the execution of the quick firing guns of the other ships mentioned. According to these advices the forts on the Lin-Kung-Tao Island at Wei-Hai-Wei are still in possession of the Chinese.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—In confirmation of the despatch received yesterday from its correspondent in Tokio the Central News says: Admiral Ting, Commander-in-Chief of the Chinese fleet at Wei-Hai-Wei has surrendered. Admiral Ito granted him the desired condition and the surrender is now being effected. When the Chinese land they will be received with the honors of war.

TOKIO, Feb. 14.—The Chinese peace envoys have sailed from Nagasaki for home. Japan has repeated her declaration that she is willing to renew negotiations with envoys having full powers.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 14.—The steamer Empress of China, arrived yesterday, brings advices from Tokio under date of February 1 as follows: The strategical position of the Chinese in Shin Keng now is most perilous. Their line of defense and of direct communication with their chief base of supplies at New Chwang having been cut off by the Japanese, all their troops, some 40,000, in the district southward of Haig Cheng have to choose one of two ways of getting back to China proper, namely, either by driving the Japanese out of Haig Chen and thus recovering command of the direct route to the coast or by taking the highway from Moukden to Pekin. The Japanese, however, moving along the coast from Hai-Cheng can strike the Moukden-Pekin road by a march of 75 miles whereas the Chinese retreating from Moukden must march 135 miles to reach the same point. Since Hay-Cheng fell into the hands of the enemy the Chinese have made two attempts to recover the position but in each instance were repulsed with heavy loss. The cold in Manchuria is reported as exceptionally intense.

THE FAMOUS LA GASCOGNE.

And the Repairs She is Undergoing at New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The work of repairing the damaged piston of the French steamer La Gascogne, which arrived here yesterday, commenced to-day under the direction of Supt. Thos. Mooney of the Morgan Iron Works. Mr. Mooney said the break was not near so serious as he at first thought. The piston and what the French call the piston of the second intermediate or centre cyclinder became broken from some unknown cause. Mr. Mooney said the work of repairing had been commenced and he would have the Gascogne ready for a dock engine trial by Sunday noon. The Gascogne will sail next Wednesday on her homeward bound trip.

It was learned yesterday that the cyclinder in which the piston head broke was tested up to 45 pounds pressure and was running at the time of the accident at 40 pounds.

That there was a flaw in the steel of the piston that broke there is held to be no doubt. At the office of the United States steamboat Inspector, it was said that this must have been the case since the second intermediate cylinder with a dimension of 70 3-4 inches and with a pressure of 160 from the boiler, as the Gascogne engine was rigged, should have stood at least 80 pounds pressure to the square inch.

Jersey City is Dry.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Feb. 14.—Jersey City is in great danger of a water famine. Forty lengths of a twenty-inch cement main which is the principal source of supply to the city burst this morning on the Hackensack Meadows near Marion. The length of the damaged pipe is over 200 feet and the water is flooding the vicinity. The break was not discovered until noon to-day although it is supposed to have occurred yesterday. A large force of workmen were hurried to the spot and are at work repairing the damage. In many sections of the city no water is obtainable and unless the break is repaired to-day most of the city will be without water. The officials will seek relief from the Hackensack water company which supplies Hoboken. The fire officials are in dread lest a big fire should occur before the break is repaired.

Doctors recommend Norway Pine Syrup because it is the best cure for coughs and colds. Price 25c. at druggists.

HYAMS MURDER CASE

The Prisoners in the Dock Plead Not Guilty.

THE CROWN'S CASE WEAK

Harry P. Hyams is Now Wanted for Forgery at Montreal—History of His Little Deal There—A Thirty Per Cent. Interest Swindle.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—The Police Court was crowded yesterday morning when Harry P. Hyams and Dallas T. Hyams were arraigned.

Neither of the brothers seemed much agitated, but both were a little pale.

W. G. Murdoch appeared for them in the absence of B. B. Osler, who has not yet recovered from the shock of the railway accident at Weston.

Mr. Murdoch entered a plea of not guilty, but did not elect and the case was adjourned for a week.

It is understood that the strongest evidence that the Crown will be able to adduce against the accused men is the fact that the young man who was killed carried a heavy insurance, all or a portion of which the prisoners are believed to have come into possession of subsequent to young Wells' death.

This, the Crown will urge, was sufficient motive to induce the committal of the crime. Outside of this there appears to be no evidence except a few circumstances which might be corroborative of the theory of murder.

A Montreal despatch says:—A warrant was taken out before Judge Dugas in the Police Court this morning for the arrest of Harry P. Hyams, one of the two brothers now under arrest in Toronto, on suspicion of murder. The charge is forgery and the case as stated to a News representative this morning is a serious one.

The forgery is claimed to have been committed last summer when Hyams had an office in Temple building as broker. It is another tale of considerable interest in which Montreal usurers figure prominently. Last spring Frank Livingston, clerk in a wholesale produce house here, drew a note for $50 which was endorsed by W. C. Morrison, of the Montreal Star, and D. Ayton, of the Gazette. R. J. Demers, the well-known money lender of Notre Dame street, advanced the money at the rate of eight per cent. interest.

Livingston had by June paid between $30 and $40 in interest and protest fees even but he was as far off from the original as her. Morrison then advised him to borrow the $50 and get rid of Demers at the cost of getting into some one else's debt. In July Mr. Livingston had $30 that he wished to apply on the note, but Demers refused, and it was proposed by the endorsers to borrow $40. On the 5th of August Harry P. Hyams agreed to advance $30 for three months for $10. This was agreed to, but before the note was drawn Hyams wanted $12 anp proposed to give $28 for a $40 note. This was finally agreed to and the money was advanced.

Nothing more was heard of the case until a few weeks ago when it was found that he had taken judgment in the Circuit Court against the makers. If was then found to the surprise of the three that the note bore the words "with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per month from date till paid in full"

These words were written in ink and closely under the line "of the sum of forty dollars." As they were not on the note when it was drawn the case was at once placed in the hands of Lawyer F. W. Hibbard, of Weir & Hibbard.

A warrant has been taken out and an order wired to Toronto to keep Hyams in custody. Seizure before judgment have been taken against Hyams by several parties.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC.

The Disease on the Increase at Ridgeway—Physicians Powerless.

RIDGEWAY, Ont., Feb. 14.—Diphtheria is on the increase since the first despatch on Monday giving information of the closing of the public schools. It is becoming epidemic and another death has occurred and it is feared that several more are inevitable. At present there are no less than ten residents of Ridgeway down with diphtheria, and of these at least two are thought to be hopelessly sick. The spread of the disease causes great excitement. Physicians seem to be utterly powerless to lay the plague.

Newfoundland Affairs.

ST. JOHNS, Feb. 14.—The leaders of the opposition in the Legislature have made a formal protest to the Governor against the determination of the Government to hold bye-elections while the seal fishery is in progress. They claim that holding the elections at that time would deprive thousands of voters of an opportunity of exercising the right of franchise. The Government will hold elections about March 20 unless there is a change of plans on account of the opposition to that time. It is reported the Government is able to obtain a loan of $2,000,000 if the royal commission is accepted.

Campbell for West Kent.

CHATHAM, Ont., Feb. 14.—The convention of the Liberals of Kent assembled in Northwood's hall yesterday afternoon for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Parliament. After the election of officers for the ensuing year and other routine business Mr. John Smith moved, seconded by Mr. John McGregor, that Mr. Archibald Campbell, M.P., be the candidate for the Liberal party in West Kent in the next Dominion election. The resolutions was carried amid applause.

A Cure For Headache

Dear Sirs,—I have been troubled with Headache for a number of years. I attempted to take B. B. B. and now I am perfectly cured. It is an excellent remedy for Headache and Dizziness. MRS. MARTIN MARTIN, Boston, Ont.

The Daily Examiner is delivered to all parts of the Town for 10c. a week, also a subscription for other months.

Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1895.

"For means of Government, for all economic principles, I go to the land of sound government and sound common sense, old England. Thus spoke the Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, at Montreal. For "economic principles," we go, the Dominion Government says, to the United States. As to the "means of government," it is hard to tell where they go for a model, in view of the revelations that have been dragged to light by Royal Commissions and Parliamentary committees, unless it be, says the Ottawa Free Press, to the penitentiaries. The people will happily soon have an opportunity of expressing their sentiments upon the merits of the two methods.

THE gossip to the effect that Mr. McKay, M.P., for Hamilton, is to be made customs collector there recalls the good fortune which usually attends Hamilton members. Everyone of them since 1878 has got into fat office. In 1878 Messrs. Robertson and Kilvert were elected in the Conservative interest. Mr. Kilvert eventually was appointed customs collector. Mr. Robertson was made a judge. Then followed Messrs. Adam Brown and McKay as members. Mr. Brown was subsequently appointed postmaster. Now Mr. McKay appears likely to get the custom house. What is Mr. Ryckman to come for?

THE Farmers' Sun figures that the maintenance of the Senate represents an annual cash outlay equivalent to the produce of 11,000 acres of wheat, yielding twenty bushels to the acre, and selling at sixty cents a bushel. This is a striking way of calling attention to a great waste. Here is one instance in which good money can be saved. The Senate is chiefly useful as a contributor to the five million dollars deficit with which Finance Minister Foster will have to meet Parliament, if his government dares to call a meeting before the elections.

THE Patrons demand, among other things, the reduction of the cost of the mounted Police to $200,000 a year, the abolition of the bars in the Ottawa Parliament buildings, withdrawal of the grant for the maintenance of Rideau hall and closing up of the Canadian Senate. These are all sound planks and all of the kind that the people of Canada are just now clamouring for, and the Patrons heads are about horizontal on these subjects.

THAT Prohibition Commission, on which $125,000 has been wasted, is said to be concluding its labours. It is about time. The expenditure of this money will demand the most rigid investigation.

CHANDOS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Special meeting of municipal council of the township of Chandos was held Feb. 4th for the election of a clerk to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of R. H. McGill, late clerk. The appointment was given to J. W. Ratcliff by the unanimous vote of the council. Moved by Mr. John Menogue, seconded by Mr. Jno. Bullied, that the following resolution be passed by this council, and a copy of the same sent to the wife of deceased:

Resolved that the members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Chandos extend to the wife and family of R. H. McGill, our late Clerk, their heartfelt sympathy in this their sad hour of trial, and while deeply regretting the great loss which his wife and family have sustained in the death of a loving husband and father, we feel assured that they will bow with Christian resignation to the divine will of the Almighty in their great affliction.

Orders were drawn on the treasurer in favour of F. Garrett, for $10.69, and Stephen Scott, Jr., $6.98. The orders were granted for repairs made in their own road divisions.

An order was drawn in favour of S. D. Phillips for $13.34, to be laid out by him on road between second and third concession lines.

W. J. Rosebush presented auditors report which was adopted.

The salary of Mr. P. Mahony, treasurer, was increased from $20 to $30.

An order was drawn in favour of W. J. Rosebush for $7, and $4.50 for services as auditor, and $3.50, balance on road allowance bought from him.

An order was drawn in favour of D. Anderson for $10.40 as per account rendered. Council adjourned to meet again at the call of the reeve.

CURED INSANITY.

A Patient of Kingston Lunatic Asylum Wonderfully Restored to Her Reason.

KINGSTON, Feb. 14th.—This city is ringing with the story of how an insane patient at Rockwood Asylum has been restored to reason. Some years ago a well known lady of this city went out of her mind and was admitted as a patient to the local asylum. Her sister used to visit her and took her at different times boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, which the unfortunate patient took regularly. Nine months ago the lady was discharged from the asylum perfectly cured, a happy result due only to the use of the Pills. They cured some peculiar kidney disorder to which was due the brain trouble, and the mind was soon whole. These facts are vouched for by our popular druggist, Henry Wade.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

SUNDAY MORNING IN WINTER.

New glim'ring morn appears, and dusky night
Retreats
Before the herald of incoming, clear eyed day:
Far on the grey horizon, the rising sun
Spreads his bright opal tints broad o'er the pearly dome.
And gilds the glitt'ring snow-clad world. The breath of God
Lies light on each small twig, and rugged branch
And fing'ring pendant leaf, to clothe them all
With frost's pure crystal foliage. A tiny bird
Forth from his sheltered nest, peering askance
With watchful curious eye, flies fluttering down
To seek his daily crumb with modest chirp
Of oft remembered thanks. Naught breaks the Sabbath peace
That resteth now, still, radiant, serene,

Wake! drowsy soul, forsake thy slumb'rous warmth,
Gaze outward on the exquisite scene, and see
The handiwork of God, so delicate, so fair.
Let a sweet morning hymn of praise rise freely
From the worship of thy heart. Give praise to God
Who, like no other, doeth all things well. Yet praising,
Know, that like you tiny feathered thing, thou too
Mayest find thy needs supplied, tho' winter reigns.
Give praise, give praise to God.

—ANNIE GERRANS.

KINMOUNT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.

Our village merchants report business fairly satisfactory. Although the late severe snowstorms blocked the roads to a very considerable extent, quite a number of the settlers were in the village on Saturday and Monday. In dry goods and groceries, Messrs. M. A. Hopkins, Alex. Watson and Henry T. Graham report sales generally good, and a marked improvement for the month of February, so far, as compared with January. Mr. Chas. Cole, our harness maker, is kept quite busy, as he should be, his work giving such general satisfaction. Hardware is moving a little slowly this month, although Mr. John Kingsboro finds sales quite up to former years. Mr. Kingsboro has a practical tinsmith busy at work making up stock in preparation for the spring trade.

Johnnie, the 15 year old son, of Mr. Fred Dudman, has been seriously ill for some time past with inflammation, and little hopes are entertained of his recovery. About a week ago he was pronounced out of danger, but a little indiscretion in diet brought on a stubborn stomach trouble, which has complicated the case. Dr. Wilson, Fenelon Falls, was called in consultation on Tuesday. The recovery of the suffering boy is doubtful. The parents have the sympathy of all.

The body of Miss Edith Newman arrived on the evening train last Thursday and was taken in charge by relatives and conveyed to the family residence, about two miles from this village, in the township of Somerville. Miss Newman left her home about two months ago for Silver Springs, N.Y., where she secured employment at the Walker House as chambermaid. On Saturday, 2nd inst, about midnight, she was taken with convulsions and died in spite of medical aid.

The body had been carefully attended to by some friends in Silver Springs, and placed in a neat casket, well boxed, and forwarded here to her relatives.

Politics is becoming a live topic here. The Liberal convention, which was to have been held in Coboconk last week, had to be postponed until the 22nd, on account of the inability of many of the representatives to get out on account of the snow storm. The Liberals are quite enthusiastic and feel satisfied that both North and South Victoria will vote for a change of government.

For the third time Mr. Joe. Bowie has got comfortably settled in his new hotel. Joe has had quite an experience in hotel keeping here, having been burned out three times. The present new building is a substantially built brick building, situated opposite the post office and was built by Mr. Fred Train, sr., contractor and builder. The design is well adapted for a hotel being conveniently laid out. The workmanship reflects credit on Mr. Train's skill as a builder. Joe is always on deck to welcome his friends.

Mr. Gilbert Scott, of the well known Northern Hotel, reports business fairly good, and as he always keeps a comfortable house for the travelling public, is never without his share of the trade.

Mr. Charles Dunbar, the popular manager of the Dunbar House, has always a keen eye to business, and generally gets it. He is an obliging host and keeps a good house and a staff around him to attend to the wants of his numerous customers.

The Salvation Army continues to "hold the fort" on the hill. Every Sunday, in rain or shine, storm or calm, the faithful turn out and parade the street, and hold services nearly all day in their barracks.

Mr. D. McDougall, the village blacksmith, is always busy. Between him and Mr. Jas. Cameron, the farmers' wants are well looked after in their line, and a good job always warranted.

Mr. McDougall has charge of the village weigh scales, and gives satisfaction to all—sellers and buyers.

NEW YEAR NEW GOODS NEW LEAF 1895

On looking over last year's business we find that we have everything to be thankful for, as it was one of the best years that, notwithstanding the hard times, we ever had, and that is saying a great deal.

Now, as this is the season for making good resolutions, we have resolved to surpass, if possible, last year's trade. To attain this end we have duplicated all our fall Clothe and added all the latest winter patterns we could find. We buy for spot cash and can afford to sell on a small margin. Give us a call and we wil do the rest.

Our Gent's Furnishings and Underclothing Departments are both well stocked. We have a few choice Overcoats still left which we will set off cheap.

Almost a Hopeless Case.

A Terrible Cough. No Rest Night nor Day. Given up by Doctors.

A LIFE SAVED

BY TAKING

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Several years ago, I caught a severe cold, attended with a terrible cough that allowed me no rest, either day or night. The doctors, after working over me to the best of their ability, pronounced my case hopeless, and said they could do no more for me. A friend, learning of my trouble, sent me a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which I began to take, and very soon I was greatly relieved. By the time I had used the whole bottle, I was completely cured. I have never had much of a cough since that time, and I firmly believe that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved my life."—W. H. THAT MISSING HORSEBLANKET.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—I noticed in your last week's issue an article which is, I think, misleading. The article I refer to is under the heading "A young man gets into trouble over a horseblanket." Now, sir, allow me space in your columns to give you and your many readers the true and proven facts of the case. On Saturday, Feb. 2nd, I was drawing wood to the Southern Hotel and after unloading went up street to do some business, returning at a quarter to eight o'clock and, as I was passing into the passage from off the street, I noticed a man driving a team and coming towards me at a lively gait. I waited at the side of the gateway for them to pass out and then noticed an object lying on the track in front of me and as I went forward I saw it was a horse blanket. I picked it up and shouted to the man who had passed. He paying no attention and the hotel being closed, I put the blanket on my sleigh and took it home; hence all the trouble. On Tuesday following, the next time I was to town, I called at the same hotel and told Mr. Holland, the proprietor, the bartender and the yardman that I had found a blanket on Saturday night and wanted to know if they knew any person that had lost one. Mr. F. Holland replied, as he was passing by a stall where there was seated four or five men, that Haslitt, one of the inmates had lost it. I went immediately forward to the front of the room and asked him if he had, stating if he would give me a description of the one he had lost and it was his, I would bring it in the next morning for him, as it was then out at my stable. Now, sir, he neither told me he had lost one nor gave me a description, but drove, in company with another, straight to my place and procured the blanket in the very place that I had told them it was. Now, sir, you can judge for yourself whether I have acted as an honest man should or not, as I thought I was advertising in the very best way I knew of. But on their returing to to town he had me placed under arrest for the theft of a robe and blanket. The case was tried on Friday and there was not the first particle of evidence to implicate me in the affair. Far from it. I showed, beyond a doubt, that I was innocent, and the warrant was returned to the Chief of Police as no good. In fact I proved by a well known gentleman in town, whom I luckily happened to give a ride home that night from the hotel, a distance of one mile, and to whom I told I had found a blanket as I went into the yard, that I had no robe but my own.

Now, sir, I do not hesitate to say to every man who heard the case, from the highest officer of the law down to the least concerned listener, that what I had done was right. And I doubt if fifteen out of every twenty would not have taken the blanket home and said nothing about it. Thanking you for space in your columns,

I remain,
Yours truly,
JOHN HOOTEN.

Hints In Dressmaking.

Take a lesson from the tailor, who owes much of his success with tailor-made gowns to his habit of guessing at nothing, but accurately measuring, marking and thoroughly basting before taking a stitch.

A tasteful finish to the long velvet collar is a velvet ribbon bow, having long loops and long ends hanging below the belt.

Merely cutting off the double breasted front, giving a straight edge, with handsome buttons and well made buttonholes, will make an old basque seem new to the wearer.

A dress skirt not only hangs better for having a lining, but it wears very much longer. When you cannot afford a silk lining, select the cheaper one in imitation of silk, which may be found at most stores.

Keep a bit of glue on hand and before putting buttonholes mark their places with the glue slightly moistened. This will cause the threads of the fabric to adhere, so that the cutting and making will not ravel the edge of the buttonhole.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

PULLMAN IN TROUBLE.

He Exceeds the Limits of His Charter "Called Down."

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—The case of Attorney-General against the Pullman Company has been ended with the exception of the filing of a printed brief by the attorneys for the company, and Judge Baker has taken the case under advisement. The case as argued before Judge Baker was entirely upon the sufficiency of the plea filed by the company in justification of its course in building dwelling-houses for the employes, selling gas and water, owning a big down town office building and engaging in other business enterprises which the Attorney-General claims are not authorized by its charter. Judge Baker informed the attorneys that when he received the brief of the company he would prepare a decision in time to take the case on appeal to the Supreme Court at the May terms.

George M. Pullman this afternoon appeared before Judge Grosscup in Chambers and was exonerated from the charge of attempting to evade the order of the court to appear as a witness in the Debs case. He stated that he was not in his office when the bailiff called with the subpoena. Later in the day he left for New York, not to avoid the order of the court, but because he had already made all arrangements to go.

FATAL FIRE AT LYNN.

Three Men Killed—Several Injured—Property Loss, 1000,000.

LYNN, Mass, Feb. 14.—At eight o'clock last night fire was discovered in the basement of the hardware store of W. H. Hutchinson on Munroe st. Two alarms were sounded. The firemen found a brisk fire burning and clouds of smoke pouring out of all the lower windows. The building was of wood and was four stories high. After three-quarters of an hour the flames suddenly appeared through the roof and almost simultaneously the building collapsed like an egg shell. The front on Munro street fell into the street and the side fell into an alleway toward the adjoining building which is of brick. A dozen firemen were buried in the debris in the alleway. Willing volunteers sprang to the rescue. The flames were dangerously near the spot where the men lay buried and all the available streams of water were brought to bear on this point. The work of rescuing went on rapidly and in half an hour eleven firemen had been taken out. Three of them were dead or died in a few minutes after being taken out. They were Capt. Henry L. Skinner of Chemical No. 1; Thos. Murray of Engine No. 3; John Donlan of steamer 3.

Other buildings were destroyed and the loss will reach $100,000.

FIRE CAPTAIN ARRESTED.

Charged With Starting Fires to Increase His Salary.

YPSILANTI, Mich., Feb. 14.—Sam. Graham captain of hose company No. 2, was arrested yesterday charged with incendiarism. For the past twelve months fires destroying vacant houses and outbuildings have been frequent on the east side and the fact that Capt. Graham's men were always ready to respond caused suspicion. Chas. M. Walker has made a confession implicating Captain Graham and Fireman Archie Harrison. Graham was arrested, but Harrison cannot be found. The mysterious fires ceased when several weeks ago the department was re-organized and the system of paying firemen by the hour for work performed was abolished. Graham declares he is innocent.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

TORONTO, Feb. 14, 1895.

On the street to-day 200 bushels of wheat sold at 64 to 64 1-2c for white and 60 1-2c for goose; 500 bushels of barley at 48c, and 200 bushels of oats at 36 to 36 1-2c.

Outside business has not yet recovered from the effects of the storm, and no business is reported.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Money on call 1 to 2. Prime mercantile paper 3 1-2 to 4. Sterling exchange steady actual business 486 1-2 to 87 for sixty days, and 488 1-4 for demand. Posted rates 487 1-1 to 489; commercial bills 485 1-2 to 486 1-4. Government bonds firmer; railroad bonds weaker, Union Pacific of firats of 1895, 103 3-4. Central Pacific firats of 1895 100 1-2 bid. The stock market was uncommonly dull to-day. Speculation was somewhat feverish, but in a majority of instances the fluctuations were slight and final quotations were practically unchanged from those of yesterday.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The stock markets opened dull to-day, but closed active and strong. The rally was mainly owing to the rise in temperature. Americans were better on revived hopes that the Republicans may help to pass a gold bond bill. There was a sharp rally in Grand Trunks and Canada Pacifics on buying of the former of a good nature. Small transactions in the new American loan have actually occurred here at 1-8 premium on whatever price they may be brought out at, gold or currency. Certain magnates of the Kaffir market are said to be connected with the American bond syndicate. Paris exchange on London is still rising and the bourse is buoyant. Indian finance is attracting renewed attention. Either an increased import duty on silver and goods or a fresh loan is expected.

Niagara Falls 30,000 Years Old.

For more than 100 years the scientists of the old and new world have been figuring out the age of the great falls. Elliott in 1790 fixed the age at 55,000 years; Lyell in 1840 claimed the falls could not be over 35,000 years; Woodward in 1886 even reduced the figure to 12,000 years, and still more recently Gilbert, after learned arguments about the matter, estimated their age at sixty-seven centuries. Now Professor Spencer comes forward and says that all calculations so far had been based upon the retrogressive movement of the soil through the action of the water. While this recession is nearly regular, he adds a new element of valuation—that is, the different phases of the formation of the river itself and its greater or lesser force of erosion exerted both on river and bands. Spencer argues that the river has existed for about 32,000 years. During 1,000 years or more it had drained the Erie basin without having formed a cascade. The waters of Lake Ontario getting lower and lower, the falls resulted, but were formed slowly and gradually until they reached their present height. The Niagara Falls as we know them, or nearly so, will last at least 5,000 years longer.—La Nature.

Banishing the Pig From the Parlor.

It is gratifying to learn from the report of the congested districts board for Ireland that the efforts to banish the pig from the parlor are calculated to benefit both the pig and his master. Having noted that the board have offered in the Baltimagh district inducements to small occupiers to provide out-buildings for cattle, as under the present system cattle and pigs spend the night and part of the day in the same apartment as members of the family, the report goes on to say that injurious effects must have to spend many hours amid the effluvia of cattle, while the animals no doubt suffer from the sudden changes from a close atmosphere at night to cold or moist breezes in an unsheltered field or an exposed hillside during the day.—London Daily News.

Look Out

for breakers ahead when pimples, boils, carbuncles and like manifestations of impure blood appear. They wouldn't appear if your blood were pure and your system in the right condition. They show you need a good blood-purifier; that's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It carries health with it. All Blood, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, from a common blotch or eruption to the worst Scrofula, are cured by it. It invigorates the liver purifies and enriches the blood, and rouse every organ into healthful action. In the most stubborn forms of Skin Diseases, such as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Tetter, Erysipelas, Carbuncles, and kindred ailments, and with Scrofula in every shape, and all blood-taints, if it fails to cure, you have your money back. And that makes it the CHEAPEST blood-purifier sold.

A meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Association of Stationary Engineers was held last evening in the S. O. E. hall, Hunter street, with S. Potter, president, in the chair. Some interesting questions were brought up for discussion in regard to steam. An instructive paper on "Steam Heating" was read by Bro. Potter and a well prepared paper on "Energy" was contributed by Bro. T. Duncan.

OPERA HOUSE,

A Big Gold Vein.

A letter received by the Bureau of Mines states that the Bonanza Nickel Mining Company, operating in the Nippising district, are working on a gold vein which has recently been discovered near Lake Wahnapitae, and which has a surface showing of fifty-two feet wide and sixteen hundred feet long. They are taking out a carload of ore for the purpose of having a mill test made at the Kingston School of Mining. The ore is said to assay as high as $100 a ton.

TO-NIGHT,

The Catacombs of Rome.

The people of Peterborough will be pleased to hear that the Rev. Jos. L. Gilmour, of Brockville, has been secured to deliver his interesting and instructive lecture, "The Catacombs of Rome," on Friday evening, 22nd inst., in the Murray street Baptist church. Mr. Gilmour is eminently qualified to speak upon the subject having himself visited Rome and its famous Catacombs—those ancient relics of a bygone age, the sepulchres of Roman senators, and at the same time the dwelling places of the early persecuted Christians. A recent issue of the Carleton Herald says of this lecture: "It was a very clear and graphic description of those ancient and curious burial places." As Peterborough is Mr. Gilmour's former home and native town, his numerous friends here will no doubt be delighted to have this opportunity of hearing him. There will be no charge but those who attend are kindly asked to make a free will offering at the door. 1d

A COAL BED LOCATED IN THE VICINITY OF PETERBOROUGH.

The Sample of a Quality Which Ranks Above the Manitoba Product.

A splendid specimen of Ontario coal was shown to the EXAMINER this morning by Mr. E. F. Coxwell, proprietor and explorer for the Ontario Mining Company.

The sample came from a spot not many miles from Peterborough. It is bituminous and burns readily, giving forth an intense heat. In quality it resembles the Manitoba mineral, though it grades better than the latter and will make excellent fuel for a grate.

From what can be learned, the coal lies in a bed 60x200 feet in breadth and length, and its depth will determine the value of the find, which Mr. Coxwell classes as one of the most important in the mining history of the Province. The coal bed will be prospected and opened up as soon as the snow clears away.

The advantages which would accrue to Peterborough, if a coal bed of any considerable yield was located in the vicinity, would be immense and the outcome of the prospector's investigations will be awaited with no inconsiderable interest. Experts in town who have examined the samples pronounce them of excellent quality. What will the geologists say to this?

Acknowledgement.

A gentleman who was in the pitch-in and snow up on the Midland on Friday and Saturday last, feels that in the interests of justice, acknowledgment should be made of the unusual exhibitions of kindness and humane feeling brought out by the distressing circumstances. For twenty-five hours the train was storm-bound in the country within 13 miles of Toronto. Both railways and highways were blocked and impassable for hours. The passengers were at the mercy of the elements and but for the extraordinary kindness of the farmers in the vicinity, would have had the pangs of hunger added to their other sufferings. As soon as the farmers of Scarboro, in the vicinity, learned of the sad plight of the detained passengers, their big hearts and their larders were opened, and abundant supplies of hot tea and edibles came pouring in, and in such generous profusion that the supply was even greater than the demand. No words can express the gratitude of the the storm-stayed passengers, whose wants were so thoughtfully and promptly relieved. The occasion brought out the holiest instincts of the nature of the passengers also. The greatest consideration and kindness were materially exhibited and the unselfish and helpful side of human nature was shown in its best aspect. A big word of praise should be given the officials of the snow-bound train. Everything that was in their power to do was done for the comfort of the passengers. The names of Mr. Richard Boundy, conductor; Mr. J. Topley, brakeman, and Mr. J. Weighill, conductor of the parlour car, should be especially mentioned, and the latter, Mr. Weighill, is worthy of the highest praise that can be given. He was unremitting in his attentions and great thoughtfulness for all on board, and if ever an angel disguised himself in a brown frieze overcoat, there is the strongest prima facie evidence that Mr. Weighill is the guilty party. The wreck and snow-up on the Midland last week brought out the best side of human nature, and it is fitting that the circumstances should be recorded.

As prognosticated by the EXAMINER, Mr. Dickson Davidson this morning received a telegram from Mr. T. W. R. McRae, of the Belleville Colts, asking for a further postponement of the draw in the Colts series. Judging by appearances it would seem as though the Belleville Colts were waiting until the weather was fine enough to permit of them walking out to Peterborough. The telegram queried as to whether Tuesday evening would suit for the match and an answer has been sent to the effect that it will not. Monday next being preferable. This will be the last chance which will be given Belleville and if a default is made in this case, the Colts of the Bay City will have to forfeit the draws.

The Millbrook-Port Hope match in the latter town resulted as follows:—

HOCKEY.

Only the Ayr, Trinity and Queen's Clubs are left in for the championship of the Ontario Hockey Association.

Every day brings in more names to the promoters of the big hockey excursion to Kingston. Dozens of the citizens will signify to either Messrs. J. P. Hurley, W. J. Montgomery or Walter Phelan before Saturday their intention of accompanying the hockey team to the Limestone city to encourage them to their best efforts to again win the championship of the Intermediate Series of the O. H. A. The train leaves the G. T. R. station at 1.40 p. m. on Saturday, and will return at 8.20 Monday morning.

The Belleville Y.M.C.A. hockey team had decided to enter the competition for the Corby challenge cup, but the directors of the Association met and decided that the team could not play for a trophy under their present name and patronage. Several directors held that the Association was religious and not sporting in its aims and objects. As a result of the directors' decision a meeting of the team has been called, when they will likely change their name and withdraw from under the wing of the Association.

The ice races, which were to have taken place at Trenton yesterday, were postponed because the track had not been completed.

CHROW—SIMPSON NUPTIALS.

A Former Popular Resident of Peterborough Takes Unto Himself a Wife.

Word was received in town, yesterday, by the relatives of Mr. William Chrow, of his marriage, on Tuesday, January 29th to Miss Jean Simpson, of Victoria, British Columbia.

The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, 148 Cormorant Avenue, by Rev. Percival Jenns, in the presence of numerous friends.

Mr. Chrow, who is now residing in Victoria, is an old Peterborough boy, being a son of the late Mr. Edward Chrow. The EXAMINER together with his many other friends in Peterborough extends the heartiest congratulations and expresses the wish that the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Chrow will be a long and a happy one.

Notices of Marriages, Births and Deaths will be inserted at the following rates: Marriages 25c., Births and Deaths 25c.

Judge Ketchum Asks for More Time in Which to Make His Decision.

Mr. E. B. Edwards has just received a communication from Judge Ketchum, of Cobourg, stating that as his time has been very fully occupied since the arbitration, he has been unable to give the evidence the attention which he would wish to bestow upon it.

His Honour asks that the time for making the award be extended until next month. Mr. Edwards has written in answer representing the urgent need of having the award made immediately, if possible, and explaining to Judge Ketchum the loss which will be entailed by further delay.

KICKED FOR HIS PAY.

Employer and Employee Disagree on the Question of Wages.

This morning in the police court Edward Guerin charged John McDonell with assault, and the defendant was fined two dollars and costs.

It appears by the evidence that Guerin was hired to assist in packing some hides and that when he was paid off it was at the rate of one dollar a day, while he understood that he was to receive a dollar and a quarter per diem. He objected to taking less and was ejected from the premises by McDonell, against whom an action for assault was filed with the above mentioned result.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL "FAKE."

The heading of our contemporary, the Review, to a reference made last night to the Trent Valley Canal—"A Nondescript Statement"—is a fitting description of the article that follows. The EXAMINER, in dealing with the aspect of the question it dealt with, knew what it was talking about. We showed that Hon. Mr. Haggart, who had been brought to Peterborough to specially deal with the Trent Valley Canal matter on Thursday night, intended to burk the question entirely. The Review scouts the idea that such was his intention, but the facts sustain the EXAMINER'S contention and emphasize the point that the government is dangling the canal as a bribe before the electors, and that they have no more intention of going on with the work than of building a railway to the moon. What are the facts? At the Opera House meeting Hon. Mr. Haggart, when he began his remarks at half past ten o'clock, stated that he had only half an hour to speak before he would have to start for the train. He proceeded with his speech till within five minutes to eleven o'clock, when an elector, fearing, justly, that the Hon. gentleman would entirely forget the text of his speech, wrote a note, passed it up to Mr. Stevenson, who excitedly caught Mr. Haggart by the arm, and stopping that gentleman in mid-career of his eloquence, switched him off upon the canal. Does this look as if Mr. Haggart, forced to speak upon the subject he came to speak upon, regarded it as of paramount importance, when he devoted the fag end of his speech to a few general remarks, and then only when he was compelled to do so? Everybody, friend and foe, was surprised and disgusted at the minister's action and the evidence it afforded of the "fake" nature of the Government's dealing with this important question.

This last example is only of a piece with the attitude of the Government for years; and it is remarkable that the Government's pretended activity has always assumed an acute form just before a general election. In 1881 an appropriation for surveys was placed in the Dominion estimates. This was a few months before the general elections of the following year and was intended to bear, and doubtless did bear fruit in the return of the government supporters. In February, 1882, a date still nearer the elections, after referring to the handsome surplus in the treasury available for public works, the Review remarked:—

"The Trent Valley Canal stands in the very first rank of those desirable improvements, and we have every reason to hope that a handsome sum will be placed in the estimates for its furtherance. . . The present administration, both from report and personal observation, are convinced of the feasibleness of and the importance of the project, so much that they have PLEDGED themselves to proceed with the construction as soon as the finances would allow. That happy period has certainly arrived."

In June, 1882, still nearer the date of the elections, Sir John Macdonald speaking in Peterborough, declared that he had "a surplus to build the Trent Valley Canal." On July 21st, the Review was rather discouraged about the "happy period" having arrived and rapped the government soundly over the knuckles for its neglect in this matter. Time went on and the expenditure of two or three hundred thousand on a few locks on the route of a canal, that was to cost between five and six millions, seemed to satisfy the party. But nothing more was done till the elections of 1891 loomed in view. Then the Trent Valley Canal was galvanized into life again, and we all remember how big a figure it cut in the way of bribery. We know that a day or two before the polling, the Review published with flaming headlines, and in double leaded type, this telegram from Sir John to Mr. Stevenson:

KINGSTON, March 3rd, 1891.

Trent Valley Canal Commissioners having reported favourably on completion of the scheme, Parliament will be asked in the estimates for a grant for the purpose.

JOHN A. MACDONALD.

We all remember what faith Mr. Stevenson put in this assurance, for he declared on the night of his election, on the platform of the Opera House, on the strength of the assurance of the Minister of Public Works, that 1,000 men would be working on the Peterborough-Lakefield section of the canal the following summer, and if they were not he (Mr. Stevenson) would resign his seat.

Were the thousand men at work? And did Sir John redeem his promise? The electors had trusted again, and were again fooled. And are they ready to swallow the bait again at the coming election? After three years of a do-nothing policy another election approaches and and another Trent Valley Canal boom is started into life, and we have a great activity in the way of surveyors being put at work, and we are told that a section at Lake Simcoe has been put under contract, and that the Peterborough-Lakefield section will shortly be put under contract also. Can we, judging by the past, believe this? By no means, certainly. Except so far as it is necessary to go to make political capital and bribe the electors, the Government has no more intention of building the canal than they have of enlarging the canal system in the planet Mars. Even that hardened political sinner, Sir John Haggart, was ashamed to make the speech he came to Peterborough to make in favour of the canal. But once goaded into referring to the work, he handled it very gingerly, and the only thing he was in earnest in, was in holding out the bribe that if the electors voted for Conservative candidates the canal would be built. Promises and pledges by the hundred have been made and as persistently broken. Will the electors be fooled again?

For the past three or four general elections the people have been fooled with the clap-trap cry of the canal. They have had the bribe dangled before their eyes. They have given their votes, but the goods have not been delivered. Will they again sell their manhood, subordinate their common-sense, and take stock in the last edition of campaign canal flapdoodle? One can make some allowance for a man under the sharp temptation of want, yielding to a money bribe held before his eyes, but it passes comprehension how an intelligent body of electors can swallow the flatulent promises of Government hacks and under-strappers, the bogus pledges of ministers that have been broken and made time and again, and as regularly as the date of an election approaches. After all the dawdling that has been practised, after all the broken promises, electors endowed with common-sense should see that the Trent Valley Canal is being used as a gigantic bribing expedient. The past record of the Dominion government is enough to condemn them forever in the eyes of the people and to destroy all faith in the honesty of their intention to deal honestly and practically with the canal. Their specific promises have been specifically broken year after year for a dozen years and yet we are asked on the verge of a general election to trust to a new set of promises which we have double reason to distrust—on account of past perfidy, and on account of the conditions for further work being impracticable. If, when there was a big surplus as declared by Sir John, in Peterborough, in 1882, the government failed to carry out a specific promise of canal construction, how can we expect any action under the changed conditions? Now we have no surplus but on the other hand a deficit of about five millions. Can the government and their apologists make the people believe that they are in earnest now? True there is a mighty stir about surveying and the letting of contracts; but the genius of the government for subterfuge and standing off is equal to the occasion, and after the next general election there will be another long lull, and then at the close of another parliamentary term another splurge of deputations and another batch of promises, more employment of engineers faithful to the party and anxious for a job.

The moral aspect of this case is really sickening. One blushes for his country which its rulers do not hesitate to resort to trickery and perfidious breach of faith that would disgrace a coterie of gamblers. The pledge of a minister of the crown should be as inviolable as the oath of a king, and yet we see our ministers breaking solemn pledges, holding out false inducements and profiting by the implied bribery. This policy has been carried to such a length that the public conscience has become deadened, till we have the spectacle of a minister of the Crown handling a corruption fund of $112,000 and boasting on the floor of the House, with unrepentant effrontery, that under the same circumstances he would do the same thing again. Can we expect good faith from a Government that condones such acts? The country is honeycombed with corruption in high places, and there is no hope for a reform unless the people waken to a gravity of the situation. Where is the "righteousness that exalteth a nation?" Every Sunday in a thousand pulpits we hear preachers pray for our beloved country, but they may pray till their tongues cleave to the roofs of their mouths, unless they add to faith, work—until they boldly and uncompromisingly preach down the monstrous morality that obtains so largely in this country, that the end justifies the means—till they denounce and excoriate the men that practice and pander to political wickedness in high places.

The EXAMINER has always advocated the construction of the Trent Valley Canal as a work necessary in the interest of the carrying trade of the country, and the development of our Northwest regions, but it cannot endorse the scandalous trifling with the scheme that is now going on, nor the uses that have been made of it for bribing constituencies by wholesale along its route. The Review may prate all it likes about "nonsensical statements," but the people know that the contentions the EXAMINER has insisted on as to the bad faith of the government have been sustained, are being sustained, and will be sustained by the facts.

ANNUAL MEETING CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

Election of Officers—Report of the Secretary—Outline of the Work Done—Abused and Neglected Children Cared for.

The annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the council chamber chamber with Sheriff Hall, the president, in the chair.

Among those present were:—General Haultain, Rev. J. J. Rae, Rev. Dr. Torrance, W. Clurton, A. C. Dunlop, Mrs. Kendry, Mrs. O'Donovan, Mrs. O'Sullivan, H. S. Macdonald, Peter Campbell, Miss Martha Dickson, Mrs. C. McGill, Miss Bolster, Miss Thompson, Miss Rogar, Miss Code, Miss Loveday, Mr. Edwards, Mr. J. W. Bennett, Mr. Bamford, Mr. H. Burnham, Mr. F. W. Miller (agent), and Chief Rossel.

The officers were all re-elected, with the exception of one of the vice-presidents. Mrs. Kendry was chosen to fill the vacant office.

The Board of Management elected for 1895 is as follows:—

Ladies—Mrs. O'Sullivan, Mrs. McGill, Mrs. Wm. Walsh, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. R. W. Bell, Mrs. Gilchrist, Miss Code, Miss Chamberlain, Miss Martha Dickson, Miss Nicholls.

Gentlemen—Revs. Dr. Torrance, Father Scollard, W. R. Young, H. Symonds, J. J. Rae, J. C. Davidson, J. E. Trotter, and Messrs. Peter Campbell, W. B. Bamford and Dr. Brennan.

Mr. J. W. Bennett, auditor.

The following is the secretary's annual report:—

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The Society has had a favourable year. The state of the law prior to the recent Dominion and Ontario legislation for the benefit of children was such that some colour was lent to the charge of laws being only for the protection of those who least needed them. The rich and powerful need laws the least. The most defenceless portion of the community is made up of orphaned and unwanted children, and it was for them that this legislation was provided. To the Right Hon. Sir John Thompson and to the Hon. J. M. Gibson great praise is due for the care and solicitation shown by them in thus improving the law regarding children. This law cannot be carried out except by Children's Aid Societies, which are especially mentioned in the acts. There was heretofore not an act on the statute book that allowed the community to say to a judge about to send a child to gaol, "We will take the child, if you will give it to us, and do our best for it. We are confident that if it be given half a chance it will turn out a respectable citizen." The judge may now say, what he could not say before, "Take it, care for it, and report to the Government." If it be sickly or injured we put it in the hospital. When it gets well, and has realised perhaps for the first time, what kindness is, it would, indeed, be a stony heart that could forbear emotion. The pinched, distressed, hunted look entirely gone and something of the brightness of childhood in its place.

In a few instances it was thought that perhaps the system would be expensive. This is is not the case. It does away with misplaced charity and tends to prevent the rapid increase of the number of those who live upon the public, though they are able to work for themselves. Is it not less expensive to rescue children and put them in the way of doing well than to bonus idleness and vice? Our solicitor has for some months been carrying on a correspondence with the Barnardo Home authorities in England and we are enabled now to announce that there is every prospect that the Peterborough home for girls and the Toronto home for boys will, within a short time be placed at our disposal as temporary shelters, subject of course to a satisfactory arrangements of terms. In this way the Barnardo system is turned to the advantage of children in this country as well as in England. Our children are dealt with in the same way and all we ask the town and county to pay is a small sum for the accommodation of these children in the shelter until we can find homes for them in suitable private families.

With regard to the jurisdiction of the society unless the case is such that the judge or magistrate would send those concerned to prison if they were brought before him as vagrants, or worse, the society does not step in. It is the humane officer of the courts. The judge or magistrate has the deciding power, the same as hitherto. But how many cases might have been properly dealt with formerly without dragging women and children into prison if there had been such laws as there is now for their protection.

To the county and town councils, the press, the police, the hospital authorities, and our patient friends, the nurses, our especial thanks are due.

The doings of the year may be briefly summed up as per schedule for government report:—

COMPLAINTS.

1. Number of cases of cruelty and cruel ill-treatment—6.
2. Causes of ill-treatment—Dislike of children and vice.
3. Number of complaints, all told—31, involving directly and indirectly not less than 60 children.
4. Warnings sent—6 (sufficient.)
5. Cases in court—2.
6. Children given temporary shelter—3.
7. Wards in society's care—3.
8. In foster-homes—2.

The remaining cases are being investigated as rapidly as possible. The agent, Mr Finch Miller, is in every respect most satisfactory. The town council considered our representations and have placed us on a working basis in relation to the town. The county council asked us to confer with each municipality separately, and have shown us every possible consideration and have given us the kindest encouragement.

The Rev. Mr. Starr delivered an excellent lecture in our behalf in December. There have been the required number of general meetings. The Government inspector inspected the books and work and found them satisfactory. No business is in arrear. The appointment of an agent under the Children's Act relieves the Society from other than deliberate work. Funds are urgently needed. The Society must bear all the expenses incurred by it except the small part for temporary shelter referred to. Several cases of distress might have been attended to but for the lack of funds. His Honour Judge McDonald will lecture for the Society in March. Though engaged on commissions for the Dominion Government in addition to his other work, he says that he will surely find time to say a word on behalf of this movement.

With the permission of the authorities, an office has been secured in the Town Buildings, which enables the management to handle the Society's affairs in a regular and business-like way. The agent has office hours, when complaints may be made personally and interviews held. It is necessary to appoint auditors to examine the financials as usual. Briefly, the receipts were $31, and the expenditure $160. Of this the Society is liable for $60. As you are aware, the Board of Management is the controlling body under the Society.

Examples of cases taken in hand by the Society:

1. Family of four, father, mother and two boys under 14. Father drunken and very cruel, beat his wife frequently, and tried to burn his children; had gone on so for years; husband frequently summonsed, but as wife had no friends she was afraid to prosecute; Society investigated, reported to police; husband sent down by magistrate for six months; Society got separation papers for wife, so that she can live by herself, and husband will be trespasser.
2. Father, mother and 6 young children, quite destitute—children rapidly becoming vicious—cause, vice of mother—Society stepped in—cause removed at husband's request—children now orderly and the worst one going to school.
3. Father kicks wife and children out of bed and out of doors—night very cold—father well known for brutality—Society interferes—reports favourable.
4. Father peculiar and frequently in gaol—wife ordered out of town by magistrate as too vicious to be allowed to live here—great depravity—young girl handed over to Society—put in hospital—now in temporary shelter.
5. Case north of Kinmount—mother and father recently dead—two young girls left with helpless old grandfather—men beginning to visit house—shantyman reports imminent danger of girls—Society puts case in hands of Ontario Government—agents sent to rescue.
6. Husband gets drunk—hammers, kicks and turns out wife and children. Warned—keeps quiet now.
7. Boy 4 years old—ill with bronchial pneumonia—doctor says case hopeless if boy not removed from destitute surroundings—Society puts child in hospital—almost well now—once pale and thin, now fat and happy.

What John Wanamaker, the Most Heavily Insured man in America, Says:

(INTERVIEW WITH JOHN WANAMAKER.)

It is very generally known that Ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, carries the largest amount of Life Insurance of any man in the United States. A representative of the press recently interviewed this gentleman while he was travelling with the Presidential party, and this interview will be found, we believe, of general interest:—

"You are said to be the most heavily insured man in the country, Mr. Wanamaker," remarked the press representative.

"How did you come to think of that?" he said with a smile. "You are not looking for any disaster under such excellent management as our friend Boyd is giving this train and party?"

"No," I replied. "A newspaper friend in San Francisco, who had heard the report, wanted me to ask you it it was true, and if so, what your business reasons are for it?"

"Well," he modestly answered, "I have heard it stated that I am the most heavily insured man in the country. I don't know about that. The amount of my policies is $1,550,000, and the value, with the accumulations since the policies were taken out, is about two millions of dollars."

"In what class of companies are your policies?"

"They are all in stock and mutual companies, and none of them in what are known as assessment or instalment companies."

"Are they full life term policies or on what is termed the 'tontine' plan?"

"I have generally taken ten and fifteen payment policies and very few life policies. With about all good companies a contract can now be made whereby there is no risk of losing a policy after two years' premiums have been paid. If the party insured chooses to withdraw he can get a paid-up policy. Indeed, I understand that some companies have forms whereby the insurer can after one year, if desired, withdraw and receive a paid-up policy. There is practically little risk, any more, in insuring in the old companies."

"Perhaps you would be willing to tell me how you came to insure so heavily?"

"I thought the matter out, and convinced myself that it was a good business venture. Besides, it seemed to me that I might, perhaps, give away more money in lifetime if there was a fixed certainty of putting it back into my estate by Life Insurance. I conceive that the best way for a man to carry on benevolence is not to leave it to be done through his will, but to do it in his lifetime, and I felt that Life Insurance would give me more freedom in carrying out some plans I have, and which I would be glad to see completed before I leave this world. If you want to ascertain what the circumstances were in placing the Life Insurance, I must go further in my answers and say that I should not have gone so far in my Life Insurance but for the skill of the agent who tackled me to insure to a greater extent than I would otherwise have done. He was an old friend who had been in mercantile business and who knew how to present Life Insurance without boring me. I feel to-day sincerely grateful to the man who followed me so discreetly with information about companies, and who kept the subject before me until I settled the question."

"When did you begin taking Life Insurance policies?"

"My first policy was taken when I was twenty-one."

"Do you consider it a good thing for a man of small means?"

"I certainly do. Most young men spend more for cigars during the year than the annual cost of a $2,500 policy in a good company. If they must have the cigars they might divide between cigars and Life Insurance and carry at least a $1,000 policy. I think every young man, before he is married, ought to try to get at least a $1,000 policy."

"Among how many companies are your policies divided, and where are they located?"

"About forty companies. Most of them are located in the East. A few are in the West and a few in Canada."

"Do you recommend Life Insurance to others, especially those in whom you feel a personal interest?"

"I can perhaps answer that best by saying that I presented a few years ago a $1,000 policy, paid up for one year, to every insurable head of family in my employ. Many of the prudent men who received them not only kept them but added to them, and I have the satisfaction of knowing that in not a few cases those policies have been the means of saving worthy families from want."

It will doubtless be of interest to our readers to know that John Wanamaker carries a large policy in the Canada Life Insurance Company, thus evincing his confidence in the soundness of Canada's oldest and largest Company. During the last few years quite a number of American capitalists have been convinced of the SUPERIOR MERITS OF THE CANADA LIFE, and have accordingly placed their insurance therein, in preference to any other company.

The Canada Life is now being recognized in the states of Michigan, Minnesota and Ohio as the Company that gives the best results for the least premium.

THE ROOF TREE.

I.

Home no more home to me, whither must I wander?
Hunger my driver, I go where I must,
Cold blows the winter wind over hill and heather;
Thick drives the rain, and my roof is in the dust;
Loved of wise men was the shade of my roof-tree,
The true word of welcome was spoken in the door—
Dear days of old, with the faces in the fire-light,
Kind folks of old, you come again no more.

II.

Home was home then, my dear, full of kindly faces;
Home was home then, my dear, happy for the child,
Fire and the windows bright glittered on the moorland;
Song, tuneful song, built a palace in the wild.
Now, when day dawns on the brow of the moorland,
Lone stands the house, and the chimney-stone is cold;
Lone let it stand, now the friends are all departed,
The kind hearts, the true hearts that loved the place of old.

III.

Spring shall come, come again, calling up the moorfowl;
Spring shall bring the sun and rain, bring the bees and flowers;
Red shall the heather bloom over hill and valley,
Soft flow the stream through the even-flowing hours;
Fair the day shine as it shone on my childhood—
Fair shine the day on the house with open door;
Birds come and crop there and twitter in the chimney—
But I go forever and come again no more.

—ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

WILL TEAR DOWN "AULD REEKIE."

Ancient Portions of Edinburgh Must Give Way to Modern Improvement.

"The town council have in contemplation schemes involving the removal of almost every vestige of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries" in part of Edinburgh, and, if Bailie Macpherson has his will, they intend to substitute "terraces of model working class houses." So Mr. Reid says in his "New Lights on Old Edinburgh." The sanitary reformer may rejoice, but the antiquary despairs. Old Edinburgh, says the London News, has still many picturesque and disgusting quarters; the sights partially atone for the smell, and old coats of armor, old turrets, old names cannot be abandoned without a sigh. However, it is the affair of the Edinburgh people, who have the right to decide whether they will preserve a relic, or destroy a rookery. The clever fellow who would be "none the waur o' a hanging" is an old friend. Robert Chambers collected most of what was worth remembering. Miss Warrender, Dr. Wilson, Miss Dunlop, Mrs. Oliphant, James Grant and others have gleaned in his track. The large historical scenes, "Clear the Causeway;" the affairs of Queen Mary, the row over the Liturgy, the signing of the Covenant, the Porteous riot, the proclaiming of King James at Edinburgh Cross, with out the "50,000 foot and horse," desired by the songster; the clipping of the royal bed curtains at Holyrood by a lady more fond of relics than careful of her reputation; the insult by Paul Jones; the house of Major Weir; the high jinks of the lawyers; the arrival of Burns; the manners and customs of David Hume and the literati; the revels of Christopher North—all these are familiar to everybody. The tourist in Edinburgh perhaps, confines himself to Holyrood, the castle and Princes street. The foolish young fellow who deceived the intelligent American had an easy victim. Being asked, "Which was Mons Meg?" at the castle he pointed to Arthur's seat. "There it is. The name is derived from Mons, a mountain, and means big." Probably few explorers dive into the unsavory closes, where peers dwelt of old, and the taverns where Jacobites "powdered their hair" before failing to take the castle, "Singing Jimmy Balfour," interests them not, nor do they love the Cowgate because it is the seat of one of Burns' least romantic love affairs. But the infrequent antiquary loves to prowl about, peopling the closes with ladies in powder. Humphrey Clinker on his travels, judges, wits, smugglers, poets and all the masquerade of many insanitary centuries. Here Effie Deans lay hidden; here Catriona peeped from the casement at David Balfour; in this house Waverley "majored before the looking-glass," wearing trews and tartans; down this wynd (in fact as in fiction) James Mohr McGregor was led to see Prestongrange, under the eyes of the advocates three bonny daughters, Allan Ramsay's Goddesses Three. Not being in the secrets of the town council and Bailie Macpherson, we can't say how much will be taken and how much left.

Acting through the blood, Hood's Sarsaparilla not only cures scrofula, salt rheum, etc., but gives health and vigor to the whole body.

MME. JONIAUX.

History of the Woman Who Has Been Convicted of a Triple Murder.

grow insane or die before three years are over. At least no prisoner thus sentenced to death and whose sentence has been commuted has so far escaped the fate. The triple murderer belongs to one of the best families in Belgium. Her father was a general in the army and her husband is a civil engineer. She was accused of the murder of her sister, Mlle. Leonie Ablay; her uncle M. Jacques Van Den Kerchove, and her brother, M. Alfred Ablay, whom she poisoned—her brother and sister in order to secure the heavy insurance she had placed on their lives, and her uncle for the purpose of preventing him making a will that would have debarred her from inheriting the whole of his property.

The principal evidence against her was secured by an examination of the body of the brother, which was disinterred at the instance of the insurance company. From the first and throughout her trial the accused protested her innocence, and the severest kind of a cross-examination failed to entrap her into making damaging admissions. The case caused a great sensation in Belgium, and has attracted widespread attention both in Europe and this country.

Secrets of Their Lives.

Every man's life, no matter how humble, would furnish an interesting book if cleverly written. You can't always tell by a glance at a man what his past has been. There is a humble carpenter in town who was the prize orator at an Eastern college. Not far from the home of the writer of this there lives an ugly, decrepit old woman who was considered in her youth the handsomest girl in Kentucky. Poems were written about her, men went crazy over her, and duels were fought by jealous admirers. Yet she married a worthless man who got drunk and abused her. The intensely religious life followed by another man in town is the result of remorse over having caused the death of a comrade a great many years ago. A woman who was once presented at court in England is not admitted to the best society in Atchison. A highly respectable citizen sends $1,000 a year away to the conscience fund at Washington. Young people are interesting for what they are, but the older folks are more interesting for what they have been, if they could be induced to tell the story.—Atchison Globe.

The only blood-purifier admitted on exhibition at the Chicago World's Fair was Ayer's Sarsaparilla, all others being excluded as secret preparations and patent medicines. With doctors and pharmacists, it has always been considered a standard remedy.

ITS HOPE IN CANADA.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S MISERY ONLY RELIEVED BY THIS PROSPECT.

The Rule of the Merchants, Growing Out of Peculiar Conditions, Made Bondsmen of Fishermen—Politics Aggravated the Situation—Many People Starving.

(SPECIAL St. JOHN'S, N.F., LETTER Cor.)—Newfoundland to-day is a country without banks, without currency, without credit. Its commerce and trade are shattered. Its population is reduced to hopeless misery.

The country was devastated by a financial cyclone in December, and the mischief then done cannot be repaired for the next ten years. Words fail to do justice to the appalling conditions of stagnation and destitution that exist and every day the colony settles deeper in the quagmire of commercial and national disaster.

Not often does one man's death bring about such fearful consequences as the pauperization—for that is what it virtually means—of a whole country. Yet the immediate visible cause of Newfoundland's disaster was the death of a London merchant, Mr. Hall, who acted as financial agent for most of the fish exporting houses in Newfoundland. They shipped cargoes of fish and drew exchanges on his firm—Prowse, Hall & Morris—to cover the proceeds of sales. When he died the trustees of the estate decided to accept no more exchange until his affairs were arranged and they familiarized themselves with the Newfoundland branch of the business, which Mr. Hall had control of.

When, therefore, they refused the exchanges, the holders demanded payment of the banks here which indorsed the paper, and these and their customers not having the funds to meet the demand had to close their doors, which, in many cases, will never reopen. But the real operating causes were far more serious, complex and far reaching.

Newfoundland is England's oldest colony. The extensive and valuable fisheries of the island attracted the hardy, daring mariners of Western Europe in the sixteenth century and down to recent years. When England annexed Newfoundland in 1684 she found her mastery disputed by rivals. France and England struggled for control for many years, for both recognized in the cod-fishery an unequalled nursery for their seamen. England succeeded, but "lost by diplomacy what she gained by the sword."

The Treaty of Utrecht in 1713 gave French fishermen a concurrent right to catch and dry fish along 1,500 miles of the west and northeast coasts of this island, and this is the keystone of Newfoundland's present decadence. France was also given possession of the small islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, south of St. John's, and made them the base of a commercial war on England and her unfortunate colony.

The phrase "concurrent right" in the treaty is the kernel of the whole difficulty. The French contend it gives them a prior right and obliges the Britisher to refrain from interfering with them.

This contention is repudiated by England; but the French contention nevertheless works to the disadvantage of the Newfoundland fisherman. Should the latter be meeting with success in the fishery in a certain harbor and a Frenchman enters and desires the place, he simply takes it.

Newfoundland being small and having only 200,000 inhabitants, is powerless to resist such outrages, and, though frequent attempts have been made to settle the question, they have been invariably frustrated.

The only hope of the colony which is worth considering is joining the Canadian Confederation, and accessions to the number who so believe are added to the ranks of those working that way every day. The condition of the country is very serious.

ST. JOHN'S, CAPITAL OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

The French bounty system and the damage it occasioned abroad sowed the seeds that fructified in our recent financial collapse.

The cod-fishery in this country is controlled by a dozen or fifteen merchants, who practically own and manipulate it.

The system under which it is pursued is a relic of ancient times, as in this and other respects Newfoundland is a hundred years behind the age. It is known as the supply or "truck" system. The merchant feeds and clothes the fisherman and his family and takes the fruits of his labor in return.

This pernicious system is ingrained into the business of the whole country and its overthrow now has paralyzed every branch of trade.

It had its origin a couple of centuries ago, when vessels sailed out here from England every spring, fished all summer and returned in the fall. It was a penal offence for a shipmaster to leave a man behind on the island when returning.

In those days the first captain entering a harbor was admiral for the season, the second vice-admiral, and the third, rear-admiral. They administered justice in summary fashion—always to their own advantage. A favorite pastime was to burn down the house of an unfortunate settler who had evaded the above-mentioned infamous enactment.

The merchant provided the fishermen with everything essential to the prosecution of the fishery, and when the season ended the fisherman placed his catch in the hands of the merchant, who, after recouping himself for his advances, with a very liberal allowance for the risk, paid the fisherman the remainder, or more frequently carried it on his books for "safe-keeping" for the fisherman, and traded on it without allowing the owner a cent of interest.

This practice, with but slight changes, obtains all over Newfoundland to this day. The fisherman, a hardy, brave, industrious fellow, resolves on acquiring a competence for himself and family. He comes to St. John's, arranges with a merchant, and obtains an outfit in the spring. Not unfrequently he builds his own fishing vessel, for he can cut the wood, build the craft, launch and rig her, then sail her himself with a sufficient crew and use her in his enterprise.

His outfit obtained, he endeavors to secure a full cargo of fish, which is "put off" at the merchant's wharf in St. John's, and, the prices having been previously settled by the mercantile body here, he is paid at the ruling rate and his account squared. But he is usually in the merchant's debt, and that 'cute person generally contrives to keep him there.

The condition of the fisherman is little better than one of servitude. He is under the merchant's control, and is compelled to obey his merest whim.

French bounty-fed competition forced down the price of fish abroad, and rendered the industry unproductive. This necessitated reduced prices for the product here, but when the merchants came to reduce they found it not so easy.

Politicians, to gain popular favor, declaimed against a reduction, declaring the merchants were robbing the fishermen of their just due and amassing fortunes for themselves. Merchants were painted as robbers, extortioners; glowing speeches were made of their conspiracies against the people, and soon "Down with the Merchants" became a powerful political battle cry. But the merchants controlled the banks and used their opportunities to carry on their own business, obtaining astonishing overdrafts.

When the condition of the two banks was investigated an exposure of rottenness and mismanagement was made that has rarely, if ever, been equalled. The overdrafts in each bank amounted to about $2,000,000, and of this the directors in each case overdrew more than half.

The overdrawn accounts of the Union Bank were $3,151,000; of this the directors obtained $1,183,000. One director overdrew $489,000; another had $458,000.

In the Commercial the overdrawn accounts were $2,1[illegible]8,000. The directors took out $1,240,000, one director alone getting $557,000.

The capital stock of the Union Bank was only $556,000, and of the Commercial but $306,000.

Had the crash of Dec. 10 been delayed two months later, two million dollars worth of fish products, now stored in St. John's, would have been marketed.

Politics also helped to bring about the downfall and accentuate the bitterness of the present situation. The merchants formed a political party, and were at times successful in obtaining control.

Of work there is none, and no prospects of any. It is the hopelessness of future employment that makes the situation so distressing. Fully a third of the population of St. John's must be pinched with hunger.

In the outposts, or fishing settlements, the conditions are similar.

Confederation appears the most probable and fitting conclusion to a hopeless, enervating struggle. Newfoundland is the only British dependency in North America not included in the Canadian Federation, and it has been the dream of every Canadian Premier to "round off the Dominion" by the admission of Newfoundland, thus forming a United Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It seems as if Newfoundland will accept confederation as the only remedy for a desperate disease.

AN OFT-TOLD TALE

Illustrating the hollowness of relationship in time of trouble and showing how the widow's stay and the orphan's shield is a policy in the Manufacturers' Life.

When God removed Papa to Heaven,
And Ma was left to strive for seven,
With scarce enough for burial fees.
(So lingering was poor Pa's disease).
Though full of grief, we'd no despair,
Relations spoke so kind and fair.
Our Grandpa said that he, for one,
Would try and see what could be done.
Our Uncle William and our Aunt,
Hoped we should never come to want
But mother's brothers talked the best,
A great deal kinder than the rest.
They said that home they'd take us all,
Only their rooms were few and small.
We'd promises from Uncle Page,
To push us forward when of age.
They then went home, but stop, I miss,

They gave us every one, a kiss,
And said,' be good and mind Mamma,
And we will be to you—Papa."
For many weeks they could not come,
So much were they engaged at home.
Until they heard Mamma had found
Behind Pa's desk upon the ground,
An envelope, "to my dear wife,"
Five Thousand Manufacturers' Life
Which soon the Manufacturers' paid.
So Ma commenced a genteel trade,
And then they came, it seemed so funny,
To beg Mamma would lend them money.
But Ma said no, if you are poor,
A trifle will your life insure;
And then the Manufacturers shall
Your best friend be what'er befall.

A BOON TO ALL SICK ONES

Cures When Other Medicines and Doctors Have Failed

RESTORES THE SICK TO HEALTH.

"I Can Attribute My Restoration to Health Solely to South American Nervine." Says C. J. Curtis, of Windsor.

C. J. CURTIS, WINDSOR, ONT.

When one has climbed a high mountain it is not difficult to mount the ordinary hill. A medicine that will cure when the case is a desperate one, may be safely taken as a good all round medicine in ordinary cases, and it is not alone the very sick who need medicine.

The statement is borne out by a multitude of facts, thousands of testimonials from reputable citizens, that South American Nervine cures, after what are considered the best medicines in the country have failed, and where the skill of the ablest physicians has come to naught.

The acknowledged scientific principle of disease is weakness and disorganization at the nerve centers. These nerve centers are the main spring of the whole system. When the stomach is out of order the certain remedy is to set the nerve centers in right condition again, so with every other trouble. Thus it is that it may be liver complaint, nervousness, indigestion, heartburn, sour stomach, loss of appetite, impoverished blood, consumption of the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, sick or nervous headache, sleeplessness, pains in the kidneys, or other ailments from which a person is suffering South American Nervine will cure, and cure quickly, and best of all cure effectively and lastingly in every such case.

Much as we were disposed to laugh at La Grippe as a trifling complaint when it first made itself known in this country, later developments have proved that it is a serious malady. The after effects are such that very thorough measures need to be taken to ensure perfect restoration to health. South American Nervine has proven wonderfully efficacious in giving back health to the victims of La Grippe. Mr. C. J. Curtis, a wealthy and well known farmer near Windsor, Ont., suffered from a severe attack of this malady, leaving him exceedingly weak and with no appetite. No medicine seemed to do him any good until he was influenced to try South American Nervine and his testimony is this: "After taking one bottle I found very great benefit from it, my appetite improved wonderfully, and I felt my strength returning very fast." Mr. Curtis then purchased five bottles, but after taking only three out of the five, to use his own words: "I am feeling as nearly well to-day as I ever did, and I can attribute my restoration to health and strength solely to South American Nervine."
